SOMEONE STOLE JUG OF WHISKY

Lindsay Trapper Has Unpleasant Experience at Emily Creek

A Lindsay trapper was up at Emily Creek the other day preparing his camp for the muskrat season. Among the "stores" he took along with him was a gallon jug of the best whisky obtainable. This he secreted in what he thought was a safe hiding place.

The tent was put up and everything prepared. The man then went on a little exploring expedition one day and left the camp with no one in charge. He had been absent some time, and when he got back things looked as though someone had been ransacking the place. Investigation showed the jug of whisky to have been taken. There is a fixed rule among trappers that the tent of the other fellow is to be left strictly alone when he is absent, and the trapper pondered deeply over who could have stolen his "firewater." The problem was solved later when several drunken Indians were discovered a little further down the river. The story is that the Indians who have a keen scent, probably inherited from their savage ancestors, smelled the whisky when they were passing and could not resist the temptation to steal it. They imbibed the stolen liquor and became helplessly drunk.

WAS SENTENCED TO ONE MONTH

Young Married Man Who Was Charged With Stealing Tools Was Given One Month in Jail and Will be Put on Blacklist

Hector Baker, who was arrested last Wednesday on a charge of having stolen a quantity of carpenter tools, the property of Mr Robert Trew, on the same day was given his trial at the police court this morning and after hearing the evidence of the complainant and defendant the Magistrate sentenced the accused to one month in jail, and when his time is up he will be posted on the black list. Mr G N. Gordon appeared for the accused.

The first witness was Mr Robert Trew, from whom the tools were stolen. He said that he had left the bag containing the tools on Mr Shadgett's doorstep on Murray street while he went over to George street but when he returned the tools were gone. Meeting a citizen he asked if he had noticed anybody with the bag and was told that a person had gone down Murray street with the above mentioned article. The complainant notified the police and P C McGinty and himself made a trip to a Murray street residence where the prisoner lived and found the tools in a chest. The accused told the policeman that he had got the tools on George street.

The prisoner was called and stated he did not remember anything about taking the tools as he had been under the influence of liquor at the time. He was a bricklayer by trade but had not been working very much lately. He thought it would be better for himself and family if he was "posted."

This was all the evidence taken and the Magistrate sentenced him to one month in jail and at the expiration of his sentence to be served with the black list notice.

The defendant's counsel asked that the Magistrate deal leniently with the accused as it was only when under the influence of liquor that he got into trouble but to the Magistrate his past record was not very favorable, and he did not see why he should receive any consideration from the court.

PRESENTATION AT GILMOUR CHURCH

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Scott Honored Before Departing for the West

At Gilmour Memorial church yesterday afternoon the retiring superintendent, Mr. F. W. Scott, was presented with a purse of $25 and an appropriate address. The address was read by Miss A. M. Darling, and the presentation was made by Mr. W. Scott. Mr. and Mrs. Scott are leaving for Saskatoon in the near future, and their departure is greatly regretted by their friends and neighbors. The address was as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Scott,
Smith Township.

Dear Friends,—We, the members and adherents of Gilmour Memorial Baptist church, feel that we cannot allow this opportunity to pass without acknowledging our high estimation of your noble characters, and recognizing in a fitting manner the value of your services to the church.

As superintendent of the Sunday school you, Mr. Scott, have been most devoted and untiring in your efforts to make the school a success. In the prayer meeting and the Young People's Society your faithfulness and helpfulness have been a blessing to both pastor and people.

In reference to your estimable wife, we can not mention a branch of church work which will not surely miss her presence and assistance. Her many talents were cheerfully given to the service of the Master. We feel that in your severing from us we lose two of our most efficient helpers.

We ask you to accept this purse as a slight token of the love and esteem in which we hold you.

As you may take up your home in the distant west our earnest prayer will be that your consecrated gifts and powers may find full scope, and bring you blessing and honor of God and mankind.

HYSLOP BICYCLES

Bicycles are rapidly coming back into popular favor, the demand this year being five times what it was five years ago. We have planned for it in two ways—by getting the very best English wheel we can for popular selling, and saving to our customers all intermediate profits by filling orders direct by mail instead of through agents. In this way we can offer and give better satisfaction all round. The quality of the wheels is all right —only the best materials used and only skilled mechanics employed in construction. The equipment is right up-to-date and the machines throughout are such as we can thoroughly recommend. We sell automobiles as well as bicycles and our plan is to make wheels serve as a good advertisement to the entire business. Send for illustrated folder.

FRED SIMPSON'S OPPONENT HAS DANGEROUS RECORD

The Toronto Star says:

New York, April 3.—Fred Appleby, the Englishman who meets Fred Simpson at Rosedale Grounds Friday, is another one of the diminutive type of runners. Appleby is a ringer for Henri St. Yves as far as height and weight go. He is 29 years of age, stands 5 feet 4 inches high, and weighs 120 pounds.

"This shrimp is a bigger shrimp than the one who tramped on Longboat's heels in the English Marathon," he said to-day. "I am bigger and stronger than I was then, and with consistent training outdoors will do a good deal better."

Appleby's great desire is to get a crack at Alfie Shrubb. Though he doesn't say it, he thinks agile Alfred has got a whole lot of easy money.

"I'll run Alfred Shrubb any distance from 10 miles up," said Appleby. "I want to meet him right away, for I have to go home early in May, so I haven't much time. I'll run any or all of them any place I can see a reasonable return for it. I'd like to meet Longboat at any distance, but apparently I am not to get the chance; at least I cannot see one now. I am frozen out in New York by the powers that be."

A WONDERFUL RECORD

Appleby has a great record. He hold all the world's records from 12 miles up. He did 12 miles in 1.04 in 1904, and holds the 13-mile record at 1.09.20, the 14 at 1.14.48, and the 15 at 1.20.04 3-5. His 20-mile record is 1.56.20. He made this in the English Olympic trial in a gale of wind, snow and sleet. He led Duncan, Lord, and Beal, all 5-foot 10 men, and then quit, numbed with the cold. Duncan won.

BEAT SHRUBB TWICE.

Appleby beat Shrubb twice at 25 miles in 1902. In the first race in March he lapped him at 12 miles, and ran away from him. Shrubb made the pace to this point, but it was a battle from the 5-mile mark. In the second race at Stamford Bridge, July 21, the return race, Appleby did the donkey work, the pacing, for 14 3-4 miles, and then beat his opponent 80 yards in the last quarter, doing the quarter in 1.07. The first quarter was done in 1.08, and the first 10 in 53 flat. The first mile was covered in 5.08, and the last mile in 5.10. Appleby was third in the 4-mile grass race, in which Shrubb made the record, and second in the three-mile grass race.

He beat Aldridge in the 15-mile race at Manchester, in which he defeated Shrubb, but Aldridge beat him across country several times.

"I lacked the weight to be good across country," said Appleby.

TRAINED BY HIS BROTHER.

Appleby will be trained by his brother, who has been in Canada four years. His brother was in Ivanhoe, Ont., for two years, and has been 40 miles north-west of Battleford in the Territories since. He says he is a Canadian, and wants Fred to stay in the Dominion.

WRESTLING

MOHL LOST OF COURSE

Bad blood still exists between Mohl and Rogers. The pair were going to fight in Hamilton, as the following despatch will show:

Yankee Rogers and Fritz Mohl, the two well known heavyweight wrestlers were the attraction at the Grand opera house Friday night hooking up in a catch as catch can bout, best two in three falls, Rogers proving the winner, taking the first fall in thirty-five minutes and fifteen seconds, and the second fall in three minutes. The big fellows put on a rattling good exhibition and although Yankee was much the superior, showing a great deal more knowledge of the game he was forced to go the route for a while by the heavy German. The affair was very poorly attended but those who were there were given an interesting exhibition.

Larry Burke refereed the big bout and handled it well. Mohl showed a disposition to rough matters and it was not until the last few minutes of the match that Rogers showed any disposition to come back at him. The pair wrestled hard for the first fall and finally Rogers nailed his big opponent with a scissors. Rogers was very clever with his feet and did first one then the other being on top, most of his work in this way. In the second fall the pair had a scrap shortly after they started to wrestle Mohl grabbing Yank while the latter was arguing with the referee and almost got him over. Rogers succeeded in getting out of a bad hold, however and came right back at the Dutchman giving him a shove in the face with his foot and rolling him over with ease.

Talk about a man being a cheerful loser but Fritz Mohl is an example in this respect. An interesting point to bet on would be as to whether Mohl ever won a bout in his life, or not; that is since he won the championship of Germany of which there is no official record.

Yussiff Mahmout, the Turkish grappler, got his first glimpse of Frank Gotch the other night and the Turk is confident that he can pin the champion's shoulders to the mat. Mahmout sat in a box as Gotch and Eddie Cutler wrestled. Yussiff watch Gotch's every move and every once in a while he would smile. It was a smile of joy, for he satisfied himself that he could throw Gotch.

WALKING

Jim Harrison has been asked by Albert Messier to go over to Milwaukee and take part in a seven day walk in Milwaukee, Wis. Messier, who is of French descent, is a widely known ped and has taken part in many of the big American walks.

Provided Harrison makes a creditable showing in the six day walk here Messier is anxious to have him start in Milwaukee. The walk there will take place in May with six hours a night and eight on Sunday.

FOOTBALL

All football players in the city are requested to attend a meeting to be held at the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday evening at eight o'clock. The officers of the club will be present and arrangements for the season will be made. A big turnout is looked for.

CROSS COUNTRY HARRIER CLUB

Meeting to Organize One Will be Held To-morrow Night

To the Sporting Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir.—Regarding the forming of a Cross Country Harriers Club at the Sons of England Hall, the meeting is to be held on Tuesday night at 7.45 sharp. You have published in your Saturday's issue of the Review that the meeting will be held on Monday night at 7.45, so you will kindly rectify this mistake in Monday's Review.

We think that there are plenty of runners in Peterborough, and with your kind assistance we may be able to find them and get them to join us at the meeting on Tuesday night at 7.45 sharp at the Sons of England Hall on Hunter street.

Thanking you very much, I remain,
Yours truly,
ONE INTERESTED.

P.S.—I may add that a few of us turned out for a run of about four miles of cross country the other side of Jackson's Park on Saturday afternoon and enjoyed the run very much.

ARABS WON FROM MAPLE LEAFS

Fast Basketball at Y.M.C.A. Saturday Night - - Score Was 30-27

In a Saturday night league game at the Y.M.C.A. the Arabs beat the Maple Leafs at basketball 30 points to 19. The Leafs were a point to the good at half time, when the score stood 17—16. It was, perhaps, the best game of the season, both teams putting up a fine article of the game all the way through. As the score indicates, it was a battle royal from beginning to end. Harvey Staunton made a satisfactory referee. The teams were as follows:

ARABS.		LEAFS.
	Defence.
J. Laing		Martin
G. Evans		Kirns
	Centre
Armstrong		H. Wallis
	Forwards

BOXING

If the shades of Ned Broughton, Tom Cribb, Jack Randall, or even Tom Sayers was to come back as a visitor to the training quarters of their modern prototypes what would their comments be on the methods followed by up-to-date glove artists while preparing for a battle? In days of old the pugilistic gladiator went through a grueling process to harden him for his encounter, not the least essential feature of which was the pickling of his "mawlies" to fit them for the fray. The ancient fighter's training was guarded as jealously as state secrets are to-day and he was usually housed in some isolated spot where visitors would not distract him from the serious business at hand. But the twentieth century boxer spurns such self-immolating practices. His training is conducted luxuriously in some accessible modern hostelry where between hours devoted to exercise he can entertain admiring friends ad lib. Tommy Burns and Jimmy Britt introduced to England the "Ladies' Day" at training quarters, this being a weekly day set apart specially set apart for those of the gentler sex who delight to see vigorough manhood in the course of making.

A vast crowd surged into the town hall on Saturday evening to witness the cinematographic reproduction of the Burns-Johnson boxing contest. Not a seat was unoccupied and people were even packed in neat looking rows on the organ gallery, behind the screen. Most of those present had read the published accounts of the big fight, until they knew all its principal features by heart, and they were present, curious and eager to read the tale told by the moving pictures with keen, expectant eyes, knowing exactly what they had to look for.

BASEBALL

The Lindsay Warder says: Is it possible that W. H. Simpson could be coaxed in the ball arena again and induced to manage a Midland league team this summer?

If it is the success of the team is assurred. It may not win the pennant, but it will be a good team when William Henry handles the reins of power.

If Fate had placed him in another groove instead of in the town of Lindsay, Mr. Simpson might have occupied Pat Powers' place. Anyway he can run a ball team.

A strong hand is wanted at the helm this year and wanted badly, too. The game will gradually drop off in Lindsay unless something is done to foster it.

A meeting of the intermediate baseball league will be held this week, when the teams intending to be represented in the league this year are asked to send representatives. Several important matters will come up at the meeting and, as in former gatherings of this kind, no doubt there will be a warm time.

A meeting of the Strathcona A.C. will be held in the YMCA Tuesday evening at eight o'clock to organize for the coming baseball season. Prospects are bright for the champions the intermediate league as nearly all of last year's team are available. A good attendance is asked for.

A baseball match will be played on Good Friday afternoon between two teams picked from Y.M.C.A. boys. The "Y" has a big bunch of young players.

RUNNING

The boys of the Y.M.C.A. will have a paper chase run on Good Friday morning, and it is expected that there will be a large turnout.

A SURPRISE

FRENCHMAN IS WINNER

St. Yves Finishes Marathon Four Laps Ahead of Dorando.

Tom Longboat Gives Up at End of Eighteen Miles and Alfred Shrubb Quits Almost In State of Collapse at Twenty-Fifth Mile — Indian Forced to Run Although He Was Almost All In.

New York, April 5.—Running with remarkable speed and showing wonderful courage, Henri St. Yves of France proved himself the greatest long-distance runner of the day by winning the Marathon Derby of $10,000 over the full distance of 26 miles 385 yards, at the Polo Grounds on Saturday, in the fast time of 2 hours 40 minutes 50 3-5 seconds.

At the finish the winner was hardly drawing a long breath, proving his remarkable lung capacity and excellent condition. While thirty thousand persons who surrounded the improvised track of six laps to the mile, a veritable wall of humanity, rose as one man to welcome a new idol, and to cheer with hearty good-will a brilliant performance, St. Yves sprinting like a quarter-miler, crossed the finish line four good laps, or two-thirds of a mile, in front of Dorando Pietri, of Olympic Marathon fame.

Two laps behind Dorando came Johnny Hayes, the winner of the Olympic Marathon, while Matt Maloney, who has recently joined the professional ranks, finished fourth, a lap behind Hayes.

Tom Longboat, the Indian, who was unbeaten in a Marathon race in this country up to Saturday, gave up the struggle after covering some eighteen miles, on account of trouble with his

HENRI ST. YVES.

St. Yves is not yet 21 years of age, but to-day he is regarded as the greatest long-distance runner in the world. He never has been beaten, winning a marathon at Edinburgh, Scotland, last December, in 2 hours, 44 minutes, 40 seconds, from a good field, and is said to have covered the distance from Windsor Castle to the Stadium at Shepherd's Bush in the remarkable time of 2 hours, 31 minutes, 23 seconds—20 minutes better than Hayes' time.

St. Yves was a waiter in a London restaurant a year ago without a dollar. Falling a victim to the Marathon fever, he took up running and quickly demonstrated that he possessed sterling qualities.

In appearance St. Yves is not a runner. He is short in stature, built like a wrestler, with powerful legs, broad shoulders, deep chest and muscular arms.

Of Longboat's finish The Sun says: "Longboat was all in. He could not stand without the assistance of friends and despite their requests for him to try again the Indian, with tears streaming down his cheeks, begged to be allowed to leave the field. His friends finally yielded and he limped slowly out of sight. His defeat was a crushing blow to the Canadians, who had come to regard him as invincible because of his victories indoors.

"Dorando's legs seemed to be stiff and sore at this stage, yet he plodded along, taking a sip of champagne to keep up his spirits. Hayes and Maloney were also pegging away with absolutely no hope of winning.

"Longboat ran as if he was in any but his best condition. In fact a well-known Canadian sporting man said it was a crime to allow the Indian to start. He had nothing of his old sprinting power, looked thin and drawn and was on the verge of a collapse when the pace became hottest.

"Yet Longboat was induced by threats and promises to keep at it until his copper-colored skin took on an ashen hue and his legs actually bent under him. Hayes ran under instruction that kept him well behind the pacemakers from the beginning of the race. In fact he dropped back too rapidly and proceeded so methodically that his friends could not understand what he was trying to do. Toward the end of the gruelling struggle Hayes began to run at a faster pace and with so much strength that for a time it looked as if he might overhaul Dorando.

"But just when Dorando appeared to blow up he came back to life suddenly and by fast traveling he drew away and made Hayes' stern chase fruitless. Maloney's performance was a bitter disappointment. He had been touted as a world-beater and his remarkable time in the Rye Marathon was used as an argument that he would show his heels to the others. But Maloney, more heavily built than his competitors, was no doubt bothered by the soggy track and when he finished in fourth place a bunch of red-hot sports from Yonkers who had made a pool of $2,500 to bet on him turned away sadly."

Mr. T. L. Kinrade's leave of absence as principal of Cannon street school, Hamilton, has been extended.

THE GRITS WON FROM THE TORIES

Grits Made a Brilliant Finish and Overcome the Lead of Their Opponents

The Tories again went down to defeat at the hands of the Grits at the P.B.C. Alleys on Saturday night. There were numerous spectators present and this was about the main feature of the games. The Tories were all to the good in the first two games but blew up in the last one, and this enabled their opponents to pack the game away in rather easy style. After the contest the players beat it for Hooper's grill room, wh[illegible] the Grits were dined by the lo[illegible].

LACROSSE

Those interested in the lacrosse game in this city are asked to turn out tomorrow night and attend the lacrosse meeting in the Crown Hotel at eight o'clock. The preliminary meeting that was held last week was of a very encouraging nature and since then a number of those interested in the formation of a team to represent Peterborough have been busy with the result, that the prospects for a team are of the brightest.

There are a large number of players in the city, of which quite a few are newcomers, who the general public are not acquainted with, and it is the opinion of those who are interested in the matter that this city will have a winning team for this year. Arrangements have been made whereby the Riverside grounds can be secured and lacrosse should put on a new lease of life this season. At the meeting tomorrow night officers will be elected and a representative will be chosen to attend the meeting of the Lacrosse Association to be held in Toronto on Good Friday. Everybody is invited to come to the meeting and to do their best to help the lacrosse movement in the city.

All those desiring sticks of the best and latest make may leave their order at this meeting, and the names can be forwarded to the maker on Good Friday and the sticks will be received here the following week.

ONTARIO BANK LIQUIDATION; MAY HAVE TO PROVE DEFICIT

Toronto, April 3.—Mr. George Kappele, official referee, yesterday heard counsel representing the shareholders of the Ontario Bank regarding the deficit in the assets of the bank. It was announced that all the shareholders who had notified their intention to resist being called upon to pay calls on their double liability had abandoned all their grounds at present, except that until the deficit was established the list of contributions could not be made up.

After some discussion among counsel the referee adjourned the further hearing of argument on the question until Wednesday next at two o'clock.

The validity of the bank's claim to rank as a creditor for $1,400,000 was another point raised. The referee has allowed the bank's claim, but it is open to shareholders to contest this and it was arranged to have counsel arrange the form in which it will be contested and to present their conclusions to Mr. Kappele on Saturda yat 12 o'clock.

"THE LORD OF THE ISLES"

An exceptionally interesting and instructive evening was provided for the members of the Ladies' Literary Society Friday evening, when Rev. Father McColl delivered a very eloquent address on Sir Walter Scott's poem, "The Lord of the Isles." The lecturer said he chose his subject because of several reasons—because this poem was not so widely read as the other poems of Sir Walter Scott; because in many sections it surpasses his other poems; because it celebrates the career of one of Scotland's greatest heroes, Robert Bruce, and because the scenes enacted in this poem took place in that part of Scotland from which Rev. Father McColl's ancestors came.

The scene of the poem lies at first, in the Castle of Artornish on the coast of Argyleshire, and, afterwards, in the Islands of Skye and Arran, and upon the coast of Ayrshire. Finally, it is laid near Stirling. The story opens in the spring of the year 1307, when Bruce, who had been driven out of Scotland by the English and the Barons who adhered to that foreign interest, returned from the Island of Rachrin on the coast of Ireland again to assert his claims to the Scottish crown. Father McColl dwelt at some length upon the history of Scotland previous to the time at which the poem was written, and also upon Scott's style in describing subsequent events. He claimed that the author, aside from Shakespeare, had few superiors in the English literary world so far as character reading and description was concerned—Scott not only excels at description of external things, but also at description of dispositions, feelings and moods of men.

The first canto opens at the Castle of the Lord of the Isles where a group of distinguished Scotchmen had gathered to be present at the nuptials of the Lord of the Castle to Edith of Lorne. Among the guests were the head of the McDougalls Clan, John of Lorne, and De Argentine, the representative of England, both men enemies of Bruce, for different reasons. To understand the feelings existing between the McDougalls and Bruce it will be necessary to explain that at some time previous to the spring of 1307 Bruce quarreled with the Lord of Comyn in the church at Dumfries and in the heat of anger struck him with his dagger. Rushing out of the church he met two of his allies, Kirkpatrick and Lindsay, to whom he said he feared he had killed Comyn and one of them replied that he would make sure that Comyn was found. It ha dthree story runs that when the body of Comyn was found it had three swords through it. Bruce was censured severely for this act not only by the people but by the Church for desecrating the sanctuary; but especially was he condemned by the Lord of Lorne, whose sister was the wife of Comyn. This was the chief cause of enmity between Bruce and the McDougalls. John of Lorne tried to make his cause stronger by marrying his sister Edith, to Ronald, the Lord of the Isles, and at the time of the poem a marriage contract had been signed between them although Ronald was in love with Isabella Bruce, Robert's sister. In the midst of the wedding festivities but before the ceremony had taken place three strangers in disguise, who had suffered shipwreck, sought refuge at the castle and, according to the laws of Scottish hospitality, were taken in and given prominent places at the banquet table. The Lord of Lorne for some reason, became suspicious of the identities of the three strangers who were none other than Robert Bruce, "Carrick's Outlawed Chief," calm, collected and slow to quarrel; his brother, Edward, a hot and impetuous man, and his sister, Isabella, a woman of excellent character and remarkable beauty. Lorne tried several strategies to make the strangers disclose their identity, and finally called upon his minstrel to sing a song entitled "The Brooch." of Lorne" had a history. The Lord of Lorne having attacked Bruce personally after his defeat at Methuen, would have been worsted had it not been for two who came to the assistance of their lord. Bruce rid himself of them by two blows of his battleaxe; but he was otherwise so pressed that he abandoned his mantle and brooch. The latter was long in the possession of the McDougalls but their version of its capture did not correspond with that of Bruce, and left the impression thta they had the best of the fight. The song commemorating this encounter rang along this strain, and very naturally raised the ire of Edward Bruce, and his retort left no doubt aso to who the three strangers were. A heated discussion followed, De Argentine claiming Bruce his prisoner in the name of England's King; Ronald Lord of the Isles, protecting the Bruces in the interests of hospitality and the Lord of Lorne opposing this strongly. Each had his allies, and Scott's description of the scene is splendid. A crisis was almost reached when the Abbot arrives who was to perform the marriage ceremony, and the influence of the clergy in the interests of peace and Christianity is strongly brought out. The subsequent events are fully portrayed by Scott, but space will not allow a discussion of them. The wanderings of Bruce among the Hebrides, his success in raising an army and his final victory at the battle of Bannockburn are dealt with fully, and also the fate of Isabella Bruce and Edith of Lorne.

Father McColl introduced some delightful readings of sections of the poem and thoroughly aroused the interest of his audience in the poem.

Instrumental Duet—Miss O. Letellier and Miss M. Hickey.
Vocal Solo—Miss N. Fitzgerald.

THE ATTRACTION OF THE SEASON

Lulu Glaser in "Mlle Mischief" at Grand Opera House on Wednesday Night.

Lulu Glaser in her new musical success, the Viennese operetta, "Mlle Mischief" which will be disclosed for the first time in this city at the Grand, next Wednesday is said to have come into her own again as this work has been accepted as the best play of her career not excepting either "Dolly Varden" and "Dolly Dollars."

"Mlle Mischief" like "The Merry Widow," and "A Waltz Dream," comes from Vienna, in which city and in Berlin also it has been already produced. Originally it was known under the title of "Ein Tolles Madel." The book has been changed to suit American ideas of musical comedy by Sydney Rosenfeld—in making the adaption however all the original music, which is by Carl M Ziehrer, has been retained.

WOMEN WITH BIG HATS MUST RIDE IN BAGGAGE CAR

Geneva, April 3.—Switzerland has declared war on "cart-wheel" millinery. The big hats which have latterly had so much vogue among the women of all nations are to be classed as bicycle wheels on the Swiss state railways, and will have to be conveyed in the luggage vans.

The official notice reads as follows: "Ladies' hats more than 31 1-2 inches in diameter will, according to article 117 of the railway tariff, adopted in February, 1906, henceforth be regarded as wheels. Any lady wearing a hat of larger dimensions who desires to travel by a Swiss passenger train must either ride in a luggage van or deposit her hat with the luggage guard and enter the passengers' carriage bareheaded."

NOTICE

All members of George St. Church Inthon Bible Class remember your banquet on Tuesday evening April 6th, beginning at 7 o'clock, in the Sunday School Room of the church. All members should be there.

The New York Stock Market

Special to the Review.

New York, April 3—The stock market appears to be rousing itself from the dormant condition into which it had fallen for the past month or two. The rest cure has been beneficial, and the result is that the market finds itself in a sounder and stronger position than at any time during the current year. Unfavorable conditions have been discounted and whatever changes have taken place are generally for the better. That there has been a turn in the tide of market sentiment there can be no question, and it is now expressing itself in more vigorous action. Causes for improvement are visible and perfectly natural. A change of greatest consequence is the reviving tendency of trade. This is particularly noticeable in the iron and steel industry, where reductions in prices and a readjustment of wages have laid the basis for a fresh onward movement. For some time past railroads have been quietly figuring in the steel market for the placing of orders, while owners of projected buildings have also been securing estimates upon important contracts. The result is that in March a very encouraging amount of orders were placed for structural material. Of course the approach of spring, and the consequent starting of outdoor operations has had much to do with this recovery, but as just said the most important element has been the readjustment of values and a feeling that in many cases prices of raw materials had temporarily at least reached the lowest possible point.

Trade reports from various parts of the country are also more encouraging and suggest a moderate revival in trade. It must be remembered that in many cases orders have been held back owing to various uncertainties, and that shelves in consequence have become more or less bare of stock. The result is an accumulation of orders, which necessarily affords signs of improved activity. A glance at Clearing House returns in leading cities of the United States last week shows that bank clearings were more than 14 per cent in excess of a year ago, the gain being well distributed in all sections of the country. In the previous week the increase in clearings was 17 per cent, every section of the country participating in the improvement. It is also worthy of note that the gross clearings in the third week of March were considerably larger than in any of the three preceding years; even in 1906 when speculations was so much more active than now. Railroad earnings are also making more gratifying reports, forty-five railroads in the second week of March showing a gain of nearly eight per cent over a year ago, while forty-four roads in the first week of March showed a gain of nearly 10 per cent over last year, when the roads were beginning to recover from the effects of the panic.

TROUBLE AMONG THE GRITS PREMIER HAS HARD WORK

Ottawa, April 6.—There is a story ing around to-day that the proceed of the Liberal caucus last Friday were far from harmonious and Sir Wilfrid Laurier had to use best persuasive powers to get the rty to vote down the resolution of Doherty of Montreal calling for investigation into all the spend departments of the Government. The chief was told by some of the independent of his followers they had swallowed enough when supported the Government atti on the Newmarket canal.

The caucus is said to have broken very much divided on the sub and many of the Liberal mem went home without securing not being willing to support the vernment in resisting the demand the investigation.

The really significant feature was attitude which the leader of the adopted towards the member North Toronto. In the absence Mr. Borden, Mr. Foster led the sition. He desired to know wher the Government intended to take ondays immediately after the Eas adjournment. Sir Wilfrid's reply merely that he would move a relution to that effect "to-morrow." n Mr. Foster suggested that mo for correspondence, etc., might taken up before private bills were with. But to this proposal Wilfrid displayed the marble t. The convenience of the House was to be considered, he answer in effect. Mr. Foster's bland ap broke like a summer ripple upon Prime Minister's stony stare. Evitly there is to be an armed neuality between them for the balance the session.

DEATH AT ELORA OF LT. COL. CLARKE

Father of Mr. Jas. Clarke of This City---Passed Away Early This Morning

Elora, April 6.—Lieut.-Col. Charles Clarke, formerly Clerk of the House for the Legislative Assembly of Ontario, died at his home at 1 o'clock this morning after an illness of three weeks. Colonel Clarke caught cold in returning from a dinner at Government House, three weeks ago. The cold developed into a grippe, and from that time his condition grew gradually worse, his advanced age giving him little chance to throw off the attack. At the aged gentleman's bedside at the moment of death were his wife and five daughters. He was born in 1826.

The deceased is survived by a widow and three sons, Dr. Charles K. Clarke, Superintendent of the Toronto Hospital for the Insane; Richard, now in New Ontario; James T., of the Peterborough Examiner, and five daughters, Mrs. Ballantyne, wife of Rev. Prof. Ballantyne, of Toronto; Mrs. Thomas Ballantyne, of Stratford; Mrs. W. Workman, of Kingston; Mrs. James Metcalfe, of Grimsby, and Miss Gerda, at home.

Lieut.-Colonel Clarke, who resigned his position as clerk of the House for the Legislative Assembly of Ontario, was one of the most kindly and lovable of men. His good nature was as unfailing as his courtesy and desir to aid. Not only will his death be regretted by many past and present members of the Legislature and many who are in the civil service of the Province as well as by a large circle of general friends and acquaintances but also by a host of newspaper men throughout Ontario. During his term of office as Clerk the newspaper men made many demands upon his time and assistance, and he never failed them.

THIS CASE AN IMPORTANT ONE

ABOUT WIDOW OF TOM THUMB

Middleboro, Mass., April 6.—Mrs. Tom Thumb, now the Countess Magri, has just left the famous Tom Thumb estate here for a six months' tour of the Parisian theatres. The little lady is now 67 years old.

Gen. Tom Thumb and his midget wife made several tours of the world and were received by royalty and the peerage in all the courts of Europe.

There is probably not a city of the United States or Canada where the Countess Magri is not known. It is expected that by reason of her advanced age this Parisian tour will be her last public appearance.

OVER 1,500 NAMES ON THE LOCAL OPTION PETITION PRESENTED TO CITY COUNCIL

Big Deputation Present When Matter Was Considered Last Night—Council Decides to Have Local Option By-law Submitted to Ratepayers if Petition is Found Satisfactory.

If the local option petition is found to be what the law requires the ratepayers of Peterborough will be given the opportunity to vote on the local option bylaw at the municipal elections next January.

The petition asking that the local option bylaw be submitted was presented to the city council last night and a resolution to the above effect was passed. The petition has the signatures of 1560 ratepayers attached to it, which is considerably more than the number of ratepayers necessary to have the bylaw submitted namely, twenty-five per cent.

There are 4800 on the roll.

The petition was forwarded to the city clerk during the day and over a hundred citizens interested in the temperance cause, including over a score of ladies, were present when the petition came up in the council

Rev J. G. Potter acted as spokesman for the deputation.

Rev. Mr. Potter said a petition signed by over fifteen hundred ratepayers had been handed to the city clerk, praying that the local option bylaw be submitted to the ratepayers at the municipal elections next January. The list of names had been gone over very carefully and the committee could assure the council that those who signed it were all bona fide ratepayers. The number of signatures was 1560.

Mayor Rush said that a meeting of the whole council would be held in a few days and the petition would then be considered.

Rev. Mr. Webb asked if the petition was considered in committee of the whole as stated by the Mayor could the deputation that was on hand, be present.

Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Morrow, that if the petition was found correct when looked into, the city solicitor be instructed to prepare a bylaw to be submitted to the electors at the elections in January.

Applause from the deputation greeted the resolution.

Ald. Buller said the petition should be considered in committee of the whole council.

"If the petition is all right we might as well vote on it now," said Ald. Hicks.

This drew forth more applause from the deputation.

"All right then, we will put the motion" said the Mayor.

Ten Aldermen voted in favor of Ald Morgan's motion. Ald Buller voted against it and Ald Phelan did not vote

The city solicitor will look into the petition and if it is found satisfactory, will prepare the bylaw as instructed by the council.

Rev Mr Potter thanked the council for the action they had taken and the deputation withdrew.

NEW KIND OF DREADNOUGHTS

Britain Must Take Action in Matter of Dirgibles at Once.

London, April 6.—Great Britain seems to be waking up to the fact that the other nations of the world are leaving her behind in the race for command of the air.

While the members of the House of Commons were yesterday afternoon drawing the attention of the Government to the fact that Germany has built, or is building, a dozen dirigible airships, and urging the Government to take up with energy the construction of a British air fleet, there was being held at the same time a meeting in the Mansion House, under the chairmanship of the Lord Mayor of London, in support of the same object. Among those present were Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, Prince Louis of Battenberg, Lord Curzon, Sir Hiram Maxim and Admiral Sir Percy Scott, all of whom heartily supported energetic action.

Admiral Scott advocated a "two power" standard in airships, as well as Dreadnoughts, and he mentioned incidentally that the navy has designed a new gun, which at a distance of 6,000 feet, could be exceedingly destructive to airships.

CHRIS HOLLAND IS SENTENCED

Forger and Swindler Gets Five Years in Penitentiary.

Toronto, April 6.—After pleading not guilty to eleven charges of false pretences and forgery, and going on the witness stand and contradicting the evidence of crown witnesses, Chris Holland suddenly gave up the fight, decided to plead guilty to "any two" charges, and was at once sentenced by Magistrate Denison to five years in the penitentiary.

The first charge on which evidence was taken was that of posing as David Newhall of Philadelphia, uttering a forged check for $10,000 on the main office of the Bank of Toronto. Duncan Coulson, general manager; W. R. Wadsworth, local manager, and W. M. Begg and J. W. Simpson of the staff, testified in support of the charge, while W. C. Chamberlain of Buffalo, and David Newhall, who is a millionaire, swore that the credentials displayed by Holland had been forged. Supt. Welsh of the Canadian Detective Bureau was not allowed to quote Holland's statements after his arrest. O. B. Stanton gave hand-writing expert evidence.

Holland and his wife swore he was in Cleveland on Feb. 11, when the evidence showed he was in Toronto, but other witnesses broke the alibi and he wilted.

Holland may be taken to St. Thomas to stand trial on other charges of forgery of express orders preferred against him there, and upon which he was extradited from Philadelphia.

An Amendment to Public Service Act.

Traction Engine Bill is Withdrawn---Other Matters in Legislature.

Toronto, April 6.—Premier Whitney, in moving the adjournment of the House last evening, said that the railway bills would be taken up first thing this afternoon, and afterwards his hon. friend's (Mr. MacKay's bill respecting the three-fifths clause.

He prefaced this by a few sarcastic remarks. It was manifest the House was in no hurry to close to judge by the attendance of the past week. The business of the House might be brought to a close on Wednesday, or, it might be Thursday. Or if the House wished they might go over to next week, devoted as the Government was, to the task of acting as the members desired.

Sir James Whitney introduced an amendment to the Public Service Act. The act at present, he explained, would not permit of temporary clerks being employed for a longer period than three months. The proposed amendment will give the Lieutenant-Governor-in-council power to extend the period of employment of extra clerks from time to time as may be deemed advisable.

Major J. J. Craig (East Wellington) grew a little restive under official authority when the Minister of Public Works suggested the withdrawal of a bill to limit the weight of traction engines on highways to 10 tons. Hon. Dr. Reaume thought this legislation too drastic. The present act, in which the limit of weight was 20 tons, was sufficient, as ordinary traction engines did not weigh more than eight or ten tons.

"If 10 tons is not sufficient weight the bill can be amended in committee, and its withdrawal, I think, should not be called for," said Craig.

"We do not think this is in the public interest," said the Premier.

On the Public School Act, the clause placing a limit upon the age of inspectors was withdrawn, and the question of retirement will be left in the hands of the Minister.

The Attorney-General explained the provisions of an act to give the Niagara Falls Park Commissioners power to issue $200,000 additional debentures, the money to be spent principally on a driveway from Queen Victoria Park to Fort Erie. A sea wall will have to be built to protect the bank of the river, and several bridges will be constructed.

Hon. Mr. Hanna substituted three clauses in a bill to amend the Ontario Companies Act respecting co-operative societies. These clauses made the Ontario statute conform with the Dominion Act, and provide for one vote to each member of a co-operative society, and no commission on sale of stock. The Provincial Secretary is to be given power to examine the books of the society at any time, to order a return on any subject, to call a general meeting or appoint an inspector.

The House considered the license law amendments in committee.

To a question by Mr. Proudfoot, the Attorney-General replied that the Government had been aware that the cash mutual fire insurance companies in the province were exceeding their authority and were considering measures to remedy the evil.

The Attorney-General replied to a question of N. F. Nickle (Kingston) that it was aware of discrimination against the Province of Ontario by the Canada Shipping Act, whereby Ontario vessels were called upon to pay pilotage dues which other vessels trading between eastern ports are exempt from. The Government, he stated, were considering the proper steps to be taken.

Their condition was pitiable, and although I tried various ointments and salves, they did not seem to do any good. I heard of a few instances in which Zam-Buk had done great good when other things had failed, so gave it a trial. Within a very short time it cleared the sores from my little ones, although those sores had defied everything I had hitherto tried."

CLEARED FACE AND HANDS OF RASH.

MISS S. G. HAMILTON, of Alliston (Ont.), says:—"For a long time I suffered from spots, which broke finally into open sores. My face and hands became covered with these sores, and they were so painful, as well as unsightly, that I hardly knew which way to turn for relief. Whenever I put water near them they smarted and burned just for all the world as if I had been scalded. Zam-Buk was recommended to me, and the first few applications did so much good that I continued with its use. I am glad to say that a few weeks' treatment resulted in a perfect cure."

THE SENSATION OF THE HOUR

The sensation of the hour is the clash between Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. George E. Foster. But the mere clash is not of such moment as what lies behind the clash. The Judge Cassels report on the various delinquencies of the Marine and Fisheries Department, the shortcomings of the various branches of the public departmental service and the amazing showing-up of such works of art as the Newmarket canal, etc., have left Sir Wilfrid Laurier with a lot to explain. Why did he refuse a commission to investigate other departments, and why did he gloss over the outrageous wrong-doing of those departmental officers already caught. Sir Wilfrid, with his usual dramatic vehemence, announced before the election that if there were black sheep in the Liberal party, it was for the Liberals, not the Tories, to attend to them. So he seemed to think. He did not molest them, leaving McAvity & Co. in the enjoyment of their huge ill-gotten gains. It was a reasonable question, therefore, for Hon. George E. Foster to ask. Why has not something been done? When Sir Wilfrid, attempting to get out of his corner by remarking that he had not dabbled in trust-funds, he threw a slur across the house, the consequence of which the privilege of parliament alone protected him from. But Mr. Foster was a match for him. With a bound the old warrior was upon him and the amusing spectacle was afforded of the first minister's having to take back all that he had said or insinuated of Mr. Foster, and to tender that gentleman the required apology. Mr. Foster is now engaged in the courts in exposing to the public view all that has been charged against him in order that the public may express its own opinion upon sworn testimony regarding his actions as manager of the Trust Company referred to.

MISSIONS

The following editorial of the Montreal Witness in its issue of April 3rd so thoroughly discusses the pros and cons of this much-discussed question that it is well worth while putting it on record for the study of those who reflect upon the "use and abuse" of missions as it has been designated. The concluding words are significant:

"The startling gathering at Toronto is not due to mere curiosity to hear great speakers. That would never have gathered it. It is the result of an impulse that has seized upon the church to fulfil a duty that has waited for nineteen centuries to be done. There are those who say: What is the good of foreign missions? Now that people have given up believing that the heathen are all going to hell, what right have we to interfere with their faith? Are there not enough heathen at home; is there not enough sorrow and suffering at home; is there not crime enough? When we have purged our own land of evil it will be time enough to go to other peoples and tell them how wrong they are. The answer to this argument is that those who use it have obviously no faith in Christianity, and are therefore no judge of the Christian's duty. They do not even know what Christianity is. For that, however, they have some excuse, as it is only by degrees that it has dawned upon the Christian Church itself what the gospel is. It is to be admitted that a change has come over its ideals. Time was within the memory of living men when its gospel was 'flee from the wrath to come,' when in religious teaching this world counted for nothing, except as an opportunity to make a momentous choice between eternal bliss and eternal wrath. The effort of preaching was to centre a man's interest in himself, and in his personal wellbeing, and then bid him induce others to do the same. There is an opposite outlook held before men's minds to-day. They are rather directed towards the uplift of the great world. They are urged to join with Christ in saving society, and trust to him to save themselves. The warning to flee from the wrath to come was the message of John the Baptist, whose righteous soul saw some fearful calamity hanging over his generation if it did not turn from its evil ways. But the gospel was that the Kingdom of Heaven was at hand. Change your ways and believe the good news. Human society was to be all made over on a new and heavenly pattern. This glorious condition of things was within their reach if they would only take hold and bring it about.

"And so it has come to pass that it is not so much the terror of divine wrath that is the impulse of missions to-day as the glorious hope of divine beneficence. The first mission to the heathen is minutely described in the New Testament. He to whom had been given the key to open the kingdom to the gentile world used it unwillingly and with great surprise. It was to his own astonishment that Peter said God hath showed me 'that in every nation he that feareth God and worketh righteousness is accepted of him.' It is only in these days that we have come to learn that in every nation there are those who fear God and work righteousness, and that these are hungering for something of which they do not know, and of which they have a right to know. Instead of this discovery being a bar to missionary enterprise it has proved its greatest inspiration. The sudden waking up of the non-Christian world touched into life by the material wonders of Christendom, the power of steam and electricity, then by its intellectual wonders, the revelations of astronomy and chemistry, the alarming sight of this valley of dry bones standing up an exceeding great army, soon to be able to cope in all things with the west, it is these things that have startled the Christian world into action, and called to the Christian Church now is the time to show your faith in your gospel; now is the time to prove the stuff that is in it to yourselves and to all mankind. It is life or death for your Christianity, for if it cannot conquer now it is not what it pretends to be. It is life or death for your own faith. The task is a stupendous one and demands the taking up of the cross, that is the complete devotion of the Christian, whether for life or death. But it is not so fearful as when the first modern missionaries descended a hundred years ago into the dark, mysterious abyss of an utterly unknown and antagonistic heathendom, and worked out their earnest lives with small visible results. The few stray seeds then sown and brought to life at the cost of lives of pain and hardship have already produced an astonishing fruitage, and have prepared the way for a world-wide harvest home. It is now that the ingathering must come. If the Christian nations fail to-day they will wither away, and the opportunity will be given to others."—The Witness.

Both the Racine and the McGarry Separate School Bills have been withdrawn in the Legislature.

Will someone rise up and explain how it came about that the Senate threw out Lancaster's railway crossing protection bill. It seems to us that this proceeding will take a lot of explanation before the people are satisfied.

Sir James Whitney is more or less of a stickler for old fashioned ideas of freedom from restraint. He balked at the Downey Tuberculosis bill because he considered it weighed heavily on the poor, since the requirements of notice to the authorities and quarantine necessitated greater expenditure in his opinion than the poor could manage. The only thing left to do then is to provide sanatoria at the public expense, otherwise the white plague will spread with even greater horror than before.

The exciting scene enacted at the burning of an hotel at Abervon the other day, when a domestic servant risked her own life and met with severe injuries in saving a babe from a terrible death, recalls a similar, but far more tragic, case which stirred all England to pity and admiration some 23 years ago.

The heroine of this latter episode was one Alice Ayres. She was employed as servant to a Mr. Chandler, who kept an oil and color shop in the borough.

Fire broke out at dead of night, and in a few minutes the lower part of the house was a mass of flames. Mr. and Mrs. Chandler and one of their children were suffocated and burned to death in their bedroom, although Alice ran down to try and rouse them. Her room was above theirs on the third floor. In it besides herself were the three other Chandler children, the eldest little more than a baby.

The brave girl first threw out a bed, then dropped the little ones on it one at a time, although she herself was burning all the while. Then she jumped herself.

Next day she lay dying in Guy's Hospital and a nation mourned. Queen Victoria sent one of her ladies-in-waiting specially to enquire after her. Bulletins were issued hourly, as from the death chamber of a monarch.

After death, the hospital authorities refused to allow her body to be placed in the ordinary mortuary, but set aside a special room for it, which was soon nearly filled with floral emblems from all parts of the kingdom, estimated to be worth $5,000. Twelve firemen bore her to the grave, and more than ten thousand people attended the funeral in Isleworth Cemetery, where is a magnificent obelisk, erected by public subscription, in memory of "the bravest deed that ever was done."—Pearson's Weekly.

A squaw to save her children from starvation, until help came, cut off pieces of her own flesh and fed it to them. It is hard for us even to appreciate such deeds.

OF INTEREST

Dr. Stein gave to the Royal Geographical Society last week a most interesting account of the arduous and fruitful explorations occupying of barren sand that brought it to two years, which he has carried out in Chinese Turkestan. "Ever since his return in 1901 from his first journey into these regions he has," says the Times, "longed for another opportunity to trace the history of the ancient civilization—a product of Indian, Chinese and Greek influences—which once flourished around the Tarim basin, and the memorials of an end.

DR. STEIN FROSTBITTEN.

"No one," continues the Times, "with a tincture of imagination can listen to that story without feeling profound admiration for the courage, endurance, tact, resource, practical wisdom, and extensive erudition required to carry through such a herculean task, and to bring back from it such a store of archaeological and ethnological lore as Dr. Stein has accumulated. The physical difficulties of that long sojourn in waterless deserts and forbidding mountains, at elevations of from ten to fourteen thousand feet, were enormous. They were happily met and overcome, though not without loss to some of the little party, and on his return journey through the formidable passes on the Indian frontier, Dr. Stein himself had the misfortune to get his feet severely frostbitten. He was three weeks' journey from surgical aid. But it was reached in time to avert absolute disablement.

POSSIBILITIES IN THE SAND-DUNES.

"Vast stretches of barren sand-dunes without animal life of any kind, and rarely diversified by a sign of vegetation, would not offer to the untutored eye a promising field of investigation. Yet to the trained vision of the explorer they were rich in possibilities and offered even in the monotony of their physical aspect the means of reconstructing the outward features of a vanished civilization.

DISCOVERIES IN THE SAND.

"Beneath the sand that destroyed the population are found perfectly preserved the documents, the accounts, the official and private memoranda, the implements, and the ornaments of men like ourselves, who lived and died twelve centuries ago or more, under the rule and governance of the great Chinese Empire far away in the East. Wherever the kindly sand has buried them there are the wooden tabs with their clay seals, which were the parchments of that vanished civilisation, and these seals bear the classic designs of Greek gem-cutters. But not only the comparatively durable wood, with the carefully wrought symbols is preserved. Frail things like cottons, silks and ancient paper and string also remain, thanks to the total absence of moisture, to testify to the ways of that forgotten race.

"Dr Stein has now before him a task as heavy as, and less exhilarating than, that of acquiring these venerable relics. He has here in London some 8000 manuscripts and individual documents, written in about a dozen different scripts and languages, which await decipherment and arrangement in view of all the facts observed upon the spot.

"Dr Stein's remarkable discovery, concerning the Great Wall of China is not only extremely interesting in itself, but is of the highest importance in connection with the interpretation of the documents and relics that he has brought home. It is a central fact around which all our information about that Graeco Indo-Chinese civilization must crystalline. Hitherto all authorities whether Oriental, or European, have placed the termination of the Great Wall where it sweeps round the western side of the Suchau oasis to the foot of the Nanshan mountains. Nothing could seem more natural and probable, on the assumption that the Great Wall was merely intended to protect Kansu from the inroads of the outer barbarians. When it joined the great natural barrier of Nan-shan its work was done. Hence the fortified gate of Chia yu kwan, which occurs in that portion of the wall, has always been taken to be the actual portal of China proper.

"But far to the west of that gate Dr Stein found in the Tunghwan desert the remains of a wall still perfectly clear with its watch towers every two or three miles, wherever the wall followed the direction of the prevailing winds, although difficult to make out where the wall presented its face to the erosion of these winds with their load of biting sand. That wall he has traced from Anhai to near the great gate of Chia yu kwan, and that is the true Great Wall of China dating from the second century BC. Starting from it at right angles and running to Nan-shan is a much more modern wall, in which is the Chia-yu-kwan gate.

ABANDONMENT.

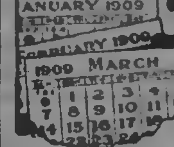
"Here we get at once a flood of historical light. More than 2,000 years ago there was a belt of fertile country running west from the Chinese frontier along the foot of the Nan-shan range. It was not only an area for Chinese colonization, but was also a military highway into Turkestan. To protect its flank from marauders from the north, the Chinese, then busy with empire-building, built the Great Wall to An-hsi and garrisoned it from end to end.

THE ABANDONED WATCH TOWER.

"Dr. Stein has dug out of the sand at the base of the watch-towers in the Tung-hwan desert the military orders, details of equipment and reinforcements, and so on, belonging to military posts. But the whole region was suffering from a progressive shortage of water. The fertile belt shrank into a line of oases, and the oases themselves dwindled, contracted, and in many cases disappeared. There was no longer food for any considerable population, nor was the route any longer practicable for military expeditions. The Great Wall from Chia-yu-kwan to An-hsi became useless, and the Chinese cut off the whole dried-up region by building the cross wall from Chia-yu-kwan to Nan-shan. Nature had closed the door to the expansion of China, and the Empire fell back upon the defensive.

A DRAMATIC MOMENT IN HISTORY.

"It would seem probable that at some moment a deliberate resolution was taken to give up the hopeless fight against the irresistible encroachment of the desert, and that a general evacuation took place. The far-flung garrisons would make their way home in light marching order, and the useless masses of military documents and memoranda would be left for Dr. Stein to dig out of the destroying, yet preserving, sand. Thus the ruins of the Great Wall are the record at once of tremendous physical changes, and of the frustration of an imperial policy and of high national aspirations. The very goal of these ancient efforts has waxed dim; for desiccation is writ large over Central Asia, and vast regions are now arid deserts which were well watered, populous, and opulent when the Chinese Empire was already older than that of Great Britain to-day."



Three Months gone!

Three months of this year have gone and you are run right down! If you are "played out" in 3 months how can you hope to keep up for the rest of the year? Read the following story from B.C. and receive the hope it gives to every weary, worn and played-out man and woman.

COULD SCARCELY GET AROUND

"Mrs. Worden has taken four bottles of PSYCHINE and it has made a new woman of her. Before she started to take PSYCHINE she could scarcely get around to do her work, and now she can do it without feeling the least fatigue. I will strongly recommend PSYCHINE to any one. It will relieve their suffering."

W. J. WORDEN, Works Point Barracks, Victoria, B.C.

This is just what PSYCHINE was intended to do. Thousands of weary toilers have praised God for PSYCHINE, the Greatest of Tonics, and many were on the verge of decline before they heard of it. But no matter how far gone, PSYCHINE has proved their friend and wrought deliverance. PSYCHINE goes to the seat of the trouble, and while it is creating Rich, Red Blood, it attacks any diseased parts of the Throat, Lungs, Chest and Stomach. PSYCHINE rightly merits the title given it by thousands, viz., the "Great Tonic Healer." PSYCHINE is highly recommended by the Medical Profession because of its great Tonic properties. It creates an appetite and gives new life when all else has failed.

All Druggists and Stores sell PSYCHINE at 50c and $1.00 a bottle. Send to Dr. T. A. SLOCUM, Limited, Toronto, for a FREE TRIAL.

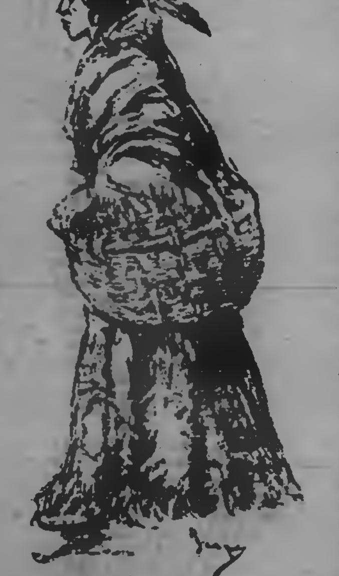
REX BEACH

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"No, no! I reckon he's single all right, but you don't understand. He's different from us people. He's—he's"—Gale paused, at a loss for words to convey his meaning. "Well, he ain't the kind that would marry a half breed."



Gale's squaw came in.

Evidently Alluna read some hidden meaning back of these words, for she spoke quickly, but in her own tongue now, as she was accustomed to do when excited or alarmed.

"Then this thing must cease at once. The risk is too great. Better that you kill him before it is too late."

"Don't talk like that. There has been too much blood let already. There's time enough to worry."

He rose; but, instead of going to his room, he strode out of the house and walked northward up the trail. Alluna sat huddled up in the doorway, her shawl drawn close about her head, and waited for him until the late sun dipped down below the distant mountains for the midnight hour, then rolled slanting out again a few points farther north, to begin its long journey anew, but he did not return. At last she crept stiffly indoors, the look of fright staring in her eyes.

About 9 o'clock the next morning a faint and long drawn cry came from the farthest limits of the little camp. An instant later it was echoed closer, and then a dog began to howl. Before its voice had died away another took it up sadly, and within three breaths from up and down the half mile of scanty water front came the cry of "Steam-bo-o-a-t!" Cabin doors opened and men came out, glanced up the stream and echoed the call, while from sleepy nooks and sun warmed roofs wolf dogs arose, yawning and stretching.

Downstream came the faint sighing whoof-whoof of a steamer, and then out from behind the bend she burst. Her cabin deck was lined with passengers, most of whom were bound for the "outside," although still clad in mackinaw and overalls. They all gazed silently at the hundred men of Flambeau, who stared back at them till the gangplank was placed, when they came ashore to stretch their legs. One of them, however, made sufficient noise to make up for the silence of the others. Before the steamer had grounded he appeared among the Siwash deck hands, his head and shoulders towering above them, his white teeth gleaming from a face as dark as theirs, shouting to his friends ashore and pantomiming his delight to the two Gale children, who had come with Alluna to welcome him.

"Who's dose beeg, tall people w'at stan' 'longside of you, Miz Gale?" he called to her; then, shading his eyes elaborately, he cried in a great voice: "Waal, waal, I b'lieve dat's M'sieu Jean an' Mam'selle Mollee! Ba gar! Dey get so beeg w'ile I'm gone I don' know dem no more!"

Lieutenant Burrell had come with the others, for the arrival of a steamboat called for the presence of every soul in camp, and, spying Necia in the outskirts of the crowd, he took his place beside her. He had lain awake for hours thinking of her and had fallen asleep with her still in his mind, for the revelation of her blood had come as a shock to him.

NEWS OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO LAKEFIELD READERS

Chronicle of Events in Thriving Northern Town—Work on the Wharves—Educational News—General Intelligence.

By a Staff Reporter.

Lakefield, Tuesday, April 6—Bruce Ridpath, the clever forward of the Toronto pros. and latterly of the Cobalt seven, is in the village on a short visit. He intends going to Toronto at an early date, and will leave the Queen City for Cobalt. Ridpath, who made good with the Silver City seven during the sensational hockey fever that was on in the New Ontario professional hockey received $500 as his share for playing with the Cobalt team. He brought several fine samples of ore from the mines with him, and speaks well of Cobalt as a sporting town, and states the hockey players were used in the "whitest" fashion possible.

THE NEW "VIAMEDE."

"Viamede" hotel, which was destroyed by fire, is being re-built, and the structure will be a handsome and commodious one. The new main building will be 160 feet by 80 feet, and will have every modern improvement, with wide verandahs for the benefit of the large number of summer guests. It will be over twice as large as the building destroyed by fire. Mr. W. M. Graham is the proprietor, and Mr. Abel Henderson is in charge of the construction.

WHARF IMPROVEMENTS

Good progress is being made in the construction of the new wharf. Mr. Alex. Richardson is the foreman, which is guarantee that the work will be done in a satisfactory manner. The dredge is deepening the channel at this point.

The government has taken over the upper part of Water street in the vicinity of the Lakefield wharf.

All the boathouses have been removed on the ground affected by the transfer, and about fifteen men and several teams are engaged in the work of grading the approach to the wharf. The work will probably be completed in about three weeks' time.

150 WILL BE EMPLOYED

The Cement Works will be running full blast at the end of this week or the beginning of next. About 70 men are employed at the works now, but when the complete operations are resumed the working staff will be increased to 150.

The Review representative paid a visit to the Lakefield Public school yesterday and was shown through the building by the courteous principal, Mr. J. L. Garvin, B.A. The school, with the addition of the four new sanitary steam-heated rooms, is complete and modern in every detail.

Although continuation work has been taken up at the school, it has only been since last September that a continuation department, in charge of a special teacher, has been conducted. Mr. Garvin has charge of this class of thirty-three pupils, and it is expected that the attendance will be increased to fifty next year, when Mr. Garvin will have an assistant. All the continuation work to the end of the Normal entrance is taken up in the class.

Form I.—First, Leo Garvey; second, Alex. Fraser; third, Myrtle Payne.

Form II.—First, Monie Johnston; second, Keith Cumberland; third, Melville Crawford.

The honor roll for the entrance class, of which Miss Duff is the teacher, for the Michaelmas term is:

The junior fourth honor roll for the same term is:

First, Margery Moran; second, Charlie McWilliams; third, Leta V. Allin.

GENERAL HAPPENINGS

Col. Greenwood, who is moving into the LeFevre residence, is getting the house thoroughly remodelled. Col. Greenwood was a highly esteemed resident of Lakefield before he went to South Africa, and his numerous friends are much pleased to have him return.

Mr. E. Singer, the local dry goods merchant, has moved the place of business of the Lakefield Dry Goods House to the corner store formerly occupied by Mr. W. L. Hurl.

Miss Rose Moore, who made such an excellent showing in the Review popularity contest, was able to leave her room yesterday for the first time after an attack of appendicitis.

Mr. Barnes, of the Bell Telephone Company, has installed several telephones lately for Lakefield subscribers. An appreciated service to the long distance communication which has been opened between Lakefield and Warsaw.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Tanner have returned from a visit to Toronto.

The greatest local interest taken in any sporting fixture since the championship game in the City Hockey League between the Straths and Lakefield, was shown in the Marathon derby at New York. All the sporting enthusiasts in the village were very eager to get the news of the event, and a good service from Peterborough was obtained.

Navigation is open now from Lakefield to Young's Point, a stretch of five miles. The paddlers will avail themselves of the opportunity offered as soon as the spring air becomes a little milder.

W. J. Waldron, the local butcher, has placed a new plate glass front in his store, which gives an up-to-date appearance to the place. The shop has also been improved and refitted on the interior.

Lakefield will have a football team in the Midland League, and it is expected that the team will make a good bid for the trophy. The Agricultural Park has been chosen as the place where practices will be held.

Mr. C. L. Bickle has disposed of his furniture and undertaking business to Mr. O. L. Ostman, of Tilsonburg. Mr. Bickle has taken the Lakefield agency for the McLaughlin Buick automobile.

Mrs. R. C. Strickland, who has been ill for some time, is not recovering as rapidly as her many friends would wish.

Mr. A. S. Butchart has purchased a four-seated Ford runabout from his Toronto agency.

The promoters of amateur theatricals in the village have apparently given up the idea of presenting the English farce, "Charlie's Aunt," which was to have been given for the benefit of the public library. Rehearsals of the piece have been discontinued.

Rev. S. S. Burns and Rev. A. H. Jones exchanged pulpits last Sunday.

Rev. S. S. Burns has returned from the Laymen's Missionary Congress in Toronto. He speaks very highly of this very large and successful gathering of men interested in missionary work, and predicts splendid results from their organized efforts in the missionary cause.

There is talk of the formation of a baseball team here. However, the matter has taken no definite shape, and it has not been definitely decided to form the nine.

CONTINUATION FEE.

The proposal to charge $5 for pupils taking up continuation work at the Lakefield school does not seem to meet with the general favor of the parents interested. The charging of the fee, however, appears to be quite regular, as it is done in other places. The difficulty seems to be due to a misunderstanding of the general procedure in this respect, and will likely be thoroughly discussed and explained at an early meeting of the School Board.

SUGGEST THAT ELECTRICIANS TAKE OUT ANNUAL LICENSE

H. R. J. MacPherson & Co., McGregor and Reid, and Alexander and Miller sent a letter to the city council last night recommending that the city pass a bylaw making it necessary for electricians to take out a license fee of $25. They suggested that those doing electrical work and holding licenses should put a tag or label on a job when it is completed and that a fine be imposed on those who do electrical work without a license.

Mr. H. R. J. MacPherson spoke in regard to the matter and explained the advantages of the proposed system.

The letter was referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

A SPLENDID TURNOUT FOR THE FIRST DRILL OF 57TH; FLASHLIGHT OF OFFICERS

One of the finest turnouts for a first night of the drill year was the one last night at the drill shed when over 300 volunteers and recruits of the 57th were present at the drill shed. Besides these were the stretcher-bearer corps and bugle band. The men were outfitted and put through the squad drill. Any recruits wishing to join the regiment are reminded of the necessity of doing so at once.

A feature of the evening was the taking of a flashlight photograph of the officers in the mess room at the drill hall which was used last night for perhaps the last occasion in connection with the regiment.

Nearly all the officers were included in the picture, among them being Dr. Bell, formerly Lt.-Col. of the 57th, and Major Langford, a former quartermaster. Col. Miller unfortunately arrived too late to be taken.

It is expected that the regiment will be able to use the new armouries by next Monday.

They will then proceed to Scotland, where Mrs. Irwin has relatives, after which they will make a tour of England and the continent. Motion to Have Vote of People as to Ward System or General Vote for Electing Aldermen

Ald. Morgan and some of the other aldermen are in favor of submitting a by-law to the people to find out if they want to go back to the ward system of electing aldermen. The matter came up at last night's meeting of the City Council and caused a lively discussion. It was by vote of the aldermen decided to leave the question over for three months.

Ald. Morgan moved that a bylaw be prepared providing for the election of aldermen by ward system. Ald. Buller seconded the motion.

The act provides, said Ald. Morrow, that if the motion is carried before the 1st of November, a by-law must be prepared and submitted to the ratepayers at the following January election.

There was some discussion on the motion in which several of the aldermen expressed their opinions.

Ald. Hicks stated that he would rather have the one year term than the ward system.

In amendment Ald. Morrow and Ald. Phelan moved that the question be left over for three months.

The motion carried.

Ald. Morgan asked for yeas and nays.

Yeas—Aldermen Phelan, Morrow, McIntyre, Gillespie, Bradburn, Duffus and Hicks.

Nays—Aldermen Metheral, Turner, Buller, Morgan, Duncan.

Ald. Morgan asked Mayor Rush to vote on the motion. His worship consented and voted for the amendment, making the vote 9 to 5.

Ald. Turner suggested previous to the motion being put, that the vote on the Ward system be taken at the same time as the vote on the proposed new bridge at Smith street.

Ald. Morgan said he did not care whether he was elected for six months or two years, but the people should be given a chance to say which system they wanted. Ald. Metheral agreed with this.

AN IRISH POEM

Our esteemed contempory, the Orillia Packet, corrects the Lindsay Post, in a recent lapse, but does not quote the poem referred to. For the benefit of our Orillia friend we offer a couple of stanzas:

Brian O'Lynn had no breeches to wear,
So he bought him a cow-hide to make him a pair,
With the fleshy side out and the hairy side in.
"Sure, they're warm and pleasant," said Brian O'Lynn.

Brian O'Lynn, his wife and her mother,
They all went out to walk together,
The bridge it was broken—so granny fell in;
"There's luck in odd numbers," said Brian O'Lynn.

FARMERS AROUND CHEMONG, PIGEON AND BUCKHORN LAKES ARE ANGRY

Agent of Government Trying to Buy up Claims on "Spec." Before Appropriation Made---Promises Not Fulfilled ---No Settlement in Sight.

Some of the owners of farm and other lands on the shores of Chemong, Buckhorn and Pigeon lakes are up in arms over the delay of the Government in settling their claims for damages and over the methods being employed to ascertain and buy up the claims for drowned lands along the route of the Trent Valley Canal. It seems that while formerly it was left to be supposed that all land submerged or "drowned" would be paid for by the Government it is now stated by an agent of the Government in the districts named that only that quantity of land between low and high water mark as the water is now, will be considered. This will work a serious injustice and will doubtless lead to many lawsuits. In somes cases this manner of settlement would mean a loss of fity per cent of the landdrowned and of the consequent claim on account of it. It is wholly intolerable that the Government should allow agents to go through the country trying to buy up claims before the appropriations are made at Ottawa. A "division of profits" for doing the work of agent for both claimant and government is too suggestive of the principle of rake-off to be pleasant. One agent is said to have offered an alternative, viz. either a percentage of the amount ultimately secured or a purchase of the claim, in toto. In the meantime the settlement of the claims so often touted as practically unprovided for which is a cause of serious loss to those farmers who had expected better things. It has even been threatened too by the agent referred to that it might be two years before appropriations would be made at Ottawa. These coercive and doubtful methods of dealing with riparian claims is of a piece with much of the "good work" done along and in the neighborhood of the shores of the Trent Valley Canal.

CLAIMS DAMAGES FOR THE DEATH OF LITTLE CHILD

The city has a claim for damages on its hands as a result of the drowning in the creek of the little child of Walter J. Roberts, several weeks ago. Mr. Roberts has sent the following letter to the City Council:

"I beg to notify you that my infant son, Maxwell Roberts, was drowned by falling into the town creek, alongside Murray street, on the 8th day of February last, the cause of the accident being the want of repairs and protection of the street on the side next to the creek, and that an action for damages will be brought against the city for their default in that behalf."

The matter was referred to the Legal Committee at last night's meeting of the council.

MISSIONARY ADDRESSES GIVEN AT BANQUET AT THE Y.M.C.A.

A successful banquet was held in the YMCA banquet hall last night, under the auspices of the Foreign Work Committee of that institution. A large number of business and professional men of the city were present and followed the two addresses very closely. The Foreign Work Committee has undertaken to raise $300 in support of a secretary in one of the heathen countries and last night's event was in the interests of this movement. The chair was occupied by Ald J J Turner, chairman of the committee and after justice had been done to the splendid menu, he introduced the speakers of the evening, Messrs Coulter and Hibbert of New York City. Mr Coulter gave one of the best missionary addresses ever heard in this city. He is eloquent and impressive. He spoke of the advances commercially and socially that has been made by those Asiatic nations; about the contributions from the Christian nations to the commercial interests of heathen nations, and of the contributions of the civilized nations to the vice of the eastern nations. Mr Coulter closed with a strong appeal that the healing stream of the gospel be sent from the Christian nations to the heathen nations.

Dr. Bingham's request was granted.

A communication regarding the refuse ground was referred to the Property Committee.

W Little wrote, asking for a rebate on street watering for the five-house terrace on Stewart street between Brock and Hunter streets. He stated that the terrace is not on the plan when the watering cart is on the street—Board of Works.

Dennistoun, Peck and Kerr, acting for David Evans, asking for damages for their client who, it was stated, had received injuries by falling on the north side of London street on March 18th. The charge is made that the sidewalk is defective.—Legal Committee.

In connection with this claim, City Engineer Hay wrote stating that he had investigated the matter and found that Mr Evans had not been seriously injured.

John Meharry wrote asking permission to build a boat house at the foot of Sherbrooke street on the water edge—Property Committee.

Mrs. Winna Sullivan, presented a claim for damages as a result of flooding of property. It was referred to the Legal Committee.

W. H. Moore, acting for Edward Conroy, put in a claim of six dollars for damage done to client's automobile on Charlotte street near the Snowden House on February 28th. It was stated in Mr Moore's letter that the damage resulted from a deep gutter on the street.

Street Commissioner Evans reported in connection with Mr. Conroy's claim that the gutter had been made by the street railway company employees, that it was not more than six inches deep and that the city was not responsible for the claim.

City Solicitor Hall also gave the opinion that the city was not liable.

O'Connell & Gordon wrote on behalf of Dr. Jas. V. Gallivan, asking $50 damages on account of damage caused to their client's goods and effects in his house at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets, as a result of a defective sewer, Legal Committee.

Kerr, Davidson, Paterson and McFarland, of Toronto, solicitors for the Canadian General Electric Co., wrote regarding the building of the new waterworks dam. They stated that they hoped the building of the new dam would not effect the power privileges of C. G. E. dam at Nassau, and notifying that the Canadian General Electric Co. would protect their rights in that regard. Referred to city solicitor.

H. L. Beal, secretary of the Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society, wrote stating that the society intended making extensive improvements to the upper part of Victoria Park, as had been arranged with the County Council. To do this work properly the society requests the City Council to have the band concerts in Central Park this summer. They also ask for all the road scrapings available to be used in making the improvements. Mr. Beal, in his letter, also suggested that a meeting of the council, the Board of Education, the 57th Regiment and the Horticultural Society be held, in order to come to an understanding as to what improvements, if any, will be best suited to all parties in connection with Central Park.

The communication was referred to the Property Committee.

The following was among the communications:

To the Honourable, the Mayor of Peterborough:

Dear Sir,—We desire to call your attention to the claim of our client, the Cameron Septic Tank Co., of Chicago, against your city for an infringement of its patented process for the disposal of sewage, patent No. 58527, dated December 27, 1897, issued to D. Cameron and others, like patents for which process are held by our client in the United States, the validity of which have been recognized by our highest courts. We will be glad to negotiate with your city for the purpose of adjusting our client's claim, and permitting the future use of the process.

We might state for your information that when the city of Toronto installed a similar process for the disposal of its sewage it negotiated with our client, recognized the patents, and paid a license fee for the privilege of using the process.

If you will kindly let us know how long your disposal plant has been in use and the cost of constructing the same we will be pleased to take up the matter of giving you a definite figure for the purpose of settlement.

Yours very truly,

Cox, Kimball & Stowe,
Buffalo, N.Y.

This letter was referred to the Board of Works.

MR. KENNEDY'S CASE.

Mr. J. H. Burnham drew the attention of the council to the case of Mr. Kennedy, who broke his hip by falling at the corner of Hunter and Chambers streets a year ago last February. The spot on the sidewalk where Mr. Kennedy fell was very slippery, and no sand or anything else had been sprinkled there, although the speaker (Mr. Burnham) had notified two of the city's officials about it. Mr. Kennedy's expenses had been over $95, and he could ill afford to bear the same. Mr. Burnham thought that Mr. Kennedy's was a deserving case, and that he should be given something by the council.

He was 82 years of age, and unable to earn more than a bare living.

Rev. J. G. Potter also spoke in connection with Mr. Kennedy's case, and supported what had been said by Mr. Burnham.

Mayor Rush stated that the matter would again be considered by the council.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE.

Ald. Bradburn, chairman, reported for the Property Committee as follows:

Your committee beg leave to report, and recommend as follows:

1. That the offer from G. H. Savigny, of $100 for a strip of land on the southwest corner of Aylmer and Westcott streets and an offer from W. H. Robinson of $100 for a strip of land on the northwest corner of Aylmer and Westcott streets be accepted.

2. That this committee be authorized to sell a lot 40 feet by 80 feet, owned by the city, on Aylmer street, between Lake and Westcott streets.

The report was adopted.

OTHER COMMITTEES.

Ald. Turner presented a report from the Legal Committee, and Ald. Phelan that of the Board of Works.

Ald. Morrow moved, seconded by Ald. Turner, that the matter of a cinder path across Central Park be referred to the Board of Works.

Ald Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that a clause of the Board of Works report recommending that the matter of the supplies for the street work be left in the hands of the chairman, be struck out and that the purchase of the supplies be left with the city engineer. The motion to adopt the report without amendment was carried.

Ald. Metheral wanted street crossings that are not built at the same time as the sidewalks paid for out of the current revenue. He would have this done this year. Ald. Hicks agreed with him. So did Ald. Morgan.

On account of the reduced appropriation of the Board of Works this year it was considered advisable to leave the matter in abeyance this year. In this connection Ald. Phelan, seconded by Ald. Turner, moved that the matter of crossings be referred to the Board of Works to be reported on. This was carried.

MR. COULTER'S ADDRESS

The manly, straightforward and impartial review of the relation between the Occident and the Orient set out by Mr. Coulter in his altogether admirable address at the Y.M.C.A. banquet last evening, must have satisfied all who were privileged to hear it that this relation needs a prompt and effective overhauling. When a man of Mr. Coulter's position and experience says that "not five per cent of those who go to the East keep themselves reasonably clean," and free from the filth of absolute abandonment to the worst that is in them and to the encouragement of every species of eastern and western vice, it is surely time to pause and do a little thinking. Are we saving or ruining the East? Is the new and splendid movement amongst us really after all not for the purification of western "civilization" rather than for the carrying of the tidings of decency farther afield. It may be that our efforts will open our eyes to our own appalling western self-sufficiency and to the need of more of the good results of our teaching in ourselves. "It is not," he said, while we held our breath "under the laws of China that vice is protected, but under the territorial jurisdiction of Great Britain, U.S., Germany, etc., who having demanded exclusive rights in the neighborhood of their embassies and consulates and who permit the vices of the East and West to stalk abroad in all their naked awfulness." It was not the Chinese who permitted this. It was not the Chinese who introduced the American saloons where the East and West met and learned new and greater vices and more thorough abandonment to lust. We are not overstating the case. This young apostle of the real Christ spoke with a strength and accuracy that rose far above mere eloquence or the unctuous platitudes of the ordinary missionary meeting. Such a man will, if any can, rouse the men of the west to a sense of fitness of duty and of shame. It is not in mere preaching nor the presentation of uncertain doctrine that lies the power which reforms and regenerates. This Mr. Coulter worked hard to impress upon us. But in the power of bringing about better results, a cleaner life, a sweeter existence, a happier prospect when holiness will mean fairplay and salvation, the rescue of a man from his own condemnation. In a word, Mr. Coulter besought us to remember that the first and by far the longest step in the right direction was the cutting out of our own vices. The picture rises before us. What would be left of us without our vices? But if we could once get clear of even half of them, how enormously our real happiness and the happiness of those dependent upon us would be increased. We could not remain to hear Mr. Hibbard, but of one thing we were satisfied: That since Mr. Coulter could speak the plain, unvarnished, reasonable truth without seeking to stampede us into a false display of our unstable emotions, it would have been vastly better to have had him in the Opera House. Could we not have the opportunity of hearing this sensible, truthful man in a place of adequate size?

The Y.M.C.A.'s are doing a great work in the far East. The Orientals look to them as amongst the only possible means of escape for their young men from a fate so awful as to appear incredible.

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR BRICKLAYERS

Have Already Commenced Operations—Should Have Busy Season

The bricklayers are beginning operations and are optimistic over the prospects for the season. Last year the knights of the trowel were late in getting started, with the result that they had a lot of work on their hands which kept them busy up to late in the fall, and much brick-laying was done during the winter. But this year the bricklayers have got away to a good start, as a walk around the city will convince anyone who is sufficiently interested. With numerous houses and stores going up and extensive improvements to several of the churches, the bricklayers may be justified in looking forward to a busy year.

April Fool Day Case at Police Court This Morning—Was Dismissed

There was only one case at the police court this morning. John Kelleher was the complainant in an assault case. John Conroy was the defendant but after hearing the evidence of both parties the Magistrate dismissed the case.

According to Kelleher's story, the assault took place on the first day of April at the rear of the Cereal works power house when a number of men were engaged in removing stones from the river. Large stoneboats were used in the work and the defendant and complainant were both engaged on the same job.

Kelleher claims that Conroy deliberately pushed him off the boat into the water and as a result he was drenched to the skin and suffered after effects. But according to the foreman who had charge of the work, the boat became overturned by the current and this was how the defendant had come to get into the water.

The defendant told the same story and contradicted the complainant's version of the affair with the result that the case was dismissed.

The tickets for Lulu Glaser, in "Mlle Mischief" the banner musical comedy of the continent, are selling rapidly. If you have not booked your seats yet, do so to-night. Box office open until 9 o'clock.

UNMUSICAL PETERBORO'

Opera Company Enthusing Quebec—Didn't Get Corporal's Guard Here

The Montreal Gazette says:—At six evening and two matinee performances last week, residents of Quebec and its nearby suburbs packed the big Auditorium Theatre of that city to the doors in their eagerness to hear the Royal Italian Grand Opera Company. Never before in its history has the Ancient Capital displayed so much and so protracted enthusiasm; by the end of the week it was impossible to get seats for any performance except a scattered few in the less desirable parts of the theatre. The week's receipts broke records for Quebec. Socially, too, the week was one long to be remembered. Lieut.-Governor Pelletier, Sir Lomer Gouin, and many of the best known men in political and social circles not only entertained at box parties but the principal members of the company were in many cases their guests at receptions and luncheons at the Garrison Club and at private houses.

Chorus—"By man came also the resurrection."

Quartette—"For as in Adam all die."

Chorus—"Even so in Christ shall all be made alive," from the "Messiah" Handel.

Chorus—"Gloria in Excelsis" Mozart from the 12th Mass.

LAKEFIELD HOCKEY TEAM WERE GUESTS OF THE CITY LEAGUE

Presented With the Championship Trophy---Chieftains, the Junior Champions, Also Honored---An Interesting Toast List and All-Round Successful Function.

Another hockey season has come and gone, the championship has been won the annual banquet has been held, the cup presented to the winners and every body is satisfied, and happy. That is the conclusion that must be arrived at by the large number who were present at the Oriental Hotel last evening, where the affair was held. The City League banquets in the past years have always been a brilliant success and the one held last night was no exception. Lakefield were there last night in all their glory. The team from the north must indeed feel highly gratified on their past performances and that their efforts should at last be rewarded by the Stratton cup, being presented to them after a game fight for honors during the past four years that they have figured in the City League race.

The Chieftains, winners of the Junior City League, were also very in evidence. The other teams were well represented, which is a fitting tribute to their good sportsmanship. Past and present officers of the league, who have been largely instrumental in the success of the league, occupied prominent positions at the banquet and their presence added much to the success of the evening. There were two important absentees, who were greatly missed. The donor of the cup, Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P., was unable to be present as was also Mr. Leo Quinn, the captain of the victorious Lakefield team. It was about nine o'clock when the company which numbered about eighty, sat down at the tables so bountifully spread by mine host Graham, and the numerous courses were dispatched with the same "vim" which the hockey players showed while on the ice.

The following was the menu;

Mock Turtle aux Quenelles.

Radishes, salted almonds.

Fried fillet of sole, Matelope (Pomman Strathcona.)

Oyster patties a la T.A.S.

Belmont croquets with red currant jelly.

Roast spring chicken with dressing

Mashed potatoes, creamed corn.

Lakefield salad a la West End.

Chocolate eclairs.

Coffee.

Miss Kate Graham presided at the piano and her excellent work was very much appreciated by the company.

After those present had done full justice to the menu, the toast list which is always a prominent feature of this banquet, was proposed and honored in a very pleasing manner. Mr. Chris. G. Graham acted in the capacity of toastmaster and acquitted himself in his usual capable manner.

The following was the toast list;—

"The King."

"The Champions."

Presentation of the Stratton Cup to the Lakefield senior champions and the Clarke-Graham cup to the Chieftains.

"The Referees,"

"The Ladies."

Entertainers—Mr. W. McIlroy, Mr. Jas. Browne, Mr. Geo. Lynch, Mr. Irvnig Beers.

Pianist—Miss Kate Graham.

The toast to "The King" was proposed and honored in the usual loyal manner, after which a song by Mr W. McIlroy was much appreciated by those present.

Mr Chris Graham in proposing the toast to the champions first read a letter of regret from Mr Stratton, who was unable to attend, but assured the league of his interest in the welfare of the City Hockey League. Mr. Graham said the Lakefield team had put up a game fight and congratulated the team on winning the championship. The league had not been so successful financially this year but from the playing standpoint, it had fulfilled its purpose.

Mr R. M Glover, on behalf of Mr. Stratton, thanked the league for their kind invitation and congratulated the Lakefield team on winning the championship, also the officers on the success of the league since its inception. The Lakefield team had been handicapped by having to play all their games away from home and this was probably the reason they had not been successful sooner. They deserved all the praise for coming down to Peterborough for the last four years, and their perseverance had finally won them the cup. He paid a fitting tribute to the Strathconas, who had done much for the City League. The league had fulfilled its purpose as there would have been no intermediate team in Peterborough but for the assistance given by the younger players and if the seven which represented Peterborough had taken an earlier interest, the championship of the OHA might have come to Peterborough. In conclusion he said Mr. Stratton would only be too pleased to help any sport that was conducted along proper lines. This was the first year he had missed the annual banquet, and while he was absent, the league could be assured of his continued interest in them.

Mr. Graham in proposing the toast to the Chieftains, who have won the Junior City League championship, congratulated them on their success. They had put up a great game this season and in a short time Peterborough would have a team that would not be easily beaten. Mr Fred Clarke and himself had donated the cup and were only too glad to help all good clean sport.

Mr Simpson, of the Lakefield team responded to the toast to his team. He thanked Mr Stratton for donating the cup and the officers of the league in the proficient manner that they had managed the affairs of the league. He thanked the city league for the good reception and generous treatment that Lakefield had received and he was glad that there had been such a successful season.

Mr. McWilliams responded to the toast to the champions of the Junior City League and on behalf of the club returned thanks to the doners of the cup. There should be more interest taken in sports in this town as there was lots of material and it only needed someone to encourage the players.

Mr. Jas Browne favored the company with a song and received great applause for his efforts.

The toast to the "Referees" was next proposed by Mr Jos Picard, who said that much of the success of the league was due to the work of the referees and those who had officiated this season had made a creditable showing.

Mr W Rose in responding congratulated the two teams on winning the championships. The Chieftains had done remarkable well this season and Peterborough would be represented soon by a good fast jen or bunch. The league had been a success and he congratulated the officers on the efforts they had put forth for the interests of the City Hockey League.

Miss Nellie Graham was also well received by her clever singing of a coon song to which she was compelled to respond to an encore.

The "Ladies" were next toasted. Mr Graham proposed the toast and called upon Messrs Beers, Craig and Metheral to respond. Needless to say the ladies received full justice at the hands of the three speakers after which the very successful affair was brought to a close by all present joining in singing Auld Lang Syne.

AN IMPORTANT LACROSSE MEETING THIS EVENING

A big attendance is looked for at the meeting of the lacrosse club this evening at the Crown Hotel. The question of organising a junior and intermediate C. L. A. team will be taken up, and the appointment of a representative to the annual meeting of the C.L.A.

Judging from the number of players in the city, all that is needed for the success of the game this season is organisation.

As the date of the C. L. A. meeting is so close at hand it is important that this organisation be effected at the earliest possible date.

ANNUAL MEETING OF LAWN BOWLING CLUB ON APRIL 8TH

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club will be held at the Dominion Bank chambers on Thursday, April 8th, at 8 o'clock. The annual reports will be received at the meeting, and the officers for the coming year will be elected.

A full attendance of all members is requested, and any others interested in the game, and who purpose bowling this season, are also invited to attend. The progress of lawn bowling in Peterborough since the club was organized has been most satisfactory and encouraging, and this year the largest membership in the club's history is expected.

GOTCH PICKED TO BEAT YUSSIFF

Buffalo Fans Don't Think the Turk Has Chance With Champion

Buffalo, April 5—Buffalo wrestling enthusiasts have had two chances of seeing Yussiff Mahmout, the big Turk in action during the past two weeks, and sizing up the latest aspirant's chances of wrestling the championship from Frank Gotch. Had it not been for the curiosity of seeing the foreigner, who has been mowing them all down to entitle him to a tilt with the champion the matches would not have drawn a corporals guard, but there was a genuine desire to see the big Bulgarian and the real wrestling fans took advantage of the opportunity to gratify it

It may be said with small chance of contradiction that not one man out of ten who has seen both men in action concedes Mahmout better than an outside chance with the champion. Not that Mahmout is not a classy wrestler and a good one. No man could have gone through the long list of good wrestlers of which the United States boasts and defeat them with such consummate ease as has this big foreigner and not possess nearly all the attributes of a champion.

Mahmout has beaten every good man of note since his arrival here. Commencing with Tom Jenkins he has in turn beaten Beell, Americus, Olson, Raoul de Rouen, Rooney, Westegaard Burns and a host of others whose names are not readily recalled. In doing this he has only repeated the successes of Gotch, but has been winning so convincingly that he is rightfully entitled to consideration.

But close student of the mat game cannot see where Mahmout can beat Gotch if the champion is in shape. It is certain that Mahmout does not know so much about the game as Gotch. He is a big strong fellow, and if he has anything at all on Gotch it may be strength and even this is doubtful.

Those who have seen Gotch wrestle here in exhibition bouts and in all-comers' series do not know the real Gotch. Gotch is a big-natured boy, always showing the pleasant side of his nature in private, but he is as vicious a piece of human machinery as ever wore sandals when he is riled. He simply plays with his opponents in these smaller matches, but when wrestling in real earnest he can do more real damage and hurt an opponent more than any man that ever used a half-Nelson. This was proven in the Hackenschmidt and De Rouen bouts.

RUNNING

Tom Longboat is in disgrace and another hero is enthroned in the high position lately held by the red man. What has he done? Only his best. Those very appropriate words, "It makes no difference what you were, it's what you are to-day" must strike home to the dusky Indian with telling force. Some will ask what did he ever do anyway? But it is not generally what you do, but its how you do it. This is why Longboat has been such a shining light. His habits and eccentric ways coupled with "getting in right," with the "sports," are mostly responsible for his notoriety and good fortune. But now he has lost a race but why? is a question that can only be answered by those who are on the inside looking out.

SPORTING TALK

A big attendance is looked for at to-night's lacrosse meeting at the Crown Hotel.

Fred Simpson always has a hard proposition. He raced Alfred Shrubb, the runaway Englishman at 12 miles, and now he's booked to meet Appleby, Shrubb's conqueror at fifteen miles in a 20 mile go. Simpson will certainly have to do his finest to get away with a victory when he faces Appleby.

Uxbridge is on the eve of a local option campaign.

SIMPSON MATCHED TO RUN SVANBERG

Special to the Review

Toronto, April 6—Fred Simpson, the Ojibway Thunderbolt who meets Fred Appleby, the English runner in a 20 mile race at Rosedale Good Friday has been matched to run John Svanberg, the Sweedish champion at Marathon distance at Celtic park, NY, April 17.

In a training stunt at Varsity track yesterday Simpson covered 12 miles in 1.08.40 1-5. The 12 mile time in Saturday's big race in New York was 1.18.36.

JERRY EDMUNDS LEAVES THURSDAY

Jerry Edmunds of the Petes, goes to Toronto on Thursday and will remain there for a couple of weeks before reporting for duty at Winnipeg where he has signed to play for the coming season.

When Jerry leaves, the city will lose as popular a ball player as ever figured on a local team. He is also a particularly good catcher in all departments of the backstop's work and should have little difficulty in making good with the fast Winnipeg nine. A couple of years should see Jerry in top notch professional company. He is cool, heady and effective and has all the earmarks of a star backstop.

10 ROUND FISTIC BOUT

May be Arranged Between Corney Burns and Tomy Daly

A ten round bout may be pulled off here in the near future. While no definite terms have been concluded, arrangements are being made to have Corney Burns and Tommy Daly of Brantford meet in a ten round go here. Burns is perfectly willing and it only remains for Daly to come to terms.

The two met here some time ago and boxed a lively four round bout with little to choose between them.

BASEBALL

Where is the Midland annual meeting going to be held this year or will it take place at all. According to the rules and regulations the meeting should take place in Peterborough this year as this is where the silverware is at present reposing. But it is not likely that Port Hope would show up here anyway as there is a little affair amounting to $50 to be settled yet with the local club.

Members and players of the Strathcona A. C. are reminded of the meeting to be held in the YMCA tonight at 7.30 for the purpose of organising a baseball team for the coming season. A large attendance is asked for by the management.

The Toronto Eastern League team had a rather easy victory over the Chatham team yesterday when they won by 18-0.

LAST CONTEST OF THE SEASON

Seven Prizes Will be Offered at the Euchre Contest in Young Conservative Rooms on April 14

The Young Conservative Club will hold another euchre contest on Wednesday evening April 14th. This will be the last to be held this season and will to all reports be the most successful of the large number that have been held in the club rooms this winter. There will be seven prizes offered for the first seven high scores and no doubt a large number of members will be present to take part in the games.

Woolwich Goverbment Dockyard,
Little Lake Harbor,
April 1st, 1909.

Dear Sir,—At the special sitting of the Canadian House of Parliament, which was held yesterday, it was decided, that Canada's contribution to the Imperial Navy, should take the form of a gift of 6 "Dough Nuts," 1 duck hunting canoe, 1 dingy, and 1 pair of oars.

In order to secure the equilibrium, it is most essential that the ships be evenly sanded, so as to avoid a recurrence of the recent disaster on the Otonabee river, in which you played a prominent part.

You will understand that you will be governed by Section 5, Statute, 11, Vic. 17 of the Factories Act, and that you will be required to furnish a bond for the safety of your fellow-workmen by doing the work whilst they secure and foul the necessary sand-paper, and provide the water necessary to cool the "Sander" in.

You are to have the full control of the Boat Shop Water Barrel, and will be required to provide the necessary disinfectants for the aforesaid barrel, and you are at all times to be under the direction of Mr. Batiste O'Dette, who is required to see that all "Goblem" employed is up to the Navy Regulation standard.

Kindly phone your reply to main 23.

I have the honor to be your obedient servant,

WILFRID LAURIER.

DEPUTATIONS HEARD BY CITY COUNCIL LAST NIGHT

57th Regiment Ask For Assistance to Entertain Outside Regiments on May 24th—Horticultural Society Want Assistance of Police in Protecting Victoria Park—Gas Franchise Extended.

In committee of the whole last night the city council heard several deputations.

A deputation consisting of Col. Stevenson, Major Clegg and Major Bennett was first heard. Col. Stevenson was spokesman, and explained to the council that the 57th regiment had invited the Brantford regiment here for May 24th, and if the council would give some assistance they would invite one or two regiments more. Col. Stevenson said that the council had made a grant towards the entertaining of an Ottawa regiment here a few years ago. It was pointed out that a lot of money would be left in Peterborough as a result of the visit of these outside regiments.

Mayor Rush said that the deputation's request would receive careful consideration.

A deputation from the Peterborough and Horticultural Society, consisting of Messrs. Peter Campbell and Harry Beal was heard. Mr. Campbell said that the Society was having the greatest difficulty in keeping trespassers off Central Park in the spring and fall of the year when it was imperative that the sod should not be trampled upon. They had asked the chief of police to assist them but the chief had informed them that he had no authority in the matter. Mr. Campbell asked that the council pass a by-law that would enable the chief to act.

Mr. Beal said the Society had notices forbidding trespass posted up, and a fence put up at both sides of the park, but they had been torn down. It was no use spending money on the park if trespassers could not be kept off. Mr. Beal said he had written to the Police Commissioners about the matter last fall, but had never heard anything more about the matter.

Mayor Rush promised the deputation that the council would look into the matter at once.

Mr. L. Hall and Mr. C. Wood were a deputation from the Peterborough Gun Club asking for a renewal of the privilege of using Riverside Park for shooting. Mr. Hall was the spokesman for the deputation.

Ald. uDncan and Bradburn moved and seconded that the Gun Club have the same privilege as in other years, and that they be responsible for any damage that might result.

This was carried.

Mr. R. H. Leary and Mr. Charles Dettman were next heard and asked for a renewal of the franchise for the distribution of gas in Peterborough. Mr. Leary presented their case.

Ald. Duffus moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan, that Mr. Dettman be given a further extension of the franchise to June 30th of this year.

It was pointed out that drilling for gas was to be started at once.

You'll be sorry if you miss seeing "Mile Mischief" at the Grand to-morrow evening. More catchy music, pretty girls, elaborate scenery and effects than any attraction on the circuit. Box office open to-night.

PETERBOROUGH AS SEEN BY VISITING NEWSPAPERMAN

An Echo of the Pressmen's Visit -- How the Leading Industries Struck the Visitors—The City Praised

Combining business with pleasure the members of the Canadian Press Association have for some years taken a short excursion to some point near Toronto at the close of their annual meeting.

This year the trip was to Peterborough, and at 8 a.m. on Saturday of last week a C.P.R. special train left the Union Station, Toronto, with nearly 200 members on board. The distance is about 80 miles and the run was made inside of two hours — certainly good going. The morning was not what one would have chosen for an outing, there being a heavy snow storm, which lasted till well on in the day, but that did not interfere with the cordial welcome given to the visitors at Burketon Junction, 30 miles west of Peterborough. Mayor Rush and all the aldermen of the city boarded the train and personally welcomed their visitors.

On arriving at the city the train was backed down to the works of the Canadian General Electric company, and an opportunity was given to see how almost everything in the electric line was made from the huge dynamo to the delicate light meter and glass bulb. The iron-working and lifting machinery is massive, huge pieces of many tons in weight being carried here and there by the electric cranes and planed and bored as easily as if of wood. In the making of lamps and meters a number of most ingenious machines are used, operated by girls for the most part, who have light and pleasant, if somewhat monotonous employment. The appliances for the winding of wire with cotton or other insulating material, are quite ingenious, and the treatment of rubber from the raw lumps to finished sheets is quite a novelty.

The manufacture of cordage of various kinds, from binder twine to large ropes, as seen in the factories of the Canadian Cordage Company was quite interesting and occupied an hour very pleasantly.

Leaving the Cordage Factory the party made their way to the Oriental Hotel, the National or the Snowden, all fine hostelries, where they dined as guests of the city, and time was allowed to make new acquaintances or renew old ones.

Much interest was taken in the mills of the Quaker Oats Company, where many lines of leading cereals are manufactured. The mills are of immense size and many stories in height, and the view from the top is well worth the long climb entailed. Something entirely new was the making of wheat berries and puffed rice — two of the newest candidates for favor in the cereal line. The grain is put into guns holding several bushels, and after being heated to a high temperature and revolved rapidly for some time, the charge is fired and the grain comes out much larger and with every starch granule broken. After they had seen how things were made, the visitors were waited upon by the ladies of the office and treated to cereals and cream, to which they gave their hearty approval. The Quaker Oats Company is an American concern and most of its export trade is done from Peterborough, labels being seen in many languages on boxes ready for shipment to all parts of the world. An idea of the volume of business may be gathered from the fact that the inward and outward shipments amount to about 80 carloads daily.

Coming out of the cereal works we found that the railway officials had very obligingly moved our train just across the street, and in a few minutes we were off for Toronto where we arrived as the bells were ringing 6.

Owing to the short time we had but little chance to see the attractions of the city itself, which is to be regretted, as it is an exceedingly up-to-date place. For the same reason a trip to the famous lift lock had to be postponed till a more convenient season.—The Freeholder.

GOVERNMENT WHOLLY UPHELD END OF A FAMOUS MINING CASE

Court of Appeal Gives Judgment in Cobalt Lake Case—Green Loses by His Own Laches or Design, Which? The Liberal Press Discomfited.

The Court of Appeal by an exhaustive judgment delivered yesterday on the case of the Florence Mining Company against the Cobalt Lake Mining Company disposed in the most complete manner of a claim that has been made the ground of the most serious charges against the Ontario Government by the Liberal press.

By an order in Council dated Aug. 14, 1905, Cobalt Lake and Kerr Lake were withdrawn from the area open to prospectors and on Aug. 28th following a similar order was issued regarding the Townships of Coleman and Bucke. On Oct. 30th the latter order in council was rescinded.

In January 1906, W J Green, a lawyer by profession but engaging in the brokerage business, consulted a Toronto lawyer about forming a syndicate. Shortly after he met a Major Gordon who told him he was sure he would find a vein in Cobalt. Green then went to the Department of Mines and was supplied with literature about Cobalt. From Toronto he went to Haileybury and obtained more literature and maps then proceeded with Gordon to Cobalt Lake and set up a diamond drill without troubling to take out a license.

Their search for a vein was soon rewarded and before removing the core which had been struck by the drill Green hastened to qualify as a prospector by securing a miner's license and followed this up by the usual filing of a claim on discovery of valuable mineral. The recorder, however, refused to file the claim on the ground that the lake was withdrawn from prospecting.

Subsequently the Government called for tenders for the purchase of the lake and accepted that of the Cobalt Lake Syndicate for $1,085,000. No action was taken by Green to contest the right of the Government to sell till after tenders had been called for and a deposit received from the syndicate that acquired the property, not only the twenty acres to which Green laid claim but an additional thirty-five acres.

Green having assigned to the Florence Mining Co. the latter instituted proceedings attacking the patent granted to the syndicate and asked for a declaration that they were entitled to the 20 acres claimed by them.

The Government having in the meantime passed a special act confirming the sale to the syndicate this was also attacked by the Florence Mining Company on the ground that it was ultra vires and an invasion of their rights under the Mining Acts.

The case was tried before Mr Justice Riddell, who gave judgment against the plaintiffs on the ground that the defendants title could not be impugned, resting as it did on an act of the Legislature. The merits of Green's claim on the other points was not gone into by his Lordship.

Mr. Justice Riddell's decision was appealed from direct to the Court of Appeal.

In its judgment given yesterday, the latter court remarks that Green had acquired considerable experience in mining law, yet, according to his evidence he did not think it necessary to see anyone appointed to give information, nor did he make any enquiry as to the lake being open to prospectors. All he asked for was literature. No inquiry as to orders-in-Council, no special enquiries of any kind.

"Now, if Green was misled," say their Lordships, "he had only himself to blame. A plain direct question either at the Bureau of Mines or at Haileybury would have undoubtedly elicited the information that Cobalt Lake was not open for prospecting. But evidently to suit his own purposes he did not desire to put the direct question.

"There was nothing misleading in the information he did obtain. The map furnished him showed a condition entirely consistent with the intention and practical working of the order in council of the 14th August and 30th October, 1905. A frank question would have led to a full explanation but for some mysterious reason it was not asked. In these circumstances the plaintiffs have nothing to blame the Department or Bureau of Mines for. The result is that the plaintiffs have no status to impeach the sale to the defentants."

The Court of Appeal also declares the Act vesting the property in the defendants to have been intra vires of the Legislature and to give the Cobalt Lake Mining Company an unimpeachable title to the land covered by their patent—Mail and Empire.

GRAND SUCCESS

Wonderful Growth in Sales During 1908.

The year just passed will long be remembered for the financial and commercial depression. Business houses all over Canada were affected. Most of them show a loss over 1907. Some did about as much business last year as in the preceeding one. A few—a very few—show substantial gains. In spite of "hard times" and "financial depression" the sales of "Fruit-a-tives" doubled in 1908 over 1907.

The National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada Limited bought "Fruit-a-tives" in 100 gross lots (14,000 boxes). Lyman Sons & Company of Montreal, and Lyman Brothers in Toronto, also ordered "Fruit-a-tives" by the hundred gross lots. These big wholesalers bought such big orders simply because the retail dealers ordered so many boxes of "Fruit-a-tives"—and the dealers had to keep "Fruit-a-tives" always in stock to supply the constantly growing demand of people in every section of Canada.

To-day, "Fruit-a-tives" are the most popular family medicine in the Dominion. In the big cities, in the smaller towns, on farms and ranches, "Fruit-a-tives" are the standby in curing all forms of Stomach, Liver, Bowel, Skin and Kidney Trouble, Rheumatism, Headaches and Neuralgia.

Are you a sufferer from any of the diseases? Don't hesitate a moment. Get a box of "Fruit-a-tives" — take them according to directions—and they will cure without fail. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

THE WATERWAYS TREATY AGAIN

Aylesworth and Gibbons Confer With Americans.

Washington, April 7.—The treaty relating to the disposition of the waters of St. Mary's river, between Michigan and the Canadian boundaries, which was ratified by the Senate in an amended form, was yesterday the subject of a conference by representatives of the Canadian and American Governments.

Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, Minister of Justice, and George C. Gibbons, represented the Dominion of Canada, while Secretary Knox, Senator Root, Attorney-General Wickerham, Secretary Dickinson, of the War Department, and Chandler Anderson, attorney for the Department of State, represented the United States.

The visitors, it is understood, were favorably impressed with the statements made to them by the Americans regarding their interpretation of the Senate amendment by which a disposition of the waters of the St. Mary's river available for power purposes, shall be on a basis of the territorial rights of the two Governments.

The conference yesterday led to the hope that a speedy disposition of the controversy over the treaty will be reached.

The Canadians will remain in Washington for several days, but no further conferences have been arranged.

C.N.R. SUBSIDY GIVES JUSTICE TO SETTLERS SAYS WHITNEY

Government is Proud of Terms of Land Offer For Sellwood-Port Arthur Extension, and Everyone Seems Thoroughly Satisfied.

Toronto, April 7.—The first division of the Legislature took place last night on the second reading of Sir James Whitney's bill to grant aid to the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway.

The debate lasted from 3 in the afternoon until 11 o'clock, when the Opposition moved in amendment that the bill be "read this day six months."

The members were called in and the amendment declared lost on a division of 21 yeas, 73 nays, the Government majority being 52. Allan Studholme (East Hamilton), P. H. Bowyer (East Kent), and W. P. Tubman (West Kent), voted with the Opposition, in fulfillment of pre-election pledges.

While the Government's majority is only shown at 52, it must be remembered that 11 Conservatives and one Liberal were absent when the vote was taken.

To facilitate progress the other Government bills respecting aid to railways were given a second reading, the Opposition retaining the right to move an amendment on the third reading.

"And, now," said the Premier, "in extension) I wish to say that the Gov- transaction. They are proud that everybody in the country approves of what has been done.

"They are proud of the fact that they are not afraid, even in the face of probable opposition, to take an open stand.

"They are proud of the fact, and naturally so, being human, that this bill shows for the first time in civilization that the prospective settlers gets such treatment as he deserves.

"They are proud of the fact that this bill, the more it is considered, will commend itself to reasonable men wherever reasonable men can be found."

Discrimination and recrimination were the two methods of Hon. A. G. MacKay's challenge to Premier Whitney in moving the six months' hoist to the bill.

Sir James had declared that a finite mind could scarcely grapple with the problem, and Mr. MacKay, after listening to Sir James' labored explanation was almost convinced of that. The Canadian Northern had asked for a cash grant and been refused. They were receiving what they did not ask. Mr. MacKay regretted they had not asked for a land grant. He declared that the road would be built anyway, claimed that most of the land was equal to that of Manitoba and that the timber values averaged $52,000 a mile.

In moving the second reading the Premier referred to the general principle of the measure, which was to grant 4,000 acres per mile for a line of railway from Sellwood to Port Arthur, approximately 500 miles, 350 of which will traverse the clay belt.

The Premier drew an analogy from the exactions of the Canada Company in its treatment of settlers, which the Government would altogether prevent in this instance. At the same time he proposed to amend the bill in regard to the clause by which the Government would regulate the sale of this land. If the grant is to be of value for financing they would have to deal fairly with the company. The amendment read: "Provided that the terms and conditions set out in any such order in council and referring to any specific act shall not be set aside, changed or varied in any subsequent order in council unless by agreement."

MOOSE JAW WOMAN DIES UNDER MYSTERIOUS CIRCUMSTANCES

Mrs. A. J. Kent, Wife of a Prominent Citizen, Takes "Medicine" Sent to Her House Which Has Since Been Proven to be Gopher Poison.

Moose Jaw, Sask., April 7.—Mrs. A. J. Kent, wife of a prominent city merchant, died suddenly Saturday evening. Yesterday sensational circumstances developed which render a coroner's inquest necessary. The deceased woman visited friends on Saturday evening, where she expired suddenly after appearing in the best of health.

It now appears that during Saturday afternoon a parcel containing medicine was left at the Kent house. About six o'clock Mrs. Kent was called on the telephone by a party having sent the medicine over. After eating supper she took a considerable quantity of the alleged medicine, which has since turned out to be gopher poison.

It has been learned that the party who called over the telephone was a woman speaking from the C.P.R. pay station.

No replies have been received to an advertisement offering $25 reward for the discovery of the boy who left the parcel containing the poison at the Kent home Saturday afternoon. The general impression is that it is a case either of murder or suicide. The bottle containing the poison bore no poison label and the police are satisfied that it was procured outside the city.

There was evidently some understanding between the deceased and the woman who furnished the supposed "medicine." Snatches of 'phone conversation between the two, overheard by the telephone operator, go to show that the parcel was expected by the deceased. The late Mrs. Kent was born at Gibson, N.B., 32 years ago, and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Kyle. For some years before her marriage she lived at Vancouver. Three and a half years ago she married. She was an active church and temperance worker.

CONSERVATIVE WHIP FINDS LADIES' FINERY IN ACCOUNTS

Tempest of Last Friday is Almost Repeated When Conservative Member Ask Explanation For Appearance of Feminine Apparel in Public Works.

Ottawa, April 7.—George Taylor, chief Conservative "whip," on Friday night made a speech which yesterday aroused the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to get up and make a reply. Mr. Taylor's reply to the reply came almost to the point of raising another tempest.

The Taylor contribution of Friday night was a selection from the chief whip's favorite volume, the Auditor-General's report. Therein he found that the country was paying $25 for one lady's cloak, $15 a piece for seven ladies' blouses, and $30 a piece for eight ladies' costumes, amounting in all to $744.50. These items for ladies' finery were concealed in the appropriation for the St. Lawrence ship channel.

Mr. Taylor asked how much mud this amount would take out, and he proceeded to ask the Prime Minister why he had allowed the Minister of Marine to put his hand in the public chest and take out money for this purpose.

Rising to a question of privilege Hon. Mr. Brodeur yesterday detailed the Taylor speech and proceeded to say that he had remonstrated with his officers for allowing the public money to be wasted.

When he saw Mr. Taylor reading from the Auditor-General's report he took his word for it, but the explanation he got from his officers was that there was nothing in the accounts for ladies' wearing apparel. The "blouses" and "costumes" were for the sailors of the Government fleet.

Then Taylor rose to reply, but he did not have the apology expected ready at hand. He had said nothing personal against the Minister.

"Be a man," cried several Government supporters, and Taylor came back with the retort, "If the right hon. gentleman wants this debate to continue, he'd better call off his bull dogs."

Mr. Speaker was prompt to take the floor with the demand for order.

"Then I withdraw the word," said Taylor, "but they are acting like them. If they want to get up a row like Friday night, we can go on."

Hon. Sydney Fisher claimed that the last sentence was a threat, and Mr. Speaker so held it.

"No member is allowed to use threatening words," he declared and Mr. Taylor withdrew, adding that he would obey the ruling of the chair. It was true that the word "ladies" did not appear in the accounts, "but the Auditor-Geenral condenses," he said.

"Too thin," put in Mr. Fisher.

"The Minister of Agriculture knows nothing about ladies' blouses," replied Taylor, who went on to say that if one would go into any store and ask for a blouse he would be shown to the ladies' department. He promised to move at the next meeting of the public accounts committee to have the accounts produced, and he would show that the Department bought any amount of stuff for ladies.

"Fancy," he went on, "blouses at $15 a piece for men to work on the dredging barges." The incident then closed.

The Conservatives yesterday challenged the vote of a million dollars for the Trent Canal, and caught the Government with the smallest majority of the session—28.

The House was in concurrence, which is usually a dull proceeding, the clerk reading the items of estimates already passed in committee of the whole and Mr. Speaker declaring them carried. When the Trent Canal item was reached Major Currie moved, seconded by Mr. Middleboro, that the amount be reduced by whatever expenditure is required for the Newmarket Canal.

The division resulted as follows: Yeas, 52; nays, 80.

M. Crothers (West Elgin) called the attention of the Minister of Public Works yesterday to a communication he had received from Port Stanley that the wages of the laborers on the Government pier were in arrears three months.

It was a great hardship that these men should be kept out of their money for such a length of time, especially at his time of the year.

Mr. Pugsley replied that he had no complaint, but he would look into the matter.

ESCAPED WITH HANDCUFFS STILL CLINGING TO HIM

Village Constable in Havelock Attempted to Arrest Two Men Who Were Making Trouble on the Main St. —County Magistrate Notified.

Magistrate Edmison received a message from Havelock this morning asking for instructions in an affair that took place in the village yesterday. It appears that two men by the name of Vardy, who reside in Havelock, and are not very favorably known commenced raising a row on one of the main streets yesterday. The village constable arrived on the scene and attempted to arrest both men. He succeeded in getting the handcuffs on one of them but the other man came to his brother's aid and the officer received pretty rough treatment at their hands. Both men made their escape and have not yet been found, and much trouble is being expected in attempting their capture. One of the men was still handcuffed when he made his escape and probably this may be a means of the speedy capture of both. The village is naturally much excited over the affair and when Constable Joyce telephoned to Magistrate Edmison this morning he wanted assistance to be sent from Peterborough to bring about the capture of the escaped men.

The Magistrate explained that if the authorities in the village who know all about the escaped prisoners could not bring about their arrest it would not be much use sending men from Peterborough and he gave orders to issue a warrant for their arrest and the work of the man-hunters in the local option town will be awaited with interest.

P.C.I. STUDENTS WANT GROUNDS

For Use of the Athletic Association---Deputation Waited on Board of Education

Harry Hall and Stewart Anderson were a deputation from the Collegiate Institute Athletic Association, that waited on the Board of Education last night. Mr Hall was the spokesman and stated that the association had made an endeavor to secure athletic grounds and had found that Riverside park was the most suitable place they could get. It would cost twenty-five dollars for the season and the Athletic Association would like some help from the Board of Education in this respect.

In the discussion which followed, it was pointed out that the grounds around the Collegiate were not suitable for games and the Central school grounds were too rough for athletic purposes.

The request of the deputation was referred to the supervision committee with power to act, on motion of Messrs Hill and Nelson.

CANADIAN GIRL ENDS HER LIFE

Nurse Commits Suicide Because of Disappointment in Love.

Albany, N.Y., April 7.—Disappointed in love, Ethel C. Shaw, an attractive woman about 28 years of age, was found dead in her room in the Ten Eyck Hotel yesterday morning. Death was due to an overdose of morphine and strychnine taken hyperdermically. Miss Shaw was a nurse and registered from New York City. She has a brother living in Montreal.

The woman left several letters, including one addressed to Dr. G. Scott Towne, health officer of Saratoga, in which she said:

"My Dear Boy,—Unfortunately I have got very fond of you, so the breaking of our engagement means to me complete wreckage. Don't get any other girl to love you.

"Yours, Ethel C. S."

The postscript read: "No mother has a right to spoil a son's life. When two people marry they should be given a chance. Every woman knows this."

MODERN PHILOSOPHY

W D. Howell looks to Christianity's becoming the fruition of Greek philosophy rather than of the Hebrew prophets. It would appear to be growing rapidly in that direction at the present time. Rhapsody and the poetry of the imagination are giving place to a reasonable view of human affairs and the cultivation of the consistent and hence of the truly beautiful. All modern philosophy revolves around the Christian idea, it is true, but the centre of gravity of that idea is moving. It is moving from preachment to practice, from the heart or the head to the heart and the head combined, from some single vantage point of human thought and human nature to the broad field of battle upon which all the forces of the time are arrayed. It has been alleged and not too frequently that Christians are narrow that the tendency is to specialize even in religion. Specialization gives sects and the centre of gravity is only now moving away from amongst them. We would seem to be at last realizing that we ought to be a unit on fundamentals and not a disunit on nonessentials as at present. It seems very crude if not indeed silly but what can be expected where we set the seat of authority in the emotions insisting that the heart and not the head is the universal solvent of all difficulties. The heart may rule or have ruled hitherto in matters of religion but the head rules in the affairs of the world. Hence the world conquers. Only when the head is allowed its due and wholly reasonable share, can we overcome the world, ourselves and the illusion of a religious fantasy in favor of a noble ideal in the man of common sense and cultivated imagination. All nations have the proverb, "Only results count" But few pay any attention to it. It is the crude expressions of the mathematical equation of cause and effect. A bad cause will always produce a bad man, but what's more important, a bad man must be recognized as the product of a bad cause. Therefore we must watch the cause. It is perhaps a little roundabout but in the end we reach the true conclusion which is that unless we think and act sensibly we cannot last. The emotions were never meant to guide us. That is where we have made our mistake.

A NEW TREATMENT

The phagocytes and leucocytes are now known to be living organisms not mere automata, otherwise known as blood corpuscles. They in time learn to acquire the same habits and tastes as their owners. An alcoholic victim trains his corpuscles in time to like alcoholic stimulants. When they get too voracious the man himself gets beyond his own control for the ultimate craving for all forms of sustenance is in the blood. It is now proposed to immunize the patient by disgusting the corpuscles with their craving for alcohol. No other form of remedy can be really effective. It is said, however, that even this may fail if a single phagocyte takes it into his head to "take a drink" any more.

G. T. P. FINANCE

Monetary Times.

The ways of railroad financing are divers; the mastery of its heavy monetary grades is a picturesque achievement. Now that the Government have decided to loan the Grand Trunk Pacific the sum of ten million dollars in order to meet the increased cost of the prairie section of the road, the Opposition will be enabled to turn again the "under estimated" handle of the organ of criticism. They know as well as the Government know, that the original and revised estimates of the cost of the undertaking, were so low that they need fear no fall. The Transcontinental was to be built. That was decided. But had the final figures been published as the transportation prologue, a national gasp of despair would have flickered out this light of interest. The Grand Trunk Pacific might then have been a more or less healthy Western addition to the present Grand Trunk road.

The contract of 1903 drawn up by the Government and the Grand Trunk Pacific provided that the Government should guarantee the bonds of the prairie section, the proceeds not to exceed $13,000 per mile. Nine hundred and sixteen miles at thirteen thousand per mile would provide $11,908,000. The balance, estimated at $10,000,000 was to be raised by the Grand Trunk Pacific on the guarantee of the parent company, the Grand Trunk. The total available guarantee, therefore, for the prairie section was $21,509,920 equal to $23,482 per mile for the 916 miles. Now the Grand Trunk Pacific engineer estimated the cost per mile of that section at $34,059, while the estimate of Mr. Schreiber, the Transcontinental Commission's engineer, figured the cost at $34,943. Thus when the contract was made in 1903, with, it is presumed, knowledge of cost estimates, financial provision amounting to a total of $21,050,920 was made for the prairie section. The engineers' modest estimates showed that a sum of at least $32,007,448 would be needed. Those who had studied the engineers' estimates, then, must have observed long since that the present loan, or some other method of raising further funds, was an absolute necessity. It was not a case of lifting the lid in order to see the soup. The soup sizzled under the eyes.

Railroad builders are practical financiers. Naturally, they foresaw that the prairie section would require not less than another ten millions put into it. There were two ways of raising that sum, the way that will be adopted and the method that might have been. Had the Dominion Government not come to the company's rescue as a banker, the Grand Trunk Pacific would have been compelled to seek legislation to carry out fully what was contemplated in the agreements. The additional sum would then be raised by the issue of bonds. Mr. Hays points out that in view of the depression in the money markets of Europe and America, it was unlikely that the company would be able to sell their securities in the early future on favorable terms. As, apparently, they need immediate assistance, they would be compelled probably to issue, below ninety, bonds which it is hoped will be worth one day par or more.

Not only has Mr. Hays to consider the general state of the market. There are other important considerations which would help to prevent a successful flotation of Grand Trunk Pacific bonds in London. There exists in the world's metropolis a flock of carrion which have anxiously awaited the lifeless body of the Grand Trunk Pacific. New blood to the tune of ten millions, being injected into the enterprise by the Dominion Government, the carrion perforce will be obliged to croak. Instead they would have liked to dismember the ten million bond issue in London.

Naturally Grand Trunk shareholders are wondering for how much more their company is to become guarantor. Their wonderment has been seized by some who have axes to grind of different sizes, shapes and sharpness. That wonderment has been transformed into what is almost alarm. While apparently Grand Trunk shareholders are getting deeper in the Slough of Guarantees, the powers that be in their little railroad world are leading the Government on with that magnetic influence, which is the vitality of the railroad promoter. In the case of the prairie section referred to above, the Government have as security the obligation of the Grand Trunk Pacific and the guarantee of the Grand Trunk. That may look black for Grand Trunk shareholders. But consider the position of our parliamentarians. They have a mortgage, as security, on the whole of the prairie section. It is a fourth mortgage. The three others before it are a first lien representing the Government guarantee of bonds to the extent of $13,000 per mile; a second representing the GTP's own bonds on money raised for the construction of the road; and third, the guarantee given by the company on account of equipment. Mr Fielding says he attaches little value to this fourth mortgage. It is upon the security given by the guarantee of the Grand Trunk itself he rests his burden. Which again looks black for Grand Trunk shareholders.

Now supposing such an impossible event possible—that the Grand Trunk Pacific shall become unable to fulfil its obligations. The slight value to the Government in this case of the first three mortgages is very apparent. The fourth would be out of consideration. Then the Government would call upon the Grand Trunk to fulfil its guarantees and the Government would —. So one can well see how necessary it is that the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Dominion Government shall be good railroad twins now and forever more. In plain words, whatever happens, nothing can stop the completion of the road from coast to coast. From the viewpoint of the Grand Trunk shareholders, then, there is little to fear. The Dominion Government's presence is sufficient safeguard. Not knowing the arts of American railroad building and financing they might be inclined to think that someone had blundered. It is otherwise, having been well managed. No apprehension need be felt as to the financing of the mountain section. In that case, the Government have guaranteed the bonds of the company to the extent of three-fourths of the costs without limitation as to the cost per mile. While tied up with guarantees and bonds, the freedom of the Grand Trunk Pacific from puzzling finance bondage is rapidly approaching.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The profits of Standard Oil have been $900,000,000 in ten years divided up amongst about half a dozen alleged men.

It seems to be universally conceded that the Foster-Laurier clash was the most sensational one ever brought off in the Canadian House of Commons.

The Payne bill is designed to raise $150,000,000 more of revenue hence it cannot be called much of a free trade measure, as some of our Liberal journals pretend.

Government returns for February show 32 chartered banks in Canada with a nominal capital of $142 466,6.6, and a subscribed capital of $98,294,381, a paid-up capital of $96,160,555, and a reserve of $74,489,942.

The Payne tariff bill now before the American Senate, has a higher average of duties than before.

The history of the tariff in U. S. seems to show that the wage-earner prospers under protection to a greater degree than the salaried man.

Berlin April 4.—The balloon Ziehungen, which left Mannheim yesterday, manned by Lieutenant Pavel, Lieutenant Nobler and Dr. Koester, was dragging its rope near Hamburg von der Hoehe, when a mob of peasants seized the rope and demanded $250.

They declared that if they were not paid they would drag the balloon to earth and beat the aeronauts. After vainly parleying with the peasants, whose action seriously endangered them, the passengers cut the rope, and the balloon shot upward at a terrific speed to a height of 8,000 feet.

The extreme rapidity of the ascent caused a dangerous contraction of the balloon, but the aeronauts succeeded in landing near Friedberg Hesse with great difficulty.

STARTLING STATEMENT

It's Statements Like That of H. Heyman, Kingston, Ont., That is Making Mi-o-na World Famous for Obstinate Stomach Complaints.

Mr. H. Heyman, 132 Colborne street, Kingston, Ont. says; "Miona is worth its weight in gold as a remedy to quickly cure long standing cases of dyspepsia. For years I had suffered with my stomach and could find no cure nor even relief. I could not eat anything as it would sour and form gas on my stomach that had a gnawing on the heart. Heavy pains would come around my sides and pit of my stomach. I was unable to sleep for this and there was nothing to relieve my miserable condition. I was weak and languid and would feel as tired in the morning, as on going to bed and perspiration would break out all over my body. I would be so weak from vomiting that I would fall to my knees. My head would ache and spells of dizziness would leave me unable to see. Doctors had termed the trouble gastritis, but failed to benefit me. I tried Mi-o-na, on advice of a friend, which has cured me when all else failed. I am sound and well and feel grateful to Mi-o-na for my present health."

It's the known results obtained by Miona that places it far and away above all other remedies and confirms Wm. Madill, druggist, in offering to refund the money if Mi-o-na fails to cure stomach trouble, 50 cents a box. Relief in twenty-four hours.

Improvement Suggested

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—As a traveller I think Peterborough is a very nice city but I think there is one improvement that might be made at the C.P.R. station. That is the removal of the drinking fountain from the entrance of the gentleman's lavatory. As I entered there last night a lady was standing there taking a drink.

Yours truly,
COMMERCIAL TRAVELLER.

They were both thrown out of the boat. A rope was thrown to Barnett and he was saved, but Mortimer went over the dam and was drowned.

Miners' Strike Must End.

Lethbridge, April 6.—The coal strike here will be settled in a few days. In fact, it must be settled, as T. J. Lewis, international president of the U.M.W.A., has ordered the district officials to sign up the agreement as ratified by the miners in their referendum vote at the conclusion of the conference at Macleod.

St. Thomas, April 6.—Sunday car advocates here, who are disappointed that the Southwestern Traction Co. will not be allowed to run cars to Port Stanley on Sundays, are organizing a motor car company for a Sunday service to the lake.

Lumber Prices Up.

of interest

All lovers of travel and science are heartily indebted to the venerable Dr. Alfred Russel Wallace for the labor of love which led him to edit the papers of that distinguished botanist, Richard Spruce, and to prepare for press two most valuable and entertaining volumes of "Notes of a Botanist on the Amazon and Andes" (Macmillan, two volumes, 21s. net).

These pages are all full of romance and adventure of legend and fact. We read of the amazons we come near to discovering the treasures of the Incas we see the Indian rock pictures we pass through the gorgeous glory of the tropical forests, we are in dangers oft as we watch this botanist crossing the widest part of the South American continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific along the course of the great Amazon.

A BOTANIST'S TRAGEDY.

And despite the adventure and romance of it all, despite the great services to the science of botany which Mr. Spruce made as the results of his perilous journeys there was in his heart the carking care they when he arrived in England he would be without money or resources. From the Ecuadorean Andes he wrote to a friend: "I have no funds beyond what are in your hands; these would soon be exhausted, and poverty is such a positive curse in England that to be there without either money or lucrative employment is a contingency not to be reflected on without dread. I have often wished I could get some consular appointment here, were it only £100 a year."

On his return there was great difficulty in getting a Government pension of £50 for him in 1865; and not till 1875 did the Indian Government award him another £150 for his services to them. Dr. Wallace in the very informative biographical sketch which he writes, says that his means were so "exceedingly scanty that he had to spend the last 20 years of his life in a small cottage sitting-room about twelve feet square with a bedroom of equally limited proportions." Here he lived till he was seventy-six, often ill, and yet devoted to his botanical studies. He died in 1893.

A RIVAL OF HUMBOLDT.

"His greatest work," says Dr. Wallace "that which has established his reputation among the botanists of the world, is his massive volume of nearly 600 closely-printed pages on the 'Hepaticae of the Amazon and the Andes of Peru and Ecuador.'" Mr. George Bentham says that "his researches into the vegetation of the interior of South America have been the most important we have had since the days of Humboldt." Spruce was also a very great authority on mosses. He was born at Gawthorpe (north-east of York), "an ideal home for a botanist and student of nature," says Dr. Wallace, "where he acquired that deep love of flowers, and especially of the lowliest plants—the Mosses and Hepaticae—which was the joy of his early manhood and the consolation of his declining years."

IF ENGLAND HAD THE AMAZON.

One of the most striking and dramatic things which Mr. Spruce says in these so interesting pages is this: "How often have I regretted that England did not possess the magnificent Amazon valley instead of India! If that booby James, instead of putting Raleigh in prison and finally cutting off his head, had persevered in supplying him with ships money and men until he had formed a permanent establishment on one of the great American rivers, I have no doubt but that the whole of the American continent would have been at this moment in the hands of the English race."

WHO WERE THE AMAZONS?

In the chapter "The Warlike Women of Amazon"—the famous Amazons—he gives abundant and romantic evidence to show the universality of the traditions of tropical America of a nation of women whose permanent habitation was 1deg. to 2deg. north of the equator and in long. 64deg. to 58 deg. W. "These traditions," he says, "must have had some foundation in fact, and they appear to me inseparably connected with the traditions of El Dorado." "If we concede the fact of the existence of these warlike women, then may not the latter "Virgins of the Sun" have been originally a community of Vestals, who, having fled in a body from their nunnery, carrying with them their ornaments of gold and green stones, established themselves in the forests of the plain? Or they may have accompanied one of those emigrations led by chieftains who had revolted from the rule of the Inca of which we read in the early historians."

Mr. Spruce says that he desires to "vindicate the earliest travellers, and historians, Spanish and English, from the charges of gross credulity, or even wilful falsehood, which have been wantonly brought against them."

He quotes Christopher D'Acugna whose book of voyages was published in 1698, that he heard it affirmed that "one of the provinces near the Amazon is peopled with a sort of warlike women, who live together and maintain their company alone, without the company of men; but at certain seasons of the year seek their society to perpetuate their race." If all this is not true, then, D'Acugna declares, "it must needs be that the greatest falsehood in the world passes through all America for one of the most certain histories."

ROMANCE OF HIDDEN TREASURES.

Another interesting subject on which Dr. Spruce and Dr. Wallace have some romantic suggestion to make is that of the hidden treasure of the Incas. The Incas were the Princes of Peru before its conquest by the Spaniards. The reputed buried treasure of these Incas has never been discovered, though there has been never-ending search for it. But Mr. Spruce succeeded in obtaining a copy of one of the few remaining copies of the official order of the Spanish King to search for this treasure, with the accompanying guide to its locality in the mountains of Ecuador.

After a close examination of all the facts, Dr. Wallace made this extraordinary suggestion, that "by closely following the directions given it may still be possible for an explorer of means and energy, with the assistance of the local authorities, to solve the interesting problem of the treasure of the Incas. The total distance of the route, following all its sinuosities, cannot exceed ninety or a hundred miles at most, fully three-fourths of which must be quite easy to follow, whilst the remainder is very clearly described. Two weeks would therefore suffice for the whole expedition."

WHY NOT FIND THE TREASURE?

"I have written this," adds Dr. Wallace, "in the hope that some one who speaks Spanish fluently, has had some experience of the country, and is possessed of the necessary means, may be induced to undertake this very interesting and even romantic piece of adventurous travel. To such a person it need be but a few months' holiday."

Just at the moment when an expedition sent by the King of Spain seemed on the verge of success a famous padre who accompanied it disappeared, and the search was abandoned. So that the treasure still awaits the advent of any adventurous reader of Public Opinion or of Dr. Wallace's book who may set out on this picturesque—and perhaps profitable—expedition.

The Barrier

By

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

He had sprung from a race of slaveholders, from a land where birth and breed are more than any other thing, where a drop of impure blood effects an ineradicable stain. Therefore the thought of this girl's ignoble parentage was so repugnant to him that the more he pondered it the more pitiful it seemed, the more monstrous. Lying awake and thinking of her in the stillness of his quarters, it had seemed a very unfortunate and a very terrible thing. During his morning duties the vision of her had been fresh before him again, and his constant contemplation of the matter had wrought a change in his attitude toward the girl, of which he was uncomfortably conscious and which he was glad to see she did not perceive.

The men were pouring off the boat now, and through the crowd came the tall Frenchman, bearing in the hollow of each arm a child who clasped a bundle to its breast. His eyes grew brighter at sight of Necia, and he broke into a flood of patois. They fairly bombarded each other with quick questions and fragmentary answers till she remembered her companion.

"Oh, I forgot my manners! Lieutenant Burrell, this is Napoleon Doret—our Poleon!" she added, with proud emphasis.

Doret checked his volubility and stared at the soldier, whom he appeared to see for the first time. The little brown people in his arms stared likewise, and it seemed to Burrell that a certain distrust was in each of the three pairs of eyes, only in those of the man there was no shyness. Instead, the Canadian looked him over gravely from head to heel, seeming to note each point of the unfamiliar attire; then he inquired without removing his glance:

"W'ere'bouts you live, eh?"

"I live at the post yonder," said the lieutenant.

"W'at bizness you work at?"

"The lieutenant has been stationed here, foolish," said Necia. "Come up to the store quick and tell me what it's like at Dawson."

In spite of the man's unfriendliness, Burrell watched him with admiration. There were no heels to his tufted fur boots, and yet he stood a good six feet two, as straight as a pine sapling, and it needed no second glance to tell of what metal he was made. His spirit showed in his whole body, in the set of his head and, above all, in his dark, warm face, which glowed with eagerness when he talked, and that was ever—when he was not singing.

"I never see so many people since I lef' Quebec," he was saying. "She's jus' lak beeg city—mus' be t'ree, four t'ousan' people. Every day some more dey come, an' all night dey dance an' sing an' drink w'iskee. Ba gosh, dat's fine place!"

"Are there lots of white women?" asked the girl.

"Yes; two, t'ree hondred. Mos' of dem is work in dance halls. Dere's one fine gal I see, name' Maffie Bourgette. I tell you 'bout her by an' by."

"Oh, Poleon, you're in love!" cried Necia.

"No, siree!" he denied. "Dere's none of dem gal look half so purty lak you." He would have said more; but, spying the trader at the entrance of the store, he went to him, straightway launching into the details of their commercial enterprise, which, happily, had been most successful.

Among the merchandise of the post there were for sale a scanty assortment of firearms, cheap shotguns and a Winchester or two, displayed in a rack behind the counter in a manner to attract the eye of such native hunters as might need them, and with the rest hung a pair of Colt's revolvers. One of the new arrivals, who had separated from the others at the front, now called to Gale:

"Are those Colts for sale? Mine was stolen the other day." Evidently he was accustomed to Yukon prices, for he showed no surprise at the figure the trader named, but took the guns and tested each of them, whereupon the old man knew that here was no "Cheechako," as tenderfeet are known in the north, although the man's garb had deceived him at first glance. The stranger balanced the weapons, one in either hand; then he did the "double roll" neatly, following which he executed a move that Gale had not witnessed for many years. He extended one of the guns, butt foremost, as if surrendering it, the action being free and open, save for the fact that his forefinger was crooked and thrust through the trigger guard; then, with the slightest jerk of the wrist, the gun spun about, the handle jumped into his palm, and instantly there was a click as his thumb flipped the hammer. It was the old "road agent spin," which Gale as a boy had practiced hours at a time. But that this man was in earnest he showed by glancing upward sharply when the trader laughed.

He emptied his gold sack in payment for the gun and ammunition, then remarked:

"That pretty nearly cleans me. If I had the price I'd take them both."

Gale wondered what need induced this fellow to spend his last few dollars on a firearm. Then he inquired:

"Bound for the outside?"

"No, I'm locating here."

The trader darted a quick glance at him. He did not like this man.

"There ain't much doing in this camp. It's a pretty poor place," he said guardedly.

"I'll put in with you, from its looks," agreed the other. "It's got too many soldiers to be worth a d—n." He snarled this bitterly, with a peculiar leering lift of his lip, as if his words tasted bad.

"Most of the boys are going up river," said Gale.

"Well, those hills look as if they had gold in them," said the stranger, pointing vaguely. "I'm going to prospect."

Gale knew instinctively that the fellow was lying, for his hands were not those of a miner, but there was nothing to be said. His judgment was verified, however, when Poleon drew him aside later and said:

"He's bad man."

"How do you know?"

YOU CAN CURE CATARRH

J. H. Taylor, 54 Bond St., Toronto, Breathed Hyomei and Cured a Long Standing Case of Chronic Catarrh That Defied All Other Remedies. Also Toronto and New York Specialists.

Without taking a drop of medicine into the stomach, J H Taylor, 54 Bond street, Toronto, tells how the distressing troubles of catarrh were overcome by simply inhaling Hyomei air. It's the history of tens of thousands similar cases on record, proving that Hyomei can be depended upon to cure Catarrh, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, Croup. It has no equal for any distress of the breathing organs.

Mr. Taylor says: "Some years ago while on a hunting trip in Northern Canada, I contracted a severe cold that settled in my head and finally affected my throat. It rapidly developed into catarrh and caused a miserable throat weakness. My head would become clogged during the night and there was a catarrhal dropping from the nose into the throat. Many days I had been unable to breathe other than through my mouth and the constant hawking and spitting was almost unbearable. I had been treated by the best throat specialists here and in New York, but nothing benefitted my condition. I obtained Hyomei and soon found relief, the throat dropping ceased and my head began to clear. I continued with Hyomei for six weeks and after that time I was well in every detail. There has been no return of the trouble since, and I feel grateful in speaking well of Hyomei, as it cured me when all else failed."

A complete Hyomei outfit costs $1 and Wm. Madill, druggist, will refund your money if it fails to cure

DR. GERTRUDE HULET TELLS OF CUSTOMS IN INDIA

Gave Interesting Address at Murray St. Baptist Church—Annual Meeting of Ladies Mission Circle.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Mission Circle of the Murray street Baptist church was held last night in the Sunday school room, proving to be an affair not only of success, but of pleasant memories. It also afforded the large assembly an opportunity of hearing Dr. Gertrude Hulet's address, of rather account of her experiences in India, acquired during the seven years she spent in that country as a medical missionary of the Baptist church.

The meeting, which was open to everyone, included in the attendance a fairly large number of men. After the usual introductory exercises the president of the circle, Mrs. (Dr.) Hunter, called upon the secretary, Miss M. A. Nicholls, to read her report. In her statement Miss Nicholls pointed out that this was the thirtieth annual meeting. On January 29, 1879, a foreign mission circle was organized with Mrs. Gilmour as president, a position she held for nine consecutive years. At the end of the first year the membership had reached the encouraging figure of 54, and the treasurer reported $61.60. In 1887 home missions were included. In 1906 the young ladies formed a branch. The present year closes with a membership of 84. Of these 55 contributed to home missions and 51 to foreign.

Miss Nicholls gave a careful review of the work that had been done during 1908, showing that much had been accomplished and the circle was now flourishing and continuing in the service which had marked its inception.

Miss Aldridge presented the report of the Home Mission and Mrs. Porter White that of the Foreign Missions. Miss Pringle read the report of the Willing Workers, and Miss Hardwicke read the Mission Band's statement. Miss Blade gave a review of the work done by the Baby Band.

TWO PRESENTATIONS.

At this stage a felicitous event occurred, when Miss Nicholls presented Mrs. Hunter with a framed certificate of life membership in the Women's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society, signed by Mrs. Frances L. Firstbrook, president, and Mrs. Sarah J. Webster, secretary. Miss Nicholls referred to the pleasant association which had always existed among the members of the circle and which had been fostered in no small way by Mrs. Hunter in her position as president, which position she has held for the past three years consecutively. The success of the circle was largely due to her zeal and efforts.

Mrs Hunter taken by surprise expressed her gratitude to the circle for their kindness and for this mark of honor. In her long connection with it, she felt that the circle had not benefitted so much by her work as she had from the pleasant relations which had always existed in a work which had its object in assisting to spread the Gospel.

Mrs J. R. Webb was also the object of the kind and appreciative regards of her co-workers in the circle. She was presented by Mrs. W. J. Scott, with an autograph quilt which contained the names of over 500 members of the congregation. Mrs Webb expressed her thanks to the ladies for their remembrance of love accompanying the gift impressed her deeply.

The report of the committee for electing the officers was as follows:

Pres—Mrs Hunter.

Vice-Presidents—Mrs W. J. Scott and Mrs Wood.

Sec—Miss M A. Nicholls.

Treasurer Foreign Missions—Mrs Porter White.

Treasurer Home Missions—Miss Aldridge.

Collectors—Mesdames Chalmers and W Montgomery and Misses Cochrane and Matthews.

Treasurer North West Indian Missions—Mrs W J Scott.

Collector Medical Fund—Mrs. Cunningham.

Treasurer Mite Fund—Mrs Wood.

Mrs. Hunter as president presented her address after which she introduced Dr. Hulet, the speaker of the evening.

"Does India Need Christ" was Dr. Hulet's opening remark. Ignorant though the Hindu may be he has an idea of what we call sin. These people are hungry for God and are anxious to free themselves from sin. Dr. Hulet told of one woman whom she had seen with a large scar on her back. This had been formed by being suspended by a hook, hanging by her flesh for a long time. These people will endure this torture for days at a time abstaining from food and water in expiation of their sins.

The natives endeavor to suspend animation, that is to hold their breath for long intervals, believing that during these intervals they are free from sin. They give up their work, ambition, everything to try to accomplish this great thing. Dr. Hulet enumerated other methods of torture and trial in which the natives attempt to deliver themselves from sin.

THE PILGRIMAGES.

Speaking of the pilgrimages and the bathing Dr. Hulet stated that this occurs during harvest time and the natives at any cost, go to the waters they hold sacred, in which to bathe and cleanse themselves from their sins. The grain is left standing in the fields so deep is the Hindu's desire to free himself from sin.

Instances were enumerated of the difficulties the idea of caste presented but Dr. Hulet cited examples to show that it is not deep rooted and she had seen this prejudice frequently thrown aside. Instances were also shown that the people of India will accept Christ and Dr. Hulet had seen many who listened to the missionaries and were finally won for Christ.

The work among the native children was referred to at length and their influence in the homes was pointed out as a strong asset in the missionary work.

Dr. Hulet asked her hearers to assist in the work of giving Christ to India. Even as she was speaking she stated many were dying and it was imperative that the work be hurried on now, while the time was most opportune. One of the pitiable affairs among the women in India is Child widowhood. The girls are married in their early teens and if widowed they are looked upon with disgrace, the stigma of which is unbreakable. These young girls, very numerous they are, are sunk into the deepest despair, the only relief for which is the Gospel of Christ. Dr. Hulet impressively portrayed the awfulness of this strange but universal condition among the natives, which blights the lives of those young women whose husbands have died, and which finally ends in their slow but sure deaths pining from the taunts and the cruel stigma of their so-called disgrace.

Dr. Hulet said that if any young people feel the call to the missionary work they should hearken to it as there was nothing which brought such joy as in God's business the winning of souls for Him.

In conclusion Dr. Hulet gave an interesting account of the hospital work in which she has been engaged.

A vote of thanks was extended the lecturer on motion of Miss Aldridge and Mr. Harding.

Rev. J. R. Webb before concluding with the benediction expressed his pleasure at having listened to the address.

LULU GLASER A HAPPY WIFE WANTS WORLD TO KNOW IT

Lulu Glaser is a happy wife.

Lulu herself is authority for this statement.

In fact she thinks that her married life is one of the best and brightest examples of wedded bliss among the people of the stage.

In private life Miss Glaser is Mrs. Ralph C. Herz. Her husband is a well-known actor and now he is doing the role of Mephisto in "The Soul Kiss," which is playing at the Princess this week. He is the son of the well-known Englishman, Dr. Cornelius Herz.

Mr. Herz is ardently devoted to his clever wife.

The revenue of the said company is considerably swelled by the telephone tolls collected from the happy husband.

Last week, for instance, Mr. Herz was playing in Buffalo.

"He rings me up every night after the performance, and we have a little chat, each in our own little room many miles part," said Miss Glaser to the Toronto Star.

The railway companies derive some profit, too, by reason of this happy union.

"He generally manages to spend Sunday with me," said the comedienne, "and I have known him to travel as far as from St. Louis to Detroit to do it."

"We have been unusually lucky in being together most of the time since our marriage," went on the girl with the contagious laugh. "Otherwise it would be almost unbearable."

There are a few other events in her life besides her marriage, that Miss Glaser is proud of.

One is her sudden rise to stage fame. At 15 years of age she went behind the footlights as a chorus girl in Francis Wilson's show "The Lion Tamer." He made her understudy to his leading lady Marie Jansen. The latter left the company three months later and Miss Lulu stepped into her part.

"Four weeks before I became his leading lady, Mr. Wilson told me that he intended to give me the role, and asked me to say nothing about it. I didn't, and he thought it was great for a girl to keep a secret so long." It was.

"When I went on the stage I promised my father that I wouldn't play on Sundays, and I never have, though my refusal to do so has meant the loss of at least $50,000 for my managers and myself."

Miss Glaser likes Canada—and Toronto.

"They are loyal to me here—ever since I played "Dolly Varden"—dear dear old 'Dollie,'" she said. "I can't tell you how I felt on Monday night when the audience demanded a speech. It seemed that there were innumerable arms stretching out to me over the footlights and welcoming me back to Toronto. I was so choked up that I didn't know what to say. When I went off the stage that night I said 'God is good, and life's worth living,' to mother here."

Miss Glaser contemplates touring next season in her present play, and also reviving her old hit "Dolly Varden," a part which she says she has never forgotten.

Mr. Herz Lulu Glaser's husband, is in Peterborough to-day. He will go to Toronto on the C.P.R. evening train to take his part in "The Soul Kiss," at the Princess to-night.

CHANGE METHOD OF AWARDING THE NICHOLLS SCHOLARSHIPS

Recommendation Made by Supervision Committee is Adopted by the Board of Education—The New Plans Outlined.

A change will be made in the method of awarding the Nicholls scholarships. The Supervision Committee of the Board of Education brought in a report to this effect at last night's meeting of the Board of Education and it was adopted. It was as follows;

To the Chairman and members of the Board of Education:—

Gentlemen,—Your Supervision Committee beg to report and recommend as follows;

That the present method of awarding the Nicholls Scholarship prizes be discontinued and that the following constitute the conditions under which the prizes will be given;

I. To the successful student obtaining the highest aggregate number of marks of the junior matriculation examination $15.

II. To the successful student obtaining the highest aggregate number of marks of the Normal entrance examination, $15.

III. To the successful student obtaining the highest number of marks in the Part I. faculty of education examination, $20.

IV. To the successful student obtaining the highest aggregate number of marks in the Part II. faculty of education examination $20.

V. To the successful student obtaining the highest aggregate number of marks at the honour matriculation examination $15.

Your committee feel that the present method is not productive of the best results and also that it affords to some students advantages over others.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN CRANE,
Chairman.

VANDALISM AT METHODIST CHURCH GROUNDS NORWOOD

Old Waggons Tumbled Over Fence on to the Church Property—Reward of $50 for Apprehension of Guilty Parties.

Special to the Review.

Norwood, April 6. — A deliberately planned insult was perpetrated against the Methodist church here on Saturday night when a band of ruffins piled some old rigs in the church grounds. The rigs were thrown over the fence into the church lawn breaking some of the pickets in the fence. The church authorities are in possession of the names of some of the perpetrators of the outrage and are very much incensed over the affair. It is altogether likely that steps will be taken to bring the guilty ones to task.

LATER.

The Official Board of the Methodist church has advertised a reward of $50 for the apprehension and conviction of the parties who trespassed on the church property on Saturday night by depositing old waggons on the lawn. The citizens are much incensed over the affair and all right minded people will be glad to see the guilty parties brought to justice.

CHANGE IN TIME-TABLE AT COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE FOR THE SUMMER MONTHS

A new schedule of hours will go into effect at the Collegiate Institute on May 1st and will be followed during May and June and in September if found satisfactory. The classes will commence at 8.30 o'clock in the morning, have an hour and a half at noon from 11.30 until one o'clock and will be dismissed for the day at 3.30 o'clock.

The Board of Education decided on the change last night on the recommendation of Principal Kenner of the Collegiate Institute. It is felt that the students will do much better work during the hot summer months under the new arrangement. At the present time, the Collegiate opens at nine o'clock, the noon period is from twelve o'clock to 1.30, and the classes are dismissed for the day at four o'clock.

GRATIFYING SUCCESS OF THE INTHON BIBLE CLASS BANQUET

The annual banquet of the Inthon Bible Class in connection with George street church was held last night and was a gratifying success in every way. The company, which numbered about one hundred and twenty, was composed largely of members of the class and the enthusiasm which prevailed augurs well for the continued success of the organization. The total membership of the class is nearly one hundred and seventy-five and it is doing a good work in connection with the church. The teacher is the Rev. E A Pearson and he is assisted by a capable body of officers. The speeches of the evening were of a very flattering nature in regards to the class who must feel highly gratified at the success they have attained in their work of serving the Master.

The banquet was held in the Sunday school room which was a fitting place for an affair of this kind to be held. Tea was served from seven to eight and the ladies who supplied the many good things on the tables are to be congratulated on the efficient manner in which they carried out the arrangements to such a successful issue. After those present had done full justice to the repast prepared for them, the following toast list was carried out;

TOAST LIST

The King.

Our City—Proposed by Alderman A A McIntyre, responded to by Mr F G Hassard.

Our Church—Proposed by Ex-Alderman W J Johnston; responded to by Mr W Eyres.

The Ladies—Proposed by Dr G E Marshall, responded to by Mr S A Oke.

Mr W B Warne acted in the capacity of toastmaster and the first toast was to the King, which was fittingly honored and the Nation Anthem was sung by all present.

OUR CITY

Alderman McIntyre proposed the toast to Our City and said that we should be proud to be called citizens of Peterborough. We had all the conditions needed for the advancement of Peterborough. Our dairy products were known in all the chief markets of the world. Likewise Peterborough was prominent in agriculture and manufacturing. Our educational institutes were in the first rank in the province. We have a number of beautiful and commodious churches and only a week ago another church had been dedicated in the south end of the city. Sister denominations were also going ahead and from a moral and spiritual standpoint Peterborough was far ahead of most places, and there was no reason why this city should not enjoy further progress in the years to come.

Mr F G Hassard in responding said he considered it a great honor to be called upon to respond to the toast of Our City as he was practically a newcomer. If those who had been brought up in the county were to recall their boyhood days he considered that they would remember that their thoughts had been mostly of what they might expect to see in a city. But as we became older we realized that a city was made up of individuals and the future success of any place depends on the efforts of those individuals. It was not the extent of material things that brought success but it depended upon the right living of those who made up the city. We were responsible for the uplifting of our city and it depended mainly on us whether our town was a success or a failure. In conclusion he wished the Bible Class all success in their work.

OUR CHURCH

Ex-Alderman W J Johnston proposed the toast to Our Church and said that if we as men paid more attention to what was preached in the church we would be better citizens. For every good man in the church there were one thousand out of it and we ought to be thankful to the men and women who give their time to try and lead our children along the proper path. He paid a high tribute to the president of the Bible Class and in conclusion said that it gave him much pleasure to propose the toast to Our Church coupled with the name of Mr Wm Eyres.

Mr. Ayers in responding explained that he was only taking the place of Mr. Cressman, who was unable to be present. A pleasant feature of the success of the church was the big conference that was held in Toronto last week. The conference was not brought about by the efforts of any particular church but was the result of the whole Christian church combining. Speaking of the manner in which the Bible had been attacked recently, he said that the Book had withstood the test and without it the church would be an utter failure. He was thankful that he had been brought up in the church which would only be successful as long as the members showed by their manner of living that they were what they professed to be. He was glad to have the pleasure of being present and was pleased to be able to respond to the toast to Our Church.

Mr F. H. Dobbin next delighted his audience by narrating many interesting reminiscences of "When I was a Boy." The speaker was thoroughly at home with his subject and received close attention at the hands of the large company present.

OUR CLASS

Mr S. R Armstrong proposed this toast and in beginning said he was pleased to be present at such a delightful gathering. Next Sunday would be his twenty-seventh year as an official of the school. He had watched with interest and satisfaction the progress made by the class and he thought that those present had done the same. As the class continued to grow larger more room would be needed and he hoped that the officials would come to the rescue. The principles that we should allow to guide our lives would be found in this class. What we believed was of great importance to us in our daily life as it was thought on which we acted. He had served many offices in the Sunday School and he was pleased at the progress made in all departments.

Mr F C Moore responded to this toast and said although he had not had the privilege of attending the banquet last year he was pleased to be present last night. He believed that the class was growing in more ways than one and was glad that he had joined. The speaker explained the motto followed by the class in which the members found how to live for peace in this world and happiness in eternity with Christ. The earth was a place for preparation and the Inthon Bible Class was a good place to prepare. The class was second to none in Ontario and the members and officers were to be congratulated on the success that had followed it. The Bible class was an important part of the church and nation and in conclusion wished this branch of the church every success.

A quartette composed of Messrs. Miles, Gray, Warne and Pollard sang in a very pleasing manner and received much applause.

THE LADIES

Dr G. E. Marshall proposed the toast to the Ladies and said it gave him much pleasure in doing so. Women had played a prominent part in the world's history right from the beginning. They had a big influence in many things and they were responsible for a lot of good being done in the world. They had a big opportunity of being influential in the great temperance movement of the day and he felt sure that the women of George street church would do their part.

Mr S A. Oke responded to the toast to the Ladies and said he appreciated the honor very much. He could only endorse that what had been already said about the ladies and he was sure everybody was pleased with the showing that had been made last night.

VOTE OF THANKS

A hearty vote of thanks on behalf of those present was accorded to the Bible class by Mr J J Hartley and was seconded by Mr J S Knapman, after which the affair was brought to a close by the singing of Auld Lang Syne and the Doxology and the Benediction was pronounced by Rev E A. Pearson.

MUSKRATS ARE REPORTED AS VERY SCARCE

Lindsay, April 6—The trapping fever seems to be more prevalent this spring than ever before. The Post was informed yesterday that there were fully five hundred traps laid in the river south of the town between the cemetery and the brick yard wharf. This is a pretty big estimate but the informant's veracity cannot be doubted. He is also a trapper himself.

The price for muskrat skins at present is 40c, although a local dealer is willing to pay 42c for any quantity. The price is likely to advance. The Post also met a well known President of Ops township who is a recognized authority on trapping. He said that there were fully 3000 traps laid along the Scugog from Lindsay to Muskrat island and the creeks.

"Why, there are more traps than there are rats," he remarked. "They were all caught last spring and mark my word, the harvest this spring will be a very poor one."

Last night Frank Bushnell and John Dixon left in their boats for down the river and they expect to come back with their boats laden.

THOSE EASTER HATS

Latest Styles in Hair Goods—A Boon to the Ladies

The most important requirement in regard to the new styles of headgear that are popular this season, is that the hair shall be very elaborately dressed, being curled, in puffs or braids, in fact any way to fill out under the brim. To most ladies this elaborate style seems out of the question. But it is not, for there are so many helps to be had in the way of puffs, etc., that it need not be a matter for worry any longer.

Miss E. Smith, 567 George street, has secured a fine assortment of hair goods from a leading American firm, which she is finding rapid sale for. There are three styles of puffs which are most popular. "The Merry Widow," "The Directoire Puffs," and the "String Puffs." These sell at from $2.50 up. Then there are the fringe pompadours, hair nets in all colors, switches in all shades, and many other lines.

All orders will be promptly filled, and the goods are sure to please. With the aid of some of these different lines, the wearing of the Easter hat will be an easy matter.

All the $1.00 and all the 75c seats for Lulu Glaser in "Mlle Mischief" at the Grand Opera House this evening, have been sold. There are, however, a few good seats at 50c and a number at $1.50 left, and these may be reserved by 'phone, and held up to half-past seven, after which they will be sold if not called for.

Lulu Glaser supported by the original New York Company of 70 people appears at the Grand to-night in Mlle. Mischief, the greatest musical comedy that has ever visited Peterborough.

COUNCIL MET AT HAVELOCK

C. P. R. Asked Permission to Lay Another Track—Other Business

Havelock, April 6. — The village council held their regular monthly meeting in the town hall on Monday evening with Reeve Knox and Councillors McMasters, Phelps, Young and Wood present. The minutes of last meeting were read and approved, and the following accounts ordered to be paid: Willie Rose, electric bulbs, $3.75; J. W. Holcombe, snow plowing, $3; Wm McKay, building walk, $9; School Board, $400; C. H. Brewster, painting, $42; Dr. Crawford, vaccinations, $20.50.

The assessors, Messrs. J. Camgney and Jas. Scott, were given $50 each for 1908 assessing.

Mr. Falkner addressed the council in reference to having the public library placed in the hands of the school, but the matter was left to the Library Committee.

Mr. Fullington, C.P.R. agent, was present and asked the council for the privilege of building another track across Concession street, at the west end. The council agreed to the proposal, provided that the track and approaches were constructed and kept in a condition satisfactory to the council and according to plan dated March 3, 1909.

A final lengthening of the collector's time to May 3 was allowed.

It was decided to purchase a stove for the basement of the town hall for $10.

The clerk was instructed to advertise for tenders for plank and stringers; tenders to be received up to May 1st.

MR. SEXSMITH, M.P., TAKES PART IN HOUSE OF COMMONS DEBATE

Mr. Sexsmith, the new member for the East Riding in the House of Commons, is not so new to his surroundings as to be afraid to speak his mind clearly and plainly to the ministerial side respecting the shortcomings of the government especially with respect to the T.V.C. The following caustic reference of that gentleman to the Newmarket canal is well worth quoting, and to anyone acquainted with Mr. Sexsmith it will carry conviction regarding that wonderful work:—

"Mr. Sexsmith. Has it been decided what kind of locks are to be put in at Healey Falls? It is a great pity that the minister has not included in the estimates this year enough to complete the lower end of this canal. It is a very important work. The minister when asked when we might expect it to be finished, said in about four years. He knows that the Healey Falls portion is a very difficult one. I think that, even if he lets the contract next year, it will be many years before it can be finished. The same is true of the portion just below the town of Campbellford at Raney's Falls. Had the money devoted to the work that was so long under discussion this afternoon been expended on these portions of the canal, it would have been of much greater benefit to the country. I do not pretend to be very well posted on this subject beyond the information we have gathered in the discussion to-day but considering the defence made by the ministers one can hardly come to any other conclusion than that the money spent on the Newmarket canal will be practically thrown away. There has been a good deal of speculation as to just where this canal is going to run. I would like to ask the minister to tell us whether if he has yet decided whether it is to follow the river at Raney's Falls and what kind of locks they intend to place at Healey Falls?"—Hansard.

Everybody interested in poultry should be present at the council chamber to-night, as a very profitable evening may be spent.

GROUNDS ARE A FORBIDDEN SPOT

The Board of Education has a big problem on its hands in keeping trespassers off the grounds around the Collegiate Institute. There is no fence around the grounds and nothing to even indicate that people should keep off them.

Mr. Dumble brought this matter up at the meeting of the Board of Education last night and stated that the Institute pupils were the worst offenders in trampling upon the grounds.

Mr. Kenner said this was not true. The grounds were open and everybody could walk on them if they cared to. The students were not as bad as the public generally.

SPORTING NEWS

PETERBORO' WILL HAVE FAST INTERMEDIATE TEAM

At Lacrosse Meeting Held in the Crown Hotel Last Night Club was Organized and Officers Were Elected—Prospects for Season are Bright.

About thirty enthusiasts of Canada's national game—lacrosse—met at the Crown hotel last evening to organize a club. There is no doubt that the game will boom in Peterborough this season. All matters were thoroughly discussed with the result that a team will be entered in the Intermediate series of the CLA, and prospects are bright for a winning team. Those who have had the matter in hand for the past few weeks must feel highly encouraged in their work of endeavoring to put more interest into the lacrosse game here. Officers were elected for the year and are as follows:

Patrons and Patronesses—Mr and Mrs R A Morrow, Mr and Mrs H. Neil, Mr and Mrs H LeBrun, Mr and Mrs Peter Campbell, Mr and Mrs J R Stratton, Mr and Mrs James Kendrey.

Hon-Pres—J J Howden.
Hon Vice-Pres—W Rudkins.
Pres—J Cottingham.
1st vice-Pres—Dr Wightman.
2nd vice-Pres—M Halpin.
Sec-Treas—L Dobson.

Executive committee: R M Glover, E N McWilliams, Fred Clarke, Jack McCabe and a captain to be elected by the players.

Manager—Fred Dobbin.

It was moved that a representative be sent to Toronto on Good Friday to attend the annual meeting of the CLA and enter a team in the Intermediate series and Mr Fred Dobbin was selected as the representative. Practices will be held at Riverside park as soon as possible.

BELMONT CLUB TOURNAMENT

Interesting games were played last night in the Belmont Club's pool tournament. Some good players are being developed and great interest is being displayed in the games.

The fourth series in the first round were played last night and the winners were as follows:—

R. J. Sodeu won from R. J Davidson.
W. Martin won from W. Wareham.
R. Armstrong won from J. D. Patterson.
A. Ecclestone won from T. Wilmutt.

BASKETBALL

There will be two good games of basketball at the Y.M.C.A. to-night. The first game between the Coronas and Park street will begin at 7.30, and the second game between the Mariners and Business College, will start at 8.30. Both games should be worth witnessing.

FOOTBALL

A meeting of the football team in connection with the Y.M.C.A. will be held in the association rooms to-night at 8 o'clock. A good attendance is asked for.

WRESTLING

A SENSITIVE GRAPPLER.

Hamilton, April 5. — A wrestling match took place at the Grand Opera House to-night between Charlie Conkle of this city and Al. Ackerman, Lima Ohio. After forty-five minutes' work Charlie got a fall. Some of the spectators suggested that it was a "fake," and Conkle's sensitive feelings were wounded so deeply that he refused to wrestle any more, and forfeited the match, which was for "the welterweight championship."

There was great excitement after the match, the spectators raiding the box office and demanding their money back. The police had to be called to disperse the crowd. Ackerman offered to give his share of the purse in order that the people get their money back, but Conkle refused to accept this proposition.

OWES HER LIFE TO

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Vienna, W. Va. — "I feel that I owe the last ten years of my life to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Eleven years ago I was a walking shadow. I had been under the doctor's care but got no relief. My husband persuaded me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it worked like a charm. It relieved all my pains and misery. I advise all suffering women to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — MRS. EMMA WHEATON, Vienna, W. Va.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases of any similar medicine in the country, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every such suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

T.A.S. ATHLETIC CLUB MEETING

There will be a meeting of the T.A.S. Athletic Club tomorrow night at eight o'clock when several important matters will be considered. All interested in baseball and field sports are requested to be present.

BASEBALL

There was a good attendance of members and players of the Strathcona A.C. present at the meeting held in the Y.M.C.A., and the prospects for a good fast baseball team for this season are very bright. Last year the Strathconas were represented in the intermediate series and won the Review cup, but the question of putting in a team again this year in the same league or being represented in the proposed senior league was not thoroughly discussed, although the majority were in favor of the senior league.

Another meeting will be held later to elect officers for the season and it will then be decided as to what will be done in regards to the two leagues.

A letter has been received from Guy W. Green, of Lincoln, Nebraska, Indians, who last year won 148 out of 165 games played. The Indians want a game with the Peterborough club during their tour this season, and promise one of the fastest teams that has ever been seen here. The Rodakins have a great record in the States, and no doubt would be well received here if they make their appearance during the season. Every member of the team is a full-blooded Western Indian. —Lindsay Post.

THE RING

New York, April 5.—Jeffries began an engagement at a Brooklyn theatre to-day, but he failed to cover the $5,000 forfeit posted by Johnson a week ago, and also refused to say whether he would fight again or not. Several of Jeff's friends, however, said that he was getting ready to announce his return to the ring, and that he would issue a formal statement in a few days to that effect.

Having failed to get Jeffries to cover his forfeit, it was up to Johnson to-day to accept a challenge from either Kaufman or Ketchel, both of whom have had $5,000 posted for a match ever since Tuesday. Johnson it is believed, does not care to fight either of these husky challengers any more than he hankers for a mix up with Sam Langford. Johnson admits that he does not want to indulge in a mill until he has cleaned up his theatrical engagements, and he has twenty weeks booked ahead already.

RUNNING

Toronto, April 6.—When Fred Appleby visited the Rosedale Grounds yesterday and saw the track, over which he is to run against Fred Simpson in the 20-mile race on Good Friday, he expressed himself as highly delighted with it. The men in charge of the grounds will do some more rolling and scraping, which should put the track in almost perfect condition. During the afternoon Appleby took a five-mile spin and was well satisfied with the shape he is in. The Englishman has an unusual method of training. He is an expert skipper, and can skip 200 times to the minute, so he always commences to get himself into condition by using the rope. He has been thinking of giving exhibitions of his ability at skipping on the vaudeville stage, and has even corresponded with a theatrical manager regarding it. At present he is only using his skipping to help train himself.

The Englishmen who are so numerous in the city have already shown that they intend to be as enthusiastic over Appleby as they were over Shrubb. He was at a meeting of the British United Club last night, and will attend the British Welcome League to-morrow evening.

FIRE BRIGADE HAD BUSY TIME

Responded to Six Calls This Morning Inside of an Hour—Very Little Damage Done

The fire department had a busy hour this morning between 10 and 12 o'clock in which they responded to no less than six calls. The high wind was the cause of all the excitement as it caused trouble to the chimneys. Needless to say the alarms were attended to in an efficient manner by the fire department and the damage will only amount to about four dollars. Two alarms were sent in from box 41, two were from box 32 and the remaining other two were still alarms.

Another Trade Treaty.

Berlin, April 7.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Negotiations for a commercial treaty between Canada and Germany have entered a favorable stage. Canada declares herself willing to grant reductions on imports from Germany, such as high class textile products, drugs, books, soaps, artificial flowers, feathers, wines, spirits, ready-made clothing and porcelain, while Germany would grant Canada reduced duties on agricultural implements typewriters, cattle and agricultural and horticultural produce.

Swept Over the Dam.

Vancouver, April 7.—Five men occupying three boats were Monday swept over the British Columbia Electric Railway Co.'s dam across the Coquitlam river. They were rescued with great difficulty. One of the men was carried under a boom of logs. Only his skill as a swimmer enabled him to keep afloat until assistance reached him. The men were engaged on the improvements now being carried out by the company.

Fined For Forgery.

Stratford, April 7.—Peter Fountain, a G.T.R. freight conductor, pleaded guilty before Magistrate O'Loane on charges of forging the names of U. E. Gillen, divisional superintendent, and C. G. Bowker, trainmaster, of the G.T.R., to a note, and uttering the note, and was fined $10 and costs. A petition signed by three hundred Sarnia citizens, asking leniency on account of previous good conduct, modified the sentence.

SUPT. McCLELLAN MAKES STATEMENT REGARDING THE DROWNED LAND CLAIMS

Editor of the Review,

Dear Sir,—I noticed in last night's issue of your paper an article dealing with the method that is being employed by the Department of Railways and Canals in connection with the settlement of claims for drowned lands along the route of the Trent Canal and particularly adjacent to Chemung, Pigeon and Buckhorn lakes. Your article in this respect is misleading, but I have no doubt, not intentionally so.

Permit me to point out to you that the Government has no agent out through the country looking up claims. A statement to the contrary is absolutely untrue. If any person is out through the country representing to the farmers and others that he is an agent of the Government, he is guilty of misrepresentation. If you know of any one who is acting in this manner I would be pleased if you would furnish his name and I will see to it that he is properly dealt with.

The only person who is authorized to visit the farmers and landowners in in connection with the matter of the settlement of their claims for compensation for damages by reason of the raising of the waters of the Trent Canal is Mr James Dickson, O.L.S. Mr Dickson is the officially appointed commissioner for the purpose of assessing any damages in this respect. You say that "it is wholly intolerable that the Government should allow agents to go through the country trying to buy up claims before the appropriations are made at Ottawa." The Government is not aware of any such an arrangement.

All claims for compensation are filed at this office by the land owners themselves or through their regular solicitors. The claims are then handed to the Commissioner, or Valuator, as he is more frequently styled. The property is visited and inspected in due course of time. It is impossible to inspect every claim at once, but the Commissioner is out in the country every day and now has the work about finished. I think that the farmers and others will say that the settlements have been invariably fair and just.

Would you be good enough to give this letter the same degree of publicity as that given to the article herein complained of.

Yours truly,
J. H. McCLELLAN,
Supt. Trent Canal.

Peterborough, April 7th.

NEWS FROM APSLEY

Apsley, April 6.—The roads are at present in a very bad condition.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. Joseph Hendley is suffering from a severe attack of quinsy.

A Council meeting was held in the town hall on March 27th, for the transaction of business.

The town hall, according to the order of the Council, has been reshingled during the past week and will be otherwise improved later on.

The crows are very numerous in our locality now that spring is at hand. One is seen occasionally on Sunday evening and is said to have hailed from Dummer.

An oyster supper was held at Mr. William Tucker's on Wednesday evening last. Those present report a good time.

The Trustees of No. 2 Burleigh, have re-engaged their former teacher and are making preparations to start school as soon as the roads are fit for the children to attend.

The Peterborough Lumber Co. were settling up accounts with those concerned, on Friday last.

A number of our farmers are busy getting out a supply of wood for the summer and the sawing machine will start operations in a few days.

Autobiography of a valuable Gray Horse.

When the angry passions gathering in my master's face I see
As he leads me from the stable to do the work of three,
Then I know that I will catch it and
my flesh in fancy itches
As I listen to "Get out o' that" and feel the well known switches.

One evening while on duty I was taken suddenly ill
Back to the old stall he drove me to give me a buckwheat fill
But my stomach was too weak to digest it, as it did in days gone by
So I made up my mind my time had come and was reconciled to die.

Next morn I was no better and Dunk was called, his skillful hand to try.
Says my master "Can you tell what in mischief is the matter with that old Fly?"
The vet proclaimed it Bots and said I would soon be on the mend,
If his medicine I would take, and after it did send.

And as the old saying is, "Live cow and you'll get grass."
I took a bundle of hay along, and to the woods again did pass
For life is not all sunshine to this old grey horse called Fly.
But I am only one of many that have had to do or die.

Mr. Nelson brought up the question of having the meetings of the Board of Education open to the public and of holding them in the Board room at the Collegiate Institute. Mr. Nelson moved in this direction having given notice of motion at the last meeting of the Board. He outlined a number of reasons why the change should be made, the principal one being that the board should have the fullest confidence of the public.

Mr. Crane said that while many things Mr. Nelson said were true it would almost require a permanent secretary if the meetings of the board were held at the Collegiate Institute. The speaker said that he had sometimes occasion to call up the secretary-treasurer two or three times a day, and if the books and records of the board were kept at the Collegiate Institute great inconvenience would be caused.

Mr. Mason said it was almost an imposition on the secretary to have him furnish a place for meeting and other conveniences. He saw many advantages in the proposition put forth by Mr. Nelson and would second his motion.

Mr. Dumble said that the meetings of the board were not closed to the public, and full reports of the meetings appeared in the press. He had no objection to changing the place of meeting to the Collegiate Institute if it would be satisfactory to the secretary. He did not feel like supporting the motion.

Mr. Hill said if the place of meeting was changed to the Collegiate Institute it would be necessary to instal a vault there. At the present time Mr. Morrow allowed the board the use of his vault. Mr. Hill said that he would be glad to see the public attend the meetings but they did not seem to be anxious to do so.

Mr. Nelson said a vault could be placed in the Institute for $165.

Mr. Crane moved, in amendment, that no action be taken in the matter at present, but that the newspapers intimate that the meetings of the Board are open to the public.

Mr. Hill seconded this motion.

Dr. Morrison also saw the same objections to the change in the place of meeting as did Mr. Dumble. The Property Committee, however, might look into the matter and ascertain the cost of having a vault placed in the Collegiate.

In view of the circumstances, Mr. Nelson and Mr. Mason agreed to withdraw their motion.

TENDERS FOR COAL.

The Property Committee was authorized to ask for tenders for coal for next year.

WALK ACROSS PARK.

Mr Dumble moved and Mr. Mason seconded, that the secretary be instructed to write the city council and request that a walk ten feet wide be constructed across Central Park from George street to McDonnel street.

On motion of Messrs. Nelson and Hill, it was decided to authorize the Property Committee to secure a jacket heater for the Collegiate Institute, and one for the Queen Alexandra School, and also to secure road scrapings and seeds to make improvements on the grounds at the public schools.

Dr. Morrison moved that the Collegiate Institute Building Committee be disbanded, as they had completed their work, that the matter of releasing the contractors from their bonds be referred to the Finance Committee, and that a sum not to exceed $75, be appropriated for improvements to the grounds around the Collegiate Institute. This motion was seconded by Mr. Mason and carried.

The chairman of the Property Committee (Mr. Nelson), and Messrs. Dumble and Hill were appointed a committee to look after the improvements to the Collegiate grounds.

On motion of Messrs. Hill and Crane, the chairman of the board and the chairmen of the committees were appointed delegates to the Educational Association to be held at Toronto in the near future.

Mr. Dumble brought up the question of improvements to the school grounds in the city, and pointed out some things that were necessary. As many of the recommendations as possible will be carried out. Several other minor matters were discussed before adjournment took place.

COMMISSION SAYS PUGSLEY AND OTHERS ROBBED THE PROVINCE

Report of Transactions of Central Railway Presented to Legislature Holds Lieut.-Governor Tweedie, Geo. McAvity and Hon. Mr. Pugsley Accountable for Misapplication of $134,000.

Fredericton, N.B., April 8.—The report of the royal commission, which enquired into the transactions of the Central Railway, presented to the Legislature yesterday, contains the most startling account of the misappropriation of public money in the history of the province.

Judge Landry, Fulton McDougall, manager of the Bank of Montreal at Moncton, and N. I. Tweed of St. Stephen, were the commissioners. They find that the "conduct of Mr. Pugsley and Mr. Tweedie (now Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick), and George McAvity, is open to the gravest censure, and that they must be held accountable by the province for $134,000 which they had misappropriated.

"Far larger sums," says the report, "than $134,000 might well have been switched from their legitimate course for nearly a million dollars were tossed about without any special guidance.

"These men were exploiters using a stage name and the railway company was nothing more than a disorganized department of the Government. The gross misuse of the public money made it imperative for them to conceal the truth.

"Carefully prepared statements show money was paid after April, 1901, as Government subsidies, loans, guarantees, advances, etc., $958,799.95; expenditures of money, $824,764.40; balance unaccounted for $134,033.35."

Concerning one excess of $25,080, the commissioners say:

"Hon. Mr. Pugsley can give no real explanation of it. We find that the whole of this $25,000 of subsidy bonds were illegally issued. This amount, we believe, has been misapplied, and should the Government in the future seek to extend the line from the terminus of the fifteen-mile section to Gibson, $25,000 of the subsidy authorized to be paid for that portion of the line will not be available, as it has been withdrawn and used.

"Mr. Tweedie claimed to know nothing of the finances, saying he left these matters to Mr. Pugsley and the officers. Mr. Pugsley, who apparently had general management of the company's affairs, kept no accounts and did not give us much definite information. He said he left the keeping of accounts to two other gentlemen, who have since died.

"George McAvity, president and managing director, from 1904 to July 1, 1905, kept no books at all in connection with the company's business. From July 1, 1905, to March 14, 1908, when as one of the commissioners he had the management of the road, he also kept no books whatever. In very many instances McAvity was unable to produce any vouchers. As all the available records left hundreds of thousands of dollars unaccounted for, the commissioners were obliged to consider the cost, estimates and other expenditures."

The commissioners furnish this summary: "To briefly sum the matter up, the Legislature authorized the guarantee by the province of $250,000 of company's bonds, to secure the construction of forty miles of railway, fully equipped with rolling stock and provided with coal mining plant capable of mining five hundred tons of coal per day. The province has obtained, not forty odd miles, but fifteen miles of railway, a few cheap sidings, a quantity of rolling stock costing between twenty and thirty thousand dollars, with the work of construction on nearly thirty miles practically untouched, and not a dollar expended on the extensive coal plant.

"These bonds were guaranteed on reports showing progress of construction of the 15-mile section. Mr. Pugsley stated in his evidence that he himself drew up these reports, and that Mr. Evans had signed them.

"It is not our province to suggest whether any or what action should be taken on behalf of the province to hold the members of the Government, who were instrumental in endorsing these bonds, responsible for their illegal act."

FIERCE BOREAS WAS KING LAST NIGHT

Wind Storm One of the Worst in History of City—Considerable Damage Done—Fire Brigade Kept Busy —Reports of Troubles of Many Kinds.

The most terrific windstorm that ever wrought havoc in Peterborough, prevailed here yesterday and last night. Considerable damage was done in the city and surrounding country but fortunately no serious accidents resulted from the hurricane.

The wind became strong early yesterday morning and increased in velocity during the day. The fire brigade was called out over a half dozen times during the afternoon, mostly for chimney fires, and there were several more calls during the night. It was the busiest twenty-four hours in the history of the local brigade.

The wind abated somewhat about five o'clock and a comparative calm prevailed for about two hours but with the coming of darkness the gale again became of cyclonic proportions and continued so during the night. It was almost impossible for pedestrians to make their way along the street if they were travelling against the wind. Men held onto their hats with both hands and even with these precautions many a spruce christy got away from its moorings and became a plaything for the elements. Some of the ladies on the streets looked as if they had been struck by a Kansas cyclone. They had a hard time getting along and will remember the day for a long time.

Buildings, fences, wires, roofs, chimneys and trees have suffered more or less as a result of the outburst of the elements and a review of some of the things that happened makes interesting reading.

Scattered Lumber

The heavy wind played havoc with the big lumber piles on Burnham's point. The top layers on the piles were lifted in the air and scattered over the yard in all directions. Some of the boards went 60 feet in the air while many others were broken.

Fences Suffered

Insecurely built fences came to grief in all parts of the city and big peices of wreckage littered the streets in many places. Trees also succumbed to the force of the wind, several being blown down around the city while branches were torn from others. Shingles were blown from roofs and at times the air was filled with flying debris.

Chimneys Down

A couple of chimneys were blown down at Wand's planing mill last night. A large one, fifteen feet high, was blown over and struck a smaller one, smashing the latter.

A chimney on the house at the north end of Aylmer street, which had been recently bricked, was blown down during the night, but no damage was done to any other part of the premises.

Damage on Road.

Driver Levoy, of the Belleville train, when interviewed this morning, stated that he had never seen so much damage done since he has been on the line. Large trees are blown down between here and Belleville, and signs and telephone poles also suffered. Much damage was caused in Belleville. Many vessels were blown from their moorings, fires were started, and switch houses and signals were blown down by the high wind.

Not Much Damage Here.

The Bell Telephone Company stated that considerable trouble had been caused by short circuits, but no damage of a serious character was done. As the result of trees blowing down, however, some long distance wires are out of commission this morning.

The Peterborough Light and Power Company and Otonabee Light and Power Company say that practically no harm was done to their system and the local telegraph companies also say that their systems are in good order today.

Outside of a couple of wire crosses the Machine Telephone Company had no set backs from the high wind.

At Springville

Springville, April 8.—Last night's windstorm was the worst in the memory of the "oldest inhabitant." However, no serious damage is reported. Several fences were blown down and limbs were torn from trees but outside of that there was not a great deal of havoc. The night was also exceedingly dark.

FARMERS CAN HAVE MACHINE TELEPHONES AT BRANTFORD

Brantford, April 8—With the opening of the Canadian Machine Telephone Company's fine automatic telephone plant in Brantford, the neighboring townships will have an opportunity of securing telephone connection with the city as the Canadian Machine Telephone Company is installing a special board to handle the business of rural lines with their automatic system. The residents in the townships will be able to get telephone service among themselves and a city connection at reasonable rates. The company is preparing to take this feature of their Brantford system up at once and they invite correspondence and enquiries from those living in the vicinity of Brantford. The farming community and the villages will be looked after with an up to date service and charges will not be high.

GALE SWEEPS THE PROVINCE AND GREAT DAMAGE DONE

Chimneys Are Blown Down and Buildings Unroofed by Terrific Hurricane Which Lasted all Day Yeserday in Every Part of Country--- Several Freak Accidents Occur.

London, April 8.—The gale that struck London yesterday was one of the worst in the history of the city. The velocity of the wind as taken at the local observatory was seventy-five miles an hour. The damage is roughly estimated at $50,000, but is likely to reach higher figures. The most serious feature was the falling of the chimney of the Aberdeen School, the fragments of which crashed through the roof, injuring six children, several of them seriously. The most seriously hurt are: Mamie Leburtis, who may die; Jack Clark, Mabel McNeil, Ila Mottashed, Harry Weinstein, and Henry Shley.

The disaster occurred at 11.30 a.m. when the children were busy at their lessons. Miss Munro was at the blackboard when the crash came. Miss Munro heard the ceiling crack, and shouted, "Run for your lives, children." They made for the doorway with great speed, but the tons of brick and debris caught six of them. The rest of the children hurried out and reached the corridor in safety. The awful crash alarmed the other rooms, and they filed out as if they were going through their fire drill.

St. Thomas, April 8.—Rivaling the freakishness of Kansas cyclones, yesterday's furious windstorm here played tricks as a result of which several people are considering themselves lucky though suffering from injuries, while the close call that hundreds of children attending the Balaclava street school had is considered a providential delivery from awful death.

Perhaps the strangest freak of the wind was when it lifted Ernest Woodruff from his bicycle off the high Pere Marquette bridge and laid him on the telegraph wire, which he was quick enough to grasp and save his life. He was wheeling over the bridge when the wind was at its worst, and he would have had a fall of about 60 feet had he not been fortunate enough to come in contact with the telegraph wires. He managed to reach the framework of the bridge and let himself down to the ground without injury.

A. T. Garrott, M.C.R. brakeman, was not so fortunate. He was on the roof of a freight car which was carried off by the wind. As the train was crossing the bridge 100 feet over the ravine, half of the roof went over, but the other half fell on the bridge and Garrott happened to be on the latter half. He has a severe injury to the spine, his ankle dislocated and a bone above it fractured. Many others received bruises, including Lew Jones, a delivery boy, who had a leg broken by the rig being blown over.

The school accident aroused alarm, a large chimney, eight by ten feet, crashing through the roof and next floor to a class room below, carrying several tons of brick. A great quantity fell on the sidewalk, sufficient to have killed scores had it been at the moment of dismissing the school. It was just 12.20 noon when the crash occurred, so not a person was hurt. At the Wellington street school a number of children were cut by broken windows and one boy, son of Jack Turton, the well-known traveler, had his leg badly hurt by a door.

Grace Methodist Church may never be used again, as one wall was smashed in and the church happens to have plans ready for a new building.

Many chimneys, fences, etc., were destroyed, but so far this district has reported no loss of life.

Niagara Falls, Ont., April 8.—For ten hours yesterday Niagara Falls was swept by a severe wind storm which at times assumed the proportions of a cyclone. Damage to property is extensive, roofs being ripped off hotels and factories, telegraph poles snapped off, and barns and chimneys blown down.

The roof the Niagara Falls Canning Factory was torn off yesterday afternoon and carried with terrific impetus for a distance of over 200 yards. It crashed on the roof of the Shredded Wheat Co.'s factory, tearing and damaging the building greatly. The roofs of the Cyanide Co. and Loretta Convent were damaged, and the roof of the Cataract Hotel was carried away, many people having narrow escapes. The damage will reach $10,000.

The roof of the Stamford Presbyterian Church was blown off and about a dozen barns blown down, and some cattle injured.

Schools Suffer at Guelph.

Guelph, April 8.—It has been a wild and windy day in and around Guelph.

Part of the front wall of the new $13,000 St. Patrick's ward school was blown down yesterday morning with a crash that frightened the scholars and teachers and brought an anxious crowd of bareheaded mothers to the scene to claim their children, all of whom luckily were in the building at the time and so were unhurt. Trees, fences, doors and outhouses all over the city were blown over.

A large portion of the roof of the Alexandria school was stripped of its heavy coating of slate yesterday afternoon and a galvanized iron covering of a large skylight on the opera house building was carried high up in the air, where it seemed to soar for a moment like a kite before it crashed down on the roof of a passing street car, greatly alarming the passengers.

Disastrous Around St. Kitts.

St. Catharines, April 8.—The storm in this city and district caused in the aggregate thousands of dollars' damage, though fortunately no one was injured. The loss is divided over all sections, chimneys being down in considerable numbers on every street.

Probably the greatest damage was the destruction of the high tower on the central fire station. For some minutes before it fell the destruction was evident, and Chief Early had the horses and trucks removed from the station. When the crash came, however, the roof of the building withstood the shock and the tower tumbled over on to John Carlson's blacksmith shop, close by, and the damage is considerable. A thousand dollar house in the course of construction by Thomas Irvine on Ontario street was blown to the ground and considerable damage was caused to the skating rink at Ridley College.

At Port Dalhousie a large portion of the rubber factory was carried across the old canal, and the cabin was torn from the steamer Cataract. A number of barns were blown down and chimneys torn from half the houses in the village.

Merritton town hall lost three chimneys and a portion of the roof was carried away. Chimneys were also blown off the Methodist and English Churches and the separate school. The Canada Wheel Works alone suffered $400 damage.

In all over 200 chimneys and as many fences were completely destroy-

Ruin at Brantford.

Brantford, April 8.—The worst wind storm in the history of this city has been raging here since yesterday morning, and has resulted in thousands of dollars' damage. Roofs of buildings, factory chimneys, and high tension wires have suffered chiefly, while acres of fruit trees have been devastated in the county. Since 11 o'clock yesterday morning the wind has been blowing at a velocity of 50 miles an hour.

Only one injury is reported, Alfred Cox, a jeweler, having his face severely gashed by a flying piece of slate.

The roof of the Baptist Church in the Holmedale was blown away, also that of the Bratford Soap factory in the same district. Several barns were also demolished, including those of F. Richter and J. Burke on the outskirts of the city.

The Barber & Ellis and Ham & Nots factories were among the sufferers, their tall smokestacks being blown away.

Near Stromness last night, Grand Trunk Conductor Tippett had to stop his train on account of the roofs of two freight cars being blown away.

Berlin Ravaged.

Berlin, April 8.—Yesterday's storm played havoc in Berlin, leaving destruction in its path in all parts of the town.

The building occupied by Hoffman's button works, and the Pollock Talking Machine Co. was pretty badly wrecked, the big chimney being blown down and part of the wall torn away. The roof of the engine room at the Oberholtser Shoe Factory was almost completely torn up and blown away, as was also the tin roof on the Walper House.

On Joseph street the front wall of the new house being put up for P. Roder was blown in, causing the roof to collapse. Electric street signs down town were broken and many trees were blown down in different parts of the town.

SLACK HOPED FOR NEW TRIAL

Kingston, April 8.—The remains of George Slack, the Toronto life convict who died on Tuesday in the Kingston penitentiary, will be interred in St. James' cemetery, Toronto. They were placed on the International Limited at noon yesterday, in charge of William Slack, a brother, who reached the city yesterday morning from Buffalo. William says that his brother really died of a broken heart. Up till the very last George maintained his innocence. William Slack said that yesterday Mr. Curry, K.C., was to have waited on Mr. Justice Anglin, the trial judge, in an effort to have him consent to allow another judge go over the evidence to see whether there was anything that would warrant a new trial.

City Clerk Armstrong, who occupied the Magistrate's chair, allowed him to go with a warning.

BILL TO REPEAL THREE-FIFTHS CLAUSE IS PUT ON THE SHELF

Hon. W. J. Hanna in Brilliant Defence of Government's Temperance Reform Policy Moves in Amendment to Repeal Measure That Reading be Postponed Six Months.

Toronto, April 8.—The Opposition attack on the temperance policy of the Whitney Government resulted last night in the bill to repeal the three-fifths clause being given a six months' hoist, and a resolution of confidence in the Government passing by a majority of 51.

The debate was dull and uninteresting. Little impression was made by the arguments of the Opposition, and Hon. W. J. Hanna made a brilliant and successful defence of the Government's record in temperance reform.

When the division was polled R. C. Truax, Liberal member for South Bruce, voted with the Government and J. Thompson, Conservative member for East Peterboro, with the Opposition. I. B. Lucas (Centre Grey), who declared his intention of voting for the repeal of the three-fifths clause, was paired with Hon. Adam Beck, W. D. McPherson (West Toronto) with A. A. Mahaffy (Muskoka), and D. Jamieson (South Grey) with C. M. Bowman (North Bruce).

Unfortunately as Hon. A. G. MacKay was in the middle of his speech the electric lights went out in the House, and the balance of the debate, including Sir James Whitney's remarks, were delivered in darkness.

The Opposition attack was led by W. Proudfoot (Centre Huron) in moving the second reading of his bill to repeal the three-fifths clause. He stated that the question was not properly before the country to the last election. Many votes on local option had been taken, and if the Government was satisfied that public opinion was strong enough, why did they not repeal the law?

Hon. W. J. Hanna declared that the arguments of the hon. gentleman had been heard several times. Whatever may have been the issue in Centre Huron in regard to the three-fifths clause, he could assure the hon. member that it had been an issue in West Lambton. The three-fifths clause might have cost him a few votes, but for every vote lost he gained two or three more, with the result that he was returned with a larger majority last June than ever before.

The three-fifths clause in the matter of local option was quite justified by the application of the same principle in many other matters.

In conclusion, Hon. Mr. Hanna moved in amendment that the bill be given a six months' hoist, and that "it was the duty of this Legislature to take such steps to minimize the drink evil in the province, and to this end the provisions of the Liquor License Act relating to local option had worked well, and any other measures desirable to bring the bill into effect would be brought up by the Government from time to time."

Hon. A. K. MacKay (North Grey) repudiated the idea that the Opposition were attempting to make this a party issue. As far back as 1890 temperance had been before the people. He did not think local option vote should be forced on any municipality unless there was some reason for believing that it would pass. He contended that the Liberal party had done a great deal for the temperance cause.

"It is not a question of a majority," said Hon. Mr. MacKay, "it is a matter of enforcement of the law." A majority was one thing, the enforcement of law by those in charge of it was another.

Sir James Whitney closed the debate by stating that the Government was well satisfied with its position. While there was no necessity for going to England for precedents, that is where they had gone for much guidance, and were quite safe in following the principles laid down by the Prime Minister of Great Britain. Sir James referred further to the British Act in which it is provided that where there are no licenses a simple majority will bring them into existence. In that case they were creating something which did not exist, whereas the three-fifths provision was necessary to abolish the licenses. The Premier contended that this question had been settled at the last general election, and the Government felt justified in refusing to change the present act.

FARMERS BUSY IN THE WEST

Seeding is in Full Swing and Prospects Are Excellent.

Calgary, Alta., April 8.—Favorable reports are coming in from the south part of the province regarding winter wheat. That on breaking is specially good. Some of the grain on fallow land will have to be resown. The acreage will be much larger than last year. From the north the reports are also of very favorable conditions. Ranchers are well advanced with their work. There has been more moisture than usual, both north and south.

The large cattle raisers say that there has never been a more satisfactory spring in their industry. Cattle have wintered exceptionally well and there is splendid pasturage on the ranges.

There is an active demand for farm labor. The immigration agents are constantly placing farm help. Immigration is active, and this year it is principally of the land-seekers with moderate means from Great Britain and the United States. The flow of the unmonied immigrants has been stopped. In the cities and towns the building trades are very busy. Calgary has a far bigger building season ahead of it than last year.

A PACKAGE OF MONEY MISSING

Brandon, Man., April 8.—An investigation here regarding the mysterious disappearance of a Dominion Express Co. money package, containing from one to three thousand dollars, lost in the wreck of the Canadian Pacific train a few weeks ago on the Estevan branch, has failed to throw light on the affair, which hitherto has been kept secret by the officials. The package was sent from the bank in Oxbow to Winnipeg and was uninsured, which is unusual. The mail and express cars were badly smashed in the wreck and contents were transferred to baggage car, and between the transfer and arrival of the train in Napinka the package was lost.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Serious floods are reported at Montreal.

C. J. Morris was found burned to death in his shack near Milestone, Sask.

A man was prostrated with the heat in Boston yesterday and sent to a hospital.

President Hill states that the Great Northern Railway will be running into Winnipeg by September.

West Australia has decided to join with Victoria and New South Wales in offering Britain a Dreadnought.

Castro, the deposed President of Venezuela, landed yesterday at Fort de France, on the French island of Martinique.

Cardinal and King, two shantymen, who were thought to be lost in the woods last winter near Fort William, are now said to be alive.

THE C.P.R. AND ITS MECHANICS

Winnipeg, April 8.—Totally conflicting stories are published here regarding the result of the negotiations between the C.P.R. officials and representatives of the C.P.R. mechanics.

One authority (Free Press) declares the question amicably settled and that while schedules and agreements are not signed, the late strikers are to be reinstated to the pension roll and that all the men not yet returned to work will be placed immediately if they so desire. The company was successful in their contention to keep separate the eastern and western divisions and schedules.

On the other hand, the westerners retain the closed shop and integrity of their organizations, and it is also stated there will be no change in wage schedules.

The bill to incorporate the Salvation Army was given its third reading in the Senate.

THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND LOGS WILL COME DOWN ON LOCAL DRIVES THIS YEAR

Mr. John Westlake, who looks after the Government dams in the northern part of the county, says that the creeks there are rapidly breaking up and the drives of logs will soon be brought down.

"I will have over three hundred thousand logs to look after, coming over the dams this year," said Mr. Westlake to the Review.

He stated that big cuts had been made by the Peterborough Lumber Co. the Cavendish Lumber Co. and the Dickson Co. and the season in the woods has been a good one.

Mr. Westlake had business to transact in Rochester yesterday and made a quick visit to the Flower City. He left in the morning and returned by the midnight last night. The business he transacted was of an important nature but it only took him an hour to carry through his negotiations. It was his first trip to Rochester in forty years.

INDISCREET ADMISSIONS

'During last year one person in seventy-eight in Canada was convicted of some offence. Considering the number of incompetents this is a high proportion. Manitoba leads among the provinces with one to forty-four. Much that passes for criminality is purely artificial, and results from legal restrictions on trade, manufacture and various personal habits and social customs. But allowing for all this, the increase from one in 136 to one in 78 in ten years shows the effect of lowering admixtures from abroad.—The Globe.

The great Liberal immigration policy is on its trial in the pages of the Globe! Who would have thought it! The jeers and warnings of the Conservative press have come out all too true in the statistical returns. Even the blind eyes of the Globe are opened, although in a short time blindness will come upon them again, and it will be as bad as ever. Fatuity is one of the characteristics of the Globe. It keeps on butting its head against the National Policy as if, indeed, the Liberal policy were that of free trade, and as if free trade had not disappeared a decade ago. It keeps on butting its head against the charge of graft, as if that charge were wholly untrue. It continues to laud the G.T.P. as a great but cheap enterprise for Canada, although the first of its extra added loans or subsidies is already a thing of the past. That it has admitted that our standard has been lowered by the class of immigrants brought in by the North Atlantic and other "trading" companies, is probably unintentional. These companies are called "trading" companies because, probably they trade in humanity. The remark of Mr. Foster contained, as usual, a vast amount of wisdom. "Let these people get out of the mess they have got into. Let them pay for their own bad work and not put it on our shoulders." This observation was occasioned by the quite apparent misgiving with which Sir Wilfrid went to the country. It was justified.

THE ONTARIO LOAN

From the Resident Correspondent of the Montreal Star in London.

London, April 6.—The Ontario Government loan has been successful. The Bank of Montreal closed the lists this morning ahead of the advertised time. It is understood that the loan has been over-subscribed.

WINDERMERE.

This "short and simple annal" of an Ontario Government business transaction describes in just so many words the difference between the credit of the Government of this great Dominion under Liberal mismanagement and that of the Government of Sir James Whitney at Toronto. The last loans of each of these representative institutions were not so very largely different in amount, Ten millions and three and a half millions. But the difference in the price demanded and got in each case is no mere party triumph for the Tories. It shows a serious state of things for Canada and the worst of it is that Canada is only on the threshold of the difficulties to be entered upon. We ventured an opinion in common with all those who had patience to look into the matter that the G.T.P. syndicate were about to hold Canada up and strip her and we believe so still. The process has begun. The C.P.R. cost enough in all conscience but there were excuses for that undertaking and for the huge subsidies that laid the foundation of so many fortunes. We had to do it. But we hadn't "to do" the G.T.P. Several other syndicates wanted and still want the privilege of developing the west and of building transcontinental lines at no expense to Canada, but through some so-called inscrutible idea of Sir Wilfrid's they can not get any "fararder." It begins to look as Mr. Foster said, as if party exigencies required large business alliances. Some of these days when the bottom drops out we shall be able to see what was really the cause of all the trouble, but not—not if Sir Wilfrid persists in refusing any more Royal Commissions to examine into departmental delinquencies.

If there was graft at Quebec, with limited opportunities, what can we suppose exists on the G.T.P. with its unlimited opportunities. Perhaps the ten millions is the first installment of graft. All these things old country and American financiers see and it is in them that the difficulty of financing recent Dominion loans lies. Ontario's loans whether new or old, are still within reason and it is to be hoped may long continue so.

DR. GRENFELL

"In 1883 while I was studying medicine at the London Hospital in Whitechapel, I was attracted by a huge crowd going into a large tent in the slums of Stepney. There was singing going on inside, and curiosity led me in.

"As I left with the crowd, I came to the conclusion that my religious life was a humbug. I vowed in future that I would either give it up or make it real. It was obviously not a thing to be played with.

Some time later I heard that one of England's famous cricketers, whose athletic distinctions I greatly admired, Mr J E K Studd, was going to speak in the neighborhood and I went to hear him. Seated in front of me there were two or three rows of boys from a training ship, all dressed in the same uniform. At the end of his speech Mr Studd invited any one who was not ashamed to confess that Christ was his Master for this life rather than a kind of insurance ticket for the next world, to stand up. I was both ashamed and surprised to find that I was afraid to stand up. I did not know I was afraid of anything. One boy out of all this large number rose to his feet. I knew pretty well what that meant for him, so I decided to back him up and do the same.

With this theological outfit, I started on my missionary career. What to do was the next question. I went to the parson of a church where I occasionally attended, and offered myself for a class of boys in his Sunday school. They were downright East Londoners, and their spiritual education needed other capacities than those with which I had in my mind till then endowed the Sunday school teacher. I remember being surprised that one boy, whom I carried to the door by the seat of his trousers and heaved into the street, objected by endeavoring to kick, while his "pals" in the school were for joining him in open mutiny. He got the last word, however, by climbing up outside the window and waving a hymn book he had stolen."

Dr. Grenfell has become one of the recognized videttes of Christian missionary work. He is in Labrador face to face with Nature in her sternest moods. Life under such conditions unless lived in the hope of a glorious hereafter is not worth recording. It is true the Eskimo lives his long and snow hut it is not so with Dr Grenfell. He believes that he is serving the Master of Heaven and Earth and sets up to this belief. In so doing he merits the encouragement and goodwill of every right thinking individual.

Our evening contemporary was fairly outdone last night.

A mummified duck, estimated to be 3,000,000 years old, has been found in a sandstone stratum in Wyoming. It has been secured for the American Museum of Natural History. The local poulterers were evidently caught napping.—Punch.

Many persons were surprised to read, the other day, that a deputation had waited on the Premier to urge a minimum wage for clerks. It had been imagined that most of them were already in receipt of it.—Punch.

"You ask me to speak about vigour of body," says Mr. Roosevelt in Collier's Weekly. "I believe in it for its own sake. I believe in it still more as an aid to vigor of mind, and, above all, to vigour of character. But I do not believe in it at all if it is made an end instead of a means and especially if play is permitted to become the serious business of life."

If the Board of Education wants a place to meet in outside of a private office why does it not go to the City Hall as in other cities if the Collegiate Institute is not suitable.

The question has been asked again recently, what the liability of a witness is to punishment where he discloses wrongdoing during his testimony in an election trial. The law is that if he shows a desire to help the course of justice and to advance the public good by a frank confession, he will be protected by the court and will not be subjected to fine or other form of punishment.

"One would think things must be in a parlous state when about seventy-five students—so the papers agree—of the Princeton Theological Seminary signed a petition to the trustees asking them to require that the professors—or three of them who teach natural religion and Old and New Testament—be required to make their instruction 'more intelligible,'" says the New York Independent. "They also wanted a course in Christian sociology. The seminary is one of the most largely manned of all in the United States.

"All the great nations are to-day facing deficits, caused in every case by the military and naval experts. Into what a tangle the finances of Russia and Japan have been brought by militarists is known to everybody.

Germany has, in a single generation, increased her national debt from eighteen million dollars to more than one billion dollars. The German Minister of Finance looks wildly round in search of new sources of national income. Financial experts confess that France is approaching the limit of her sources of revenue. Her deficit is created by her army and navy. The British Government is always seeking for new devices by means of which to fill a depleted treasury. Her Dreadnoughts keep her poor. Italy has for years staggered on the verge of bankruptcy because she carries an overgrown army on her back."

The title of the new book of Mr. Kipling which is to be published shortly is "With the Night Mail." I learn that the sub-title is "A Story of 2000 A.D., together with extracts from a contempory magazine in which it appeared." The main story tells of the aerial trip in postal packet "162" from London to Quebec in one night. The accessories are advertisements of airships, rules of the air, and other such matter from a contemporary magazine.

Mr. Wilbur Wright has taken a passenger on board his aeroplane, say the daily papers, which leads the Westminster Gazette to imagine the following:

"Extract from Passenger Handbook of the Great Eastern Airway Company for June, 1920:

"The company begs to give notice that travellers with propositions or ideas of any weight should either leave them behind or deposit them in the receptacles provided for that purpose, also that owing to the delicate poise of the vessels it is important that passengers should cultivate well-balanced minds.

"Flirting with the officers is permitted as tending to lighten the ship, and jokes and funny stories at the dinner-hour are encouraged, the gravity of the party being thereby lessened. All persons who succeed in starting ten hearty laughs from the captain within a period of two days from the time of starting will have ten per cent. of their passage-money refunded.

"Passengers desiring extra security may be buttoned on by payment of a small additional fee. Children must be kept on a leash."

It has long been the custom to blame the labor unions in Australia for the dearth of population there. The Labor party hopes to keep wages up by discouraging new arrivals, we have been told. This "stock answer" is analyzed mercilessly by the Australian correspondent of the London Times, who concludes that it is not the workingmen, but the landlords, curiously enough, who are keeping out immigration. He reaches this result by citing the case of the Australian State of Victoria, which has but fourteen souls to the square mile, against Tasmania's seven and New South Wales' five. He adds:

"But that leaves it still the emptiest country in the world except Chile and Canada; and when you remember that nearly 43 per cent of its population is concentrated in Melbourne, while it contains a far larger proportion of rich agricultural land than any other State, the density ceases to strike you as anything wonderful. For, remember, the 17,748 acres of good agricultural land mentioned above is the amount still unalienated, not the amount still unused. Draw a line on the map from Geelong to Warrnambool, for a hundred miles along that line, and for nearly fifty miles north, stretches what is probably the emptiest piece of fertile land on the earth's surface—not as empty now as it was a few years ago but still only scantily patched with dairy farms held on a rack rental or acquired at a price that leaves little for the farmer to live on. Mostly it is held by the descendants of the men to whom it was given in the thirties of last century. And here is the explanation of Victorian decadence—these areas of rich soil privately held, unoccupied except by sheep, less taxed and rated lower than any similar soil in Australia; kept empty while young and eager Victorian farmers go to other States in search of land to cultivate."

The absenteeism of landlords who spend rents and profits in London is more boldly assailed and described by the Sydney Telegraph as follows:

"Most of them—the absentee Australian landowners—are interested in pastoral or mining pursuits, and the less settlement there is in Australia the cheaper and more plentiful the land available for sheep and cattle farming. As long as there are sufficient hands here to work the stations and the mines, these persons think that is enough for all purposes. New settlers cut up the sheep and cattle runs and thereby seem to injure rather than benefit their absentee owners. They do not want to have emigrants encouraged to go out to Australia for that purpose, and therefore, think we ought to do with the population we have." — Literary Digest.

Twenty-five dollars an dcosts was the penalty imposed upon David Fraser by Magistrate Campbell at St. Catharines yesterday afternoon. Fraser pleaded guilty to buying liquor for Mrs. Anna Perry, a woman on the "Indian list."

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, April 8.—(Special)—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market this morning the offerings were 650 cattle, 200 sheep and lambs, 100 hogs, 1500 calves. There was no important change in the condition of the market for cattle, except that the demand was very slow, as buyers generally had ample supplies on hand for their Easter requirements, and, altho the offerings were small, they were ample and the undertone to the market ruled about steady.

Choice steers sold at 5¾c to 6c; good, at 5¼c to 5½c; fair, at 4½c to 5c; medium, at 4c to 4¼c; good cows, at 5¼c to 5c; common cows, at 3½c to 3¾c; and bulls, at 3c to 5¼c per lb.

There was increased supply of sheep and lambs and especially of the latter, for which the demand was good and an active trade was done in this line, as butchers generally wanted them for the Easter trade. A few very choice spring lambs sold at $8 each, but the bulk of the sales were made at $4 to $6. Old sheep met with a fair sale at 4c per pound. Calves were a glut on the market and as most of them were common, prices ruled low. The choice stock sold at $10 each; good, at $6 to $8, and the lower grades at from $1.50 to $3.

Hogs were scarce and in good demand, sales of selected lots being made at $7.50 to $8 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, there were 300 cattle in addition to those left from Monday, and as the quality was good, there was some demand from exporters and over 100 head were bought at 5¾c to 5⅞c per lb., but outside of this the trade was slow. A few picked steers sold at 6c. The offerings of spring lambs were 200 head, for which the demand was active and sales were made at prices ranging from $3 to $6 each.

Calves were very plentiful and a good trade was done in them at prices from $2 to $10 each, as to size and quality. The demand for hogs was good, of which there were 100 head and prices ruled firm at $7.50 to $8 per cwt., for selected lots, weighed off cars.

Colorado Going Dry.

Denver, Col., April 8.—Prohibition won in most places in the municipal elections held in Colorado outside Denver Tuesday.

Colorado Springs went dry by 2,000 majority. That city has never had saloons, but the election will prevent drug stores from selling liquor in future. La Junta, Canon City and Castle Brook all voted against the saloons, while Cripple Creek and Colorado City remain wet.

Three Bartenders Summoned.

St. Catharines, April 8.—Jacob Roch, a German, who is on the "Indian" list, and who was arrested for drunkenness, comes up for trial today. He has named bartenders at the Grand Central, International and Grand Trunk Hotels as having sold him liquor, and informations have been laid against them. The three men in question deny positively the allegations.

Will Drill For Gas.

Douro, April 8.—Drilling for gas will shortly be in active operation on a block of land in north Monaghan and Smith townships. Drilling machinery is being shipped from the Niagara peninsula. Several tests will be made if gas is not struck when the first well is sunk.

Fatal Riot Over Taxes.

Monteleone, Calabria, April 8.—Four men were killed and many others wounded in a conflict in this town yesterday with the local Carabiners. The authorities are endeavoring to collect new taxes, which are exceedingly unpopular.

Mrs. A. Campbell and Daughter Remembered by the Officers and Scholars of Keene Presbyterian Sabbath School

Mrs A Campbell and daughter who have recently come to the city from Keene were agreeably surprised to know that their many friends in their late home had not forgotten them in their intending departure. Mrs Campbell and her daughter were identified with the Keene Presbyterian Sunday school and their efforts made towards the success of the school have been appreciated by the officers and scholars. They were presented with a handsome secretary and rocking chair which was accompanied by the following address:

To Mrs A. and Mrs A. M. Campbell,

Dear Sir,—Learning with regret that you are removing from Keene we beg of you to accept these gifts as a slight token of the appreciation in which you are held by the teachers, officers and scholars of Keene Presbyterian Sabbath School with which you have been so long connected and to which you have been a so helpful.

With best wishes for health and happiness in your new home, on behalf of the Sabbath School, we remain.

Sincerely yours,
Mrs B. Taylor.

SHERBROOKE EDITOR WAS PLEASED WITH PETERBORO

The Sherbrooke Record in an interesting article in the visit of the Press Association to Peterborough has the following:

Peterborough is a bustling, growing city with about 17,000 population. It is on the main line of the CPR, 78 miles east of Toronto, and the central point for several branches of the Grand Trunk. It has a good water power which is augmented by electric power brought in from outside points. It has a large number of small industries, and has an energetic class of business men, who are alive to pushing Peterborough ahead. Any town with this spirit behind it, is bound to grow.

For the past few years all manufacturing in Canada has fallen off, and Peterborough has felt the depression as well as other places, but is gradually improving and another advance in population is looked for.

It has three daily papers one morning and two evening and the two latter are both successful. Mr F H Dobbin of the Evening Review, is one of the leading small city newspaper men in Ontario.

In climate, Peterborough is something similar to Sherbrooke, though perhaps not quite as cold, there is good sleighing from December to the middle of March, with a delightful summer. The surrounding country is a good farming district and the visitor is impressed with the high class of horses that the farmers and others drive about the streets.

Peterborough does not lend itself to the beauty of location possessed by Sherbrooke, being much more level though the streets are wide and well laid out while the business blocks make a very creditable showing. A street railway provides service to different parts of the city.

The Mayor and Mrs Rush, together with the Aldermen and their ladies made the day a very pleasant one for the visitors.

WEATHER FOR REMAINDER OF MONTH AS HICKS FORETELLS

A regular storm period embracing the central days of both the Mars and the Mercury periods, covers the 11th to the 16th of April, being central with the moon's last quarter on the 13th. This is another period when the characteristics of the Mars influence will be present to a marked degree. Vicious thunderstorms, heavy rains with destructive hail in many localities will result at this time, if boreal influences have not phenomenally dominated storm and weather thus far in the Mars period. If snow, sleet and general cold have predominated, this period will bring unseasonably heavy snow, sleet and cold. If warm tropical conditions prevail at this time, many dangerous, tornadic storms will be natural and inevitable. Our "if" in this forecast need not confuse or perplex any intelligent reader, or observer; whatever happens will be of extreme order, and the general character of what is coming will be indicated long beforehand.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 18th, 19th and 20th, embracing moon in perigee and on the celestial equator on the 18th and new moon on the 19th. This period promises to be practically a prolongation of the preceding period, caused by the continued influences of Mercury Earth, Venus and Mars. The disturbances of this period will be characterized mainly by the same kind of phenomena. On and touching the 18th and 19th sudden high temperature with very threatening barometer, and thunder, rain and hail are most probable. Tornadoes are not improbable in many sections central and southward. A period of five days taking noon on the 19th as the centre, is a time for great seismic probability. A casual watch of the world telegraphic reports will confirm the truth of this, and other similar forecasts. Frosts and much cooler will follow this period.

A regular storm period is central on the 25th, covering the 23rd to 28th having moon at greatest declination north on the 24th, and at first quarter on the 27th. Another marked fall of the barometer will set in to the west at the entrance of this period followed closely by cloudiness, higher temperature and rain. Storm areas will grow wider and gain intensity as they reach central parts on their eastward march. From about the 25th to 28th storms will culminate from the Mississippi valley eastward to the Atlantic. High barometer, west winds, and possible snow squalls to the northward need not be a surprise on the rear tangents of these storm areas. Much cooler weather with frost will be quite natural during the last four or five nights of the month. Whatever peculiar intensity the Mars period may fasten upon the general phenomena in March and April, it will subside, in a great measure, by the end of April, leaving, it is hoped, a more placid possibility for the month of May. If the first half of April is not characterized by frequent and intense storms of some kind, seismic disturbances will be more severe and general, thus relieving the astronomic strain.

Home Course In Modern Agriculture

V.—Leguminous Crops and Rotations

By C. V. GREGORY,

Agricultural Division, Iowa State College

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

AMONG the important classes of crops grown on the farm are the legumes. The soil is to the farmer what a stock of goods is to a merchant. He cannot keep drawing on it forever without putting something back. Ordinary crops take plant food from the store in the soil. This must be replaced in some way. Legumes, on the other hand, leave the soil richer rather than poorer.

If you will examine the roots of a clover plant carefully you will notice numerous little swellings about the size of pin heads or a little larger. These are called nodules and are the home of certain bacteria. These bacteria are minute one celled plants, so small that thousands of them can hang on the point of a pin. We shall study some of the different classes of bacteria in detail later. The ones that live on the roots of legumes have the power of changing the nitrogen of the air into a form in which it can be used by the plants.

When clover stubble is plowed under the nitrogen which is contained in the stems and roots is added to the soil and can be used by the following crop. Where the soil is badly lacking in nitrogen and humus it sometimes pays to plow under the entire crop of clover.

The nitrogen which leguminous plants add to the soil is by no means the only benefit which comes from their use. Nearly all of them have a long taproot, which forces its way down into the soil far below the depth reached by the roots of ordinary crops. Alfalfa roots sometimes go down as deep as thirty feet or more. Much of the plant food used by the crop is brought up from this lower layer of soil, and some of it is left in the upper soil when the roots and stubble decay. The passage of the long roots through the soil also loosens it, and when they decay add to the humus supply. Thus the physical condition of the soil is so improved that the more tender roots of such crops as corn can penetrate it readily. Because of these facts corn, potatoes and almost any other crop will grow faster and give a considerably larger yield on a field which has grown a legume the year previous.

The principal legumes are alfalfa, clover, cowpeas and soy beans. Alfalfa is grown most successfully west of the Missouri river, although by no means confined entirely to that locality. It requires some care to get a good stand of alfalfa. It does best on a soil that is somewhat sandy and should never be sown on a soil where the water table is liable to stand for any length of time within three feet from the surface. "Wet feet" will kill alfalfa quicker than anything else.

As a general rule the best time to sow alfalfa is early in the fall. The ground should be put in the best possible tilth, and if manured before sowing the seed the chances of success are considerably increased. The seed should be sown at the rate of about fifteen pounds per acre. A light harrowing will cover it sufficiently. If the young plants weather the first winter successfully, the critical time is past. The advantages of alfalfa over clover are its higher feeding value and greater yields. It can often be cut three or four times in a season, with a yield of from one to two tons per cutting. Alfalfa must always be cut as soon as about one-tenth of the plants are in bloom; otherwise the vitality is weakened and the yield of the succeeding crops reduced.

There are several varieties of clover, of which medium red is the most widely known. Clover seed are usually sown with small grain in the spring. A surer way of obtaining a stand is to sow after the oats have been disked in and cover with a harrow; otherwise the seed are put in so deeply that many of the little plants never reach the surface.

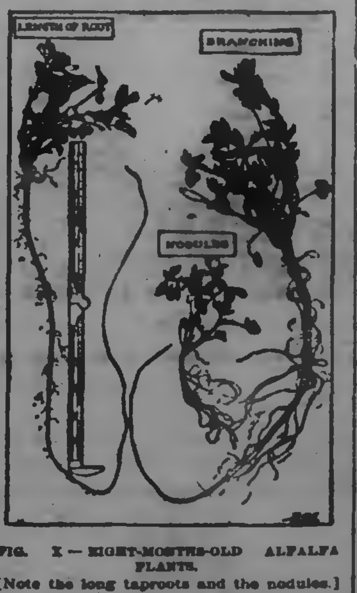

FIG. X.—EIGHT-MONTHS-OLD ALFALFA PLANTS.

[Note the long taproots and the nodules.]

One of the principal reasons for failure with clover is poor seed. A sample should always be tested before sowing. This can be easily done by putting a hundred seeds between a couple of moist blotters and keeping in a warm place for a few days. The number that germinate can be used as a guide as to the amount of seed to use per acre.

One reason why clover and alfalfa are not more popular with farmers is the difficulty of curing the hay. If it is left in the swath until dry enough to put in the mow, the leaves, which are the most valuable part, will become so brittle that many of them will be lost. A better way is to go over the field with a side delivery rake as soon as the leaves have wilted a little and throw the hay together in loose windrows. Handled in this way, it dries evenly, and the leaves will not fall off so easily. Hay cured in this way is also less liable to be dusty than when cured by direct exposure to the sun. Once in awhile, even with the best of care, some of the hay will be caught in a rain. A hard rain on clover or alfalfa hay washes out much of the nutriment which it contains. Such hay is hardly worth putting in the barn, but may be made good use of for bedding. In this way it is mixed with the manure, and the plant food which it contains is returned to the soil.

Cowpeas and soy beans are to the southern part of the United States what clover and alfalfa are to the northern sections. They are grown more as hay and forage than for the grain. These legumes are also used in some sections of the corn belt as catch crops. If sown on early fall plowing, they prevent the soil from washing and thus losing much of its available plant food. They may be pastured off later or disked up in the spring. They are often sown in cornfields during the last cultivation to keep the weeds down and to add nitrogen to the soil.

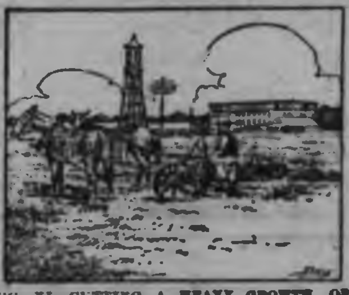

FIG. XI.—CUTTING A HEAVY GROWTH OF ALFALFA.

Because of the fact that other crops make so much better growth after the field has grown a legume for a year or so it is important that a crop of clover or some other legume be grown occasionally. If a plan of rotation is arranged so that the fields are regularly changed from one crop to another, so much the better. It has been found that when any crop is grown year after year on the same land the yields will grow less. The particular kinds of food that a certain crop requires grows scarcer, and weeds and insects become more numerous. If another kind of plant is substituted, other elements of plant food will be drawn upon, the insects will be starved out and the changed methods of soil treatment will discourage the weeds.

Plants vary greatly in their ability to get food from the soil. Such crops as rye and buckwheat are strong feeders and are able to obtain food from a soil on which more tender plants would starve. Some plants use much more humus than others. Crops like corn that are cultivated frequently deplete the humus supply rapidly, since the constant stirring of the soil hastens decay. Oats, on the other hand, take comparatively little humus from the soil.

These differences may be largely equalized by a consistent system of rotation. In planning rotations the aim should be to so distribute the crops that they will be best adapted to the condition in which the soil was left by the preceding crop. The starting point of every rotation should be clover or some other legume. The length of time that a field should be left in to such a crop depends largely on local conditions. In the east, where alfalfa seed is high and the difficulties of obtaining a stand great, it is usually wise not to plow up the crop for three or four years. Red clover lives only two years; hence if not plowed up the second year the land must be reseeded. In most cases two years is as long as the land should be left to any one crop.

Since clover is grown with small grain the first year, this means only one year in which it will be the sole crop. If the second crop of clover is to be plowed under, as is the case when the soil is considerably lacking in humus, this work had better be done in the fall, so that the mass of green clover may have time to decay before the following crop is planted. If the soil has been properly cared for, however, this green manuring will be unnecessary. As a general rule it is more profitable to feed the hay or grass to stock and return the manure to the land. In this way from 80 to 90 per cent as much plant food is added as would have been if the crop had been plowed under, and at the same time the stock has had the benefit of the extra feed. When only the stubble is to be turned under, the plowing may be done either in late fall or early spring.

WEDDING BELLS

ARMSTRONG—CUMMINGS.

A very quiet wedding took place at the Park street Baptist parsonage yesterday afternoon, when Mr. A. Edward Armstrong, of Smith township, was united in marriage to Miss Victoria Cummings, also of Smith, by Rev. H. C. Riddiford.

Mr. Wm. Graham of Smith

In the last number of the Farm and Dairy appears the following reference to a well-known Smithtown farmer. It is accompanied by an excellent likeness.

Mr. Graham is one of the best known farmers in Peterborough county. He was born in Scotland 78 years ago and settled in Peterborough when he was one and a half years old. He had nine brother and one sister are now, living, bother and one sister are now living. When his father settled in Peterborough county, he used to have to walk from Peterborough to Port Hope to make payments on his farm. This money was forwarded to Toronto. One year the man with whom he made the payments died before he remitted the money to Toronto. After that Mr. Graham's father used to walk all the way from Peterborough to Toronto, a distance of 76 miles, each winter to make the payments on his farm. Mr. Graham has done much to help the cause of Agriculture in his section. Some time ago he gave a building to his school section in which all public meetings were held. The building is managed by a committee who charge a nominal rent for hall and devote the revenue thus derived to keep it in repair.

DELEGATES TO MISSIONARY CONGRESS GAVE REPORTS

At Meetings Held at Knox Church and at St. Andrew's—Many Members of the Congregations Were in Attendance.

There was a fair sized audience at Knox church last night to hear the reports of the delegates to the Laymen's Missionary Conference. The unfavorable weather interfered to a great extent with the attendance and one of the speakers was ill and unable to be present. Nevertheless the meeting was very interesting and the speakers were listened to with close attention.

The first speaker was Mr R. F. McWilliams who gave an outline of the meetings of the congress, and emphasized the point that with the united efforts of all the members of the Protestant churches the evangelization of the world in this generation would be possible. This was the first generation that it was possible and this generation of Christians could only evangelize this generation of heathen. In regard to the home mission work the great importance of this country as a link between the two greatest Christian countries in the world was emphasized. This country could take the lead in uniting for good all the Anglo-Saxon races in their work of aiding the backward nations.

Rev. Mr Keith summarized the convention as a great congress of great men on a great issue in the work of a great Leader. He related the surprise of a large number of clergymen who found that when the convention opened there were no seats to be had because the full number of 2500 laymen had claimed their seats. He declared that from personal observations there was no comparison between the teachings of Christ and those of the heathen teachers and it behooved every Christian to do his utmost to carry the gospel to all the world.

AT ST. ANDREW'S

There was a very large number at the prayer meeting in St Andrew's church last night. The meeting was of a missionary nature and was a preliminary to the carrying out of the projects presented at the congress recently held in Toronto, and also to deepen the interest in the Women's Home Missionary work. Mrs. Potter presented an interesting report of the annual meeting of the Women's Home Mission Society held in Toronto last Wednesday and Thursday and referred particularly to the address of Rev George Arthur of Vegreville, Sask., which showed the very important work being done among the foreigners of the Northwest by the Presbyterian church. Mrs. Potter also referred to the very inspiring address by Sir Andrew Fraser, regarding the Zenana work in India and she spoke of the most instructive and encouraging words of Robert E. Speer. Dr Andrew Grant, for some years a missionary in Dawson City had brought home to the consciences of the women assembled the needy character of the work in the north land.

Mr. Richard Lees spoke of the Laymen's Congress, referring to it as the most unique assembly in the history of Christendom. He told of the many prominent men who addressed the congress as representatives of all the denominations, which showed the heartiness and unanimity with which the churches were taking hold of the great work. The address throughout was a very excellent portraiture of the spirit of the congress.

PROF. GRAHAM, OF GUELPH, GIVES INTERESTING ADDRESS TO POULTRY ASSOCIATION

Lecture Was Illustrated by a Large Number of Views—Large Audience Present at Council Chamber—Valuable Information for Those Interested in the Raising of Poultry.

The Council Chamber was well filled last evening by poultrymen of the city, and many others to listen to the lecture by Prof. Graham, of Guelph, on poultry and poultry raising. The lecture in itself was intensely interesting, and the fifty views that the speaker brought with him to illustrate his remarks were very entertaining and instructive, and the Poultry Association of this town are to be congratulated Prof. Graham for the address last night.

Mr. Jas. Baptie, President of the Association, occupied the chair, and introduced the speaker to those present.

Prof. Graham, in beginning his lecture, said he was pleased to come to Peterborough under the auspices of the Poultry Association. There was more interest taken in the poultry business than any other, and none was more interesting. Every kind of man was connected with poultry breeding or raising eggs, and there was 25 per cent. more eggs raised last year than in the two previous years. There were nearly 21,000,000 chickens on the farms in Ontario that was composed of more than twenty-five acres. What we needed in this country was quality in our eggs. As compared with other nations our eggs were smaller.

A picture was shown of a number of Wyandottes, and the speaker explained the different qualities necessary for a good bird. A lot of poultry people forget that in breeding a strong constitution is a necessity if first-class poultry is wanted. A number of slides demonstrating different kinds of houses for breeding purposes was shown. There was no use building houses that cost a lot of money, as the only essential things were good fresh air and light. All of the houses shown ere of only one ply lumber and the speaker explained that they were plenty warm enough. It was foolishness to try and do a lot of breeding in a small area, for in the majority of cases where this is done the result is poor chickens. A cornfield was a good place to let the chickens run, and some excellent views were shown of a large number of chickens in these places. Hens that are laying in the winter time should be let out to get fresh air and exercise, as it seems to keep their bodies from becoming too heavy.

Many views were shown of farms where there were not enough grounds and too many chickens, and he explained that the results were disastrous, both to breeders and poultry.

A number of dressed poultry was next shown, and the good points of the fowl were explained, as was also the bad points. As to incubators, which he thought were a necessity, the speaker did not think that a normal chicken could be raised by their use. Diarrhoea was a peculiar disease that many chickens contracted by the use of the incubator and the result was a big death rate, as it affected the lungs. No leading fanciers hatched their chickens in incubators for one reason, that it was too expensive in the amount of eggs needed.

A number of views were also shown where chickens were allowed to run in among the grain crops, and the speaker's experience was that they did not do much damage, although many farmers held the opinion that they were destructive. In conclusion some views were shown of poultry farms in different places which gave the audience a good idea as to the large extent of the poultry business.

After the speaker had finished with his address a number of questions were asked by some of the audience, and all were cheerfully answered by the lecturer, after which a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Prof. Graham for his very interesting address.

WAS SENTENCED TO THREE MONTHS IN THE COUNTY JAIL WITH HARD LABOR

Thomas Martin Stole Watch From Wellington Cannon While Complainant Who Was Lying on the Floor—Case Heard in Police Court This Morning.

Thomas Martin, who was remanded last Monday on a charge of stealing a watch from Wellington Cannon, was again before Magistrate Dumble this morning to answer for his crime.

The prisoner was not represented by counsel.

After hearing the evidence, the Magistrate sentenced the prisoner to three months in the county jail with hard labor.

The first witness called was Wellington Cannon, who said that he first met the prisoner at his boarding house on Edinburg St. He—Canon—had laid down for a rest and a few minutes later the prisoner had come and laid beside him. Soon after he noticed his watch was gone from his vest pocket and noticed the defendant leaving the house. Accompanied by Harry Raymond, who kept the boarding house, he went up to Mann's store and telephoned for the police who arrived shortly after. P. C. Meagher and Newhall searched for the prisoner but could not find him, but he was later arrested at the corner of Mark and Hunter streets, in Ashburnham. He saw P C Newhall secure the watch in Martin's pocket.

The watch was produced in court and Cannon identified it as well as the chain and charm which were attached to it. The watch was worth $4.50, the chain $2.50 and the charm seventy-five cents.

Harry Raymond remembered having asked the complainant if he had his watch as he was suspicious of the prisoner having known him to steal watches before. Complainant answered that it was gone and both of them went up to the corner of Edinburgh and George streets where they met the prisoner. He (Raymond) told Martin he had better give up the watch but he said he would not. Cannon went down to Mann's and telephoned for the police. He corroborated the statements made by Cannon as to how the watch was found.

P. C. Meagher testified to having seen the watch taken from Martin by P C Newhall. It was found in the prisoner's hip pocket who said he had only taken the watch for fear somebody else would steal it from Martin.

The accused, when asked if he had anything to say, stated that he did not remember anything about taking the watch as he had been drinking all day.

Chief Roszel read a letter that he had received from Campbellford, which stated that the prisoner had been in trouble there and did not have a very good character.

The Magistrate did not think that on account of his drinking the prisoner should be excused and he imposed the above sentence.

Many Bright Speeches at Enjoyable Function Held Last Night

The Poultry Association held a very enjoyable banquet at Jacobi's restaurant last night after the meeting at the City Council chambers. Over thirty were in attendance, and Mr. Jacobi provided an excellent "spread." A number of short speeches were made, the chairman being Mr. George Paxman. Among those who spoke were Prof. Graham, of Guelph; and Messrs. R. J. Kidd, Sengley, R. H. Leary, H. Lush, H. B. Cowan and Nixon, of Peterborough; Bennett, of North Monaghan, and Mr. Hill, of Hillside poultry yards, near Montreal. There were many references to the good work the local poultry association is doing.

PLAINTIFF GOT $750 FOR HUSBAND'S DEATH

Lindsay, April 8—The long drawn out litigation over the case McCallum vs The Ontario Accident Insurance Co., is at an end. The case was to come up at the assizes, but was settled out of court, the plaintiff securing seven hundred and fifty dollars.

The case was over the death of a Mr McCallum in the canal near the village of Kirkfield a year or so ago. He had a policy in the Ontario Accident Insurance Co. but this was contested on various grounds.

The body of the deceased was found in his buggy which was in a few feet of water in the canal. The company refused to pay the insurance on various grounds and the matter was carried from court to court and was adjourned several times.

LULU GLASER GIVEN HEARTY WELCOME HERE

The theatregoers of Peterborough extended a hearty welcome to Lulu Glaser last night on her first visit to this city. There was a large audience at the Grand Opera House and Miss Glaser was very much in the good graces of every one present from the first time shet ripped ontil the stage first time she tripped onto the stage, until the curtain was finally rung down. There is plenty of dash and music to "Mlle. Mischief" Miss Glaser's vehicle for this season and the audience enjoyed every bit of it. The costuming of the large and pretty chorus was much above the average and the high standard of the stage embellishments added greatly to the general effect. There is considerable "plot" to "Mlle Mischief" and the complications that follow the successful attempt of a young lady to spend twenty-four hours at the barracks as a soldier for a wager were of the most ludicrous nature. Miss Glaser took the part of Rosette, the young lady referred to above, and her acting was of the variety that won many curtain recalls—and Peterborough audiences are not exceedingly enthusiastic as a rule. Miss Glaser's support was excellent, Alexander Clark as "Meline" and Frank Farrington as "Sergeant Dubaer" being especially good. The chorus was the best seen here this season, the singing and dancing being excellent.

Some of the musical numbers in "Mlle Mischief" are decidedly tuneful and last night's audience could not get enough of them. "The Army Corps," "She knew a thing or two" "Sweetheart" and "Ladies Beware" were the song hits of the night.

THOSE EASTER HATS

Latest Styles in Hair Goods—A Boon to the Ladies

The most important requirement in regard to the new styles of headgear that are popular this season, is that the hair shall be very elaborately dressed, being curled, in puffs or braids, in fact any way to fill out under the brim. To most ladies this elaborate style seems out of the question. But it is not, for there are so many helps to be had in the way of puffs, etc., that it need not be a matter for worry any longer.

Miss E. Smith, 567 George street, has secured a fine assortment of hair goods from a leading American firm, which she is finding rapid sale for. There are three styles of puffs which are most popular, "The Merry Widow," "The Directoire Puffs," and the "String Puffs." These sell at from $2.50 up. Then there are the fringe pompadours, hair nets in all colors, switches in all shades, and many other lines.

All orders will be promptly filled, and the goods are sure to please. With the aid of some of these different lines, the wearing of the Easter hat will be an easy matter.

Call on Miss Smith before these goods are disposed of.

PEPPERMINT RIVER CANDY BRIDGES

"The Land of Nod" a famous extravaganza, will be presented at the Grand next Thursday, April 15th. It comes bearing a record of success which has rarely been equalled in this country, and from ample testimony at hand, this condition is thoroughly justified. The production is said to be massive and beautiful, and fashioned upon absolutely original lines in the matter of character creations. The whole performance after the introductory prologue in which the child "Bonnie" falls asleep and dreams, depicts an imaginative region called "The Land of Nod," with its castle of cards, its peppermint river and candy bridges its mushroom trees and curiously shaped hills and mountains in the background. The palace of the sandman which is astonishingly unique in its formation and furnishment, is another quaint and fantastic conception and the people who inhabit these strange places emphasize and preserve the odd characteristics of the author's general scheme. Distinguished among these curious personages are "The King and Queen of Hearts," and their son, "The Jack of Hearts" "The Weatherman," the Sandman," "April Fool," "The Welsh Rarebit" "The Telephone Man," and the "Alarm Clock." "The Man in the Moon and his wife "Rory, Bory Alice," come to visit the kingdom and "The Chorus Girl" full of laughter and animation and the current slang of Broadway bounds in among them greatly to their amusement. Scores of beautiful girls, clad in all manner of dainty, vari-colored costumes, enliven the scenes by their graceful dancing and rythmic evolutions, and in this general setting of splendor the spectator is amused and perfectly entertained by plenty of bright, wholesome and genuinely good comedy, and by a musical score which is said to be rich in melody and to contain an abundance of the popular swinging "catchy" kind of music which is quickly caught and remembered. The seat sale opens Tuesday morning for this unusual production.

GOOD PROGRESS AT CAMPBELLFORD

The Toronto News says;—The Campbellford, or No. 5 section of the Trent Valley Canal is nearing completion, according to Mr. A. B. Colville, a barrister of that town.

Mr. Colville told the News this morning that two dams and one lock are practically completed and work is still being pushed along the canal basin. If the Trent river is used, he observed, the work required to make it navigable would be comparatively very unimportant and the expense much lighter than if the engineers determine to shorten the route somewhat by digging in a straight line. From Campbellford to the lake is, of course, the easiest section to complete.

At Healey Falls above Campbellford town there is much work to be done and no new contracts have been let.

A LECTURE OF MUCH INTEREST

The lecture given on Monday night in the Mark street Methodist church by Rev. G. W. Henderson, was one of very high excellence. The title of the lecture, "Plodders, Loafers and Croakers," was indicative of the general plan of the reverend gentleman's discourse, and there was given such an apt mingling of anecdote, illustration and ethical teaching, that the interest of his audience was held closely to the conclusion, which to many, came all too soon.

Mr. Henderson will always receive a warm welcome to Mark church.

The musical numbers rendered by Miss Dawson, of the Dominion Bank staff, and the Orpheus male quartette were much appreciated.

The Ladies' Aid, under whose auspices the entertainment was given, are pleased with its success, and grateful to those who came to their assistance.

The death occured Tuesday of Chas. Henry Somerset Butler, sixth Earl of Carrick who served during the Fenian raid in Canada in 1870.

Indications are that There Will be a Big Supply and That the Prices Will Drop

The price asked for eggs last Saturday was 16 cents and 17 cents and the amount offered was not very great. But on this Saturday those wishing to secure this article for their Easter morning meal, may be pleased to know that there is every indication that there will be big supply offered by the farmers, and the prices that are expected to prevail will be 14 cents and 15 cents.

APPLEBY SAYS HE CAN LAST THE 20 MILES ALL RIGHT

Mistaken Impression That He is Only Middle Distance Man—Matched Race Between Longboat, St. Yves —Another Marathon Derby Planned.

A representative of the Review was in Toronto yesterday and made the rounds there among the distance men in the city — Simpson, Appleby and Longboat. The Onondaga and his wife arrived home the night before, accompanied by his friend and adviser "Tim" O'Rourke. He has not much to say about his defeat, and is confident that he can beat St. Yves if he is feeling right. Both Flanagan and O'Rourke have confidence in Longboat's ability to score a victory over the clever Frenchman at the Marathon distance. The general impression in Toronto seems to be that St. Yves is too much for Longboat, but Flanagan says he is ready to back him for $5,000 for a Marathon against the Marathon Derby winner. The pair will probably be matched in the near future.

"I still believe," said Flanagan, "that Tom Longboat is the greatest distance man that ever put on a shoe. He lost the Derby because he was a little short on training, and while I will admit St. Yves is a wonderful runner, there is no one, in my opinion, who can beat the Indian over the Marathon route."

ANOTHER DERBY.

There is talk of having another $10,000 Marathon Derby in New York in a short time—possibly a month or more—and if it is held a considerably larger field than the one that started in the last big race will compete.

Fred Simpson is getting ready to try for a share of the money, and Fred is confident that he can give any of them a big argument when it comes to travelling the long course.

Fred was seen by the Review at the Tremont House yesterday morning, and looks to be in excellent condition.

"I am going to do a lot of running this year," the Peterborough Indian stated, "and a little later on will have a race about every week. I am getting in fine trim for my twenty-mile race with Appleby on Good Friday, and the Englishman will have to extend himself to beat me. It won't be like my twelve-mile race with Shrubb. The public shouldn't judge me by my showing then. I was all broken up with a cold, but I will be trained to the minute when I meet Appleby, and will be able to travel at a record-breaking clip."

APPLEBY CAN LAST.

Fred Appleby, the little Briton, who has twice beaten Shrubb, said he wished to correct an impression that has got abroad concerning his ability to stay with a hot pace for twenty miles.

"The public seem to have an idea," he stated last night, "that I am a doubtful quality at any distance over fifteen miles, and figure that Simpson will have an advantage after that distance has been covered. This is a wrong impression.

"I think I could run forty miles if I had to, and I don't think this twenty-mile race will see me slowing up for the last five miles. I believe I could do the Marathon distance as conveniently as any of the long distance men."

FRED SIMPSON AND RED HAWK DO A FAST 4 MILES

Last night's Star says:

"Four miles in 20.40 is pretty good going."

That is what Fred Simpson, and Red Hawk, the Indians, did yesterday at Varsity track, according to the watch of James Bell, the manager of John D. Marsh the runner. Simpson, who was out training for the Appleby race, was joined by Red Hawk, and a ding-dong race resulted. They galloped the first mile in 4.50 and put in another mile in 4.51 before they got through with the frame. Hawk came home in front in a drive, Simpson letting go in the stretch for fear he would hurt himself for Friday's big race with Fred Appleby at Rosedale. Appleby will do five miles today at a smart pace.

Simpson says he has to come home in front this time or hike back to the farm. [illegible] Eck has him in fine fettle, and the indications are that a bumper crowd will turn out to see this 20 mile Marathon duel between Alf. Shrubb's conqueror and the Indian Marathoner, and the opening ball game. The reserved seats are going like hot cakes.

Appleby thinks the Indian has the best of it because he is at home and at his own favorite distance, but says that he will make him step inside 1.56 to win.

Now 1.56 is flying. It is better than St Yves time to the twenty mile mark in the Marathon Derby by two minutes.

The race should be a duel from the start. Appleby is a slow beginner and so is Simpson. They should go to the ten-mile mark in 58, and the battle should be fought out from there to the fifteen-mile mark. If Appleby is as good as he once was he will lead Simpson a quarter-mile or more at fifteen miles. Then it is a question of Simpson's stamina. Simpson is away the stronger runner. Appleby is a little fellow like Alfie Shrubb and those who fancy him should remember that both in the English Olympic Marathon trial and the Olympic race itself he quit at twenty miles. In the trial he was leading Duncan, Lord and Beal in 1.56 when he petered out. In the Olympic race he was 300 seconds behind Longboat when Longboat quit, and he quit three-quarters of a mile further on. Appleby has not any reputation as a stayer and that is just where those who are behind Simpson hope to get him.

It will be bone and sinew and stamina against fifteen mile speed, style, and courage wrapped in a fragile form.

Look out for the Indian

HARRIER CLUB WILL HAVE RUN

The newly-formed Victoria Harrier Club will meet on Good Friday morning at 10 o'clock, at the corner of Sherbrooke and Park streets and will leave 535 Sherbrooke street at 10.15, and take a short run in the country. All members are requested to turn out, and also any others who would like to join in the run.

BASEBALL

San Antonio has a pitcher who can perform one feat that no other baseball player has ever shown. So far as known, this twirler, by name of Abeles, is the only professional pitcher in the world who can take a regulation baseball and hide it in his hand—that is to say, can close his hand over the ball so that no part of it is visible.

This may not seem to be such a feat, when one reads about it, but any person who will take a regulation baseball and close his hand about it will realise how much farther he comes from compeltely covering the ball then he thought would be the case. The circumference of a baseball that follows the specifications of the league regulations is a trifle more than nine inches, there being an allowance for variance from nine and one-quarter inches.

Abeles takes a Reach or a Spalding ball, and spans it with thumb and either the middle or the ring finger of his left hand—he is a southpaw pitcher—without any great difficulty. Or with thumb and little finger he can come within a quarter of an inch of doing the trick.

The T.A.S. Athletic Club will meet to-night to consider the question of putting a ball team in the Midland League if it is formed. Other matters of interest will also be considered.

BOWLING

BY DEFAULT

The Fresh Air Club claim last night's games in the novice league at the [illegible] alleys from the Kids, by default. The latter did not show up.

SPORTING TALK

Appleby, the English runner, is built somewhat on the same plan as Shrubb. He is small, carries himself erect and looks like a man who took perfect care of himself. He is a modest chap to talk to and when asked if he would defeat Simpson deferred from expressing a definite opinion.

DEPARTING BALL PLAYER HONORED LAST EVENING

"Jerry" Edmunds Was Presented With a Suit Case by a Number of His Friends—Regret Expressed at His Departure.

"Jerry" Edmunds was agreeably surprised last evening when a number of his friends gathered at the Windsor hotel to say good-bye and to convince him that his departure from town will be regretted by them. The company which numbered about twenty, sat down to a spread in the dining room of the hotel, where a pleasant evening was spent by all. Short speeches and songs figured prominently in the programme and all expressed regret at Mr Edmunds' departure but wished him success in his future home in Winnipeg.

The feature of the evening was the presentation of a suit case to the departing ball player, accompanied by an address, by Mr R M Glover, who made a few fitting remarks as to Mr. Edmunds' work in connection with the Midland League team of the city.

Mr. Edmunds thanked his friends for their kindness and said he appreciated it very much. He had been well pleased with the treatment accorded him in Peterborough and assured them that the suit case they had given him would remind him of his pleasant associations during his stay in town

WHERE MEMBERS OF PETES. WILL PLAY THIS SEASON

The champion Peterborough ball team of last year will be pretty widely scattered this season. Every member of the team is there with the quality when it comes to ball play and have been much in demand by different clubs.

Clements and Murphy are with Edmonton. The former is on the pitching staff and "Connie" will watch for the drives to left garden. Jerry Edmunds leaves to-day for Winnipeg, and Dave Lawson will be on the Cobalt nine in the Northern League. "Fritz." O'Brien will figure on the Charlotte, N.Y., team.

Three other members of the team have been forwarded contracts offering them lucrative berths.

QUILTING PARTY.

This Old Fashioned Amusement Affords Lots of Fun.

Old fashioned parties always mean a vast deal of fun and enjoyment, and, as a rule, they are more successful than the ordinary affair of today. Every one appreciates a change from cards and similar forms of amusement, and for this reason an old fashioned quilting party will have more than its share of success. The hostess must try to borrow an old quilting frame if she has not one herself, and on this the quilts must be stretched ready for tying when the guests arrive. After the quilts have been tied refreshments must be served in the dining room. The table should be covered with a snowy cloth that has been folded and refolded and pressed hard, so that when it is placed on the table the small squares will show up distinctly to simulate an old fashioned quilt design. In the center of the table have a square of delicate lavender material, the edges of which have been neatly hemmed. Decorate this centerpiece in each corner with a tiny square of dainty flowered chintz. Use place doilies of the same lavender material and decorate each doily with a small diamond patchwork design of chintz. Use silver or glass candlesticks, and shade them with lavender shades crowned with a little wreath of pale blue forgetmenots. If you procure the right shade of lavender you will find that the blue and lavender will blend exquisitely. At every corner have little lavender sprigs and forgetmenots. Pin guest cards to the bouquets with long quilting needles threaded with lavender ribbon, and write on the cards some bit of quaint stilted sentiment.

Cardinal No Society Gossip.

Dexterous in debate, Cardinal Gibbons administered a delicate rebuke to a social leader who entertained him at dinner in Baltimore a few evenings ago. This woman was intensely eager to know inner facts about the Abruzzi-Elkins affair, and she thought the cardinal might tell if questioned adroitly. At the dinner she brought the subject around gracefully and enlivened the company with details of that particular international near match. The cardinal seemed frankly interested and even asked a few questions. The hostess was delighted. She told other details and then trained her guns on the prelate. As every one admitted the two young persons were in love, what did the cardinal think was the reason of the rupture? That was her question. The cardinal has a winning smile. He said softly: "You must realise how many burdens my position entails and what responsibility rests on me. Surely you do not wish to add to them by making me a society reporter?"

The Guest Room.

The very simplest guest room that any one could imagine! The floor had on it a gray rag carpet. The walls were covered with a plain gray paper, and a black molding joined them to the ceiling. The narrow, old fashioned woodwork of window and doorsills made streaks of black, in keeping with the molding above. The hangings were gray Japanese crape.

"Many tones of quiet grays," as said the poet, but they served to throw into relief odd bits of blue and yellow Moorish pottery and a row of blue books. The books were the point of the whole gray scheme of things, for the hostess had covered them all in blue holland linen and had titled the backs on small yellow pasters.

HOUSEKEEPING HINTS.

For a delicious salad to serve with roast lamb sprinkle orange pulp with minced mint leaves, dress with lemon juice and sugar and serve on lettuce leaves.

Turnips, carrots, onions and cabbage should be boiled in a great deal of water, taken off immediately and drained. Too little water will turn them dark, and overcooking destroys the taste.

To polish tinware use the soft white cinders found in coal ashes. Crush them to a fine powder and rub on the tin with a piece of flannel. The powder must be so fine that it will polish without scratching.

A small crack or hole in the inside of a range can be filled with a mixture of equal parts of wood ashes and common salt moistened with water. The filling will harden and last for a long time.

If you want to keep your desserts on the top of the ice place a newspaper over the ice and your dishes never slip off or tip over.

THE "BILLY POSSUM" FAD.

Mascot of Taft Administration Manufactured by Society Woman.

The "Billy Possum" will become the petted darling of young America, the fad of the modish women and the mascot of the Taft administration. He has already been molded by the toy designer. Material the color and texture of his woolly coat is being copied, and a toy factory has hundreds of hands employed in building him in three sizes—life size, medium size and four inches long.

And, best of all, the Georgia Billy Possum company has been organised, the organizer, president and principal stockholder being a well known Georgia beauty and society woman, Mrs. Susie W. Algood (Mrs. De Forrest Algood).

That the leisure woman must have something to occupy her more than the pastimes of the drawing room is being expressed in the practical turn prominent women are giving their talents.

In gay Gotham they have studios for architectural and interior designing, offices in which they do systematic welfare work along various lines. One well known society woman has a brass foundry in which she manufactures wonderfully pretty things in brass and has made enough money out of that venture to purchase a celery farm in Honda.

And now comes Georgia's energetic woman as the president of a well organised company for the manufacture and sale of the Teddy bear's successor, the Billy Possum, the little grinning creature whom Joel Chandler Harris and Irwin Russell immortalised in tale and verse even before he became the piece de resistance of the banquet given by Atlanta's chamber of commerce to the hero of the hour, President Taft.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WINS POINT IN PENNSYLVANINA

Harrisburg, Pa.—The committee on public health and sanitation of the Senate of Pennsylvania has amended the Hearst medical bill, so as to exempt Christian Science practitioners from its requirements. The committee adopted the amendment presented by former Lieut-Governor Col. Louis A Watres, as follows;

"Provided, further, that the provisions of this act shall not apply to those who merely practise the religious tenets of their church without pretending a knowledge of medicine or surgery provided the quarantine regulations relating to contagious diseases are not infringed upon."

At the hearing before the committee, on Tuesday, Colonel Watres spoke for the Christian Scientists.

He said in part;

"I have been asked to speak for that great and growing minority in this country, the Christian Scientists. They are in full accord with a bill to properly regulate the practice of medicine and surgery in Pennsylvania. We believe in law and comply with the law, and we therefore are in favor of any act which will make the law more effective for the general good. But any bill which seeks to take from us a sacred right meets with our vigorous protest.

"If any one wants an allopathic physician he should have one, or if he wants a [illegible], a water path or any other sort of "path". But let nobody try to deprive me of the right to have what I want.

"The only right this General Assembly has, is the right given them by the police powers of the state. You cannot, no matter how you phrase it, take from the humblest citizen inherent rights, God-given rights, rights upon which this commonwealth is founded.

"God bless the physicians. They are an unselfish body of men. They are entitled to what they want, but do not forget that I am entitled to what I want. Way back there were mandates given from Heaven. The mandates concerning the healing of the sick are sacred mandates, and I do not believe the charge that there can be any political "orders" to interfere in the councils of the sick chamber.

"The preamble to this bill reads that the public health is being endangered by incompetent physicians and surgeons. We do not dispute that—Laughter. There are quacks the world over, and if the dead could rise and speak what an accounting there would be.

"The title of the bil speaks of "other healing arts" in addition to medicine and surgery. So they admit that there are other healing acts besides medicine. I believe so, too. And I entitled to that belief? If so, then I am entitled to protection in my belief.

"If there are other healing arts besides medicine, why does not his bill protect them. As far as I have been able to discover it protects only the allopathic physicians. (Applause.)

"Prayer always has been and always will be a 'healing art.' Fourteen states have accepted in substance the provision which we ask you to incorporate into this bil today, to the effect that the practise of the religious tenets of a church without a pretense of knowledge of medicine or surgery is not the practise of medicine or surgery and should not be subject to the regulations imposed on medicine and surgery for the protection fo the public from 'incompetent physicians and surgeons.'

"Shall Pennsylvania, the birthplace of religious liberty fall behind California, Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, New Hampshire, New York, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Massachusetts and other states in saying that those who depend upon Almighty God are not a menace to the general welfare?

"You will have to revise the Common Prayer Book if you are to enforce such a law as this. There is not a church in the country where every Sunday there are not prayers offered for the sick. And why pray if the prayer is not expected to be effective? Are clergymen to be fined and sent to gaol for asking God to heal their sick parishioners? Is the coal miner who opns his 'first-aid' kit and applies its remedies to a sick or injured comrade to be clapped into prison for so doing? Yet that is what this bill proposes. Shall the mother who prays for the recovery of her child be adjudged a criminal for so doing?

"The people are not asking for this bill. Who is? The allopathic physicians."

After citing numerous illustrations of the progressive inventions and discoveries in the material world, Colonel Watres continued;—

"Do you gentlemen mean to say that progress has been confined to physics? No indeed. Read your Bibles in the light of the interpretation that is to-day available to all and see what great things are possible in the realm of metaphysics.

"We ask you to amend this bill so that it shall not affect anybody in the worship of God according to conscience."

Colonel Watres was frequently applauded by the crowd that filled the Senate chamber.

IMPROVED CULINARY VESSEL.

No Danger of Scalding the Hands When Draining Off Hot Water.

In an improved cooking utensil patented by an Illinois man the cook and housewife using it will be saved many a burn or scalding of the hands. In draining the boiling water from the ordinary utensil used to cook vegetables, etc., burning of the hands is almost unavoidable. The utensil shown here is adapted in a novel and thoroughly effective manner to retain the cover in position when tilted for draining the contents, so that there is no danger of injury to the user. The saucepan is of the ordinary type, with the usual handle and a detachable cover. On the rim are three spring clips which project over the edge and hold the cover in position. In the cover are a number of drainage openings, which are normally covered by a hinged lid or closure. The latter while sealing the opening will readily yield to steam pressure and thereby permit the escape of steam. As the utensil is tilted the hinged cover will naturally fall away from the cover, allowing the water to drain out through the openings.

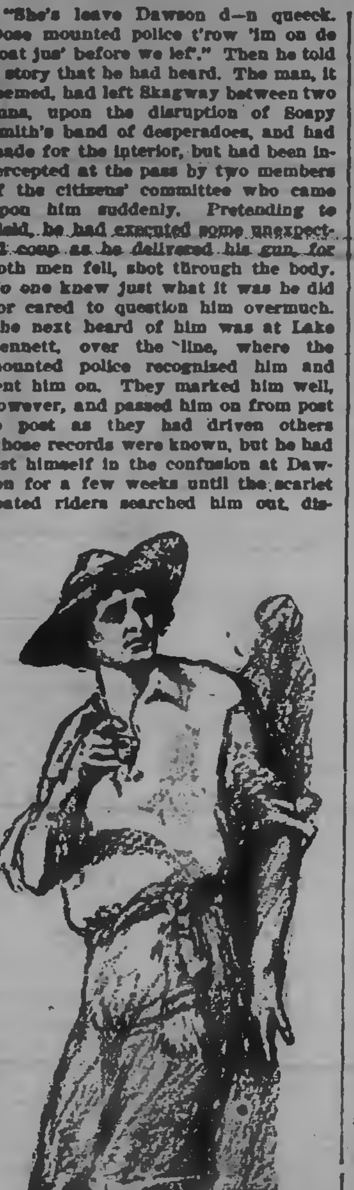
"She's leave Dawson d—n queeck. Dose mounted police t'row 'im on de boat jus' before we lef'." Then he told a story that he had heard. The man, it seemed, had left Skagway between two suns, upon the disruption of Soapy Smith's band of desperadoes, and had made for the interior, but had been intercepted at the pass by two members of the citizens' committee who came upon him suddenly. Pretending to yield, he had executed some unexpected coup as he delivered his gun, for both men fell, shot through the body. No one knew just what it was he did nor cared to question him overmuch. The next heard of him was at Lake Bennett, over the line, where the mounted police recognized him and sent him on. They marked him well, however, and passed him on from post to post as they had driven others whose records were known, but he had lost himself in the confusion at Dawson for a few weeks until the scarlet coated riders searched him out, disarmed him and forced him sullenly aboard this steamer.



"Napoleon Doret—our Poleon!"

Old Man Gale cared little for this, for he had spent his life among such men, but as he watched the fellow a scheme outlined itself in his head. Evidently the man dared not go farther down the river, for there was nothing save Indian camps and a mission or two this side of St. Michael's, and at that point there were a court and many soldiers, where one was liable to meet the penalty of past misdeeds; hence he was probably resolved to stop here, and, judging by his record, he was a man of unsettled convictions.

The trader stepped to the door and, seeing Burrell on the deck of the steamer, went down toward him. It was a long chance, but the stakes were big and worth the risk. He had thought much during the night previous—in fact, for many hours—and the morning had found him still undecided, wherefore he took this course.

"Necia tells me that you aim to keep law and order here," he began abruptly, having drawn the young man aside.

"Those are my instructions," said Burrell, "but they are so vague"—

"Well, this camp is bigger than it was an hour ago, and it ain't improved any in the growth. Yonder goes the new citizen." He pointed to the stranger, who had returned to the steamer for his baggage and was descending the gangplank beneath them, a valise in each hand. "He's a thief and a murderer, and we don't went him here. Now, it's up to you."

"I don't understand," said the lieutenant, whereupon the trader told him Doret's tale. "You and your men were sent here to keep things peaceable," he concluded, "and I reckon when a man is too tough for the Canuck police he is tough enough for you to tackle. There ain't a lock and key in the camp, and we ain't had a killing or a stealing in ten years. We'd like to keep it that way."

"Well, you see, I know nothing of that shooting affray, so I doubt if my authority would permit me to interfere," the soldier mused, half to himself.

"I allowed you were to use your own judgment," said the elder man.

"So I am, I suppose. There is one chance, Mr. Gale. If you'll back me up I'll send him on down to St. Michael's. That is the most I can do."

The lieutenant outlined his plan, and as he went on the trader nodded approval.

The young man gazed back at him so squarely, his eyes were so pleasant and friendly, his whole person breathed such straight up honesty and freshness that shame arose in the old man, and he had hard shift to keep his glance from wavering. Without forethought he answered impulsively:

"He's desperate and he's dangerous. I sold him a 45 just now." He was about to tell him where the man wore it and to add a word concerning his dexterity with the gun when the very fearless deliberation of the youth deterred him. On second thought Gale yielded to an impulse to wait and see how Meade Burrell would act under fire. If the soldier emerged scathless it would give him a line on his character. If he did not—well, that would be even better.

The crowd was coming back to the steamer, which had discharged her few bundles of freight, and there was no one inside the log post as they entered except Doret and the stranger, who had deposited his baggage at the rear and was talking with the Frenchman at the bar. At sight of the lieutenant he became silent and turned carelessly, although with a distrustful stare. Burrell wasted no time.

"Are you going to locate here?" he began.

"Yes."

"I notice you go skeleton rigged," the soldier continued, indicating the man's baggage. "Pretty small outfit for a miner, isn't it?"

"It's plenty for me."

"Have you enough money to buy your season's grub?"

"I guess that's my business."

"My orders are to see that all newcomers either have an outfit or are able to buy one," said Burrell. "Those that are not equipped properly are to be sent down river to St. Michael's, where there is plenty of everything and where they will be taken care of by the government. Mr. Gale has only sufficient provisions to winter the men already in this district."

"I can take care of myself," said the man angrily, "whether I'm broke or not, and I don't want any of your interference." He shot a quick glance at Poleon Doret, but the Frenchman's face was like wood, and his hand still held the neck of the whisky bottle he had set out for the stranger.

"Come," said the officer peremptorily, "I have heard all about you, and you are not the kind of citizen we want here, but if you have enough money for an outfit I can't send you away. If you haven't"—

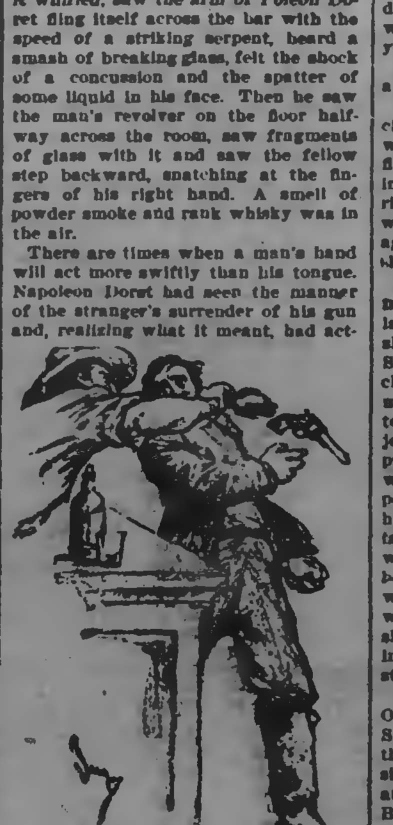
"I'm broke," said the man, but at the note in his voice Poleon Doret's muscles tightened, and Burrell, who also read a sinister message in the tone, slid his heavy service revolver from its holster beneath his coat.

"Give me your gun," he said. "I'll unload it and give it back to you at the gangplank."

"All right; you've got the upper hand," said the man through lips that had gone white. Drawing his weapon from beneath his vest, he presented it to the officer, butt foremost, hammer underneath. The cylinder reposed naturally in the palm of his hand, and the tip of his forefinger was thrust through the trigger guard.

Burrell lowered the barrel of his revolver and put out his left hand for the other's weapon. Suddenly the man's wrist jerked, the soldier saw a blue flicker of sunlight on the steel as it whirled, saw the arm of Poleon Doret fling itself across the bar with the speed of a striking serpent, heard a smash of breaking glass, felt the shock of a concussion and the spatter of some liquid in his face. Then he saw the man's revolver on the floor halfway across the room, saw fragments of glass with it and saw the fellow step backward, snatching at the fingers of his right hand. A smell of powder smoke and rank whisky was in the air.

There are times when a man's hand will act more swiftly than his tongue. Napoleon Doret had seen the manner of the stranger's surrender of his gun and, realizing what it meant, had acted. At the very instant of the fellow's treachery Doret struck with his bottle just in time to knock the weapon from his hand, but not in time to prevent its discharge. The bullet was lodged in the wall a foot from where Gale stood. Aiming a sweeping downward blow with his Colt, Burrell clipped the Skagway man just above the ear, and he reeled. Then as he fell the officer struck wickedly again at his opponent's skull, but Doret seized him by the arm.



The arm of Poleon Doret flung itself across the bar.

"Ba gar, don't kill 'im twice!"

Burrell wrenched his arm free and turned on Doret a face that remained long in the Frenchman's memory, a face suffused with fury and convulsed like that of a sprinter at the finish of a race. The two men stared at each other over the fallen figure for a brief moment until the soldier gained mastery of himself and sheathed his weapon, when Poleon smiled.

"I spoil' a quart of good w'iskee on you. Dat's wort' five dollar."

The lieutenant wiped the liquor from his face.

"Quick work, Doret," he said. "I owe you one."

Gale's face was hidden as he bent over the prostrate man, fingering a long and ragged cut which laid the fellow's scalp open from back of the ear to the temple, but he mumbled something unintelligible.

"Is he hurt badly?"

"No; you chipped him too low," said the trader. "I told you he was bad."

They revived the man, then bound up his injury hastily, and as the steamer cast off they led him to the bank and passed his gripsacks to a roustabout. He said no word as he walked unsteadily up the plank, but turned and stared malignantly at them from the deck. Then as the craft swung outward into the stream he grinned through the trickle of blood that stole down from beneath his wide hat and cried:

"I'd like to introduce myself, for I'm coming back to winter with you, lieutenant! My name is Runnion." And until the steamer was bidden behind the bend below they saw him standing there gazing back at them fixedly.

As Burrell left the two men at the store he gave his hand frankly to the French Canadian and said, while his cheeks flushed:

"I want to thank you for saving me from my own awkwardness."

Doret became even more embarrassed than the lieutenant at this show of gratitude and grunted churlishly. But when the young man had gone he turned to Gale, who had watched them silently, and said:

"He's a nice young feller, ole man. Sapre! W'en he's mad his eye got so red lak my ondershirt."

But the trader made no reply.

CHAPTER III.

WITHOUT BENEFIT OF CLERGY.

When the steamer had gone Napoleon Doret went to look for Necia and found her playing with the younger Gales, who reveled in the gifts he had brought. Never had there been such gorgeous presents for little folks.

The elder girl laughed gladly as Poleon entered, though her eyes were wet with the pity of it.

"You seem to bring sunshine wherever you go," she said. "They have never had things to play with like other children, and it makes me cry to watch them."

"Ho, ho," he chuckled, "dis ain' no time for cryin', ba gosh! I guess you don' have so much present w'en you was li'l' gal you'se'f, w'at? Mebbe you t'ink I forget you. Waal, I didn't."

He began to undo the fastenings of a parcel he carried in his arms.

"Don't you dare open it!" cried Necia. "Why, that's half the fun." She was a child herself now, her face flushed and her hands a-tremble. Taking the package to the table, she hurriedly untied the knots while he stood watching her, his teeth showing white against his dark face and his eyes half shut as if dazzled by the sight of her.

"Oh, why didn't you tie more knots in it?" she breathed as she undid the last, and then, opening the wrappings slowly, she gasped in astonishment. She shook it out gently, reverently, a clinging black lace gown of Paris make. Next she opened a box and took from it a picture hat with long jet plumes, which she stroked and pressed fondly against her face. There were other garments also—a silken petticoat, silk stockings and a pair of high heeled shoes to match, with certain other delicate and dainty things which she modestly forbore to inspect before the Frenchman, who said no word, but only gazed at her, and for whom she had no eyes as yet. Finally she laid her presents aside and, turning to him, said in a hushed, awe stricken voice:

"It's all there, everything complete! Oh, Poleon—you dear, dear Poleon!" She took his two big hands by the thumbs, as had been her custom ever since she was a child, and looked up at him, her eyes wet with emotion. But she could not keep away from the dress for long and returned to feast her eyes upon it.

"You lak it, eh?" pressed Poleon, hungry for more demonstrative expression.

"Oh-h!" she sighed. "Where on earth did you get it? Why, it must have cost a fortune!"

"Wan night I gamble in beeg saloon. Yes, sir! I gamble good dat night too. For w'ile I play roulette, den I dance, den I play some more, an' by an' by I see a new dance gal. She's Franche gal, from Montreal. Dat's de one I tol' you 'bout. Ba gar, she's swall dress' too. She's name' Marie Bourgette."

"Oh, I've heard about her," said Necia. "She owns a claim on Bonanza creek."

"Sure, she's frien's wit' Charlie McCormack, dat riche feller, but I don' know it dis tam', so I ask her for dance wit' me. Den we drink a bottle of champagne—twenty dollar.

"'Mamselle,' I say, 'how much you charge for sell me dat dress?'

"'For w'y shall I sell 'im?' she say. 'I don' wear 'im before till tonight, an' I don' get no more dress lak dis for t'ousan' dollar.'"

Necia exclaimed excitedly.

"'For w'y you sell 'im?' I say. 'Biccause I'll tak' 'im down to Flambeau for Necia Gale, w'at never had no dress lak dat in all her life.' Waal, sir, dat Marie Bourgette she's hear of you before, an' your dad, too—mos' all dose Cheechakos know 'bout Old Man Gale—so she say:

"'W'at lookin' kind of gal is dis Necia?' An' I tell her all 'bout you. W'en I'm t'rough she say:

"'But maybe your little frien' is more bigger as I am. Maybe de dress won't fit.'

"'Ha, you don' know me, mamselle!' I say. 'I can guess de weight of a caribou to five poun'. She'll be same size la'kin' one inch roun' de wais'.'

"'Poleon Doret,' she say, 'you ain' no Franchemans to talk lak dat. Look here! I can sell dis dress for t'ousan' dollar tonight, or I can trade 'im for gol' mine on El Dorado creek to some dose Swede w'at want to catch a gal, but I'm goin' sell 'im to you for t'ree hondred dollar, jus' w'at I pay for 'im. You wait here till I come back.'

"'No, no, Mamselle Marie, I'll go 'long, too, for so you don' change your min',' I say. An' I stan' outside her door till she pass me de whole works.

"'Don't forget de little shoes,' I say, an' dat's how it come."

"And you paid $300 for it!" Necia said, aghast. The Canadian shrugged.

"Only for de good heart of Marie Bourgette I pay wan t'ousan'," said he. "I mak' seven hondred dollar clean profit."

"It was very nice of both of you, but—I can't wear it. I've never seen a dress like it except in pictures, and I couldn't"— She saw his face fall and said impulsively:

"I'll wear it once anyhow, Poleon, just for you. Go away quick now and let me put it on."

Can't Share In Reward.

Guelph, April 8.—An action was heard in the County Court before Judge Chadwick as the result of a dispute over the division of the reward of $500 offered for the capture of Sergt. Moir, the London murderer, who was finally taken at Arthur. Constable Coughlin claimed a share of the reward from P. J. Farrell and W. E. Draper, but the action was dismissed, his honor stating that in making the arrest Constable Coughlin had merely performed the duty required of him by the law.

Dreadnoughts For Austria.

London, April 8.—Austria has decided to build three Dreadnoughts immediately, according to a report from Berlin. The naval estimates were $12,000,000 last year, but will be over $22,000,000 this year. Germany and Austria are so practically allied that these new ships, it is said, will practically be auxiliaries to the German navy, and German experts say Britain now will be compelled to build more than eight Dreadnoughts.

Killed Walking on Track.

Brantford, April 8.—John Smooley, a vagrant, who was given a night's lodging at the police station Tuesday night, was struck and instantly killed by an eastbound train between Brantford and Paris at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. Smooley walked right into the engine, and his body was badly mangled. He had said his home was in Ottawa.

Ear Cut Off With Axe.

Belleville, April 8.—William Babcock is under arrest charged with assault on Joseph Bolster. The latter is quite badly injured and it is alleged that in a drunken frenzy Babcock struck him with an axe, cutting one of his ears nearly off. He is in the hospital.

What Thos McDonald Says of Dodd's Kidney Pills

He Had Lame Back, Kidney Disease and Heart Flutterings, and one Box Cured Him.

Shubenacadie, Hants County, N.S., April 7—Special — "I suffered from lame back, kidney disease and heart flutterings caused by cold and a strain, for three years. I was looking over some papers and saw Dodd's Kidney Pills advertised and I bought one box which completely cured me. Dodd's Kidney Pills are wonderful."

That is the simple, straightforward statement of Mr Thomas McDonald, a well known resident of this place. It shows how quickly Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Kidney Disease when taken in its earliest stages. Lame back is one of the first symptoms of sick kidneys. Heart flutterings is another symptom. It is caused by blood which the sick kidneys have failed to strain the impurities, increasing the work of the heart. Dodd's Kidney Pills make the sick kidneys well, the lame back disappears, the blood is purified, the heart is relieved and the flutterings stop.

If the case is one of long standing, it may take longer to cure it but Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to do it.

During a heavy electrical rain, wind and hailstorm throughout Pittsburg and vicinity yesterday, John Soles, 35 years old, a wealthy coal operator, of Oakhill, near there, was struck by lightning and instantly killed.

BRAKESMAN FOUND GUITY OF CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE

Tried at Cobourg Assizes for Deaths in Sandbank Wreck—Admits He Opened Switch But Denies Hearing Orders Read

Cobourg, Ont., April 7.—After an hour and a half deliberation the jury in the case of Charles J. D. Reade, of West Toronto, the C.P.R. brakesman, on trial at the assizes here for criminal negligence and wilful neglect of duty thereby causing the fatal wreck at Sandbank on Nov. 23rd last, this evening brought in a verdict of guilty with a recommendation to mercy. Judge Britrecommendation to mercy. Judge Britten deferred sentence until tomorrow.

Reade was brakesman on a freight train, No. 54, running out of Toronto that night. The crew had been given orders to take the siding at Sandbank and to wait there for a passenger and double-header extra freight to pass. Reade opened the switch after the passenger train went through, with the result that a freight coming from the east crashed into his freight and Edward Findlay, engineer on No. 55; Fireman William Conroy and Brakeman Sweet were killed.

Conductor E. C. Knapp, Reade's superior, testified that after the wreck he asked Reade; "What have you done; did you open the switch?" To which Reade replied; "Yes, I thought we would follow on the passenger train's block."

Engineer Hazenfeldt said that he read the order aloud in his engine and Reade was present. He also swore that he told Reade and his fireman that they were waiting for 55, but could not swear that Reade heard him. He would not deny that after the wreck Reade said to him; "That's what comes of not reading the order to me."

Reade took the stand in his own defence. He swore that he had not heard the order read at Myrtle and that when he asked the engineer at Burketon what the orders were, he replied; "The same old thing; we take the siding at Sandbank for No. 6." He admitted opening the switch, but knew nothing of train No. 55.

$20 PRIZE FOR THIS EXAMINATION

It should have read $20 instead of $15.

DESERTER WILL BE TAKEN BACK

Sergt. Merrix arrived in town this morning from Toronto to take charge of George Cooper, who was apprehended by the local authorities and figured in the police court last Monday.

Cooper is the man who deserted from the Royal Canadian Dragoons in Toronto recently and came to Peterborough, where he fell in to the hands of the police.

The accused, who was a member of Sergt. Merrix' company, will be taken back to Toronto this evening on the 4.38 train, where he will be court-martialled. Deserting is a serious offence and likely as not Cooper will be called upon to spend a considerable term of imprisonment.

GOOD JOKE ON LOCAL CURLER

A good joke is going the rounds, the victim being one of the prominent members of the curling club. The story goes that a few days before the curling season closed he was returning home from the market with a basket of eggs which he had selected with great care. Passing the curling rink on his homeward tramp he dropped in to see what was going on. Becoming deeply absorbed in a game that was being played he sat down his basket of eggs and did not notice a couple of practical jokers taking some of the hen fruit from the basket. A number of the eggs were taken downstairs and boiled hard in some water on the furnace. When they had been thoroughly cooked they were replaced in the basket, the owner being blissfully ignorant of what was going on.

It is said that when the gentleman's wife went to use the eggs in making a cake she was completely at a loss to know what was wrong. Her opinion of her husband's powers as a judge of eggs has taken a drop.

A CHIMNEY FIRE AT MANN'S MILL

Last evening a chimney fire broke out at Mann's planing mill but no damage was done. The alarm was sent in from box 42.

The heavy wind last night disconnected the wire between Ashburnham and the fire hall. The wire was fixed up today.

SPRINGVILLE MEN ARE IN EARNEST

Despite the disagreeable weather a large number of the men in the vicinity of Springville turned out last night to hear an address by Mr. John A. Patterson, K.C., of Toronto, on the Laymen's Missionary Movement. Some of them drove five miles through the wind and darkness to hear Mr. Patterson. The address was a most interesting one and those who were present felt well repaid for turning out. Rev. Dr. Marsh occupied the chair. The men in Springville are so much in earnest over the movement that a banquet was not required to bring them out.

A. D. Elliott, of Winnipeg, a well-known machinery dealer, was killed in a runaway at Holmfield.

A REMINISCENCE BY J. R. McCREA

By J. R. McCrea

Do you mind the old shop with its smoke blackened top
Where I sat by the stove on the chair,
And the box on its end where so oft sat a friend,
Don't you still wish at times you were there?

And the desk on the bench and the old monkey-wrench
That you sought for at times far and near,
And the fire burning low that you'd pump to a glow,
And the ring of the anvil so clear?

And the old broken plow, it is sitting there now,
And the harrow whose teeth became wore,
And the rasp and the file, don't it cause you to smile,
When you think of their box on the floor.

And the sling that you made for the horses afraid,
And the shoe that you'd fit and not mar,
Don't you sigh when you think of the gentle old "Mink"
With her nose sticking over the bar

And the lines that we drew, and the washers we threw,
At the squares made with chalk on the floor,
As you'd scatter each spark as a bit of a lark,
While the kids made a rush for the door.

And your trusty old sledge as you'd hammer a wedge,
Or you'd fashion a link for a chain
With your friends sitting there on the box and chair,
Don't you wish you could meet them again.

But now silent the song of the hammer and tong,
And no longer we ever draw near,
And the great void around never echos the sound,
Of the voices we then held so dear.

Don't you sometimes feel glum, and all things out of plumb,
When the present and past you compare,
Don't you feel in your heart 'twas a wrench thus to part,
Don't you still wish at times you were there?

Winnipeg, April 3, '09.

The shop referred to in Mr McCrea's poem is the old blacksmith shop at Keene, formerly owned by Mr. J. H. Cruickshank, now of Toronto.

ATTENTION BACHELORS!

If an unmarried woman is "Miss," a married woman is "Mrs." and a married man is "Mr." then what is a bachelor?

That is the question which State Senator Samuel A. Ettleson, of Chicago, invites everybody to try to answer—if they can. He has introduced a bill in the Illinois Legislature to confer a title on bachelors whereby they can readily be distinguished from married men. The Senator, by way of explanation, says he has been approached by many unmarried women, who tell him that married men are constantly imposing upon them because it is impossible from a plain introduction of one as "Mister So-and-So" to tell whether he is married or not.

"Let us differentiate between the benedicts and the bachelors," declared Senator Ettleson when he introduced bill. "Let us make it a felony for a married man to use a bachelor's title. The change will be for the good of society. It will be a bulwark for the home. It will protect susceptible unmarried ladies. It will abolish at one blow all married flirts."

The Senator asks for the passage of a State law conferring a distinguishing title on bachelors in accordance with the provisions of his bill. If such a law be enacted other States may follow suit, and then the poor bachelor have a hard time trying to convince susceptible friends that he is married—and vice versa.

MARION CRAWFORD IS DEAD; PASSED AWAY AT SORRENTO

Author of Many Successful Stories and One of Italy's Most Profound Historians Succumbs to Bronchial Pleurisy Contracted Two Weeks Ago.

Sorrento, April 10.—F. Marion Crawford, the novelist, died here at half past seven o'clock last night of bronchial pleurisy after an illness of about two weeks.

According to the attending physicians Mr. Crawford collapsed last night owing to extreme weakness. Sadly he expressed the presentiment that he was soon to die, but almost immediately afterward alluding to the approaching Good Friday, said "I die with Christ." Mr. Crawford's daughter, at his direction, read to him Plato's dialogues, the novelist declaring that they taught him serenity in death. His last words were: "I enter serenely into the eternity of the judge."

Francis Marion Crawford, born at Bagni de Lucca, Italy, on Aug. 2, 1854, was the son of Thomas Crawford, a well-known sculptor and a native of New York. Educated at St. Paul's School, U.S.A., the future novelist and historian entered Trinity College, Cambridge, and later studied at Heidelberg and Rome, having particular regard to Oriental languages. In 1873 Marion Crawford became a journalist, and in 1879 were to India, where he edited The Indian Herald of Allahabad. Retiring to the United States in 1880, he has lived for much the greater part of his literary life in Italy, of which he was as devoted a lover and admirer as Robert Browning.

Marion Crawford's long series of successful novels and romances began in 1882 with "Not Isaacs" and this, with "Zoroaster," issued in 1885, are the fruit of his Oriental experience and knowledge. Italy, however, has always been his favorite field, and is the scene of most of his work. This series includes what is perhaps his finest achievement as a novelist, "Saracinesca," published in 1887. "Don Orsino" 1895, "Sant' Ilario" 1889, and many others which have made his name famous among English-speaking people. His point of view is thoroughly Italian, and for many years he has been regarded as more intimately conversant with Italy, its history, literature and characteristics than any not native born. No writer of foreign birth has managed to depict with greater insight and sympathy the atmosphere and modes of thought of old patrician Rome.

LEGISLATURE HAS CLOSED

Work of Busy Session is Concluded—No Liberal Convention to be Held.

Toronto, April 10.—The Legislature business is concluded. At 7 o'clock Thursday evening the order paper had been cleaned up after an all-day sitting, and there remains only the ceremonial of prorogation. This will take place on Tuesday.

The last words were happy ones. Hon. A. G. MacKay had suggested that when the engineers were considering the question of improving the acoustics of the chamber, they should also provide for rearranging the lobbies of both Government and Opposition in order that these might have a semblance of privacy.

Sir James Whitney concurred in the suggestion. He would have the engineers communicate with the leader of the Opposition.

Hon. A. G. MacKay stated yesterday that it was not the intention to hold a Liberal convention in the near future, and probably not for two years.

It was only fair that those who had devoted time and energy upon the work of party organization should have a rest before preparation for another election was begun. He was communicating with those who had carried the Liberal banner in the last election, and a large majority concurred in this view.

C.P.R PASSENGER TRAINS IN A COLLISION NEAR TWEED

Telegraph Operator Johnston at Kaladar Failed to Get Despatcher's Order —Has Resigned His Position—Baggageman is Only Man Seriously Hurt—Engineers Jumped.

Tweed, April 10.—Two C.P.R. special passenger trains, loaded with Easter holiday passengers, came together on a curve in a rock cutting, a mile east of Tweed shortly before dawn yesterday morning, apparently owing to the telegraph operator at Kaladar having fallen asleep at his post.

Conductors Scanlon and Webb were in charge of the trains. They had been ordered to cross at Buller siding, west of Tweed, but as No. 5 (westbound) was not there when No. 6 (eastbound) came along, Conductor Webb proceeded to Tweed. No. 5 passed Kaladar, and at East Hungerford siding broke an eccentric, which caused a delay of fully 40 minutes.

Operator Johnston was in charge of the station at Kaladar. When No. 6 reached Tweed Johnson was asked if No. 5 had passed and he reported "No." Conductor Webb was then ordered to proceed to Kaladar and meet train No. 5 there. Had he been two or three minutes later in leaving Tweed the wreck would have been averted. Had he been a few minutes earlier there is no telling what the horror of the disaster would have been.

When the engineers saw their position both applied the emergency brakes and jumped.

A baggage car on the westbound train in which Baggageman Emery O. Winters of Toronto was riding, was telescoped by an empty car next to it. Both ends of the car in which Winters was were piled with baggage and freight. Almost simultaneous with the applying of the brakes the baggage was thrown violently toward the centre of the car, where Winters was standing. When the brakes were applied he was thrown off his feet and when the collision occurred, hardly a second afterward, the tons of trunks and the wreckage of the car completely enveloped him.

When the passengers got there and saw the baggage and the debris piled in the centre of the car they began to tear down the pyramid. Everybody expected to find a mangled corpse beneath. After the pile had been reduced two large trunks were found to be standing up together, in the centre of the pile forming an inverted V.

"Are you hurt, baggageman?" yelled one of the rescuers. The reply came back above the noise made by those clearing away the freight that he was still alive.

When the baggage had been cleared away from the base of the two trunks and they had been turned on end Winters was found. A heavy case containing a cash register was on his legs from his knees down. The case was lifted off and soon he was on his way to the Western Hospital at Toronto on a special train. His injuries amounted to a bad shaking up, a number of minor bruises, and badly jammed legs.

When Engineer E. Williams of the westbound train jumped he was shaken up and his face was slightly lacerated.

No one else was hurt, though all the passengers were shaken up. Several who were riding with their backs to the engine were thrown forward on to the persons in front of them and more or less bruised.

Wrecking trains were soon on hand from Smith's Falls and Havelock, and the track was cleared for traffic by about half-past one in the afternoon.

The passengers going west were transferred to the local, due to leave Tweed for Toronto at 6 a.m., and those going east were sent forward on the afternoon train.

Operator Johnston of Kaladar immediately resigned his position on learning of the disaster.

Asleep When Train Passed.

Toronto, April 10.—Superintendent Oborne of Toronto started for the scene of the accident soon after he heard about it.

"Apparently owing to the night operator at Kaladar having fallen asleep and accepting orders, after he had awakened, for a train that had passed the station while he was asleep," he said last night when questioned as to the probable cause of the accident. Another prime factor in the cause was that they came together on a sharp curve, where the view was obstructed by trees.

BANK BURGLAR UNDER ARREST

Bellaire, Ohio, April 10.—An unidentified man about 40 years of age, carrying two revolvers, nitro-glycerine and dynamite, was arrested yesterday in the Dollar Savings Bank by Police Captain Hummel. Later the police searched the man's room in a local hotel and found burglar tools and a large quantity of explosives. The man's actions appeared suspicious to Captain Hummel while on the street, and the officer followed him to the bank. Entering the bank the man started negotiations with the cashier for rental of the basement of the bank when Captain Hummel arrested him.

Tipping a Crime.

Spokane, Wash., April 10.—Advance sheets of the new criminal code adopted at the recent session of the Legislature show that it contains a strict anti-tipping law, which provides that "every employe of a public house or public service corporation, who solicits or receives a gratuity from a guest, and every person giving a gratuity shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

This was the first intimation that such a law passed the two Houses of the Legislature.

GENERAL BOOTH'S BIRTHDAY MESSAGE

London, April 10.—General Booth has issued the following birthday message.

"After spending eighty years in this world with almost countless opportunities for observing the purposes for which men generally live, and the disappointments they so commonly suffer, it seems reasonable that I should have formed some opinion as to the course they ought to follow if they are to have any real success.

"So on this, my eightieth, birthday, I tell the people of America that if they will seek the honor of God, the reign of righteousness, the welfare of the friendless poor, and the riches that endure forever, with the same self-sacrificing avidity with which they seek the wealth and pleasures of this world, they will have a good chance of finding that life of satisfaction which now so often eludes them, and of building up a pattern nation for the world to imitate.

"William Booth, General."

Elephant Runs Amuck.

Des Moines, Ia., April 10.—"Tom," an elephant in the winter quarters of the Yankee Robinson Circus, ran amuck Thursday night and seizing his keeper, Charles Bellew, hurled him high into the air and then trampled him to death. The excited beast then ran through the animal park, uprooted small trees, destroyed circus wagons and demolished a bridge across a lagoon. Forty bullets were shot into the elephant before he was subdued.

THE TARIFF CHANGES PASS HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Several Important Amendments Are Made to Original Draft of New Measure—Real Fight in Senate Now Beginning.

Washington, April 10.—After three weeks of consideration by the Payne Tariff Bill was passed by the House of Representatives last night by a vote of 217 to 161. One Republican, Austin, Tennessee, voted again the measure, and four Democrats, all from Louisiana, voted for it. An attempt by Champ. Clark, the minority leader, to re-commit the bill with instructions signally failed.

The final vote, 161, demonstrated the capacity of the Republican organization to get together. The situation with respect to lumber was greatly relieved to the Republican leaders when it became manifest that the advocates of the proposition placing it on the free list were in the minority. Because of that fact, Mr. Fitzgerald, New York, charged that a midnight deal had been made Wednesday night whereby free lumber was to be voted down and the rates on barley and barley malt increased, and this notwithstanding the denials of Messrs. Mann, Illinois, and Cushman, Washington, who offered the barley amendment.

When the bill actually was passed the Republicans cheerel lustily, some dancing up and down the aisles, and patting their fellow members on the back.

The Dingley bill was under consideration in the House for two days longer than the Payne bill, but the House was not in session as long each day as during the consideration of the latter measure. All during the general debate on the Payne bill the House sat for ten and one-half hours each day, thus establishing a record for that body.

One of the principal changes effected in the Payne bill since its introduction was the placing of petraleum on the free list. This involved a seriously contested fight.

Among other important amendments that have been made since the bill came from committee were those striking out the provision for a duty on tea and the countervailing duties proviso on coffee. The elimination of the maximum duy of twenty per cent. on coffee, contained in the maximum section of the bill, was also significant.

The patent law provision, intended to retailiate for the new British patent law, was stricken out on account of an international convention.

The drawback section was added to so that it could not be taken advantage of at once, for the purpose of speculating in grain. There were several technical changes in the steel schedule, principally downward. Hides, hosiery and gloves were left as reported by the committee, hides remaining free and an increased duty being presented for gloves and stockings.

The fight over the tariff schedules has but just begun. It may deceive many persons in regard to the probable length of this special tariff session that the House has disposed of the bill in less than a month. The history of tariff legislation has usually been that the House has disposed of this class of legislation with much facility, for the rules governing that body are such that it is possible to bring the debate to a close within a reasonable time.

LIVES LOST IN THE STORM

Further Disasters in Wednesday's Gale in Ontario—Vessels Had Hard Time.

Toronto, April 10.—Further details of loss of life and property by the great storm of Wednesday have been received. At Hamilton John Jamieson, a well-known athlete, went out in a boat to recover a hat belonging to another man and was unable to make his way back to shore. Several people saw him struggling, but were unable to help, and finally the boat was driven across the bay. It was picked up Wednesday morning, badly battered, but there was no trace of Jamieson, and he was undoubtedly drowned. At Norwich Miss Irene McCauley, stenographer, was killed in the Oxford flour mills elevator by a shower of bricks falling on a passageway where she was wrecking the roof and burying her under the debris. Near London Mr. James Tunks was struck by the limb of a falling tree and killed. One or two vessels are adrift on Lake Erie, and it is greatly feared that their crews have met death in the waters.

THREE JUDGES ARE APPOINTED

Montreal, April 10.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier will appoint the three new Superior Court judges in the district of Montreal, as provided by the law passed some time since by he Quebec Government. It is understood that the Ottawa leader was influenced by his Minister of Justice, who favored the system of decentralization as practiced in Ontario, but Sir Wilfrid could not stand the pressure brought to bear by the local authorities, hence the coming appointment of Mr. Dugas, M.P. for Montcalm, G. Desaulniers of this city and Lt.-Col. F. W. Hibbard.

Guide Ate Companions.

Montreal, April 10.—A report from Roberval last night says: The coroner's jury in a suspected case of cannabalism against Grasset, the Belgian guide, who was brought from the far north the other day to tell what he knew about the case, exonerates Grasset, but suspects Bernard, another companion of Lemieux, the victim, of being the guilty man. Bernard will be arrested, if found. It is thought he has perished, probably by drowning.

CONTRACTORS HAVE BALKED

Edmonton, Ala., April 10.—Rumor explains the inactivity of railroad contractors in preparing for the season's construction on the G.T.P., as caused by the allegation that Foley, Welch and Stewart are crediters of the road to the extent of three million, due on progress estimates, and they are unwilling to go ahead or leave the scene of activities without a settlement.

Contractors should be concentrating men and material, but instead three of the largest contractors have pulled south to take contracts on C.P.R. irrigation ditches. Much is to be done to the west of Edmonton. To the east every effort is being made to complete the line.

MESSINA STILL SUFFERING MUCH

London, April 10.—A special despatch from Messina to London newspapers declares notwithstanding reports to the contrary the King and Queen, who recently visited the earthquake districts, are greatly displeased with the small amount of work so far accomplished.

No attempt has been made to clear away the ruins and there is neither water supply, proper sanitation, nor the means of transit. Hundreds of wretched survivors, the despatch says, are still dwelling in misery in huts which they themselves have created or in broken down railway carriages.

AN OUTLET FOR ALBERTA WHEAT

Vancouver, B.C., April 10.—Second Vice-President William Whyte of the C.P.R. arrived yesterday to settle details regarding the facilities for handling Alberta wheat here. Mr. Whyte believes that Alberta export wheat is all destined to go through Vancouver, probably in sacks by the Tehauntepec route rather than around the Horn. But if wheat should be put on the free list a large quantity may be sent from Alberta to Minneapolis for milling rather than to the old country.

Tug Lost in Gale.

Cleveland, April 10.—There is no doubt now that the tug George Floss with her crew of six and three passengers sank in Lake Erie during Wednesday's gale.

Wreckage from the boat washed ashore yesterday twelve miles east of Cleveland. It consisted of part of the cabin with the word "Floss" on it, and some bucket racks. No bodies were found.

Searching parties are now going all along the east shore looking for bodies and other wreckage.

Explosion Wreck Building.

Rome, April 10.—A serious explosion occurred yesterday morning in a four-storey house on Borgo Pio street, near St. Peters. Twenty persons were wounded, some severely, and a portion of the building was destroyed. All four floors collapsed. It is thought that some dynamite, stored in the house by fisherman, for illegal fishing, exploded accidentally.

Police Are Reticent.

Hamilton, April 10.—The police are still mysterious about the evidence they have against Jack Neville, arrested Thursday on the charge of shooting Constable Smith. They won't take the public into their confidence until the evidence is given in the Police Court a week from to-day, to which date he will be remanded, as the constable is not well enough to appear. He claimed he would be able to identify his assailant.

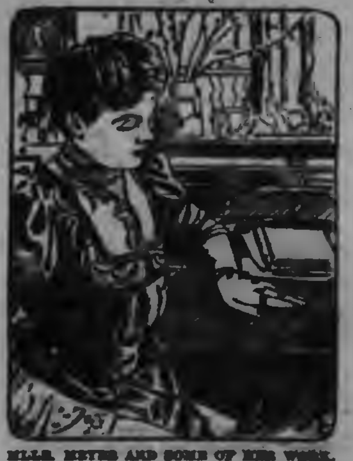
Woman's World

"A" CLEVER FRENCHWOMAN.

Mlle. Meyer Awarded Prize by Societe des Artistes Francais.

Would you believe that such beautiful things as flowers could be modeled in breadcrumbs? Possibly not. But Mlle. Meyer has just been awarded a prize by the Societe des Artistes Francais for this exquisite flower work. Strange as it may seem, orchids of wonderful form and delicate coloring and branches of apple blossoms, with lichen covered wood, have been made entirely of breadcrumbs by this talented Frenchwoman.

Mlle. Meyer is of Alsatian parentage and developed a fondness for working in breadcrumbs from her very earliest years. When quite a child she used to model little figures in bread at the luncheon and dinner table, an offense against good manners for which she was frequently scolded. Her parents' reproaches counteracted the bad habit, but they did not suppress her growing desire to be a sculptor. And so, to quote Mlle. Meyer, "I came to work in breadcrumbs. At first I had very great difficulty with the new modeling material. Many of the first flowers I made lasted for only a short time owing to the bread cracking and drying. A means had to be found to harden it. After numerous experiments, spreading over a period of many months, I discovered a liquid which when mixed with the kneaded breadcrumbs gave it the durable property of india rubber. This accounts for the fact that my works are so little liable to break that I send them by post to the United States. They can be worn in the hair or used as corsage bouquets without the slightest danger of being broken, and should they happen to fall to the ground from the pretty vases in which some people keep them in their drawing rooms they will not break. What is the nature of the liquid I use? I am sorry I cannot tell what it is. It is the only secret that I possess."



MLLE. MEYER AND SOME OF HER WORK.

The branch of apple blossoms which gained Mlle. Meyer the award at the salon is now the property of the French government.

Apple and cherry blossoms, orchids, roses, pansies, forgetmenots, honeysuckle and sweet peas are the flowers that this clever Parisian sculptor has so far copied, and with such scrupulous fidelity to nature that bees flying into mademoiselle's room from the garden of her house in the Rue Pergoles have settled upon them in search of honey. Perhaps it was this fact that gave her the idea of extending her labors to the copying of insect life. At any rate, the fashioning of bees, wasps, dragon flies and other minute creatures of the entomological world is her latest work.

Temper and the Complexion.

The girl with a hasty temper invariably has trouble with her skin. Sometimes red spots come out prominently and refuse to be hidden by the artifice of powder. Sometimes it is an angry flush that rises to the face and when it disappears leaves the skin quite dry and painful.

Now, the cause of all this is the excitement of getting angry, for the blood gets hot and courses quicker than usual through the veins, thereby disorganising different functions of the body. And the result is a bad complexion, as well as indigestion and a torpid liver.

Very little can be done for the skin while the temper remains unchecked. Perhaps the girl who at the moment is worrying over a spotty skin will pause and think whether a hasty temper is causing the mischief, and, if this is so, let her set about curbing her temper without any delay if she would regain the healthy bloom of happy girlhood.

The Benefit of Laughter.

Laughter improves one's health and looks because it improves the circulation by stimulating it, sending the blood bounding through the veins. This is the benefit of all laughter, if hearty enough. It causes deep inspirations, calling into active use every part of the lungs, favoring an increase of lung power and thereby developing a healthy chest. When the chest and breast are lifted and expanded the sagging, weeping willow lines of the face disappear. Therefore laugh a little every day. Laugh and live long and keep young.

The Belated Breakfast.

Some years ago Mr. Kipling went to stay with the late Cecil Rhodes at a fruit farm away in South Africa.

One morning, the story goes, Mr. Rhodes went out round his farm before breakfast, leaving his guest, who was not so energetic, behind.

Time went on, and Mr. Rhodes did not appear. Hunger soon roused Mr. Kipling to action, and in a little while he was very busy on his own account.

As Mr. Rhodes returned he found his tree bearing a new kind of fruit in the shape of placards inscribed in huge black letters with "Famine!" "We Are Starving!" "Feed Us!" and so on.

On reaching the front door he was confronted with the following in still larger type:

"For the human race—breakfast tones the mind, invigorates the body. It has sustained thousands; it will sustain you. See that you get it."

Then in the house, on every available wall he came across other mysterious placards in more and more pathetic appeal.

"Why die when a little breakfast prolongs life?" Larger and larger grew the type. "It is late; it is still later," and so on.

At last they led into the little breakfast room, where Mr. Rhodes found his guest reading his paper in all innocence, but very hungry. That breakfast was not long in coming.

Useful Desk Pad.

A desk pad that with a little care and dexterity can be made at home successfully was seen among some new things not long ago.

Two pieces of cardboard about 20 by 14 inches in size were pasted together at one of the longer edges, making what looks like a pageless book cover. This was covered by a piece of flowered cretonne neatly turned at the edges and these raw edges covered by a piece of firm white paper which extended over the entire inside of the pad.

Two or more pieces of blotting paper were inserted and fastened by ribbons passed through both covers and blotting paper and tied on the outside. A piece of ribbon of the same shade, but wider, was fastened so that it ran diagonally across each cover and, tying, held the leaves in place.

Professional Gossips in China.

In China elderly ladies are regularly employed as gossips and are well paid. It is customary for them to go round to the best houses, beating a drum to announce their arrival, and to offer their services to the lady of the house as entertainers. If their offer is accepted they sit down and tell the latest news, the choicest scandals and anything which they think will interest their hearers. Should their stock in trade prove very delectable they very likely take away with them a handsome present in addition to their regular fee, which is at the rate of about 25 cents an hour. Some of these professional gossips have a large number of clients whom they visit at regular periods.

THE ILLS OF BABYHOOD AND OF CHILDREN

The ills of childhood are many and may prove serious if not properly attended to. In all homes where Baby's Own Tablets are kept there is a prompt cure at hand for such troubles as indigestion, colic, diarrhoea, constipation, worms, and teething troubles. And the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that this medicine contains no opiate or poisonous drug. Mrs R Hammond, Copetown, Ont., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets and think nothing can equal them for small children. I would not be without them in the house for they saved my little girl's life." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr Williams' Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

All the Rage.

Quoting from a young Japanese girl, "navy blue is all the rage in Japan." It is not in the least surprising that the remote little island empire has fashions, although it is to be doubted if the casual observer would notice their changes of style. Neither is it amazing that blue is indicated—blue is an old time favorite with the Japanese—but that Japan has "rages" is decidedly interesting news.

When the Nose Bleeds.

A teaspoonful of powdered alum to a teacupful of lukewarm water sniffed into the nostrils will stop bleeding from the nose. When the nose bleeds it is a great mistake to stand with the head bent over a basin. Make the person lie flat, with the head thrown back and a cold sponge at the nape of the neck.

Her Identity.

Mrs. Hoak (briskly)—Nothing of the kind! She was a Smith! I knew the whole family.—Puck.

BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Paris is Full of Them and Nearly all Use Parisian Sage

In the beauty show at the metropolis two years ago Gold Medals were awarded to five different women.

To the most beautiful woman between 20 and 25; between 25 and 30; between 30 and 35; between 35 and 40 and between 40 and 45.

A society reporter who interviewed all five women in the interest of his papers, reported that all of them had beautiful hair and that each of the five enthusiastically attributed her luxuriant hair to Parisian Sage.

W. Mardill sells Parisian Sage for 50 cents a large bottle. He guarantees it to cure dandruff in two weeks, to stop falling hair and itching of the scalp, makes any woman's hair beautiful, soft and luxuriant.

Answer This Question

When thousands of women say that they have been cured of their ailments by a certain remedy, does this not prove the merit of that remedy?

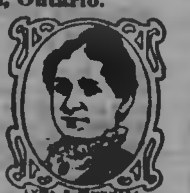
Thousands of women have written the story of their suffering, and have told how they were freed from it by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—for thirty years these reports have been published all over America.

Without great merit this medicine could never have gained the largest sale of any remedy for woman's ills—never could have become known and prized in nearly every country in the world.

Can any woman let prejudice stand between her and that which will restore her health? If you believe those who have tried it you know this medicine does cure.

Read this letter from a grateful woman, then make up your mind to give Mrs. Pinkham's medicine a chance to cure you.

Canifton, Ont.—"I had been a great sufferer for five years. One doctor told me it was ulcers of the uterus, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor. No one knows what I suffered. I would always be worse at certain periods, and never was regular, and the bearing-down pains were terrible. I was very ill in bed, and the doctor told me I would have to have an operation, and that I might die during the operation. I wrote to my sister about it and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Through personal experience I have found it the best medicine in the world for female troubles, for it has cured me, and I did not have to have the operation after all. The Compound also helped me while passing through Change of Life."—Mrs. Letitia Blair, Canifton, Ontario.



LYDIA E. PINKHAM

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

To Mark the Laundry.

The most satisfactory method of marking clothes that go to the laundry is with a rubber stamp bearing your name. Each separate article may thus be stamped with the least possible trouble, and the result will be a legible marking. What a help this is for the business girl, who lives away from home, who has no time to take particular pains in the care of her clothing! The name need not be put in a conspicuous place—in fact, it might be tucked away in some odd corner where it will not show, yet is sure proof of ownership. The stamp is inexpensive, and one may buy a pad and indelible ink at small cost. It is a very economical idea, for both ink and marker will probably outlast the girl who owns it.

Don't Have "Spring Fever"

"Spring Fever" is just another name for Biliousness, Irregular Bowels, Upset Stomach.

What you must do is to get the blood pure—by stirring up the liver—making the bowels regular and the stomach sweet. The quickest, and surest, and pleasant, way to do all this is to take Abbey's Salt. It's the best spring tonic.

A FRANKLIN FARMER WAS BADLY HURT

A serious and almost fatal accident occurred at Franklin the other day, when Mr Wm Johnson was the victim. He went out to the barn as usual to do the chores and while working among his horses he received a severe kick on the head from one of the animals, which sent him sprawling against the side of the stall. His head struck the wall with considerable force and as a result he was rendered unconscious. While in this condition he was, it is reported, trampled on by the horses and severely bruised and cut.

After regaining consciousness he managed to make his way to the house and medical aid was immediately summoned. The doctor soon arrived and it was found necessary to sew up the gaping wounds, several stitches being made.

CHECK YOUR FAT

Hold it where it is, or take off some. You can do either without disturbing your meals or your ease or your digestive organs. You can do it without physical risk, mental effort or danger of a wrinkle. "Sounds well, but these are words only," you say. True, but there is a nation full of indorsers these words, so your protest, while natural, is feeble. Prove it. Write to the Marmola Company, Detroit, Mich., inclosing 75 cents, or, better still, take that amount over to your druggist and get one of the extra large cases of Marmola Prescription Tablets. You will find it generously filled. Take one after meals and at bedtime, and within thirty days you should be losing a pound of fat a day, without disturbance, as we said, of either your meals, habits or organs. Fact is, these statements are not to be denied, for the tablets are an exact duplicate of the famous fat-reducing Marmola Prescription; One-half ounce Marmola, 3-4 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 4 3-4 ounces Peppermint Water, which any druggist will tell you is the World's Fair medal winner in its class.

SUB-COMMITTEE FAVORS PLANS OF LOCAL ARCHITECTS

For New Public Library—Matter Was Considered by Council on Thursday Night—Referred Back to Property Committee—Several Other Matters Dealt With.

The city council met in committee of the whole on Thursday night, and considered the Public Library plans and several other matters. Good progress was made on the library proposition.

Those present were Mayor Rush, Aldermen Duncan, McIntyre, Phelan, Metheral, Bradburn, Hicks, Buller, Morgan, Duffus, Morrow, Turner.

The first matter taken up was the consideration of the plans for the new Public Library. Ald. Bradburn made a verbal report on behalf of the Property Committee, and explained why it had been left to the Committee of the Whole Council.

Ald. McIntyre reported for a special committee of the Property Committee and recommended that the plans of the local architects, Messrs. Blecher & Blackwell. He also gave a brief description of the plans which will make a fine looking building. Ald. McIntyre stated that he considered the building could be kept within the $25 000.

ARCHITECT HEARD.

There were a number of the architects present, and on motion they were heard by the committee.

The first were Messrs. Strickland and Bland. Mr. Bland, in discussing his plan, pointed out the strong feature of their lighting system, viz., that of lighting from side windows, instead of ceil end light. He also pointed out the advantages of keeping the public out of the stack room. He pointed out the great necessity of making the plans for a library as complete as possible for future extensions. This was one of the strong features of their plans. He suggested that the city have contractors give estimates on all the buildings.

Mr. Proctor was next heard and he explained his plans. It was these plans that the committee made their second choice.

The matter was referred back to the Property Committee to report on.

WESCOTT STREET.

The next matter taken up was the expropriation of Wescott street. The council has no money to go on with, and Mr. Kidd is anxious to know what is being done, as he wants to build. Mr. Rolling will have about 200 feet frontage on the extension and he was not prepared to do very much. Miss Halpin and Mr. Kidd are asking pretty stiff prices. Altogether it will cost about $1 500 now.

It was moved by Ald. Morrow and Ald. Bradburn that the solicitor be instructed to take no action for the present.

City Engineer Hay was instructed to strike the grade for a new walk in front of Mr. Thos. Moore's new house on Bethune street north.

The claim of Mr. Kennedy for damages for his accident was discussed at some length. Several of the Legal Committee were inclined to reverse their decision, which was contrary to granting any damages.

On motion the matter was referred to the committee again.

Ald. Duncan reminded the council that the Master Painters were holding a convention here in July and the painters were getting out something like 16 000 souvenir books of the city. This book includes many cuts of the leading factories, etc., and he would like to have a cut of the council in it. He also asked that the council furnish the cut, which would cost about $8.

It was moved that the City Council have a photograph taken and that a cut be purchased for use in the painters' booklet. The photos will cost $15.

PROBLEM FOR THE FINANCE COMMITTEE

Will See What Can be Done Towards Aiding in Entertaining Visiting Regiments on May 24th

The request of the 57th regiment to the city council for assistance in entertaining visiting regiments on May 24th was referred to the finance committee at a meeting of the council in committee of the whole on Thursday night. The regiment is entertaining the 38th Regiment of Brantford at its own expense but one or two other regiments will be invited if the council will make a grant.

The council is somewhat "up against it" as there is only $30 left of the appropriation for special grants. However, the finance committee may be able to work out a solution of the problem.

THE SERVICES WERE HELD IN DRILL HALL

The union services that were to have taken place in Central park yesterday afternoon, were held in the drill shed on account of the rather wintry state of the weather. Notwithstanding the inconveniences that prevailed in the drill shed a large number were present to take part in the services which were of an interesting nature. Rev H J Keith acted as chairman and Mr J C Miller, with a cornet, led in the singing of the hymns, after which Rev Mr. Henderson offered a prayer. Short addresses by Rev Mr Riddiford and Rev. Canon Davidson then followed. Both spoke on subjects appropriate to the day to which those present listened with deep interest. Rev J G. Potter pronounced the bendiction at the close of the address.

RAY BRADFORD IS IN TROUBLE IN NEW YORK

Chief Rossel has received a telegram from James McCafferty, chief of detectives New York City, asking him if Ray Bradford is wanted in this town by the authorities. Bradford has been arrested in New York after having served an eighteen months' sentence in the Central Prison.

It will be remembered by many people in this town that Bradford was one of a party of four who were arrested here in the Commercial hotel charged with being pickpockets. The other men in the party were Goldfarb Phelps, and Lewis, and Bradford although the youngest of the quartette was supposed to be the ringleader. There was considerable interest taken in the trial, which ended with Judge Weller sentencing Bradford, Phelps and Goldfarb to eighteen months in the Central Prison and Lewis was acquitted.

ECZEMA CURE A MIRACLE? —NO, JUST SOUND SCIENCE

Physicians now admit the superior value of simple medicines for all diseases.

For eczema and other skin diseases certainly nothing in the world could be simpler than oil of wintergreen, carefully combined with such well known healing and antiseptic substances as thymol, glycerine, etc., as in the D.D.D. Prescription. The use of this simple remedy, though, accomplishes results that look like miracles. Cases of eczema of ten, twenty and even thirty years' standing have been completely cured in a few weeks.

Read the experience of Mrs. John Sanders, of Griswold, Manitoba.

"When I sent for six bottles of D. D.D. I had one of the worst cases of Eczema in my legs. I only used two bottles when they were clear of Eczema. The four bottles I have left will keep for hives and insect bites. It is a useful remedy to have in the house at all times. Wishing you all success with D.D.D."

Y.M.C.A. WORK PROGRESSING AT WELLAND

Mr. Archie Frowde, secretary of the Welland Young Men's Christian Association, is in the city spending Easter with his parents. Mr. Frowde states that Welland is going ahead rapidly, and that there is an excellent field there for the work of the association. The Y.M.C.A. there has over two hundred members, and it is growing rapidly.

The wind storm did great damage in and around Welland on Wednesday. Scores of buildings were unroofed and many were blown down. The wind was so strong that it was almost impossible to make any headway walking against it.

TABLET TO LINCOLN.

Woman's Republican Club Unveils One at Cooper Union, New York.

On Lincoln's birthday on the platform from which President Lincoln made his famous speech in the large hall at Cooper Union, New York city, in 1860 the Woman's Republican club unveiled a tablet in his memory. There were appropriate exercises. The presentation of the tablet was acknowledged with thanks in a speech by the Rev. C. R. Richards.

The tablet is of white marble flanked by two Ionic pilasters, with massive bases and capitals, on a background of black marble. Lettered in gold upon the tablet are these words:

> Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it.—Abraham Lincoln.

> This tablet is presented by the Woman's Republican club of New York to Cooper Union Feb. 12, 1909. Erected on the centennial of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, first Republican president of the United States, on the platform where he made his famous speech, of which the above is part, Feb. 27, 1860.

The tablet was designed by Charles R. Lamb and executed in the studios of the Messrs. Lamb at the request of Mrs. William Cumming Story, president of the Woman's Republican club.

"SAM SLICK" IS FIRST ON CANADA'S LIST OF HUMORISTS

Most Famous Son of Nova Scotia Is Judge Haliburton, Who Was One of the Dominion's First Advertisers In the Old Land—Achieved a High Position In Nova Scotia Before He Went to England.

Nova Scotia has produced many men, famous as soldiers, sailors, statesmen and men of letters, but no son of hers has achieved more fame than the immortal author of "Sam Slick."

It was on a December morning in the year 1796 that Thomas Chandler Haliburton was born in the town of Windsor, Nova Scotia.

His father was the Hon. William Otis Haliburton, a descendant of a distinguished Scotch family bearing that name, who had married Lucy, daughter of Major Robert Grant, famed for his gallant acts during the American war. Of this union Thomas Chandler Haliburton was the only son.

Little is known of his childhood, but at an early age he matriculated into King's College, Windsor — the oldest university in the British colonies. Here, as in later life, his career was a brilliant one, and in 1818 he graduated with high honors. Two years later he was admitted to the Bar, and began the practice of law in Annapolis Royal.

Not content with the success which he was at such an early age achieving as a barrister, Haliburton entered the political arena, and in 1826 was returned to the House of Assembly as member for the combined counties of Annapolis and Digby.

Here the future author became one of the most active and prominent members, and was soon recognized not only as a keen debater, but also as a brilliant orator. Writing of his famous speech on the Catholic Emancipation question—which he strongly advocated—Murdoch says: "This speech was the most splendid piece of declamation that it has ever been my fortune to listen to. As an orator Mr. Haliburton's attitude and manner were extremely impressive, earnest and dignified, and although the strong propensity of his mind to wit and humor were often apparent, they seldom detracted from the seriousness of his language."

In 1830, at the age of thirty-four, Haliburton, on being offered a seat on the Bench, resigned from the House and became a judge of the Supreme Court. Here his wit received full play, and many are the stories told of his humorous remarks, often made at the expense of counsel arguing before him. On one occasion a case was being tried before him in Halifax, when the lawyer for the defence concluded his address by saying, "My Lord, I now trust you will honorably discharge the prisoner, as we came here for justice." "Justice," quickly replied his lordship, "we didn't come here for justice, we came here for law."

It was in 1829 that Haliburton first appears as an author,—the historian of his native province. This work, which was well received, brought the author a resolution from the House of Assembly expressing their appreciation of his book. Six years later he wrote a series of anonymous letters in The Nova Scotian—then a flourishing newspaper published in Halifax by that greatest of Nova Scotians—Joseph Howe. In these letters he made use of a Yankee peddler as his mouthpiece. So well was this character received in Canada and the United States, where the letters were widely copied, that the articles were collected and published in England, where they greatly amused the public and met with instant favor.

In 1856 he retired from the Bench and moved to England, remaining there until his death.

In 1859 Haliburton entered British politics, and on his election to sit as the member for Launceston he thanked his constituents "in behalf of four million of British subjects on the other side of the water, who up to the present time, had not one individual in the House of Commons through whom they might be heard."

Haliburton, although he labored unceasingly, was able to do little that would help the colonies—for, in his own words, "those at home care little for, and like less, the colonies."

During his residence in England "Sam Slick," as he was popularly called, wrote many books. Among the most important may be mentioned "The Attache, or Sam Slick in England," "Sam Slick's Wise Saws and Modern Instances," "The American at Home," and "The Season Ticket."

The genius of his writings entitled him to foremost rank amongst the authors of his day.

In 1865 Judge Haliburton died at his home in Isleworth, on the banks of the Thames, and he lies buried in the churchyard there, beside the grave of the famous navigator Vancouver.

In the words of a local chronicler: "The village of Isleworth will henceforth be associated with the most pleasing reminiscences of Mr. Justice Haliburton; and the names of Pope, Cowley, Thompson and Walpole will find a kindred spirit in the world-wide reputation of 'Sam Slick,' who, like them, died on the banks of the Thames."

A few years ago a well-known American author visited Windsor in order that in the home of the author of "Sam Slick," he might reverently uncover his head to that spirit of genius—a genius who, ever loyal to the land of his nativity, Nova Scotia is proud to call her son.

Land Sales Big.

The Dominion Government sales of pre-emption lands during 1908 aggregated 1,979,830 acres, and of other lands 99,970 acres, the total value of both being $6,229,699. It may be observed that the proceeds of the pre-emption land sales are to be earmarked for the cost of the construction of the Hudson Bay Railway—about 500 miles— which is to be built by the Government.

A Homemade Barometer.

Take one-quarter ounce of pulverized camphor, sixty-two grains of pulverized nitrate of potassium and thirty-one grains of nitrate of ammonia and dissolve in two ounces of alcohol. Put the solution in a long, slender bottle, closed at the top with a piece of bladder containing a pin hole to admit air, says The Metal Worker. When rain is coming the solid particles will tend gradually to mount, little crystals forming in the liquid, which otherwise remains clear. If high winds are approaching the liquid will become as if fermenting, while a film of solid particles forms on the surface. During fair weather the liquid will remain clear and the solid particles will rest at the bottom.

Melbourne's Growth.

Melbourne, which consisted of thirteen huts, and was known as Beargrass at the time of Queen Victoria's accession, is now classed as the seventh city of the British Empire, coming in after London, Liverpool, Glasgow, Manchester, Birmingham and Calcutta.

Camel and Tobacco Smoke.

A newspaper correspondent made a curious discovery about camels during the Sudan campaign several years ago. He was in the habit of going into the inclosure where the beasts were kept at night, his object being to make a study of their habits. He was a great smoker, and he soon found that the camels were very fond of the smoke from his pipe. One old member of the herd seemed to like it particularly well. The correspondent noticed that the camel approached him the minute he entered the inclosure—provided he was smoking, and he usually was—and always put its nose close to the pipe so as to inhale the fumes. When it had taken a good whiff it would throw back its head, turn up its eyes and swallow the smoke with a great sigh of delight.—Chicago News.

OBEDIENT SOLDIERS.

An Illustration of Military Discipline In Germany.

A JOKE TAKEN IN EARNEST.

The Story an Englishman Tells of an Amusing Incident In Which He Participated During a Visit to the Battlefield of Worth.

The docility and blind obedience of the German soldier have long been an object of comment. The Germans themselves recognize that it sometimes goes so far as to be absurd. An Englishman, writing in the London Times, describes an amusing incident which occurred after he had spent a day tramping about the battlefield of Worth. He was dressed, it should be noted, in regular civilian clothes and carried an umbrella:

Emerging from a wood, I came upon a plot of grass where about a dozen German soldiers were resting. The spirit moved me to stop and speak to these men—emphasizing my meaning by signs when my scant German vocabulary failed me.

I asked, "Are you Prussians?" The indignant answer, in chorus, was: "No! Saxons!"

"Oh," said I, wishing to conciliate, "I am Anglo-Saxon."

Much to my astonishment, one of them got up and shook me warmly by the hand. Pointing to my dusty boots and flannel shirt, unbuttoned at the neck, I then, in vile German, explained to my friends of five minutes' standing that I had made the grand tour of the battlefield on foot and had been walking since 9 o'clock in the morning, it then being 5 in the afternoon.

Quite casually I remarked that although "not a military, but a naval officer," the study of battlefields interested me.

At the mention of the word "officer" all the men sat up, buttoned their tunics and buckled on their swords or bayonets—I forget which.

"Are you going to Niederbronn?" was my next question.

"Yes," they replied; "we are going to walk to Niederbronn and then take the train to Bitsch."

What evil genius prompted me to make the next remark I cannot tell, but although uttered in joke the consequences were perfectly astounding.

"I, too, am going to Niederbronn. You are my regiment. I am your colonel!"

Up they sprang to their feet, fell in two deep and kept quite silent as if on parade. "Right turn!" and off we marched, I carrying my umbrella as if it were a sword.

Breasting a grassy slope, we marched up to the top at a swinging pace, still observing perfect silence and in step. A short distance off was a solitary soldier of the same regiment lying at full length on a bench near the entrance to a wood—tunic unbuttoned, sword unbuckled, and so forth.

On catching sight of the approaching squad up he jumped, buttoned his tunic, buckled on his weapon, stood rigidly at attention and when the "regiment" came by "tailed on" as if it was the most natural thing in the world to do.

Please note that not a word passed between the main body and the reenforcement. On entering the wood the leading file began to sing a marching song, the others joining in chorus.

By this time we were nearing Niederbronn and passed a man and his wife, who were evidently much astonished to see a disciplined body of men marching in strict military fashion under the command of a foreigner armed with an umbrella—not even a silk one!

A disconcerting thought arose. "What will happen if we chance across a German officer, and how, in my broken German, can I ever hope to explain this extraordinary assumption of command of the forces of the kaiser?" So without a moment's further delay I said to the men, "I must go to my hotel, which is over there," and bade them goodby.

These docile and amiable Saxons with one accord, taking time by the leading file, saluted, and I, having returned their salute, got out of sight as rapidly as possible. On peeping round the corner of a house there was my late "regiment" still marching with the regularity of clockwork.

Lincoln on Proof.

I suggest to him (Judge Douglas) that it will not avail him at all that he swells himself up, takes on dignity and calls people liars. * * * If you have ever studied geometry you remember that by a course of reasoning Euclid proves that all the angles in a triangle are equal to two right angles. Euclid has shown you how to work it out. Now, if you undertake to disprove that proposition and to show that it is erroneous would you prove it to be false by calling Euclid a liar?

He Understood.

"Now, Johnny, do you understand thoroughly why I am going to whip you?"

"Yes'm. You're in a bad humor this morning, and you've got to lick some one before you feel satisfied."—London Tit-Bits.

It Depended.

Chappy—Would you marry a woman who had sued another man for breach of promise? Sappy—It would depend largely on how much the jury had awarded her.—Club Fellow.

COAL AS FUEL.

It Was In Use as Far Back as the Time of King Solomon.

The first mention of coal in the annals of mankind occurs in the Bible, Proverbs xxvi, 21, as follows: "As coals are to burning coals and wood to fire, so is a contentious man to kindle strife." This was written about 1016 B. C., at the time King Solomon came into power. Part of his dominion was Syria, and ancient coal mines are worked in that country today. There are several other references to coal in the Bible, all of a later date. Tools and cinders have been found near the Roman wall, indicating that the Britons were familiar with the use of coal prior to the Roman invasion in 54 B.C.

The first actual record of a coal transaction is the receipt for twelve cart loads of coal written by the good abbot of Peterborough, A. D. 852.

Years before the Christian era coal was in common use in China. Anthracite coal is powdered, mixed with wet clay and rolled into balls. These are dried in the sun, and the poor use this fuel in little hand furnaces precisely as they did centuries ago. Marco Polo speaks of seeing in 1275 "a kind of black stone in Cathay that is used to burn better than wood." Marco Polo's countrymen refused to believe the traveler's tale.

The earliest historic mention of coal in the United States is by the French Jesuit missionary father Hennepin, who in his journal in 1679 speaks of traces of coal appearing on the banks of the Illinois river and makes the site of a "cole mine" on the James river, near Richmond, the first mine opened for the market. In 1766 anthracite was discovered in the Wyoming valley and a sample of the coal sent to Thomas and William Penn in London.—Carrington Phelps in Metropolitan Magazine.

How Germany Deals With the Waster.

Germany has a law that provides that if it can be proved that a man is earning a sufficient wage to support those dependent on him, but that he is dissipating that wage by vicious habits, he can be declared a minor, and he is then treated as a child. His employer is told that the wage must be paid not to the man, but to a guardian appointed by the magistrate of the district in which he lives, who uses it for the support of the wife and children. In England a man who could not get his wage might refuse to work. In Germany the police would see that he did his work.—Progress.

Her Opportunity.

The man hater had just announced her engagement.

"But you always said that men were horrid creatures," said her friends.

"So they are," replied the bride to be, "and here's my opportunity to punish one of them."

They all agreed that it was real noble of her.

The Eternal Marathon.

"Man," declared the old fashioned preacher, "is a worm."

"And," said a man who had been married three times and who was occupying a small space in a rear pew, "woman is the early bird."

SPRING BLOOD IS BAD BLOOD

How Best to Get New Health and Strenth in Spring

The winter months are trying to the health of even the most robust. Confinement in-doors in over-heated and nearly always badly ventilated rooms—in the home, the office, the shop and the school—taxes the vitality of even the strongest. The blood becomes thin and watery, or clogged with impurities. Sometimes you get up in the morning just as tired as when you went to bed. Some people have headaches; others are low-spirited; some have pimples and skin eruptions. These are all spring symptoms that the blood is out of order. You can't cure these troubles with purgative medicines which merely gallop through the system leaving you still weaker. What you need to give you health and strength in the spring is a tonic medicine and the one always reliable tonic and blood builder is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills not only banish spring ills, but guard you against more serious ailments that follow, such as anaemia, nervous debility, rheumatism, indigestion and kidney trouble. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make new, rich blood, which will stregthen every nerve, every organ, and every part of the body. Try this medicine this spring and you will have strength and energy to resist the torrid heat of the coming summer. Mr. J. R. Johnson, Loch Broom N.B., says: "Some two years ago I began to feel that my constitution was weakening. I could not stand any exposure or knocking about. I finally sought the aid of a doctor who said my system was very much run down and that the trouble might end in nervous prostration. As his medicine did not help me, I decided, on the advice of a friend, to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. I had used less than a half dozen boxes when my health was fully restored, and I think no other medicine can equal these pills when one is run down and out of health."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LONDON SHOP MAKES SPECIALTY OF BOOTS FOR THE ONE-LEGGED

Bins Containing Thousands of Odd Pieces of Footgear Arranged In "Rights" and "Lefts" Are Found In Cellar—Are Mostly Drawn From Bankrupt Stocks and Travelers' Samples—Matching Shoes.

Where do one-legged people buy their boots? The mystery is not insoluble. As a fact, many thousands of the great army purchase their footwear at a certain shop in one of London's byways which specially caters for them, and which is known to cripples living in all parts of England, as well as in some of the colonies.

Here a curious business is done in single boots. Beneath the shop, in the cellar, are many thousands of odd boots, shoes, and slippers. Bins are chock full of every kind of footwear, from ward-shoes and dancing pumps to navvies' ponderous, hobnailed earth-crushers and the rubber boots worn by sewermen, from Tiny Top's "firsts" to the giant's No. 12's. There are football boots, cycling shoes, tennis shoes; elastic side, Blucher, and Wellington boots; boots of all the colors, materials, and sizes in the trade. And yet there is not a pair together anywhere. These cannot be found even on the shelves above the bins. Here are the usual lines of cardboard boxes, each of which apparently contains a pair of boots, ready to be taken away by a customer; but, though there are two boots in it, they are both either "lefts" or "rights" of the same size.

This huge assemblage of "odds" consists largely of bankrupts' stocks, etc., though a surprisingly large proportion is made up of travelers' samples. A traveler will, on leaving headquarters for the north, take a "right," while its fellow, a "left" will accompany a man who works the west of England. So they are separated for ever. Both ultimately reach the Mecca of the one-legged, but not in company.

From the shop the "odds" go far and wide. Many are purchased by or on behalf of the one-legged. From here is supplied a certain school for crippled girls, the managers sending for three or four single boots at once, while for a lady in Canada some friends living in London purchase single boots and send them to her.

"Among our customers," said the manager, "are some who have come here regularly for twenty or thirty years, because by dealing with us they save money. We can supply a single boot for a man at as low as eighteenpence. Now, you go to an ordinary shop, and you'll have to pay as much, or very nearly as much, for one boot as for a pair. So customers have stuck to us from the time when they wanted children's sizes to now that they want adults'. Our old customers include several one-legged cyclists, who buy single cycling shoes as well as single boots."

But all the "odds" are not purchased by or on behalf of the one-legged. Many are ultimately worn by those with the normal number of nether limbs. It is a daily occurrence for a person to turn up with a boot or shoe and require it to be matched, because the other has been lost or accidentally destroyed. Sometimes the customer, in taking home a pair of new boots, has lost one of them. At others a boot has been lost during a removal, or, having been put to dry too near the kitchen fire, has been partly incinerated. Every mother knows, again, how adept children are at kicking off a shoe, which disappears forthwith. So there is a steady demand for single boots and shoes merely to replace those which have been lost or destroyed and to make of service such as are in hand.

Thousands of pairs are, however, made up of boots which are, strictly, odd. One may be a "6" and the other a "7," one unlined and the other lined, one brown and the other black. And great is the rush for these more or less dissimilar couples. At the annual sale—here is a sidelight on London's poverty—barricades have to be erected to prevent accidents and keep bargain-hunters in order.

Grammar and the Lord's Prayer.

A party of gentlemen were discussing literary subjects when one asked another to point out the grammatical blunder in the Lord's Prayer. Half a dozen tried. Some thought it lay in the words "which art in heaven"; others placed it elsewhere, but not one detected it in the expression, "For thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory." To be perfectly correct the word "is" should be "are," but people have used it in the present form so long that they never think of regarding it as a blunder. There are teachers who say such an expression is right because it sounds right, but reverse it and say, "The kingdom, the power and the glory is thine," and the fault is soon perceived.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY

We have done some service to the farmers who own lands along the shores of Chemong Lake, etc., by calling attention to the necessity of a prompter settlement by the Ottawa Government of their claims for drowned lands. We propose keeping up the agitation for rural mail delivery in the same way, until something is done in that direction. Prior to the last election the Conservatives were a unit in attacking the government's proposed arrangement with the G.T.P. which, notwithstanding Sir Wilfrid's promises, has turned out to be very real indeed. The ten millions would establish rural mail delivery, but where is it? It has gone to the G.T.P. It may as well be understood now, as at any time, that the people of this county must have rural mail delivery. They will not be satisfied until it comes. The utter absence of any assurance on the subject will, we hope, be repaired by the agitation now going on for the much-desired service. At first the Examiner ridiculed the whole scheme as ruinous and unsatisfactory. Our articles from Farm and Dairy, and our array of American statistics were scoffed at. Suddenly the clamor ceased and the conservative policy was adopted, but it was "not the six hundred." It was a bluff.

TECHNICAL SCHOOLS

The Ontario Government report on Technical schools by the Inspector of Technical Education, is a long and instructive one. It impresses one with the idea that we are far behind other countries of even less pretensions in various other ways. That technical education or training in the useful arts is a necessary and highly educative system no one at all conversant with it will deny. It must, of course, be supplemented by ethical training or else the education of the young will become wholly commercial or mechanical, that is to say, mercenary or without ethical standards, or both. Many think that it is our devotion to the mechanical that has undone us to such an extent morally. But this is not so. The report shows that the centres of technical education as they are somewhat grandiloquently called, are too few, even to be very useful, let alone detrimental. Technical training includes manual training, household science and instruction in art. The report opens with an odd observation. It says that in the inspector's last report illustrations were given "to lessen to some extent the conceit of these schools and teachers who are inclined to look upon their own particular forms as the best, etc."

SEEKING THE POLE

The most satisfying answer to the persistent question, "What's the use of all this risk, effort and expense," is furnished by Garrett P. Serviss in the New York American. He says:

"In the first place the whole question of the magnetism of the earth is involved. It is true that the magnetic poles as far as we know them do not coincide in position with the geographic poles, but until observations have been made at the poles themselves, we can not be sure that there is not an important relation between the two. It is known that the magnetic poles, for some reason not yet comprehended, revolve around the real poles, and the nature and effect of this curious planetary mechanism may become evident as soon as the field of investigation is extended to the poles.

"In the second place, to reach the poles means to be in a position to solve important questions concerning the laws of atmospheric circulation. We have had abundant evidence during the past winter of the incompleteness of the science of meteorology. The poles are the centres of relatively calm regions, where, according to prevailing theories, currents of air originate which spread over the earth toward the equator producing cold waves that sometimes extend into the middle latitudes and upset the atmosphere there. The hot air rising from the equator travels towards the poles, cools off, descends and comes back by a different route. It is manifest that in order to fully understand all this we must know what goes on at the poles and in the immediate neighborhood.

"In the third place, the discovery of the poles will give us a better knowledge of the rotation of the earth, and on that rotation more things depend than we are apt to think. For instance, it has been discovered within a few years past that the earth is not regular in its rotation; the poles wander about a little, and it has even been thought that the prevalence of earthquakes may depend more or less upon this wabbling motion of the poles. The poles themselves are manifestly the best places from which to study this curious phenomenon.

"In the fourth place, there is no reason for thinking that at and around the pole will be found indications of existing or past life which will have a bearing on many questions concerning the biology of our globe. Some have thought that life began at the poles, because there the crust of the earth was first sufficiently cooled to bear living forms. We know that in the high northern and southern latitudes vegetation and plant life formerly flourished in wonderful abundance, but the key to this stage in the earth's history remains to be found, and it may be discovered near near the poles themselves. The many problems in geology await solution by the aid of what may be found around the ends of the earth's axis. The vast continent which eventually surrounds the South Pole and the deep ocean basin enclosing the North Pole probably contains secrets which will go far to explain the evolution of the continents the oceans, and the living forms which inhabit them. Their exploration will give science a grip upon the globe as a whole, which it does not at present possess."—Literary Digest.

THE POPE ON THE CIVIL VETO

The following decree of His Holiness the Pope, taken from an official organ of the church, viz. the Catholic Register, will explain to many the meaning of the Civil Veto, that is the right of veto upon the election of "objectionable" candidates for the papacy, claimed and exercised by the Emperor of Austria, the Emperor of Germany and the King of France;

Rome, March 15, '09

"The charge entrusted to us by the disposition of God, of ruling the Universal Church, gravely admonishes us to take care by all means in our power lest that liberty with which Christ endowed her for the common good, and which so many messengers of the gospel so many most holy bishops, so many of our illustrious predecessors, have defended in speech, in writing, and even by the shedding of their blood should suffer any detriment from the encroachment of a power foreign to her. Inspired by their example and authority when first, all unworthy as we are, we ascended the Chair of Peter, we deemed it a most urgent duty of our apostolic office to provide that the life of the Church should manifest itself with absolute freedom by the removal of all extraneous interference as her divine Founder willed that it should manifest itself, and as her lofty mission imperatively requires.

Now if there is one function above all others in the life of the Church which demands this liberty it is certainly that which is concerned with the election of the Roman Pontiff, for when the head is the question, the health not of one member alone but of the whole body is involved (Greg. XV. Constit. Aeterni Patris in proem.)

To this full liberty in the election of the Supreme Pastor is opposed first of all that civil Veto which has been more than once brought forward by the rulers of some states, and by which it is sought to prevent or exclude somebody from the supreme pontificate. If this has happened sometimes, it has never been approved by the apostolic see. On the contrary, the Roman pontiffs, in their enactments on the conclave, have been in nothing perhaps more emphatic or more earnest than in their efforts to exclude the interference of all extraneous powers from the sacred senate of the Cardinals summoned to elect the pontiff. This is plainly to be seen in the constitutions In eligendis of Pius IV, Aeterni Patris of Gregory XV Apostolatus officium of Clement XII and especially in those of Pius IX. In Hac sublimi— Licet per Apostolicas —and Consulturi.

But, and experience has shown it, the measures hitherto taken for preventing the civil Veto, or Exclusive, have not served their purpose, and on account of the changed circumstances of the times the intrusion of the civil power in our day is more clearly than ever before destitute of all foundation in reason or equity, therefore we, by virtue of the apostolic charge entrusted to us, and following in the footsteps of our predecessors, after having maturely deliberated, with certain knowledge and by our own motion do absolutely condemn the civil Veto, or Exclusive as it is also called, even when exercised under the form of a mere desire, and all interventions and intercessions whatsoever, decreeing that it is not lawful for anybody not even the supreme rulers of states, under any pretext to interfere or interpose in the grave matter of the election of the Roman pontiff.

Wherefore, in virtue of holy obedience, under threat of divine judgment and pain of excommunication latae sententiae reserved in a special manner to the future pontiff, we prohibit all and single the Cardinals of holy Roman Church and likewise the secretary of the Sacred College of Cardinals and all others who take part in the conclave to receive even under the form of a simple desire, the office of proposing the Veto or Exclusive or to make known this Veto in whatever manner it may have come to their knowledge to the Sacred College of Cardinals either taken as a whole or to the individual fathers Cardinals, either by writing or by word of mouth, whether directly and proximately, or indirectly and through others. And it is our will that this prohibition be extended to all the interventions above mentioned and to all other intercessions whatsoever by which lay powers, of whatsoever grade and order, endeavor to intrude themselves in the election of the pontiff.

Finally, we vehemently exhort, by the same words as those used by our predecessors that in the election of the pontiff, they pay no attention whatever to the appeals of secular princes or other worldly considerations (Constit. In eligendis, section 26, of Pius IV.; Const. Apostolatus officium, section 5, of Clement XIII.) but solely with the glory of God and the good of the Church before their eyes, give their votes to him whom they judge in the Lord better fitted than the others to rule the Universal Church fruitfully and usefully. It is our will also that these our letters, together with the other constitutions of the same kind, be read in the presence of all in the first of the congregations wont to be held after the death of the pontiff; again after entrance into the conclave; also when anybody is raised to the dignity of the purple, with the addition of an oath binding to the religious observance of what is decreed in the present constitution.

All things, even those calling for special or even most special mention, to the contrary notwithstanding.

Let no man, therefore, infringe or temerariously contradict this page of our inhibition, mandate, declaration, innodation, will, admonition, exhortation or precept. But should anybody presume to let him know that he incurs the indignation of God Almighty and of His apostles SS. Peter and Paul.

Given at St. Peter's." &c

EDITORIAL NOTES

Why have we not rural mail delivery for Peterborough county? Let some effort be made to assist our farmers or was the whole thing a bluff to take the wind out of the sails of the Conservatives?

Quite a number changed sides in the vote on the three-fifths clause in the Ontario Legislature on Wednesday. J. Thompson, MPP, for East Peterborough is evidently one of those who think that the three-fifths clause should be done away with.

He had heard no word of the higher criticism at the Laymen's Missionary Conference and he was glad to believe that the minds of the laymen seemed more settled in regard to this subject than were some of those who profess to be teachers of the Word of God.—Sir Wm. Mortimer Clarke.

A revolution is imminent in religious affairs amongst the young men of the United States. Freedom of biblical criticism is being extended to all parts of the old book with disastrous results. Philosophy or the "reasonable view" as it has been called is said to be triumphant and a cut-and-dried revelation a thing of the past.

Mr. Sexsmith—It is the intention of the department to dredge between Trent Bridge and Hastings, or between Hastings and Rice lake this summer. I had the privilege of taking a little trip there last summer, and like my hon. friend from Victoria, we did not know whether we were going to get back the same night or not—ran on the rocks. That part of the river is used to a considerable extent during the summer and it would not be a very difficult or expensive proposition to have the work done—Hansard

This reference by Mr. Sexsmith, MP, during the debate in the House of Commons on the Trent Canal will call up a variety of emotions in the breasts of those who happened to be on board during that eventful voyage.

The practical use of manual training is well referred to in the remark of Crane, the great decorative artist, that there is no sense or reason in allowing children to grow up with their fingers all thumbs. Why should the trained mind be walled up away from the hands by the uselessness of the latter when it is only through them that much of the knowledge of the trained mind can be given expression to? One remark of the inspector's will no doubt surprise many. He says that people are inclined, even in manual training, to demand too much accuracy of the child. We must remember this refers to the child. Accuracy is the product of long training in anything. The hand, eye and brain must learn to go together, and that is not a matter of a day.

What are we doing in Peterborough in this respect? The Normal school, which gives the impression of being a true centre of light and leading, has a manual training department. It is but a beginning, seed sown as it were, but it gives great promise for the future. As time goes on and the government shows increasing inclination to give back some of the people's resources in education and local improvements, rather than in railways to nowhere and fantastical schemes of so-called national or provincial development, we shall improve. The truth is we are only beginning to see what a mistake we have made in looking for ultimate happiness and comfort in material development as displayed in railways, saw-mills, gold mines, silver mines, etc. Our actions have been the expression of our thoughts, and our thoughts have been so exclusively centred upon ways and means, that we have lost the power of doing things well ethically as well as mechanically. The subject of manual training cannot be dealt with in an article or series of articles, since illustrations are a vital element in depicting the virtues of it. However, before closing, we hasten to remark upon something we possess, to a certain degree, expert knowledge of. We refer to cooking. Domestic science, as expressed in so-called scientific cooking, is a humbug. The stomach is capricious, not an organ that works by rule. Hence science is more apt to disgust than to delight it. The great chefs go by tasting, not by quantities. Then again we must learn that "good eating and drinking" in moderation saves doctors' bills and saves us from much of the agony we now endure as a nation of dyspeptics. Training in thinking is something we need badly as a people.

A GRAND KIDNEY MEDICINE

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him When Everything Else Failed.

Ulverton, Que., March 17th, 1908.

I wish to place on record, for the sake of others who may be suffering in the same way that I suffered, that no medicine I ever took did me so much real good as "Fruit-a-tives" did.

I suffered for many years with Kidney Trouble, with bad pain in the back.

I took every known kidney remedy and kidney pill, but nothing gave me any relief, and I was getting discouraged.

I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives" and did so—and this medicine cured me when everything else failed.

I used altogether fifteen boxes of "Fruit-a-tives," and from the outset they gave me relief and I am now practically well again; no pain, no distress, and all symptoms of kidney disease have entirely left me. I am very thankful to be once more well, and I freely make this statement for the sake of others who may suffer as I did. To them, I say try "Fruit-a-tives," as they are a grand kidney medicine.

A LECTURE OF MUCH INTEREST

The lecture given on Monday night in the Mark street Methodist church by Rev. G. W. Henderson, was one of very high excellence. The title of the lecture, "Plodders, Loafers and Croakers," was indicative of the general plan of the reverend gentleman's discourse, and there was given such an apt mingling of anecdote, illustration and ethical teaching, that the interest of his audience was held closely to the conclusion, which to many, came all too soon.

Mr. Henderson will always receive a warm welcome to Mark church.

The musical numbers rendered by Miss Dawson, of the Dominion Bank staff, and the Orpheus male quartette were much appreciated.

The Ladies' Aid, under whose auspices the entertainment was given, are pleased with its success, and grateful to those who came to their assistance.

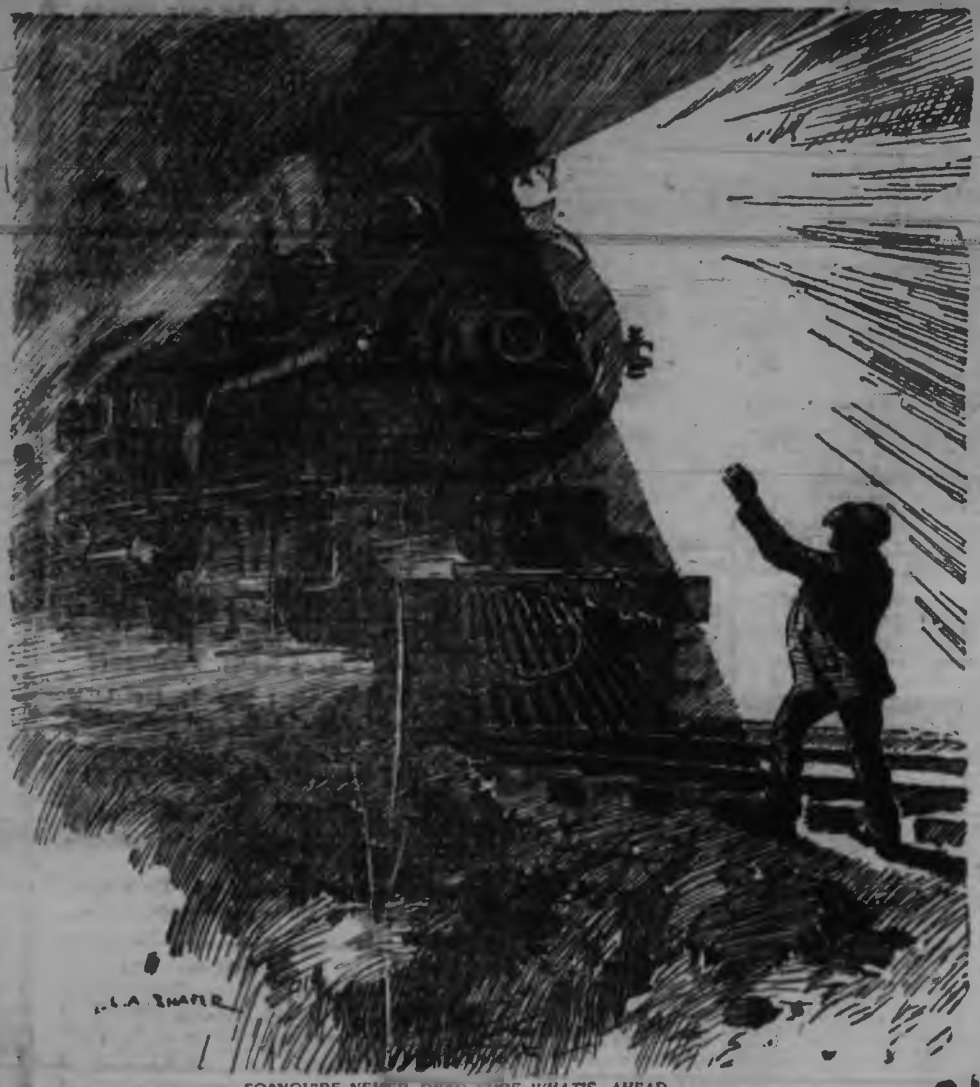
STUDIES OF THRILLING LIVES

The Locomotive Driver.

BY WILLIAM ALLEN JOHNSTON.



SO YOU'RE NEVER DEAD SURE WHAT'S AHEAD.

(Copyright, 1909, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

WHO is there in all this broad land who cannot recall a railroad accident?

As a boy I remember one sunny, drowsy afternoon in a little stone school house along the main line of the New York Central. Heads were poring over "g'ographers" and "rithmetics," and only the tick of the big clock broke the silence, when suddenly there was a terrific bang! and a minute later fine particles of soot came drifting in at the open windows and settled down on the white copybooks.

When school closed many a pair of short legs was scampering, as if by instinct, toward the station, and here, just above the old covered bridge, stood the telltale cause—a big black engine, still feebly pulsing with life, but shrunken in girth and fearfully distorted.

The side of the bridge was riddled as though a Gatling gun had been trained upon it; a telegraph pole near by was half sawed in two, and a red barn on the hill showed the bare wood in specks upon its side. "Boiler busted," said the town oracle.

Down at the freight house was the human side of the disaster—a scalded, blackened, broken thing hid by a blanket. The fireman he had been; and in an open door a surgeon in shirt sleeves was sewing up a rent in the head of an engine driver, who sobbed and raved about "her" and "the kiddies."

And again, on a gray, chilly morning there was a jumble of "Pullmans" just below this same station, and this time there were seven crumpled "things" laid in a row and under blankets.

Two heavy sections of a Chicago "sleeper" had gone through but one minute apart, when the rules said five. The engine of the first section happened to stop suddenly, that's all—and then the crash!

Apart from the curious crowd stood three high officials from New York, fur clad and talking in low, sharp tones. Awed by their manner and city air, a certain small boy with large ears edged near to listen and got such a fierce command of "Get out, boy!" that he has never forgotten the face of the man who hissed it at him.

One other face is burned in his memory, still more vividly, and it does not dim with age. This man wore a blue jumper and a grimy cap pulled down over his eyes. He stood in the demolished cab of an engine, the tender of which was gone and the forward part of which was imbedded in the rear end of a Pullman.

This blue jumper man was working desperately over useless valves and twisted pipes, and the boy saw and knew that he was simply killing time, nothing else. Once the man glanced sharply at the three men, and then looked down at the black, icy river. Then he looked full at the boy, and the boy started back and hurried home. No reprimand was needed in this case.

The face was pale and hollow-eyed, but it was a certain awful look in the eyes that scared the boy. For this was the driver of the second section, and upon his soul was the weight of these seven "things" beneath the blankets.

Times have changed since then. Everything that human brains and hands could devise has been added to railway equipment for the greater safety of the travelling public—the block system, for instance, that close succession of railway lighthouses, which almost guarantees a constantly free track and makes collisions next to impossible.

So much for the public and so much for improvements. But what of the locomotive driver? Is his occupation less hazardous?

In a way, it is; and yet again it is not. All these added safeguards are for his protection, too; and a certain new product of the times has arisen to double his chances of life and death. Day and night it rides the cab with him, a haunting spectre of delight and distress; now laughing, rollicking, tempting, then suddenly fiendish, cruel, destructive, and then——

"That's speed!" said a superintendent, grimly. "Speed! Speed!—and more speed!

"The American people are speed crazy. Every day, every week our schedules are subjected to the compelling outside pressure. Our entire organization is geared up to it—these offices and clerks, that train shed, the yard and trainmen, from the fireman down to the wiper; all our equipment, from the man who drives the wheels down along the line—and a great line it is—to the melter that made the silicon in the drivers.

"'Give us speed—more speed!' That's the constant cry from commuters and capitalists, shoppers, clerks, office boys. Down in the waiting room you'll find people scanning schedules with anxious faces. They are picking out the fastest trains. A slow time table is worse than useless to them and to us.

"It matters not what they will do with their time when they get to their destination; but get them there quickly! That's the great demand.

"In a way it's funny—or, rather, it would be if it were not so desperate a problem.

"This morning one of our Philadelphia expresses was four minutes late. Think of it, man! Only four minutes lost in a fog and drizzle! But a big financier on board came up here and wasted twenty minutes putting in a complaint. Do you see?

"Commuters will save eight minutes by a new schedule which we have shortened by an almost superhuman effort and then waste an hour gossiping with the grocer on their way home. Haven't you seen them—how they'll step off a fast train with happy faces, and then grow immediately lazy and don't-care-like, stopping to pet dogs and looking earnestly around for some foolish means of relaxation? The further the city pushes them out the nearer they want to get to it. And it's up to us."

"Where will it end?" I asked.

"I don't know," he said, sharply. "I'm not here to philosophize."

"I will say this, however," he added; "it is possible to increase the speed of a locomotive. Already we have them at ninety miles an hour and at a pinch they'll make a hundred. We are studying speed constantly, and it is purely a matter of mechanical achievement to raise it to, say, one hundred and fifty miles an hour. All right, but—and that's a big 'but'—where will you find men to run such cannon balls, to drive 'em without blinking an eyelid for an hour and more, to watch a dozen things all at once, the track ahead when you're eating it up at two miles a minute, the steam gauge, the water column, the air brake dial, the time, the target overhead when signal lights flash by you like a string of fireflies? How many men in a million could stand that strain?

"Some of them," he added, grimly, "can't stand it now. Go out and see them and talk to them—our drivers," and with something of an air of pride of possession he gave me letters to three "crack" men—"Pat" Doyle, "Wes" Alpaugh and Martin Dobbs.

This same pride was reflected, I found, in the face of every man to whom I showed the letter and asked for directions. And finally, as an American, I began, too, to feel it.

Why? Because of the engine driver's constant danger? Yes. And more. Because of his constant responsibility. That is rather the touchstone that reaches the human heart. An automobilist alone in his races commands admiration for his daring; but criticism also, when he gives up his life in a spirit of reckless, foolish bravado. How different it is when the mangled body of an engine driver is pulled from his wrecked cab and several hundred souls in the cars behind him, his sacred charges, have been halted just upon the brink of death!

Have you ever entered a railway village? It is worth while, if only to get an idea of the fast age we are living in.

There's the great cavernous train shed, with its gleaming tracks, impatient trains, clean cemented aisles, reverberating cries, its hurrying, jostling crowds of commuters and express travellers. They handle a city of people here every day—seventy thousand speed maniacs in all—and over four hundred long trains whirl them in and out of the station.

Back of the shed spreads out an interminable maze of tracks and trailing switches, and with a warning, "Look sharp, now, every time you cross a track!" you thread your way along the broad labyrinth of steel and cinders.

"Whrr-rr-rr!" The fast Atlantic City express, "Pat" Doyle at the throttle, rushes by, swings its seven cars gracefully over a succession of switches and disappears in a cloud of dust and steam.

Back in the shed this engine driver was chatty and agreeable as he pointed out his valves, levers and pistons, and how, pigmy though he was, he had the speedy monster under him subservient to his finger tips; but suddenly he snapped his watch and threw his throttle lever on the second, and you had to run along the front of the big boiler and yell "Goodby!" in the act of jumping.

Now he looks grim and taciturn as he flies by, his mind concentrated upon two things only—speed and its antithesis, safety. One hand is hovering over the brake lever and another is notching up the throttle, coaxing her, forcing her faster, faster, till soon the seven feet drivers under him will be leaping a hundred feet along these little steel rails; for seconds count with him from the very moment his watch was snapped, and one second lost now means one to be stolen on the run—somehow, somewhere. He is gripped in the tension of that stern schedule, gripped fore and aft. It is speed—speed—speed.

"Clankety-clankety-clank!" a saucy switch engine bumps by your very elbow and spits steam in her wake. She is shunting a line of cars over to a siding. More follow, line upon line, this way and that, for the great main avenue must be kept constantly clear for the trains that leave and enter every minute.

Up before you looms a lofty water tower. Seemingly it floats upon a billow of white steam, and now the noise grows deafening, discordant; activity interferes; the smell of hot oil and smoke fills the air. You are entering the heart of the village now, the home of the engine—of one hundred and sixty-nine of them.

There they stand, drawn up in a circular battery about the inner turntable, poking their haughty iron noses at all points of a mariner's compass. All types are represented, from the new Atlantic four-driver down to the tall smokestack style we thought a marvel of speed but a few years ago; all dispositions are here, too, all kinds of moods and physical conditions. After a bit the impression grows within you that these present day runners are not inanimate things of iron and steel, but living, breathing, sensitive animals.

Some, just in from a long, hard run, are panting and gasping, while the sweat trickles down their hot glistening sides; others, just ready for the race, stand trembling eagerly upon the scratch line, short necked, full chested, deep breathed, for all the world like mighty athletes; and again, others are gently purring as though drowsily reminiscent of the day's hard work.

One big fellow, he might be the bull of the great herd of elephants, is wheezing fretfully and painfully; and now a surgeon walks swiftly by to get his pulse and temperature. He is a sharp eyed, keen faced man, and he peers in and under, up and down, tapping, feeling, rubbing, listening. Now he lays an ear against the engine's lungs, listens, starts back, listens again, and then gives his orders in sharp tones. A hostler jumps into the cab, presses gently on the throttle and the ill animal limps painfully back and into the hospital.

Here is a great brick shed, of whirling belts, spinning drills and lathes, murky lights, hollow, clangy noises, and a thick steamy odor of hot metal and sizzling oil. The floor space is crowded to the doors with sick engines, and working in and under the hulks are black faced mechanics, to whom grown boys with eager American faces are running with wrenches, hammers, oilers.

Some day they will become firemen, these boys, and swing a shovel all day between the coal bunker and a red, roaring firebox—like a stoker? Yes, so far as muscular development is concerned, but they must also have heads, cool, intelligent, and filled with a working knowledge of the mechanism they feed. For some day the man in the cab ahead may stick his head out too far and have it snapped off, or he may sink down at his post; and then it is that fireman's duty to walk over the water board and run that masterless engine home.

Or, some day he will rise to this post in the regular way of promotion, provided he has the stuff in him of which engine drivers are made, which means above all things that he develops that important sense of grave responsibility. Then he will be made driver of a freight or suburban passenger train; and at length, if he lives clean and grows strong as well as old, he will have hats taken off to him some day as he goes streaking by in the cab of a through express.

It is a long, hard pull to that top rung; and all along the way it is a grim problem of the survival of the fittest. The weaker ones are bound to drop off, but the job ahead is a big one, worth working for and living for, and most of these boys know it.

Back in the shed I found that same keen faced surgeon moving sharply about, and as he walked out I followed him into a little office set in the middle of the railway village, near the battery of engines.

I will say freely of this man that he was the most difficult to interview I have ever met—though for that matter most railroad men are similar in this respect. His eyes and red face showed that he did not talk; his lips proved it. For fully twenty minutes he eyed me politely and absently—and said nothing.

Then something unlocked his taciturnity and he talked—just for a few brisk minutes, but how he did talk! Hissing out his words and biting them off in short, sharp sentences, thumping the desk and bending savagely forward as he scored a point. It was that same rattling story of speed—speed—speed!

"Son, it's hell!" said he. "Just that!" And he gave me a quick vivid picture of a vast organization hitched up to the heels of a single fast locomotive.

For the problem doesn't end with the flying possibilities of that new engine, just fresh from the engineers' hands, with a new guarantee of speed. Instead, it just begins there.

The whole schedule of four hundred trains a day must be unscrewed and retightened to sandwich in that flyer. A small regiment of clear headed men in the towers of the block system must give her a clear track despite the claims of a hundred other trains, give her free way for a hundred and more miles, so that she will split the air and nothing else. A small army of switchmen all along the flying route must give her locked or open switches as she demands them. Telegraph operators must flash a stream of clicking orders before and behind her; and so the system grows and intensifies—finer, finer.

"Look at that chart up there—that anatomy of an engine. See those thousand and one parts? Well, they belong to the system, too. Every one in one hundred and sixty-nine engines must be in working order—and that's my business—every one down to that tiny set screw. That's part of the system, too. Do you see?"

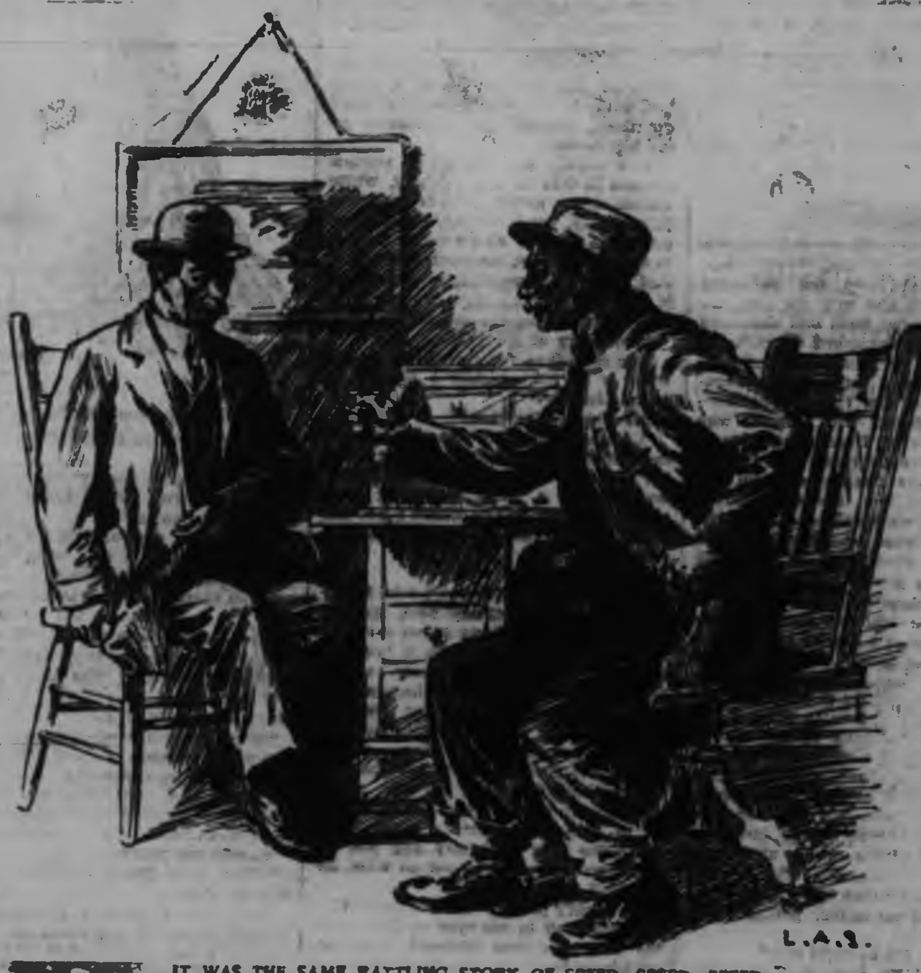
Yes, I did see. For a moment the whole picture was painted in my mind—a wonderful fabric of metal, brains and finger tips, of faultless boilers and even-grained piston rods, of colored signals and semaphore arms, of clicking instruments and tissue paper orders, of watches set daily to the fraction of a second and eyes watched closely for color blindness, of steel bridges inspected constantly for vagaries of stress and strain, and miles of steel rails that must be clamped tight—and so on up to that pin-point apex of a tiny set screw.

A wonderful fabric, indeed, with its curious interlocking of steel and iron with human brains and muscle. A strong fabric and as safe a one as skill and constant precaution can make it. But, after all and despite everything, it is a system only as strong as its weakest part—perhaps that little set screw, or a tired muscle or a dazed brain—and yet the engine driver goes hurtling through the air each day at a death dealing speed and at the utter mercy of this wonderful superstructure of things that may break and minds that may forget.

Let that big driving rod snap and a half ton finger whizzing eighty miles an hour will swing up from beneath and cut him in two. Let one man blunder and that tissue order he takes so smilingly as he jumps in his cab is a plain out-and-out death warrant.

"So you take a chance every time you start out, don't you?" I asked an engine driver.

"Oh, sure!" said he, and his eyes lit up with the excitement of the thing. "But you mustn't think about it," he added seriously. "If you do it will get you."



IT WAS THE SAME RATTLING STORY OF SPEED—SPEED—SPEED.

"It gets some men," I suggested.

"Very often. There's Clapp, my running mate some years ago. He had a hard run of luck with one of the fast 'Phillies'—three accidents right hand running, two of which turned his engine right around. After that he was looking for more, and I guess you know what that means when you fly around curves so fast that the track seems to jump off into space and you having no idea of what may be ahead."

He grinned. "No. 900 caught a bakery wagon in a grade crossing the other day, cutting her in two with a noise like a rip saw. She was running ninety-three and a half miles an hour. And in the same run she caught a handcar loaded with scrap iron. Funny thing, the handcar never left the rails, but she went spinning a half mile down the track, the handles going so fast you couldn't see them, while the scrap iron broke every window in 900. That's the observation engine, you know.

"So you're never dead sure what's ahead. And in a day or so Clapp came to me shivering like a cat out of cold water. 'I've got to give her up,' he said. 'I've got to give her up.'

"He did; and he ran a local then. He kept at it for one, two, three years, and then one day he came in smiling and said, 'I'm all right now.' And to-day he's running a 'Phillie' again. He doesn't think about what's ahead now."

I was talking with "Wes" Alpaugh, a big man with gray hair and boyish eyes. There's a constant light of daring in those eyes, and the love of a race—he couldn't give up the life, he says, and his nerves are as strong as ever; but that full sense of responsibility has shaped his life and character, and the lines of his face show it. He is quick as a cat and he'll take every necessary chance without blinking an eyelid; but he's sober, industrious, sure, dependable. Like other "cracks," he is just the stuff out of which long training makes the express engineer.

He is speedy. Every one knows that, from the president down to the engine house boys. Just before I found him a scrap of conversation between the two younger engine drivers reached my ears:—

"No. 593," said one, "pulled out of Bound Brook yesterday six minutes late—short of steam—poor coal. But you couldn't hold her. She got up on her hind legs, made 518 take a siding and rode in here right on the heels of 583 just a half minute late."

"Who's that?" asked a young fireman. "'Wes' Alpaugh?"

"Sure!" said the two, in one breath. "Who else?"

And while we were talking the railroad chief of police strolled by. "No. 80!" he yelled. "Ninety miles an hour!"

Alpaugh chuckled. "He's kidding me," he said. "Some years back I brought a special over from Easton—a marriage party—with No. 80, an old freight locomotive. She didn't go ninety miles an hour, but she made over eighty. I was called up and suspended three days."

"You've had narrow escapes?" I suggested, when he told me he had never been in a bad accident.

"Every engine driver has," he said. "But we don't speak of them. What's the use? They make every driver better, you know. Once," he began, and stopped. "No, I'd rather not tell any."

"Ever kill people—on the track?"

"Lots," he said, cheerfully. "But it's hard. A man with a heart in him never gets used to that.

"I've had 'em step suddenly right out of the bushes on a moonlight night and walk straight into me. Generally they hold up one hand, like they would ward off the blow of a hundred tons goin' a mile a minute.

"They're suicides—mostly; and lots of 'em are, I believe, when the public doesn't know it. Once I hit a wealthy contractor just out of Spring Lake. He was walking along with his back to me, and though the whistle must have split his ears he never budged. I managed to slow down, but the breast beam struck his head and split it."

Alpaugh's flyer, No. 590, stood ready for her day's run, all slickly groomed, fed and watered. As he talked he walked up and down and around her, tapping a nut here, testing a valve there, listening keenly as she purred and talked to him. "Gentle as a kitten," he said proudly, "and look at her wheels—eighty-five inches high!"

"Is it hard to make up time?" I asked.

"You bet it is—and easy to lose it. Oh, it's all right on a clear day, with tangent tracks and trailing switches, but wait till a fog settles down or you're driving against wind and sleet.

"And, again, when everything is running fine the fireman comes crawling over the water board and yells that the flues are leaking, or suddenly the ejector becomes hot, or the eccentric gets crazy, and then it's slow down; and, mind you, if you slip the throttle back once you're out two minutes anyway.

"On the other end you're up against that schedule. Already they've squeezed it down till there isn't a loose second in it. But, still, you've got to catch up some way. It's a rip-roarin' slide here, and a chance on a slow curve there, and an extra notch on an up-grade, that gives you another second.

"Do you mind the last six-day bicycle race where two riders lost a single lap the first day and couldn't make it up in several thousand miles? I felt sorry for those fellows. Then I remember when the Lake Shore tried to beat the New York Central's record between Chicago and Buffalo—[illegible] miles at [illegible] miles a minute. They did beat it—by 28 seconds. Think of it! That's what a fast schedule means.

"You see now what a big thing a minute is to a railroad man," he said, snapping his watch. "A whole lot can happen in it, and a whole lot can be lost. Well, I'm off." He made some pantomimic gestures to the fireman, notched his throttle, pulled his cap down and rolled gently out.

"One more!" I shouted. "Could you run a hundred-and-fifty-mile-an-hour locomotive?"

He grinned back through the hissing steam. "I'd like to try," he yelled. "So long!"

Back on a long bench on the sunny side of the surgeon's office I listened secretly to the conversation of a row of engine drivers—they won't talk to you otherwise—and I heard thrilling stories of engines stopped within six inches of their pilots; of breast beams just grazing a train in a flying switch, of a semaphore arm that played false one day because the heat inside melted a bit of solder and let down a white light when it should have been green; of a driver ploughing through a tunnel every day with a cracked steam chest and the steam clouds obscuring his signals (they pulled him out of a wreck one day and with his dying breath he said, "It's my fault," though it wasn't).

And inside the office, later, my friend the grim surgeon gave me the best definition of an engine driver and his lot. "To my mind," said he, "they are superhuman. They do, dare and are damned for it. And you push them to it, son—don't forget that—you and your bunch of heel-clicking, foot-wriggling, watch-crazy Americans, with your clamor of speed, speed, speed!"

"Dat's good," he nodded as he moved away. "I bet you mak' dose dance hall women look lak sucker."

No man may understand the girl's feelings as she set about clothing herself in her first fine dress. Time and again she had studied pictures from the "outside" showing women arrayed in the newest styles and had closed her eyes to fancy herself dressed in like manner.

Poleon's eye had been amazingly correct, for the gown fitted her neatly save at the waist, which was even more than an inch too large notwithstanding the fact that she had never worn such a corset as the well formed Marie Bourgette was accustomed to.

She pondered long and hesitated modestly when she saw its low cut, which exposed her neck and shoulders in a totally unaccustomed manner, for it struck her as amazingly indecent until she scurried through her magazines again and saw that its construction, as compared with others, was most conservative. Even so she shrank at sight of herself below the line of sunburn, for she was ringed about like a blue winged teal, the demarcation being more pronounced because of the natural whiteness of her skin. She sat down, dress and all, in the thick softness of a great brown bearskin and thought it over.

How odd it was, now that she considered it, that she needed no aid with these alien garments; that she knew instinctively their every feature; that there was no intricacy to cause her more than an instant's trouble.

She was interrupted in her reverie by the passing of a shadow across her window and the stamp of a man's feet on the planks at the door. Of course it was Poleon, who had come back to see her. So she rose hastily, gave one quick glance at the mirror above her washstand, choosing the side that distorted her image the least, and, hearing him still stamping, perfunctorily called:

"Come in! I'll be right out."

She kicked the train into place behind her, looping the shawl carelessly about her in a way to veil her modesty effectively. She crossed proudly to the reading table to give him a fair view of her splendor and was in the middle of the room before she looked up. Taken aback, she uttered a little strangled cry and made a quick movement of retreat, only to check herself and stand with her chin high in the air, while wave after wave of color swept over her face.

"Great lovely dove!" ejaculated Burrell fervently, staring at her.

"Oh, I—I thought you were Poleon. He"— In spite of herself she glanced toward her room as if to flee. She writhed at the utter absurdity of her appearance and knew the lieutenant must be laughing at her. But flight would only make it worse. Burrell, however, was not laughing.

"I was looking for your father," he said, wondering if this glorious thing could be the quaint half breed girl of yesterday. There was nothing of the native about her now, for her lithe young figure was drawn up to its height, and her head, upon which the long black braids were coiled, was tipped back in a haughty poise. She had flung her hands out to grasp the table edge behind her, forgetful of her shawl, which drooped traitorously and showed such rounded lines as her ordinary dress scarce hinted at. This was no Indian maid, the soldier vowed. No blood but the purest could pulse in such veins; no spirit save the highest could flash in such eyes as these. A jealous rancor irked him at the thought of this beauty intended for the Frenchman's eyes.

"Can't you show yourself to me as well as to Poleon?" he said.

"Certainly not!" she declared. "He bought this dress for me, and I put it on to please him. After he sees it I will take it off, and"—

"Don't—don't take it off—ever," said Burrell. "I thought you were beautiful before because of your quaintness and simplicity, but now"—his chest swelled—"why, this is a breath from home. You're like my sister and the girls back in Kentucky, only more wonderful."

"Am I?" she cried eagerly. "Am I like other girls? Do I really look as if I'd always worn clothes like these?"

"Born to them," said he.

Her warmth and unaffected frankness suffused him as she stood out, turning to show the beauties of her gown, her brown hands fluttering tremulously as she talked.

"It's my first party dress, you know, and I'm as proud of it as Molly is of her rubber boots. It's too big in here and too small right there. That girl must have had a bad chest. But otherwise it fits me as if it had been made for me, doesn't it? And the shoes—aren't they the dearest things? See!" She held her skirts back, showing her two feet side by side, her dainty ankles slim and shapely in their silk.

"They don't wear as well as moccasins." Both laughed delightedly till he broke in impulsively:

"Oh, girl, don't you know how beautiful you are?"

"Of course I do," she cried, imitating his change of voice, then added naively, "That's why I hate to take it off."

"Where did you learn to wear things like that?" he questioned. "Where did you get that—well, that air?"

"It seems to me I've always known. There's nothing strange about it. The buttons and the hooks and the eyes are all where they belong. It's instinct, I suppose, from father's side."

"Probably. I dare say I should understand the mechanism of a dress suit, even if I'd never seen one," said the man, amused, yet impressed by her argument.

"I've always had visions of women dressed in this kind of clothing, white women, never natives, not dressed like this exactly, but in dainty, soft things, not at all like the ones I wear. I seem to have a memory, although it's hardly that either; it's more like a dream, as if I were somebody else. Father says it is from reading too much."

"A memory of what?"

"It's too vague and tantalizing to tell what it is, except that I should be called Merridy."

"Merridy? Why that?"

"I'll show you. See." She slipped her hand inside the shawl and drew from her breast a thin gold chain on which was strung a band ring. "It was grandmother's. That's where I got the fancy for the name of Merridy, I suppose."

"May I look?"

"Of course. But I daren't take it off. I haven't had it off my neck since I was a baby." She held it out for him to examine, and, although it brought his head close to hers, there was no trace of coquetry in the invitation. He read the inscription, "From Dan to Merridy," but had no realization of what it meant, for he glimpsed the milk white flesh almost at his lips and felt her breath stirring his hair, while the delicate scent of her person seemed to loose every strong emotion in him. She was so dainty and yet so virile, so innocent and yet so wise, so cold and yet so pulsating.

"It is very pretty," he said inanely.

At the look in his eyes as he raised his head her own widened, and she withdrew from him imperceptibly, dismissing him with a mere inflection.

"I wish you would send Poleon here. It's time he saw his present."

As Burrell walked out into the air he shut his jaws grimly and muttered: "Hold tight, young man. She's not your kind—she's not your kind."

Inside the store he found Doret and the trader in conversation with a man he had not met before, a ragged nondescript whose overalls were blue and faded and patched, particularly on the front of the legs above the knees, where a shovel handle wears hardest; whose coat was of yellow mackinaw, the sleeves worn thin below the elbows, where they had rubbed against his legs in his work. As the soldier entered the man turned on him a small, shrewd, weather beaten face with one eye while he went on talking to Gale.

"It ain't nothin' to git excited over, but it's wuth follerin'. If I wasn't so cussed unlucky I'd know there was a pay streak som'ere close by."

"Your luck is bound to change, Lee," said the trader, who helped him to roll up a pack of provisions.

"Mebbe so. Who's the dressmaker?" He jerked his bushy head toward Burrell, who had stopped at the front door with Poleon to examine some yellow grains in a folded paper.

"He's the boss soldier."

"Purty, ain't he?"

"If you ain't good he'll get you," said Gale, a trifle cynically, at which Lee chuckled.

The one eyed man snorted derisively. "It ain't wuth considerin'!"

"Why not?" insisted Gale guardedly. "Maybe I've got a record. You don't know."

"If you have, don't tell me nothin' about it," hastily observed Lee. "I'm a God fearin' citizen myself, leanin' even toward peace and quietudes, but what's past is dead and gone, and I'd hate to see a lispin' child like that blue and yeller party try to ressurreck it."

"He's got the American army to back him up, at least five of them."

"Five agin a hundred. He aims to overawe us, don't he?" snickered the unregenerate Lee, but his wrinkles changed and deepened as he leaned across the counter confidentially.

"You say the word, John, and I'll take some feller along to help me, and we'll transfer this military post."

"Pshaw! I'm just supposing," said the trader.

"All right. It's up to you. However, if I happen to leap down on this pay streak before it sees me comin' I'm goin' to put my friends in first and foremost and shut out these dressmakers complete. So long!"

Having given Necia's message to Poleon, the lieutenant took up his business with the trader. It concerned the purchase of certain supplies that had been omitted from the military outfit, and when this was concluded he referred to the encounter of that morning.

"I don't want you to think I bungle everything in that manner," he said, "for I don't. I want to work with you, and I want to be friends with you."

"I'm willing," said Gale.

"Nobody dislikes playing policeman more than I do, but it's a part of my

"Oh, I—I thought you were Poleon. He"— duty, and I'll have to do it," continued the young man.

"I reckon you simply aim to keep peace, eh? You ain't looking for nobody in particular?"

"Of course not—outside of certain notorious criminals who have escaped justice and worked north."

"Then there are a few that you want, eh?"

"Yes, certain old timers. The officers at every post have descriptions of a few such, and if they show up we will take them in and hold them till courts are established."

"If you've got their names and descriptions mebbe I could help you," said the trader carelessly.

"Thank you. I'll bring up the list, and we'll go over it together. You must have been here a good while."

"About ten years."

"Then Miss Necia was born out in the States?"

Gale shot a startled glance at the soldier before he answered in the affirmative, but Burrell was studying a pattern of sunlight on the floor and did not observe him. A moment later he inquired hesitatingly:

"Is this your first marriage, Mr. Gale?" When the other did not answer he looked up and quickly added:

"I beg your pardon, sir. What led me to ask was Miss Necia. She is so—well, she is such a remarkable girl."

Gale's face had undergone a change, but he answered quietly:

"I ain't never been married."

"What?"

"When I took Alluna it wasn't the style, and neither one of us has thought much about it since."

"Oh, I see," exclaimed Burrell hurriedly. "I'll bring that list with me the first time I think about it." And, nodding amiably, he sauntered out. But his mind was in a whirl, and even after he had reached his quarters he found himself repeating:

"The other was bad enough. Poor little girl! Poor little girl!"

Gale likewise left the store and went into his house, the odd look still strong in his eyes, to find Necia posing in her new regalia for Poleon's benefit. At sight of her he fell into a strange and unexpected humor and to their amazement commanded her roughly to take the things off. His voice and manner were harsh and at utter variance with any mood he had ever displayed before.

CHAPTER IV.

THE SOLDIER FINDS AN UNTRODDEN VALLEY.

MEADE BURRELL had experienced a profound sense of pity for Necia upon learning her father's relation to Alluna, but this also largely vanished when he found that the girl was entirely oblivious to its significance. He had tried her in many subtle ways and found that she regarded the matter innocently, as customary, and therefore in the light of an accepted convention, nor did she seem to see anything in her blood or station to render her inferior to other women. She questioned him tirelessly about his sister, and he was glad of this, for it placed no constraint between them.

As for her, each day brought a keener delight. She unfolded before the Kentuckian like some beautiful woodland flower and through innumerable, unnoticed familiarities took him into her innermost confidence.

A month of this went by, and then Runnion returned. He came on an upgoing steamer. The manner of his coming was bold, for he stood fairly upon the ship's deck, and his smile was evil now, as it had been before. With him was a stranger. When the boat was at rest Runnion sauntered down the gangplank and up to the lieutenant, who stood above the landing place and who noted that the scar, close up against his hatband, was scarce healed. He accosted the officer with an insolent assurance.

"Well, I'm back again, you see, and I'm back to stay."

"Very well, Runnion. Did you bring an outfit with you?"

"Yes, and I'm pretty fat besides." He shook a well laden gold sack at the officer.

"What do you want in this place anyhow?" demanded Burrell curiously.

"None of your d——d business," the man answered, grinning.

"Be sure it isn't," retorted the lieutenant, "because it would please me right down to the ground if it were. I'd like to get you."

"I'm glad we understand each other," Runnion said, falling into conversation with the stranger, who had been surveying the town without leaving the boat. Evidently this man had a voice in Runnion's affairs, for he not only gave him instructions, but bossed the crew who handled his merchandise, and Meade Burrell concluded that he must be some incoming tenderfoot who had grub staked the desperado to prospect in the hills back of Flambeau. As the two came up past him he saw that he was mistaken. This man was no more of a tenderfoot than Runnion. On the contrary, he had a bearing of one to whom new countries are old, who had trod the edge of things all his life. There was a hint of the meat eating animal about him. His nose was keen and hawklike, his walk and movements those of the predatory beast, and as he passed by Burrell observed that his eyes were of a peculiar cruelty that went well with his thin lips. He was older by far than Runnion; but, while the latter was mean visaged and swaggering, the stranger's manner was noticeable for its repression.

Impelled by an irresistible desire to learn something about the man, the lieutenant loitered after Runnion and his companion and entered the store in time to see the latter greet "No Creek" Lee, the prospector, who had come into town for more food. Both men spoke with quiet restraint.

"Nine years since I saw you, Stark," said the miner. "Where you bound?"

"The diggings," replied Stark as Lee addressed the stranger.

"Mining now?"

"No; same old thing, but I'm grub staking a few men, as usual. One of them stays here. I may open a house in Dawson if the camp is as good as they say it is."

"This here's a good place for you."

Stark laughed noiselessly and without mirth. "Fine! There must be a hundred people living here."

"Never mind; you take it from me," said the miner positively, "and get in now on the quiet. There's something doing." His one sharp eye detected the lieutenant close by, so he drew his friend aside and began talking to him earnestly and with such evident effect as to alter Stark's plans on the moment, for when Runnion entered the store shortly Stark spoke to him quickly, following which they both hurried back to the steamer and saw to the unloading of much additional freight and baggage. From the volume and variety of this merchandise it was evident that Mr. Stark would in nowise be a burden to the community.

Burrell was not sufficiently versed in the ways of mining camps to know exactly what this abrupt change of policy meant, but that there was something in the air he knew from the mysterious manner of "No Creek" Lee and from the suppressed excitement of Doret and the trader. His curiosity got the better of him finally, and he fell into talk with Lee, inquiring about the stranger by way of an opening.

"That's Ben Stark. I knew him back in the Cassiar country," said Lee.

"Is he a mining man?"

"Well, summat. He's made and lost a bank roll that a greyhound couldn't leap over in the minin' business, but it ain't his reg'lar graft. He run one of the biggest places in the northwest for years."

"Saloon, eh?"

"Saloon and variety house—seven bartenders, that's all. He's the feller that killed the gold commissioner. Of course that put him on the hike again."

"How do you mean?"

"Well, he had a record as long as a sick man's drug bill before he went into that country, and when he put the commissioner away them Canadian officials went after him like they was killin' snakes, and it cost him all he had made to get clear. If it had happened across the line the coroner's jury would have freed him, 'cause the commissioner was drunk and started the row. But it happened right in Stark's saloon, and you know Canucks is stronger than vitriol for law and order. Not bein' his first offense, it went hard with him."

"He looks like a killer," said Burrell.

"Yes, but he ain't the common kind. He always lets the other man begin, and therefore he ain't ever done time."

"Come, now," argued the lieutenant, "if it were the other man who invariably shot first, Stark would have been killed long ago."

"I don't care what would have happened, it ain't happened, and he's got notches on his gun till it looks like a cub bear had chawed it. If you was a western man you'd know what they say about him. 'The bullet ain't been run to kill him.' That's the sayin'. You needn't grin. There's many a better man than you believes it."

"Who is it that the bullet hasn't been run to kill?" said the trader's deep voice behind them. He had finished with his duties and now sauntered forward.

"Ben Stark," said Lee, turning. "You know him, John?"

"No; I never saw him, but I know who he is; used to hear of him in the Coeur d'Alenes."

"That's him I was talking to," said the miner. "He's an old friend of mine, and he's going to locate here."

A HAMILTON MIRACLE

Gin Pills Save a Hamilton Man's Life

Remarkable Story of How Gin Pills Restored to Health and Strength a Man Dying of Bladder Trouble When Everything Else Had Failed

WRITE FOR TRIAL BOX

For more than a year, Mr. John Herman, 513 James St. Hamilton, was a puzzle to the best physicians in that city. The poor man suffered agonies. Doctors said it was bladder trouble. "Inflammation of the Bladder" they called it. Unfortunately for Mr. Herman, all the doctoring for bladder trouble did him no good.

The doctors helped him a little when he was tossing about the bed in dreadful agony. They succeeded in easing the pain and getting him up and about, but as soon as he went to work, there was another cruel attack of pain, worse than before.

Only two and a half boxes of GIN PILLS—at a cost of 50 cents per box—did for Mr. Herman what all the doctors in the big city of Hamilton could not do—they cured him.

The National Drug & Chemical Company (who prepare GIN PILLS) have known about this cure of Mr. Herman for three years. But they wanted to be sure that Mr. Herman's cure was permanent before placing the facts before the public.

Some days ago, a representative of the company called at Mr. Herman's house, 513 James Street, North. He was informed by Mrs. Herman that her husband (who is a brass polisher at the Hamilton Brass Works Company), was at work and had not lost a day on account of his former trouble since GIN PILLS cured him, three years ago.

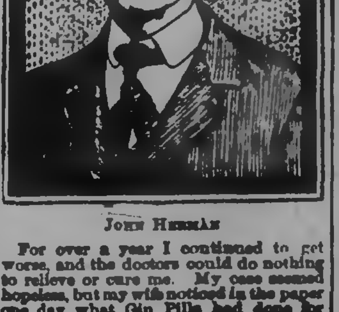
Messrs. The National Drug and Chemical Co., Toronto.

Gentlemen—

I cannot express myself strongly enough when I speak of what Gin Pills have done for me. When I remember how I suffered not so long ago from Kidney and Bladder Trouble, and how now I am healthy and well and strong and able to do a full day's work, I feel I should speak and tell other sufferers of my experience and of the wonderful merits of Gin Pills.

Something over four years ago, I was taken down with what the doctors called inflammation of the bladder. Intense pains in the back and loins, great pain and difficulty in urinating, and the agony at times confined me to bed for three or four days at a time. Poultices were laid across my back and front, and by laying in a certain position I could get relief and then get up and go to work, although frequently I would have to leave my work before nine o'clock and return home to bed.

The pain was greatest in the region of the bladder, and during the attacks, which occurred more and more frequently, amounted to unbearable agony, and I became so weak that I could not walk across the floor.



JOHN HERMAN

For over a year I continued to get worse, and the doctors could do nothing to relieve or cure me. My case seemed hopeless, but my wife noticed in the paper one day what Gin Pills had done for others, and sent for a box to try and see if they could help me.

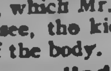
From the very first, I noticed and felt that Gin Pills were doing me good. The pain was relieved at once and the attacks began to come at longer intervals, and hope that perhaps I might be cured, returned to me once more.

I continued taking the pills for about six weeks, and then to my surprise and delight, the stone I sent you some time ago, came away from me and my pain stopped. I continued to take the pills for a short time longer, and rapidly regained health and strength. It is now three years since Gin Pills cured me. I have had no return of the trouble and I have not lost a day's work on account of it since.

You cannot understand how grateful we are for Gin Pills. There is not the slightest doubt that they saved my life, and we recommend them to anyone who complains of pains in the back or bladder.

Yours gratefully,

JOHN HERMAN,
513 James St. North, Hamilton.



Reproduction of stone that came from Mr. Herman. Exact size.

It was the kidneys that caused all the trouble in Mr. Herman's case. The kidneys are responsible for ninety-nine per cent of all Bladder Troubles. The kidneys are always responsible for Uric Acid Poisoning and Stone in the Bladder, which Mr. Herman had. You see, the kidneys are the filters of the body.

What is called Urea, is really the dead cells and other waste matter constantly formed in all parts of the body. The blood carries this waste to the kidneys. It is the duty of the kidneys to filter out the waste.

Sometimes the kidneys are weakened by hard work, are strained, and have taken cold. Then they don't do their work properly. The urea (waste matter) stays in the blood and is changed into uric acid.

This acid is a violent poison. It irritates and inflames the bladder—it forms Stone in the Bladder (Uric Acid Calculi)—and causes Rheumatism, or uric acid poisoning, of the joints and limbs.

The only way to cure these troubles is to cure the kidneys. And thus far, the only remedy that is absolutely certain to relieve—that is guaranteed to CURE—is GIN PILLS. Yes, we Guarantee GIN PILLS. Why not? Take this case of Mr. Herman! Take ten thousand other cases where GIN PILLS have been properly used. You will hear the same results—"GIN PILLS helped me"—"GIN PILLS cured when doctors failed—"I owe my life to GIN PILLS."

We say—if you have pain in the bladder, groin or back—if your urine is highly colored and scalding—if you have to urinate frequently—if you have any other trouble with Bladder or Kidneys—get six boxes of Gin Pills from your dealer. If, after taking them, you feel that they have not done you good, return the empty boxes to your dealer and he will refund your money.

Gin Pills cost 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and are sold in every drug store.

Try Them Yourself

We want you to try GIN PILLS and for a two cent stamp will send you a small box for a trial. Cut out the coupon and mail to us today.

We do this so you can see for yourself what a grand medicine they are.

But don't delay. Do it now, while you have the paper handy.

His Game of Patience.

By Gertrude Delancey.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Old Captain Blanding had two absorbing passions in life—his love for cards and his love for his daughter Thais.

It was wonderful how many young men were willing to pass their evenings at the captain's house playing with him. He was a wary old opponent and all but invincible.

The young men came by twos and threes in their best tailor made suits, with posies in their buttonholes. Often they brought offerings to the captain's daughter.

Thais accepted the gifts and the too evident good will indifferently. Sometimes when a fourth hand was needed at whist she lent her aid. Otherwise she betook herself to the parlor and practiced as diligently as if there was not a man in the house.

Aunt Letty, Captain Blanding's widowed sister, kept house for him and mothered his otherwise motherless daughter. She was a gentle soul, large hearted and small minded, who made the best doughnuts in town. By the aid of her smiles and her cakes she encouraged eligible men to frequent the captain's house, hoping that some one of them would prove acceptable to Thais.

Thais' name had been given her because of an early fondness of her father for Greek literature. Thais, despite her name, did not lean toward scholarly achievement. She was a butterfly, very beautiful to look at and very difficult to catch.

She had read a little poetry and very many romances where the heroines were all beautiful like herself and the heroes proved their devotion by astounding deeds of valor. These men, who sat evening after evening with bits of red and black pasteboard between them, evidently lacked every heroic quality.

When one by one these timid adorers laid his heart at her feet she promptly trampled upon it and sent him away smarting.

When after a few evenings he did not again appear the old captain would wonder mildly what kept him away. Sometimes he asked the victim and received a stammered excuse.

By the time the young man's place at the card table was filled the captain had ceased to remember him.

It was Sheldon King who brought Billy Smith to the house for the first time. Billy was a newcomer in Kensington and wholly unacquainted. He was a little fellow with hair of no particular shade of brown, a square, plain face and blue eyes behind glasses. He had no stories to tell, no jokes to raise a laugh, and he had never handled cards before in his life.

It took him the entire evening to learn to play pedro, but he applied his mind to it with a will, and when he went away the captain slapped him on the shoulder and told him he would make a player if he kept at it. The captain always said that to the defeated, who sometimes chewed their lips over it bitterly.

The captain conceived a great liking for Billy, and they spent many evenings together. By spring Billy had learned all the games the captain knew and could even beat him at some of them.

He came obviously for the captain's sake alone, for he brought no offerings to Thais. He had his own way to make and an invalid sister to maintain at an expensive sanitarium. This much he told the captain and was forever after silent about his affairs.

Sheldon King presently, having had his wings badly singed at the candle of Thais' indifference, ceased to be seen at the captain's card table. But Billy came unfailingly. The captain was delighted with him.

Here at last was a man who did not play to one's humor, who beat one unmercifully if he could or was beaten without showing the white feather.

The second winter Billy's sister died. He stayed away two months, and the captain openly fretted for him. Then one evening Billy appeared with a box of the captain's favorite cigars. The captain fairly wept for joy at sight of him and shook his hand twenty times.

He called Thais to see who had come. Thais came, startled by the clamor and a little disgusted when she found only Billy. She gave him a cool little hand and a cool little smile and a cool little phrase of welcome, then returned to the piano and Chaminade. She did not understand Billy, who brought cigars to her father instead of bonbons to her.

Two years went by. The circle about the captain's card table had changed many times and had dwindled to an occasional widower, silly Tom Pike and Billy. One by one the other young men had mended their hearts and offered them good as new elsewhere.

The votive offerings that now came to Thais' shrine were far less frequent. Billy brought her nothing at all, but it was wonderful how many little things he found to present the captain with. He even gave Aunt Letty a beautiful crochet hook with a chased gold handle.

More years passed and more slowly for Thais. Chaminade had ceased to charm her, and she missed the excitement of past adoration. Mr. Sweet had gone away, and Tom Pike, in despair of winning Thais, had married a woman easier to woo. There were no new lovers forthcoming, for Thais was now generally labeled dangerous. Moreover, she had ceased to be the beauty of the time.

She had reached a very trying period of her life, being too old to go in the young set, too young to go in the old set and prohibited by reason of her maidenhood from the married set.

Her dreams did not, as in the past, satisfy her. Her hero, the ideal of her imaginings, had not come. She believed now he never would come. She began to sigh when she looked in the glass. Sometimes she saw herself quite old, sitting at table pouring tea for Aunt Letty or playing cards with her father and having no interest in life beyond these two daily duties.

Thais' ideas of life were changing. She discovered that Billy Smith had a good forehead and mouth and that his hair looked better with gleams of gray in it.

Billy still came to the house as unfailingly as ever. He was almost the only single man who did come. Unconsciously almost she began to look forward to his visits, and he often found her shuffling cards against his arrival.

Billy had brightened wonderfully in these later years. He told stories and jokes and the amusing gossip of the town. He was earning a large salary and was much sought by mothers with marriageable daughters. But for some reason he continued to be free and to play cards at the captain's.

One evening he found Thais alone. She begged him rather shyly to stay, and he stayed. They sat down at the card table, and Billy dealt the pack for pedro. They played as for dear life, scarcely speaking. Then by means of a lucky ace Billy won.

He looked across at Thais, but her eyes were down. Something in her face, however, lent him courage, and he caught her hands, which were absently engaged with the cards.

"Thais!" he commanded. She looked at him.

"I win!" he said triumphantly.

"Yes," she faltered.

"It has taken a long time," he said presently. "Thais, I have never given you a present. But I have one for you which I have carried with me constantly for several years. May I give it to you now?"

"Yes," Thais said meekly.

When he had put the ring upon her finger he leaned forward and kissed her.

"It has been a long game," he said, "and one that required lots of patience and determination. You see, dearest, I fell in love with you the first time I saw you, and I made up my mind to have you, God willing. The only way I could make myself welcome here was to play cards. So I played. You'll never ask me to play cards with you after we are married, will you, dear?"

"Why not?" asked Thais wonderingly.

"Because I loathe them and have loathed them since the first game I ever learned."

"Oh, Billy!" Thais said.

And then and there she realized that the man of her heart was indeed, after all, a hero.

Baring Feet at Worship.

The India Hindoos and Mussulmans alike wear both sandals and shoes (slippers) and the latter boots also. The sandal (the word is Persian) was evidently the original covering for the feet over all southern and eastern Asia, while the shoe was probably introduced into India by the Persians, Afghans and Mo(n)gols, together with the "tip tilted" (Hittite and Etruscan) boot.

Both are usually made in India of leather, but never of pigskin, and, while the shoes are always colored red or yellow, the boots are generally brightly particolored, both among the upper classes being also richly embroidered in gold and silver and variegated silk thread and with bangles, bugles and seed pearls after the manner of the ancient Persian boots represented on Greek vases.

But, of however rare and costly elaboration, the invariable rule is to remove them after entering a private house just when stepping on to the mat or carpet on which the visitor takes his seat. They must be cast off, the right boot or shoe first, before the worshiper enters a temple or mosque, and it is still regarded as an absolute profanation to attempt to enter either fully shod.—London Athenaeum.

Keeps His Word.

A traveling man stopped at a little town in Arkansas, and while there he made inquiries of the postmaster as to the integrity and honesty of a certain doctor who lived in the next county.

"What sort of a man is Dr. Briggs?" he queried. "Is he a man that can be trusted—a good doctor?"

"Well," answered the postmaster thoughtfully, "that depends. He's been doctorin' roun' here for some years now—ain't doin' much lately, though. Seems he was sent for to go to see ol' Mis' Henderson, what's been dyin' for goin' on thirty year. Ol' lady had the noo-ralgy pretty bad. Doc' he gives her a dose o' laud'num, an' he says, 'Mis' Henderson, you'll go to sleep now, an' you won't be bothered with the noo-ralgy no mo'.'

"She went to sleep; that was las' May, an' it's gittin' to'rds fall now. She ain't waked up yet, an' she ain't never been bothered with the noo-ralgy either. As a doctor I guess Briggs ain't much, but he always keeps his word, sir—always."

Even So.

Second Hunter—Yes, that's right. In other words, it is more honored in the breach than in the observance.—Chicago News.

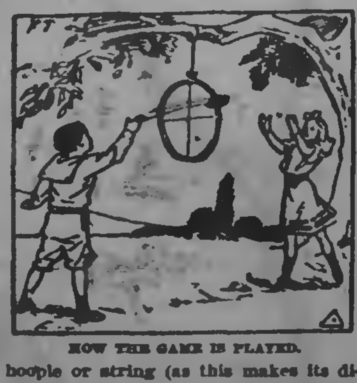
Young Folks

GAME OF HOOPLE HOP.

Played With Bean Bags and Is Full of Excitement.

Tie strings across a hoople to make four equal sections, and hang the hoople from the limb of a tree or in a doorway. The object is to stand nine or more feet away and throw a bean bag through each of the four holes to the other player without touching either the hoople or the cord.

A count of ten for the thrower is made for each successful throw; five if the bag goes through, but touches somewhere. The catcher counts ten if he catches the bag when it hits the hoople or string (as this makes its direction waver, and so it is harder to catch). The catcher counts five when he catches a clear throw (on which the thrower counts ten). The thrower becomes the catcher after the thrower has had one try for each space. The game is 200. Any number may play by taking turns, each being pitcher and catcher an equal number of times.



HOW THE GAME IS PLAYED.

The game may be made more exciting and harder by making the spaces in the hoople half size or in eighths.

"FARMER GEORGE."

A Country Loving King and an Independent Harvest Woman.

King George III., who reigned over England for nearly sixty years, was a very good natured man, and one thing he liked to do was to walk about the country lanes and talk to people who did not know who he was.

Indeed, he loved country life so much that he was called "Farmer George." One day when it was harvest time he was walking through some fields, when he noticed that in one of them there was only a woman at work.

The king, stopping for a little while to talk, asked the woman where the other workers were. "They have gone to see the king," replied the woman.

"And why didn't you go with them?" asked "Farmer George," who saw that the woman did not know him.

"I would not give a pin to see him!" exclaimed the good woman. "Besides," she said, "the others will lose a day's work, and that is more than I can afford to do, as I have five little children to work for."

King George smiled, and then, taking some money out of his purse and giving it to the woman, he said, "Well, you may tell your friends who have gone to see the king that the king came to see you!"

Then jolly "Farmer George" raised his hat and walked away, while the harvest woman could do nothing but stare after him.

The Vowels.

This is a game which will give good exercise to the mind. Some player begins by asking a question of the person next him, which must be answered in words not containing any vowel which the questioner interdicts. Thus the player says, "Have you heard Patti?" Answer without "a." The reply would be "Yes," but only once, or "No, I've not." Then the one who replied asks of his next neighbor, for instance, "Were you ever in Europe?" Answer without "e." The reply "I have never been there" would avoid the vowel interdicted. Thus the questions and answers go around the circle. Any person giving an answer containing the forbidden vowel must pay a forfeit.

NIAGARA FALLS CHOKED UP BY AN IMMENSE ICE JAM

For First Winter in Memory of White Man Huge Torrent Has Been Silenced by the Frost—Unprecedented Rise in Level of the River.

Buffalo, April 12.—Twice this year and as far as known, for the first time since the white man has come to the banks of the Niagara, the voice of the river has been mute. The first time was late in February when, following a severe southwester, the flood was frozen solid from bank to bank.

Unprecedented weather has brought about unprecedented conditions. On Wednesday of last week the worst gale of the season and the most violent that the records of the weather bureau have ever recorded for April, tore out of the southwest, and following the lakes and the channel of the Niagara, left ruin in its wake. The solid ice fields of Lake Erie were churned from end to end and piled in a huge conglomerate mass at the lower end of the lake.

At Niagara Falls there had been a heavy ice bridge in the pool below the cataract since the middle of the winter. Under the impact of the mass of ice from the lake above and the added flood brought down by the wind, the bridge gave way and began to surge down the rapids; but before it could win freedom in the ample waters of Lake Ontario, the wind shifted again to the north. Instantly the moving floes packed at the mouth of the river. Each instant of cold congealed the pack more solidly and each hour brought added pressure from above.

Unable to escape by its natural channels the level of the river rose by leaps and bounds. The highest flood level recorded from previous years is 28 feet above normal. Friday night the river was 40 feet above normal.

Water on Saturday poured over the sills of the power house of the Ontario Power Co., which had been placed at what all engineers thought to be a safe height above any and all possible dangers, and flooded the machines. Yesterday, however, the power house was cleared of ice and water, a score of experts have been at work drying and cleaning the six monster ten thousand h.p. generators, that, with the numerous smaller electrical apparatus were submerged in 20 feet of water as well as the hydraulic machinery in the pit below the generator room.

Temporary connection was made through the courtesy of the Electrical Development Co., with their works and the steam reserve plants at Rochester, Syracuse and Seneca and elsewhere are being used to supply a portion of the load in the State of New York. The intention is to supply the public service corporations first, such as railroads and lighting companies, and afterwards the manufacturers and private users.

No permanent damage is done to the power house and its machinery.

CHARGE LAID AGAINST CAMP

Said That Man Was Ordered Away When He Was Sick.

Port Arthur, April 12.—Barrister A. E. Cole, accompanied by G. McNabb and G. Senath, Woodsmen, called on Magistrate Dobie Saturday with a view to laying information for a charge of manslaughter against the foreman of the Northern Construction Co.'s camp No. 3, at Kashabowie.

It is alleged he was the cause of the death of George Seville, a laborer, by ordering him from camp while sick and in a destitute condition, without medical attention. Seville, unable to walk, was thrown on a tote wagon and died en route to the railway.

Dobie was unable to accept the information because it was out of his jurisdiction, and also because there was no coroner's inquest.

Mr. Cole has had considerable experience with men from the lumber and railway camps, and says that the way men are robbed, abused and neglected is worse than the old conditions of slavery, for there the value of a slave, to say $1,000, made an employer careful, but a dead laborer can be replaced by application to an employment agent, with a good chance that the victims' relatives do not know of his death to enquire about any wages that may be due.

He may make an appeal to Ottawa.

UNIQUE SALVATION ARMY WEDDING

Toronto, April 12.—Brothers married sisters at Massey Hall Saturday night and the ceremony was performed by the father of the charming brides, Commissioner Coombs of the Salvation Army. The grooms are both army officers, Brigadier Harry Morris and Staff Captain Arthur Morris, and the brides' captains, Nellie Elizabeth Coombs and Daisy Lillian Coombs.

"Arthur, here, has been my private secretary," said the commissioner before calling them to the front of the platform, "but I did not know it was the duty of my private secretary to steal my daughter."

The double wedding was really the crowning feature of the celebration held Saturday night on the occasion of the birthday of the grand old General Booth. Messages were read, the one that was sent to the general from the Canadian corps, and others received from various commanding officers congratulating the commissioner and the happy couples that were married.

Lumber Company Sold.

Vancouver, April 12.—The Abbottsford Lumber Co. has been sold to Trethewey Bros. of Harriston for $375,000. The proposed sale of the Canadian Pacific Lumber Co. of Port Moody, under option several months for a half million, has been declared off.

LATEST NEWS AS TOLD IN DESPATCHES

Huge Cotton Shipment.

St. Paul, Minn., April 12.—One million bales of cotton to be moved from Mobile, Ala., to Yokohama, Japan.

This is Jim Hill's giant contract this year—one of the greatest transportation tasks ever undertaken.

The landing of the contract marks a new era for the south, for the northwest and Japan.

It means a new market for the south, more work for the railroad men and across the country, and a mammoth increase in Japan's new cotton industry.

And for the wizard of the north—grizzled Jim Hill—it means another daring adventure added to his record.

Her Majesty's Health.

London, April 12.—Queen Alexandra is enjoying a charmingly quiet time in company with her sister, the Dowager Empress of Russia. They go about together, carefully concealing the signs of their royal state, paying quiet visits to personal friends and charitable institutions. The Queen is now fully recovered to her normal strength, which equals the marvelous vitality of the King.

Daddy Takes Tea Now.

London, April 12.—The new children's act proved a great boon Saturday to the tea places at the popular holiday resorts. Parents being unable legally to take their children into the barrooms had tea with them instead. Enquiries at many tea shops did not reveal a single instance of the children being left alone there while their parents visited the bars.

Hired Man's Trick.

Brockville, April 12.—Wm. Turner, a farm hand, borrowed a horse and buggy from his employer, John Rape, of Toledo, to drive to Athens. Turner headed towards Brockville, and putting up a plausible story sold the outfit to an Addison farmer named Brown for a gold watch and a small sum of money. He has managed to get across the border.

Make Machinery In Russia.

St. Petersburg, April 12—The American "machinery trust" is expected to begin manufacturing in Russia on a large scale this summer.

Driving-Rod Broke.

Chatham, April 12.—As the 10 o'clock C.P.R. was pulling into the station here Saturday evening from the west the driving-rod of the engine snapped in two. The train was almost at the station and was not going very fast. On this account here was no other damage. If the accident had happened a few seconds sooner the train would have been on a bridge and going at a good rate.

Small Boys Run Away.

North Bay, April 12.—Three North Bay boys under the age of ten, Willie Hanley, Leo Doyle and Justin St. James, recently in trouble on account of a penchant for breaking into stores, ran away from home Saturday and have not yet been located, although the Hanley boy was seen in Ottawa.

Bad Fire at Pembroke.

Pembroke, April 12.—Fire in the large hardware store of Dunlop & Co. on Main street about 6 o'clock yesterday morning, destroyed the building and contents, and then spread to the store houses of Fenton & Smith, and the residences of James Stewart and Edward Jones.

Contractor Charged.

Montreal, April 12.—The local police have at last been able to lay their hands upon Omer Dubois, the railway contractor on the New Brunswick end of the National Trancontinental, who, it is alleged, did up the men employed by him and other people to the extent, it is said, of several thousand dollars. Dubois is now at the police headquarters here. He admits his identity, but declares that he is not guilty as charged.

Police Guard Detective's Body.

New York, April 12.—Aroused by the receipt of a threatening letter to fear that blackmailers or vengeful criminals would attempt to blow up the house where the body of Lieut. Joseph Petrosino lies or the church where his funeral is to be held, the authorities have placed a heavy guard in and around both house and church. Thirty uniformed policemen are kept constantly on duty.

SIX PERISH IN A FIRE

Quarter Million Dollar Blaze in London, Mass., Has Fatal Results.

Lennox, Mass., April 12.—Six people lost their lives, three others were badly burned and a property loss of between $200,000 and $300,000 was caused by a fire in the heart of the business section of this town early yesterday. Four business blocks, two dwellings and two other structures were destroyed in a section bounded by Franklin, Main, Housatonic and Church streets. The fire is believed to have started in the Clifford building from spontaneous combustion.

The dead: Edward C. Ventress, aged 41 years, electrician; Mrs. Edward C. Ventress, aged 35; Miss Leslie Ventress, aged 12; Miss Alice French, aged 41, bookkeeper; Miss Isabel Cook, aged 40, bookkeeper; Miss Mary Sparks, aged 26, a school teacher.

The loss of life occurred in the Clifford Block, in which a tremendous explosion occurred.

While the fire was at its height Miss French was seen to climb out of a flame-filled room on to a verandah on the second storey with her night clothing and hair ablaze.

Staggering to the railing she leaped to the sidewalk, landing in a heap within five or six feet of the blazing walls. Some of the horrified onlookers attempted to rush in to drag her out, but the intense heat drove them back, and not until several hours later was the body recovered.

Death Sentence on Girl of 20.

London, April 12.—Alice Cleaver, aged 20, a laundress of Gladesmore road, Tottenham, was sentenced to death at the Old Bailey on a charge of killing her 10-weeks-old baby by throwing it from a railway car window.

B. C. Government Buildings.

Victoria, B.C., April 12.—The Government is securing options on the entire block whereon are the legislative buildings and drill halls to provide for new buildings.

ENGLISH POET PASSES AWAY

Algernon Charles Swinburne Dead in His Seventy-Second Year.

London, April 12.—Algernon Chas. Swinburne, the poet and essayist, died Saturday morning. He had been suffering with influenza, which developed into pneumonia.

He was born in London on April 5, 1837, the son of Admiral Swinburne and Lady Henrietta Ashburnham, daughter of the third Earl of Ashburnham. He was educated in France and England, and as a poet he was especially well-known for his facile metrical invention.

A. C. SWINBURNE.

He was a bachelor and lived at The Pines, Pitney.

It was in 1861 that Swinburne published his first volume, "The Queen Mother" and "Rosamond," and not a year has passed since then that he has not contributed to the world of letters one or more books of prose or poetry.

NEWSPAPERS OF CITY SCORED BY A TEMPERANCE SPEAKER

Mr. G. W. Powell Says the Local Option People Are Not Getting a Square Deal From Local Press—Cites Some Cases Against the Newspapers.

The Sunday afternoon meeting at the Crystal in the interests of temperance yesterday was largely attended. The meeting was in charge of the Inthon Adult Bible Class, of the George street church, and was presided over by Mr. W. B. Warne. An enjoyable feature was a selection rendered by a quartette from the same class.

The chairman, in his opening remarks, said that he considered it an honor to be there to represent the class, and to show which side he is on. The class is a unit in the matter, and when the invitation was given to take charge of the meeting it did not take long to decide that it would be good opportunity to show their colors.

The first speaker called on was Mr. G. W. Powell. In opening he said that the Inthon Bible class had from seventy-five to one hundred voters, and at least one hundred workers, who are all on the right side in the fight with liquor. The speaker was not a preacher, and so would not take a text, but he would take a motto as the basis o this remarks. "Work as everything depended upon work, and pray as if everything depended on prayer." Work, how? By talking about local option. When a political campaign is on everyone talks and does all he can to win others to his way of thinking. Why not in this campaign? This is going to be the most important year so far in the history of our city. Everyone interested in the welfare of the city should go in with a determination to win, and there is no doubt about winning.

In the second place, all friends of temperance and of justice should stand by each other. It was evident that a boycott was intended. The names of those who signed the local option petition are being published, and the speaker understood that it was done at the expense of the liquor interests. There are many business and professional men whose names are there. The publication could be for no other purpose than, in a spirit of spite, to try to injure these men, because they had done as their conscience dictated. It was, therefore, the duty of all friends of the temperance cause, as well as all lovers of fair play and justice, to stand by those who were threatened with injury, and in this way, as well as in others, to present a united front to the enemy. The speaker regretted that there was not a newspaper in the city that would treat this question fairly. Matter contributed by the temperance league has not only to be paid for, but it had to be marked so as to let the public know that the paper assumed no responsibility for it, but the liquor interests could secure the publication of the petition without any such mark. Why is it that the city press never reports cases against liquor dealers? asked the speaker. Are the reporters paid to keep still in these cases, or are they simply showing the sympathy of the journals they represent? In one of the city papers last night there appeared an article under the heading "a temperance lecture," in which all the old worn out lies that have done service for the saloon for years were togged out in a new dress and presented to the public under a false heading. Was that an expression of the views of the paper, or was it also paid for, and if so, why not so indicated?

He urged the necessity for prayer, as well as work, and suggested monthly temperance prayer meetings in the churches, and Sunday schools, as well as private prayer.

The address, which was closely listened to, and frequently applauded, was closed with a brief reference to the progress made in the United States, and the sweeping victory of last week in Michigan, when twenty counties went "dry," putting over 600 saloons out of business.

MR. F. C. MOORE.

In the unavoidable absence of Mr. Bellehem, who was to have been the second speaker, Mr. F. C. Moore took his place. He urged the necessity for individual option in the matter. Every one ought to be careful about his own life; let it be such that it will represent the thing we advocate. The object is not to crush the individual, but to put down an evil and make for the betterment of mankind. Strong drink is a stumbling block in the path of the individual, and is stopping the progress of the nation. Let us go out in love to all mankind. We want the salvation of the hotelkeeper. Reference was made to a saloonkeeper who came under the influence of truth, closed his house, and refused to sell his license. The power of prayer was then emphasized and the speaker urged the need of a revival of a desire for the breaking down of all the strongholds of sin.

Rev. Mr. Potter spoke briefly, explaining that the printing of the names was not the work of the Temperance League, as some had supposed, but of the liquor interests.

FRANK VARDY WAS REMANDED

Appeared Before Magistrate Edmison Saturday Morning—Case Was Enlarged Until Friday Morning

Frank Vardy, one of the two men who caused all the trouble in Havelock last week and who was captured and brought here and placed in jail, came up for a preliminary hearing Saturday morning.

As the hearing was not ready to be proceeded with Magistrate Edmison enlarged the case until Friday, April 23rd. The brother of the prisoner is still on the lookout for him, and he may yet be caught in time for both men to be tried together.

ARE AWAITING A ROYAL BIRTH

The Hague, April 12.—The birth of an heir to the throne of Holland is confidently expected the coming week, and if all goes well, the outburst of popular enthusiasm will be such as has seldom been witnessed among the placid Dutch. There has been no royal birth in the Netherlands since that of Queen Wilhelmina herself 27 years ago.

Thrice before, since the marriage of "Little Wilhelmina" as the Hollanders affectionately call the Queen, have the hopes of the country been raised only to be cast down again. The constant fear of the Dutch has been that the House of Orange would die out with a childless sovereign, and that Holland would pass under the rule of a German prince.

AN INFORMER BROKE LAW

Detectives Buy Liquor for Indians in Cornwall—Threat to Prosecute Informers.

Cornwall, April 12.—An unusual Police Court case was tried here on Saturday, when a local hotel man was charged with selling or supplying liquor to Indians on seven different occasions. The complaints were laid by two young men in the employ of the Indian Department, J. A. Robertson of Ottawa and C. A. Ramsay of Vars, who were in town for a week or so posing as insurance agents.

The first charge, that of selling to an Indian named Jake Angus, was proven on the Indian's own testimony, and a fine of $100 imposed. In the second case, serving liquor to Peter Beck, it transpired that Beck went into the bar with the detectives, who paid for his liquor, and who drank with him. The detectives admitted going in with the Indians and buying them liquor, and thereby hangs the sequel of this tale.

The hotelman was fined $50 and costs for supplying liquor to Beck, and after the defendant's counsel had threatened to have Robertson and Ramsay prosecuted for buying liquor for the Indians, the court adjourned. Later on, all the other cases were dropped.

A DOUBLE SHOOTING

Husband and Bride of Three Weeks Found Dead in Their Room.

Special to the Review

Portland, Me., April 12.—Samuel Kline, 25 years old, recently of New York and his bride of three weeks, Ida Braunekline, aged 21 years, were found dead from bullet wounds today on the floor of their room at 142 Hancock street. While Coroner Jas. A. Martin believes it was a case of murder and suicide, he has not decided which of the victims did the shooting.

REJOICINGS MARK GENERAL BOOTH'S EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY

Aged Founder of World's Greatest Rescue Force is Deluged With Felicitations From all Over the Globe—Earl Grey Sends Message.

Toronto, April 12.—The Salvation Army on Sunday held special meetings in honor of General Booth's 80th birthday. In the morning meetings were held at all their halls, while afternoon and evening mass meetings were held in Massey Hall.

Premier Whitney presided at the former, and the platform included representative speakers from the pulpit, bench, political leaders and philanthropical organizations.

Telegrams were read from His Excellency Earl Grey and many prominent people in the Dominion.

In the evening Mayor Oliver unveiled a portrait of the general, painted by Foster, and a boys' band was dedicated. During this service, speeches recently made by the general were reproduced on a phonograph, and many addresses regarding his life were given.

London, April 12.—With the rising of the sun upon England Saturday, there began the most remarkable celebration of which the world has record. It ran completely around the globe with that day's light, embraced men of all races, complexions and degree, was observed with equal fervor in semi-polar frost and under the equator, and was the occasion of such an outpouring of love, gratitude, goodwill and congratulation, all directed upon one man, as surely no other one man has ever received.

General William Booth, founder, head and director of the Salvation Army, was 80 years old. Not alone the thousands of his officers and millions of his soldiers in fifty-four countries joined in observing the day, but the general's modest house was doubtless, almost submerged in a flood of messages from great men and good in all the lands.

William Booth was born in Nottingham, England. His father was a merchant, for a time fairly well to do. The family was earnestly Episcopalian. When he was only 15 years old, young Booth wandered purposelessly one night into a Methodist chapel and became a member of the Methodist Church.

He started out, a boy, 15 or 16 years old, as a field or lay preacher, holding services in the slum streets of Nottingham, standing on a chair or a box at a corner while he preached and pleaded. Ruffians tried to break up his meetings, pelting him with stones and filth. He resented nothing, defended himself against nothing but, smiling quietly while the verbal and material missiles flew, pleaded on for souls.

When he was 20 the exigencies of earning his bread took him to London, where, without a pause, he threw himself into the work in the great slums of the East End. In a few months he was a favorite and well-known preacher. On May 29, 1858, he was regularly ordained a minister of the Methodist Church.

From that time his work grew with amazing rapidity and soon his own nickname of "General" suggested the establishment upon military lines of an army which has become the huge institution known the world over.

The Earl to the General.

London, April 12.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—General Booth has received a birthday message from Earl Grey wishing him continued health and happiness and adding: "There are many in Canada who are better and happier for your life's work."

Sorrento Would Honor Novelist.

Sorrento, Italy, April 12.—A delegation from the municipality from Sorrento, headed by the mayor, went yesterday to Saint Agnello to beg for the honor of having Marion Crawford's body lie at Sorrento. Mrs. Crawford replied that, although she appreciated the honor highly, if her husband's body remained in Italy, it must lie at Saint Agnello, where he lived and worked.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Mr. John Chamber of Toronto is an applicant for the vacant commissionship of parks at London, Ont.

Du Maurier's play "An Englishman's Home," was hissed off the stage at Berlin Saturday night.

The Grand Trunk half-yearly report shows £443,078 available for dividends. The net profits were £900,487.

Mr. S. C. Fox of Hamilton had an exciting struggle with a man whom he caught trying to break into his house.

For the first time since the Spanish war the United States army is recruited up to its full strength of 77,000 men.

George Kilkinson, aged 80, walked to Gananoque, 22 miles, and then wanted to walk back, but relatives put him on a train.

John Green of London, Ont., was arrested Saturday at Brantford for threatening to blow up a house. The bomb that he made the bluff with was nothing more dangerous than a bottle of perfume.

CASTRO IS THROWN OUT EXPELLED FROM MARTINIQUE

Despite Protestation That His Health Was Poor, ex-President is Carried on Stretcher to Steamer and Deported to France by Authorities.

Port de France, April 12.—Cipriano Castro, ex-president of Venezuela, was on Saturday ignominiously expelled from the Island of Martinique by the French Government.

He protested to the last against his expulsion, but his protests were in vain. He is now on board the French line steamship Versailles bound for St. Nazaire, France.

Official notice was serve on Castro Saturday morning of the decision of the French Government that he must leave the island within nine hours from the receipt of such notice and that the commissary of police at Fort de France had been charged with the execution of the order. The ex-President was furious with indignation, and strove throughout the day to find some excuse that would be satisfactory to the Colonial Government, whereby he would not be compelled to obey the order, and to this end later in the afternoon summoned a lawyer and physician to certify that he was unable to leave the country.

The affair created a great sensation, and long before the police made their appearance at the hotel crowds had gathered, which later were joined by the consuls representing the various powers, who showed great interest in the expulsion of what one of them termed the "common enemy of peace." Castro, who, during his few days at Fort de France, has had very little communication with anybody, locked himself in his room, in company with his brother Carmelo, and his secretary, and for a time refused to reply to the summons of the police officials.

At the very last moment the governor and public prosecutor decided to have another medical examination made.

Accordingly a medical commission composed of Drs. Rouvier Costet and Barbe proceeded with the examination, in order to establish definitely if Castro's health was such that he could make the voyage. The consultations of the physicians continued for more than half an hour, and they agreed that the life of the ex-President would not be jeopardised by his removal to the steamer and the return voyage across the ocean.

At 8.30 a force of gendarmes went to Castor's room and he was placed on a mattress, refusing to put on his clothes, and carried on a stretcher to the steamer, a distance of more than a mile.

CANADA AND THE BAHAMAS

Montreal, April 12.—F. W. Thompson, vice-president of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Limited, who has just arrived from a two months' sojourn in the Bahamas, says that the governor, Sir William Grey Wilson, states that a conference of West India officials will take place in London in June, when a committee will be formed to study the question of better trade relations between the British West Indies and the Dominion of Canada. The Ottawa Government will be approached during the present year by a delegation from the islands. It is also understood that a movement will eminate from Montreal Board of Trade favoring a steamship service between the St. Lawrence and Nassau.

He likewise says that a good many people in the Bahamas favor a straight absorption of the islands by the Dominion.

Sir Wilfrid Recuperates.

Mount Clemens, Mich., April 12.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Premier of the Dominion of Canada, and several members of his official family, including some Cabinet Ministers, arrived here Sunday in a special train. Lady Laurier has been here at one of the Bath hotels and it develops that she, with Mme. Brodeur, wife of a Cabinet Minister, Major Chapleau and others arrived in a special car three days ago. Lady Laurier is taking the baths and that is what Sir Wilfrid and the others will do.

"INVERLOCK," AT SANDY LAKE, DESTROYED BY FIRE

Summer Resort Owned by Mr. W. J. Irwin, Burned to the Ground—Loss is in the Neighborhood of $10,000.

"Inverlock" the beautiful summer resort on Sandy Lake, owned by Mr. W. J. Irwin, was totally destroyed by fire on Saturday afternoon. The loss is nearly $10,000, only a small amount of insurance being carried.

The fire broke out in a shed in close proximity to the dwelling, and it is supposed that it was caused by a spark falling on the roof of the out building. The fire spread readily from the shed to the dwelling, and Mr. Irwin and his family were unable to do anything to stop the flames. So quickly did the fire accomplish the destruction of the buildings that only a small quantity of the household effects was saved. The loss on the building is placed at $7,000 and the contents destroyed were worth in the vicinity of $1,500.

"Inverlock" was one of the most popular resorts at the lake, and it will likely be rebuilt.

HORSE DID A JOHN GILPIN PERFORMANCE

Made Lively Dash for Liberty on Hunter St.—Fall Wound Up the Runaway

An exciting runaway occurred this morning shortly after 10 o'clock. A horse attached to a delivery waggon of W. G. Bourley's grocery store took when left standing outside a Hunter street residence where the driver was delivering some parcels. The animal, which was a spirited one, turned into George street, probably with the intention of making for his stable, which is at the back of the store on Charlotte street. Turning down George street at a mad gallop, in which the rig and a number of citizens figured in some close shaves, the horse became more frightened, but on reaching the corner of Charlotte and George streets, tripped, fell and slid right across the street, and was quickly caught by a couple of men who happened to be standing on the corner. The horse sustained a few bruises when it fell but this was all the damage done.

A clerk from the store arrived on the scene and unhitched the animal and took it to the stable.

A LESSON IN ECONOMICS

The Yorkshire Post reviews the operations of the big carpet mills at Halifax, near Huddersfield, England, for last year. There was a loss of $307,000 against an average annual profit for the three years previous of $855,000. The chairman of the concern pointed out as a prime cause of last year's reverse the monetary crisis in the United States. This resulted in the American shipments amounting to only 5,093,000 yards of carpet, against 9,450,000 yards in 1907. The establishment has been in existence for seventy-five years.—Trade Review

What plainer illustration of the tariff-problem could be furnished to the student of business affairs than this. The United States is the market for Yorkshire carpets. The Americans buy these carpets. If the Americans made their own carpets the output of business of Yorkshire would be transferred to the United States. Americans cannot make these carpets at the Yorkshire price and live as carpet weavers do in the United States. Free trade means that to rival Yorkshire, the Americans must do as Yorkshire does. Will they do it? Not while enterprise, ambition, a hope for the future welfare of the weaver and of the commonwealth inspires them to seek to equalize human comfort and human opportunities.

DEAR! DEAR!

"Canada has come to regard American protection as a permanent folly and takes but a languid interest in adjacent tariff tinkering."—The Globe.

"And thus the native hue of resolution is sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought," for who could think upon the benighted condition of that forlorn and helpless object of tariff-tyranny the U.S. without realizing to what base uses it has come. Look at the U.S. (in the light of what the Globe says above). What is it but a poor craven-spirited, "busted community" with neither credit in the money market nor reputation nor wealth, nor, in fact—one redeeming feature—all of course because of its insane (?) desire to protect itself by means of a tariff.

EDITORIAL NOTES

"The Knockers," is a new American book by a young College graduate, who was about to become a missionary, but on finding that Higher Criticism was not yet satisfied with its efforts, proceeded to attack it in a trenchant satire.

The Cape to Cairo railway will be completed, it is said, in three or four years. It will be possible then to travel from one end of Africa to the other in ten or eleven days, the distance being 6,400 miles. The railway will do more to open up the dark continent than anything else, but when it is opened up there is very little for the trouble.

"He said that the excavations in Babylonia had supplied external corroborations to the stories, the scenes of many, such as the Garden of Eden, the building of the Ark, and the distribution of the races, having been laid in Babylonia. Many of the discoveries had shown the scholars to be wrong and the old record to be right.

To the scientific objector he would admit that the Bible is not a textbook of physical science and did not anticipate the discoveries of modern science, but he argued that it gave in popular ideas an impressionist picture of creation which was substantially correct, and to which the modern Christian could follow the example of St. Augustine or Thomas Aquinas and give a liberal interpretation. "Then these chapters will be found to stand out, not for their essential discord with science, but rather for their wonderful harmony with it," he said."—Rev. Prof. Orr at Toronto.

The thrift of the French people is proverbial, and concrete illustrations of it are by no means uncommon.

The American Review of Reviews for April quotes from a letter written by an American visitor to Paris, which describes how a bond issue of $10,000,000 of Paris municipal bonds brought offers amounting to $250,000,000, although the bonds bore only three per cent. interest. After the war of 1871 France had to pay five per cent. on her bonds, but this rate has now been reduced to three per cent., and her own citizens take all her bonds. Not only this, but they have also absorbed an amount of foreign bonds which is estimated at over $6,000,000,000. They practically own the debt of Spain, a large part of that of Italy, Turkey and Egypt and the smaller countries of Europe, and $2,250,000,000 of Russian obligations, assumed since Russia became their ally. The Government encourages its people to save. They want them to invest in bonds, and then to borrow upon these bonds in order to buy more. It is said that the average size of the loans made by the big credit companies with their thousands of branches, is less than $20 each. If money alone made a nation, rich France might feel somewhat elated, but the population does not increase as her wealth increases, and men are more than money.—Christian Guardian.

WORK THAT WEAKENS

Booth's Kidney Pills Have Done Great Service for People Who Work in Peterborough

Many Peterborough people work every day in some strained unnatural position, bending constantly over a desk, riding on jolting wagons or cars, bending over heavy house work, lifting, reaching, pulling, all these strains tend to wear, weaken and injure the kidneys until they fall behind in their work of filtering the poisons from the blood. Booth's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, put new strength in bad backs. Peterborough cures prove it.

Mrs. W. Huycke of 21 Louis street, Peterborough, Ont., says:—"Mr. Huycke had frequently suffered with backache. At times the pains in the small of the back would become so severe that he would be unable to straighten himself up without much suffering. He could not stoop or lift anything of consequence and his general health had been run down for some long time. He had tried a number of different remedies but didn't find relief until on advice of a friend he procured Booth's Kidney Pills at McDermid & Jury's Pharmacy and commenced treatment. He soon found relief. The pains left his back and he strengthened. He had no return of the trouble since and speaks very highly of Booth's Kidney Pills."

THE LOCAL OPTION MOVEMENT IN THE CITY

The Matter Appearing in This Department is Furnished by the Peterborough Temperance and Moral Reform League Which Has Arranged for its Publication.

Last Monday night the Peterborough City Council passed a resolution instructing the city officials to prepare a local option bylaw for submission to the ratepayers on the 1st of January next year, providing it was found that the names on the petition presented to the council were found to comply with the requirements of the law. As there are over 500 more names on the list than the law requires and as these names have all been checked over carefully with the voters list, it means that the citizens of Peterborough will be called upon next January to decide whether or not they will allow the liquor traffic to continue in operation in the city. It is a question on which the lives of some citizens, at least will depend.

The fact that although the law requires that only 25 per cent of the ratepayers of the city shall sign a petition asking for the submission of a local option bylaw to the rate-payers over one-third of the ratepayers of Peterborough have signed the petition, is an encouraging omen that the citizens intend arising in their might to banish the bar. Many more signatures than were secured might have been obtained had the canvassing for signatures been pushed more energetically as it might have been had it been necessary. While upwards of 1700 ratepayers signed the petition this does not necessarily mean that all of these will vote for the bylaw. It may be taken for granted, however, that the great majority of them will. The fight for local option is now under way. It is the most important question that the citizens of Peterborough have ever been called upon to decide at the polls.

Cardinal Vaughan's Views

The outspoken manner in which the dignitaries of the Catholic church express their opinions on prohibition, has done much to assist the temperance movement that is sweeping over the world. Cardinal Vaughan, one of the best known dignitaries of the Catholic church has made the following statement in regard to the fight to do away with the liquor traffic; "It is a mockery to ask us to put down drunkenness by moral and religious means, when the Legislature facilitates the multiplication of incitements to intemperance on every side You might as well call upon me as the captain of a sinking ship, and say, "Why don't you pump the water out," when you are scuttling the ship in every direction. If you will cut off the supply of temptation, I will be bound, by the help of God, to convert drunkards; but until you have taken off this perpetual supply of intoxicating drink, we never can cultivate the fields."

What is Your Vote Worth

Recently a reputable citizen of Peterborough was approached by another who asked him if he was going to vote for local option. The good citizen replied that while he admitted that there was no moral ground for permitting the liquor traffic it paid some thousands of dollars a year towards the taxes of Peterborough. He thought that this seemed well worth considering. In effect the following dialogue then took place;

"What will you take for your vote."

"You insult me, sir. I would not sell my vote for any money."

"Yes, that sound all right but they say that every man has his price."

"You anger me by continuing the insult. You are deceived by classing me with those who would barter their vote."

The no-license advocate turned the conversation to another topic until it was apparently forgotten then said;

"How much actual benefit do you get from the money paid in taxes, by the liquor traffic in Peterborough? Will it lower your taxes, all things being equal, one dollar?"

After a rapid calculation the respectable citizen said that probably it would not make more than seventy-five cents difference with him personally, but the money was a large sum to come back to the town. Then said the no-license advocate.

"You will not sell your vote for any money but in this way you vote for license to save yourself seventy-five cents. You are a cheap one."

My friend, "How much will you take for your vote?" If you insist upon selling it your neighbor might afford, from a money point of view, to pay you seventy-five cents and keep temptation away from his boy.

Compensation

Occasionally we hear the old argument advanced that when we cut off the 23 licenses in Peterborough, we should give some compensation to the men now in the liquor business in Peterborough. A woman who signed herself "A pauper from the liquor traffic," wrote recently to the Detroit Journal stating why she did not believe in the arguments for compensation. There are women in Peterborough who might write letters to the same effect. She said;

"Twelve years ago I married a mechanic in a town in Sanilac county. He was bright and intelligent and capable of earning $600 a year. He got into the habit of going to the barrooms, first for company and then for drinks until I had to take in washing to support myself and children.

"After years of poverty and misery two months ago he died of delirium tremens. He never was a bad man but was lured to his doom, and I at middle age am left a pauper with two children to raise. There are a dozen men in this village that will soon follow him to their graves. Only for liquor we would have been the happiest couple in the country. About the time that I got married, a chum of mine married a bartender. He afterwards got a saloon of his own, and eight years ago he purchased a building that he turned into a hotel for $1500. It cost $500 to make the changes. This building for liquor purposes he says is worth $10,000. He has also bought a farm, has a race horse two bull dogs and an auto. His wife has four silk dresses and a seal skin sacque. In ten years he got $3000 of my husband's earnings.

"Now, if local option is carried in the county, he wants compensation. He no doubt wants about $8000 on one hotel and a pension of about $1000 a year for not having a business to make maniacs, drunkards, suicides, tramps, orphan children, destitute wives and starving widows.

"The first thing we know hangmen will be wanting compensation for lost business in States where capital punishment has been abolished. I will send the price of my next day's washing to help purchase a coat of arms for the fellow who works against the bill with the compensation clause in it. A Representative or Senator who would vote for such a measure could not get the votes of three honest men in our State."

Campaign Notes

Lindsay is now getting ready for a local option campaign next January. As a result of addresses delivered in leading churches in Lindsay on March 28th, it is expected that very shortly the temperance committees of the various Lindsay churches will meet to consider the making of arrangements for a local option campaign.

The gospel temperance meeting in the Crystal on Sunday afternoon at 4.15 to which the public is invited, will be in charge of members of the George street Methodist Adult Bible Class. There will be excellent music and speeches. Those who are interested in the local option campaign in Peterborough should attend.

Speaking at a temperance meeting in Toronto recently Senator Frank a Parker of Chicago, said that the liquor traffic is doomed because it is contrary to the spirit of economy which is becoming absolutely necessary to the life and development of a nation. Alcohol, he said, is the last great scourge of man kind, and it will be abolished just as the others have been.

NOT RESPONSIBLE

The President of the City Temperance League wishes it to be distinctly understood that the League is not in any way responsible for the publication of the names attached to the petition for local option.

LONDON FIRM ON THE LINE

W. A. Sparrow and Co. Write to Turner and Sons for Catalogue

The firm of J. J. Turner & Sons is certainly enjoying a wide publicity. An idea of the extent to which the local manufactory is known may be obtained from the fact that Mr. Turner received a letter this morning from W. A. Sparrow & Co., London, England, who asked for a catalogue, as they want to buy some goods for shipment to Australia.

St. John's Easter Notes

Over 430 communicants made their Easter communion in St John's yesterday. Very large congregations attended all the services. This also applies to the children's Easter service at 3.15, at which each child presented their Lenten mite box at the Altar rail, the amount reaching the sum of $27.47. After the service the children again assembled in school when the Rev. Canon Davidson distributed the prizes to the most regular and studious scholars of the season.

Notwithstanding the arduous work of the choir in the "Crucifixion" last week, they assembled in record numbers at both services yesterday, there being over 45 in attendance.

The Ven. Archdeacon Warren and Rev Canon Davidson thanked the choristers for their splendid rendering of the Easter music.

Mozart's "Gloria" sung by the choir and the "Hallelujah" chorus, played by Mr R. J Devey, concluded a happy and memorable day for St. John's.

SIDEWALK BURNED

Grass Fire Causes Blaze on Concession St. To-day.

A telephone alarm was sent in at 12.25 from Concession street, East City today noon. The sidewalk on fire was the cause of the alarm and about 1000 feet of the walk was burned.

A grass fire was responsible for the blaze. The damage amounted to about twenty-five dollars.

HAVELCOK

Havelock, April 10.—The wind on Wednesday night was perhaps the fiercest that has raged in this vicinity in many a year. Blown down chimneys were common occurrences. The large front glass in Dr. Holdcroft's residence was blown in by the mighty wind.

The Woman's Auxiliary of St. John's church held their weekly meeting on Wednesday at the residence of Mrs. Carmichael. This society is at present preparing for a large sale of work to be held some time during the latter part of April.

Mr. Thomas Patterson will sell by public auction on April 19th, his house and lot at the corner of Ontario and Union streets, and all his household furniture. Mr. Patterson is moving to Walkerton, where he has been transferred by the C.P.R.

The C.P.R. will, in the near future, commence operations on a long siding to the west of the town. It will join the main line at the distance semaphore, run along the south side of the main line, cross Concession street, and then join the present yards. At the council meeting on Monday evening the company received permission to put the crossing over Concession street, on condition that the approaches be built and kept in a satisfactory condition. The idea of the new siding is to run trains out on that are made up already to go west, or for trains coming in from the west stop on in case the yard is blocked, and at the same time allow other trains to use the main line. A similar crossing was built a few years ago to the east of the village.

The rooms over the bank occupied by the bank staff are being renovated and will also be refurnished.

GIRLS' GUILD

A Girls' Guild in connection with St John's church was organized at a meeting at the residence of Mrs A E Barret on Thursday evening last. The following officers were elected;

Supt—Mrs A E Barrett.
Pres—Miss Henshall.
Vice-Pres—Miss Eva Bryans.
Rec-Sec—Miss Georgina Falkner.
Treas—Miss O Scott.
Cor-Sec—Miss Eva Lancaster.

The organization will hold meetings every two weeks.

"Imogene, or the Witch's Secret," is the name of the play that the young people of St John's church intend putting on some time after Easter and for which they are now practising.

The members of the committee in charge of the "Big Five" ball on Easter Monday are busily engaged in making the final preparations for that important event. Sprague's orchestra of Belleville has been engaged to supply the music and as they have been in the village before, everyone knows the high class music that they always furnish.

The village have advertised for 20,000 ft of plank.

BOARD OF TRADE

The Board of Trade held a meeting in the town hall on Monday night of last week when the by-laws governing the Board were drawn up and adopted. The Board will meet on the first Wednesday in every month in the council chamber. The membership fee was set at fifty cents and those wishing to become members may leave their fee and applications with Mr G. J. Wright, secretary.

The matter of Divisional Court for Havelock came up before the Council, again on Monday evening. Reeve Knox reported that he had lately interviewed Judge Weller on the subject and that His Honor had promised to investigate the matter in Norwood on April 20th when the reeve and Mr. C. A. Ghent would meet him together with Mr. J. L. Squires of Norwood, and ascertain the proportion of business originating from Havelock and vicinity. If it is thought favorable His Honor will issue a proclamation for a court to be held here.

The ding-dong of a bell brought several persons on Ottawa street to the street on Thursday evening in search of a fire, but it proved to be the doings of several small boys who had climbed up on an old engine going east on a freight train, and rang the bell.

The high wind on Wednesday blew a tree across the electric light pole, a few miles east of the village, but the damage was soon repaired.

Miss Maud Graham left on Thursday for Toronto where she will spend two weeks with friends.

Mr. E. Gladney of Marmora, was in town on Sunday last.

Mr. M. Moore has returned to his home in Peterborough.

Miss Lillian Campbell left on Wednesday for a visit with friends in Toronto and London.

Miss Mollie Johnston spent Friday at her home in Norwood.

Mrs. T. D. Somerville of Lotus, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Watson.

Elections in Newfoundland.

St. John's, Nfld., April 12.—Governor MacGregor summoned Mr. Greene, who was Premier for a few weeks in 1895, and urged him to form a coalition Government. Failing this he tried Sir James Winter, who declined. Saturday, a Gazette extraordinary announces that the governor has accepted Mr. Morris' advice and granted dissolution. The election takes place on May 8.

New Railway at Thunder Bay.

Port Arthur, April 12.—It is stated that the U. S. Steel Corporation is seeking to procure direct railway connection between Minnesota and Thunder Bay. Flaws Found in Italy's Navy.

Rome, April 12.—A local newspaper has published a sensational article criticising severely the condition of the Italian navy. It says that the new warship Napoli cannot make more than six knots an hour and that the Roma can do little better. The paper alleges also that grave defects have been discovered in the machinery of the new 10,000-ton cruiser.

SIX DAYS' RELIGIOUS RALLY FOR PETERBOROUGH Y.M.C.A.

The Y. M. C. A. has completed arrangements for a big six-days' religious campaign. Mr. C. R. Drum, secretary of the religious work department of the international committee of the Y. M. C. A., will arrive here on Wednesday next and will start to work at once. The campaign is in charge of the local religious work committee and the expenses of it will be met by the board of directors personally.

The first meeting will be held on Thursday evening. It will be an invitation affair, and will take the form of a supper table conference on bible study. A supper will be held in the Y. M. C. A. banquet hall at 6.30, at which the ministers, Sunday school superintendents and other religious workers will be present.

On Friday evening Mr. Drum will deliver his popular lecture "That Boy," at eight o'clock, in the Collegiate Institute assembly halls. All should hear this lecture.

On Sunday evening at 7 o'clock there will be a meeting for boys over twelve year sof age in the Y. M. C. A. building.

On Sunday afternoon a big mass meeting for men will be held in the opera house, when Mr. Drum will deliver his lecture "An Honest Man." This lecture will be a good one, and no man in Peterborough should miss the opportunity to hear it.

During the week Mr. Drum will hold a noon hour service at one of the factories each day for four days. In addition to this there will be several private conferences.

Mr. Drum, before taking up his present work, was connected with one of the colleges in Syracuse, N.Y., and he has lectured in many of the large cities of the United States. As a speaker he has few peers. He is eloquent, scholarly and earnest, and at the same time his lectures are of such a nature that they appeal to all classes. It is expected that much good will be accomplished by the week's campaign.

LOCAL MAN SPOKE AT UNIQUE CONGRESS OF CHRISTIANS

Toronto, April 9.—Calling themselves "Christians gathered unto the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ," but with no other name except one, they reject as applied to them by outsiders, namely, "The Open Brethren," taking no collection, have no President and no programme, a large body of worshippers from all parts of the United States and Canada have gathered together for a four days' convention in Association Hall. They have no set programme, because they believe the most vital things are said when the spirit is moving the speaker, and therefore the meeting is left open to whoever feels impelled to say something. They will take no collection from anyone who does not belong to their sect, and then only on the Lord's Day. There was no charge made for the meals supplied to the self-appointed delegates yesterday in St. George's Hall, although tickets were issued to prevent complications.

Yesterday's meetings were almost entirely of a devotional character, though the following speakers made fervent evangelistic addresses:—Messrs. John Ritchie, of Kilmarnock; Scotland; John Smith, of Cleveland, Ohio; W. P. Douglas, of Peterborough, Ont.; A. Matthews, of Bay City, Mich.; Robert Telfer, of Toronto; David Oliver of Philadelphia; Dr. Martin, of Providence, R.I.; T. D. Muyir, Detroit, Mich.; Col. W. Beers and B. Bradford, Ne wYork.

They meet today in Association Hall at 10 a.m., 2.30 p.m. and 7.30 p.m. The two hundred and fifty delegates already arrived are billeted amongst adherents in the city.

STALLION SHOW PROMISES TO BE SUCCESSFUL EVENT

The stallion show on the Market Square under the auspices of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition directors promises to be a most successful affair. Great interest is being displayed in the event by the horse breeders of the district and the indications point to a very large attendance and a fine showing of horses. It should be understood that in order to exhibit stallions it is necessary that exhibitors should be members of the association and those who are not members should take out tickets which will give them all the privileges of the association during the fall fair. The exhibition on the Market Square will take place on Saturday, April 24th and the classes will be as follows:

Imported Clydesdales.
Canadian Bred.
3-year-old imported Clydesdales.
Shire.

Coach.

Pedigrees must be produced.

Mr. F. J. A. Hall is the secretary of the exhibition.

DR. GRENFELL ON WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Will Tell of Labrador Exploration at Grand Opera House

Great interest prevails in the city over the lecture to be given at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday evening by Dr. Grenfell, the noted Labrador explorer and missionary. Dr. Grenfell is one of the great men of the day and is being greeted by large audiences in the towns and cities where he is lecturing. His story of the work in Labrador is intensely interesting, and the work itself worthy of the heartiest support.

OBITUARY

MR SAMUEL McKEE

The death occurred on Friday of Mr. Samuel McKee in his 60th year. The late Mr McKee had been sick with pneumonia and passed away at the residence of his sister Mrs Henry Bradburn, 771 Water St.

The funeral of the late Samuel McKee was held yesterday from the residence of his sister, Mrs Henry Bradburn, 771 Water street to the Little Lake cemetery. The services at the house, which were of a very impressive nature, were officiated at by Rev E A Pearson of George street Methodist church of which the deceased was a member. A particularly sad feature in connection with the death of Mr McKee, is that Dr. Large, a son-in-law of the deceased who came to attend the funeral had to hurry away to the bedside of his dying father in Listowel and this necessitated the funeral being held on the Sabbath.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Wm. Thornton, J J Hartley, G W Powell, John Nugent, Samuel McKee and F. Mason.

"THE LAND OF NOD" IS AN ENTRANCING PRODUCTION; THE REVIEW'S IMPRESSION

There is nothing sleepy about "The Land of Nod."

That mammoth musical extravaganza has enjoyed a popular vogue which justifies regarding it as the star collaboration of Howard, Hough and Adams. In their tuneful panorama of little Bonnie's dreams they have distanced themselves in the triumphs won by their other clever musical plays.

A Review representative had the pleasure of witnessing the production in Toronto last week where it appeared at the Grand for its second successful engagement in the city and thoroughly appreciated it as a clean, wholesome and fascinating attraction. It was spoken of by the Toronto play patrons as quite the best offering of the week and as one of the richest and most attractive musical plays of the season.

The dream spirit is certainly kind to Bonnie when he carries her away to the domain of the King of Hearts, where she meets April Fool who makes you laugh so much that you feel foolish yourself, the Welsh Harebit, the Man in the Moon, Jack of Hearts, the Sandman, Rory Bory, Alice and many other quaint and picturesque persons of this fanciful land.

The little girl becomes tired when frolicing with her playmates and falls asleep. Her pretty dream is the story of the play.

"Where am I?" asks Bonnie when she finds herself amid strange surroundings.

"Why, you are in 'The Land of Nod.'"

Then the audience gladly surrenders itself to the prettiness and merriment of it all and very much regrets to have the cute slumberer awake after her delightful visit to the dream land of color and melody.

The presenting company is an unusually good one. There is not a weak character in it and a superb chorus lends splendid support to the principals and adds materially to the general excellence of the production.

The settings are lavish and artistic and the light effects and electrical illusions are cunningly employed accessories to elaborate and charming stage pictures.

The chorus is not simply engaged to "fill in" but plays an active and distinctly creditable part in the success of the presentation. The costumes are beautiful and of great variety, and there is no more splendidly costumed and graceful chorus on the road or for that matter, in the large metropolitan centres, than that of "The Land of Nod."

One of the most absurd men in all the realm of musical absurdity is Knox Wilson as April Fool. April is even more foolish than his name would indicate and Wilson is screamingly ridiculous in the part. He has been the laughing stock of the show ever since he created the character in the original production and there's a laugh at every breath all the time he's on the stage. Maurice Carey, "The Man in the Moon" is a clever character comedian and receives much applause for his singing of "The Same Old Moon" the song hit of the play. Dorothy Webb plays Bonnie; Grace Drew the King of Hearts; Bessie Browning the Chorus Girl and William E. Morgan, the Sandman all taking their parts in an able and finished manner. The other principals and supporting members of the cast give fine assistance.

All the twenty musical numbers have that pleasing haunting quality that has made the writer, Joseph Howard, one of the most prominent light opera composers of the day, and which is so evident in his "Flower of the Ranch," "The Time, the Place and the Girl" and other scores he has written for his numerous musical successes.

The transformation scene after the prologue in the first act is beautifully bewildering, and is again employed at the conclusion of the piece when little Bonnie finds that she is really a dweller on old mother earth and that after all "The Land of Nod" is only a rose color illusion.

PICKS APPLEBY TO WIN IN MORE FAVORABLE WEATHER

Connie Murphy, of Toronto, the popular fielder of last year's Petes is in the city for a short visit. Connie is preparing to go to Edmonton where he and Clements have signed to play ball this summer.

He saw the Simpson-Appleby race in Toronto on Saturday and says the Indian ran in great form and deserved to win but thinks the Peterborough Indian will have an awful proposition to beat the Britisher under favorable weather conditions.

"Appleby runs like a machine," said Connie, "and I would pick him to beat Simpson on a day when be was not bothered by the wind and cold. He is not used to the raw weather and it was too much for him. At that, Simpson ran a fine race."

HARRY DIRECT AND QUEENS BOURBON FOR SUMMER RACES

Harry Direct, 2.17 3-4 had his first training preparation today for his summer racing. He has been resting in Dr. Johnson' stable this season and will be given work for meets at Montreal in July, the Toronto races and other fixtures along the line. The Montreal races will be held in July and it is proposed to hold a grand circuit meet in Toronto after the one at Fort Erie. Dr Johnson will accompany the horse and will also take Bourbon Wilkes with him

A racing matinee will be given on May 24th at the Driving park by the Peterborough Turf Club with two classes, a green race and free for all.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE LAWN BOWLING CLUB

Every season sees lawn bowling getting more popular in Peterborough and from every indication the club will have a most prosperous season this year. The game is deservedly a favorite, and as was the case with curling during the past season, promises to be widely played here this summer.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club was held in the Dominion Bank chambers on Thursday night. There was an enthusiastic attendance of bowlers at the meeting. The main business was the presentation of reports for the year, and the annual election of officers. Many other matters of importance wer eattended to however, and a considerable volume of important business was transacted.

Dr. Greer, the president, occupied the chair and read his annual report. The financial statement was read by the secretary-treasurer, Wm. Laing, and while it showed a deficit of $87 in the club's finances, was decidedly satisfactory, considering the heavy expenses of the past summer.

Mr. Laing said he found it would not be possible for him to attend to the duties of the office he held, for another year. General regret was expressed as he has been an efficient secretary.

The election of officers next took place and resulted as follows;

Hon. President—Dr. Greer.
President—J. E. A. Fitzgerald.
Vice-President—T. Brightman.
Secretary-Treasurer—Dr. Marshall.
Game Secretary—T. E. Pratt.
Executive Committee—D. H. Moore, T. Butler Yeates, R. M. Waddell, R. Cottrell, Dr. Caldwell.
Membership Committee — W. M. Laing, chairman; W. S. Robinson, W. E. Talbot, T. Pratt, D. Kerneghan, Harry Campbell, Ed. Runnels, J. A. McKone, D. Belleghem.

It was decided that the Lawn Committee should be chosen by the executive from among their own number.

Dr. Marshall said it was intimated to him that if the western part of the lot were fixed up a lawn tennis club could be formed in connection with the bowling. Dr. Wightman was called up and said he had made the suggestion to have the tennis club as a means of getting the tennis players also interested in the bowling game. President Greer explained concerning the expenses in connection with fitting the grounds. Five dollars was the fee suggested for The annual Galler two the dual privileges of playing tennis and for that of bowling also. It was moved that the matter be left in the hands of the executives and the president was empowered to call a meeting at an early date.

The president decided to call a meeting for Good Friday at J. E. A. Fitzgerald's office. The executive of the club was given power to choose a caretaker.

It was decided to make the excursion of the club to Cobourg an annual event. Messrs. Laing, Pratt, Robinson, Marshall and Morphet were named as a committee to interview the G.T.R. for the purpose of securing the day of the Cobourg Horse Show as the date upon which the excursion should be held.

Votes of thanks were tendered the retiring officers and the press and to Mr. Crane, manager of the Dominion Bank for the use of the bank chambers for the club's meetings.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

Peterborough, April 8th, 1909.

To the members of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Association;

Gentlemen,—I have the honor again to submit the annual report of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Association, and it gives me pleasure to note the successful progress and continued prosperity of the club.

The past season was marked by increased interest on the part of the members The very much improved condition of the green did a great deal to enhance the pleasures of the game and add to the enthusiasm of the players.

The games played with outside clubs were very much enjoyed and none the less, because the local bowlers were usually victorious. Home and home games were played with Port Hope, Cobourg, Millbrook, Oshawa, Bowmanville, and Keene, and the friendly intercourse incident to these contests, has done much to develop and foster a deeper interest in lawn bowling in this district.

Representatives from our club also took part in the Ontario Dominion and Balmy Beach tournaments, and although they were not successful in winning any prizes they made a very creditable record for themselves.

An excursion to Cobourg was run last summer under the auspices of the club and it turned out a success. We would do well to repeat it this year, and perhaps last year's experience will enable it to be run under improved conditions, with still greater success.

The club's financial standing is satisfactory. The receipts for the year exceeded the normal expenditure by about $160 This was applied in part for the purchase of some needed appliances, and the balance towards the reduction of the standing debt, which now amounts to $100 due the Dominion Bank. This should easily be wiped out before the end of another season.

I must thank the association for honoring me with the presidency for the past two years and especially am I grateful to the other officers, who have by their assistance, contributed so much to the success of the club, and in retiring from office. I bespeak for my successor the cordial support you have given to me.

Respectfully submitted,
T. NEWTON GREER,
President.

SPORTING TALK

Fred Simpson showed the fans on Saturday that he is a faster Indian than a great many of the wise ones had picked him to be. He earned much credit for himself when he defeated the fast and much-feared Appleby at his own distance — fifteen miles — and now that he has found his feet he may turn out to be a winning Indian. Reports say that Fred is tickled to death with his victory. He feels confident he stands a good show at the Marathon distance with Longboat, St. Yves, or any of the other luminaries at the long stretch, and is eager to start in the next Marathon Derby. On the form he showed Saturday he looks like a pretty good choice in any field.

If Fred can show such a clever performance in raw weather at fifteen miles, which is too short to be his best distance, he should certainly be able to give any of them a hard battle in a Marathon race, which is more to his liking than a shorter jaunt.

A Toronto follower of the wrestling game was in the Review office this morning and says he has seen both Chris. Miller, the German, and Hurtubise perform. He selects Gene to beat his man when they meet at the Star theatre, Toronto, on Friday night.

Tom Flanagan's proposed pro ball league isn't coming in for much discussion nowadays. Flanagan himself says he doesn't know first base from second, but as a business proposition thinks the league should pay.

Since Dorando dropped out of the Olympic Marathon there has been more runners quit their races than ever before in the history of the running game. Shrubb, Dorando, Longboat and Appleby have all been offenders in this respect, and the less prominent distance men have all been indulging in it too. The weakness of course, is involuntary, but it doesn't say much for the stamina of some of the present-day distance runners who seem to sacrifice their staying powers in their training for speed.

Tommy Burns said that when the pictures of his fight with Johnson were shown they would prove that he was not as badly battered as the newspaper reports would indicate. The pictures would seem to show, however, that the police did a most humane thing when they stopped the fight in the fourteenth round, and thus saved the Canadian from an unnecessarily severe drubbing.

It is up to the local lacrosse players to get busy, now that the team is represented in the C.L.A. It will take condition and system to land the intermediate trophy.

It is rather out of season to mention hockey, but nevertheless, by declining the Review's challenge the Examiner seven showed they had a streak of yellow bigger than any vein of Klondyke gold.

BASEBALL

A meeting will be held at the Belmont club rooms to-night to discuss the advisability of organizing a baseball team for the coming season. The club have some good ball players in their membership and may be represented by a good team.

On account of the Senior Church League banquet on Thursday evening, the senior church league baseball meeting will be held Thursday evening, April 20th, at the Y.M.C.A., and those interested in the formation of a senior league are asked to be present as the season they will soon permit the playing of games, and it is necessary that an early start be made. There is no reason why this league should not be a big success and it depends on just how much interest the different teams put into the matter.

Bowmanville has made a proposal to Cobourg that Oshawa , Bowmanville, Port Hope, and Cobourg reconstruct the Midland Baseball League with a double schedule. They want an amateur league, the semi-professional game having been a detriment to the once prosperous amateur circuit.

Peterborough will have a city baseball league this year. The electric city ought to be able to put a pretty good team in the Midland league, if one is formed. They have a batch of pretty fast amateurs playing and a team of home brews, it is said, would receive good support from the fans, who are thoroughly sick of pro. ball.

"You can depend upon it," said a well known baseball crank this morning, "Lindsay will have a ball team this year, and if there is a Midland league conducted on amateur lines we will certainly figure in it. All the boys need is a little encouragement and a good executive to look after the team.

It begins to look as if the town will have a pretty good junior league this year, and when the grass shows signs of sprouting a meeting will be called to discuss the prospects. — Lindsay Post.

The Canadian Cordage Co. will likely be represented by a good ball team in the senior City Baseball League this season. There is lots of material for a good team, and efforts are being made to organize. The Cordage works will probably be represented at the meeting of the league, which takes place to-morrow night at the Y.M.C.A.

SIMPSON SHOWS HIS CLASS IN RACE WITH APPLEBY

Fred Appleby, the English runner of whom so much has been heard, proved a counterfeit in Saturday's race with Fred Simpson, Appleby quitting in the first lap of the sixteenth mile, or just a lap after Simpson passed him, the Hiawatha Indian finishing the last five miles alone.

Appleby set all the pace, but at the twelfth mile he was laboring very bad and it only looked a matter of a few miles when he threw up the sponge. Appleby may have beaten Shrubbb at fifteen miles but he will never do it again, as the Alfie of today would run rings around the reputed importation from the old sod who was cunoted upon by the English critics and some of the Canadians as well to win the Olympic Marathon.

Appleby may have some speed, but his staying power is limited to fifteen miles and not any more. Simpson ran a beautiful race, and bears out what Manager Crocker, of the Canadian Olympic team said; "That Simpson was the coming Marathon runner. The time was very good for fifteen miles it being 1.28,43, against 1.26.23 3-5 in the Derby at New York.

The crowd were all for Simpson and when Appleby quit, the cheering was loud and long, the crowd rushing over the field, Tommy Longboat was caught byy the enthusiastic ones and carried around the field on the shoulders of his admirers.

Appleby laid his defeat to the cold weather, he declaring he was nearly frozen, being chilled all the was from the second mile to time of quitting. This may have affected his running to a certain extent, as the English runner is not yet acclimatized, byt at that he looked short of work.

Simpson ran a well judged race, letting Appleby set the pace to just as the fifteen-mile mark was in sight, when he passed him like a cyclone and opened up such a big gap that Apleby grew disheartened and threw up the sponge, just as soon as h ereached his trainer, which was three-quarters of a lap on the sixteenth mile.

HURTUBISE WILL WRESTLE MILLER THE BIG GERMAN

Gene Hurtubise will meet Chris. Miller the big German heavyweight, at the Star Theatre, Toronto, on Friday evening after the regular show in the best two out of three catch-as-can bout. Miller is a fast and husky mat performer, and the pair should grapple in interesting fashion.

Gene has been taking excellent care of himself and will be in good condition for the battle.

LACROSSE

A meeting will be held tomorrow night at eight o'clock in the Crown Hotel, when a report of the C. L. A. convention, which was held on Good Friday, will be heard.

The national game is good and dead in this district. Beaverton, which at one time figured prominently in the game, and had a provincial reputation as a lacrosse centre, will likely be without a team this year, while Peterborough sports are making frantic efforts to awaken interest in the pastime. Reports from Port Hope are that the "nothin' doin'" sign is displayed there. It was not like this in the olden days! Is professionalism responsible for this state of affairs?—Lindsay Post.

BOWLING

A committee of the bowling club held a meeting on Good Friday. No business of interest was transacted.

THE WILY COMEDIAN.

His Mixup With a Contract, a Legal Fee and an Opinion.

There was a certain comic opera comedian who made no end of money and who scorned anything like ostentatious recklessness in the spending of it. He was almost morbid on the subject, in fact, and there were those who said that he went to evening instead of morning service so that he might have the use of the money he dropped into the box a little longer. This is by way of explaining the grief which once befell him in Cleveland.

Somebody had played an engagement at a certain theater and had received a frigid reception, which stage people call a frost. The comedian wasn't going to run any risks. He wouldn't play at the theater unless a certain amount of money was promised him. The manager of the theater offered a very large percentage of the receipts; but, oh, dear, no, the wily comedian wasn't going to be caught by such chaff as that. He insisted upon a lump sum regardless of receipts. The sum was guaranteed, the contract signed. The comedian came to town and, strolling as if by chance into the box office, asked how the house was selling.

"Oh," said the ticket seller, "we sold every seat in the house ten days ago!"

The comedian's blood boiled.

"Would," said he to himself, "oh, would that I had accepted the percentage! It would have been double what I get now."

It was too late, however, to rely on simple woulding to change matters, so he sought the foremost attorney of the town, showed him the contract and expressed his desire to break it and abide by the customary percentage plan. Before the attorney would consent to express an opinion the question of fee came up, and the comedian handed him $500. The man at law then took the paper and examined it.

"My dear sir," said he, "that contract can't possibly be broken. I drew it up myself."

It is not told what the temperature of Cleveland according to the government report was that day, but in the neighborhood of that comedian things fairly sizzled.

Joan of Arc Now In Pantheon.

Paris, April 12.—Following an order issued by Minister of Public Instruction Doumergue, the equestrian statue of Joan of Arc by Paul Dubois that has stood in the Louvre for fifteen years, was removed secretly Thursday morning and is now installed in the Pantheon. Significance attaches to this act on account of the recent violent demonstrations of royalist students at the Sorbonne against Prof. Thalamas, the author of a book alleging that the history of Joan of Arc is largely mythical.

Women Barred From Saloons.

Spokane, Wash., April 12. After June 1, no woman can legally enter any saloon in this state. The new criminal code makes it a misdemeanor for the owner or employe of "any drinking saloon or music hall where intoxicating liquors are sold, to knowingly permit to enter such saloon or sell or give any intoxicating liquors to any female person."

The same rule applies to any common drunkard or any person in an intoxicated condition, or any felon.

Accident to Vessel.

Kingston, April 12.—While being turned out on the first trip of the season, the coal schooner, Bertha Kalkins, owned by Capt. Simons, crashed into the Cataraqui swing spring bridge and knocked it off its pivots. The jibboom and bowsprit of the vessel were smashed and the damage to the bridge amounts to $300.

The accident tied up traffic all day, farmers having to make an extra 12 miles by another route to reach the city.

Big Vessel Goes to Pieces.

Dover, April 12.—The British steamer Mahrata from Calcutta March 6, for London, which went ashore on Goodwin Sands on Friday last, has broken in two and has been abandoned. The passengers were landed soon after the vessel struck, and all the crew were rescued yesterday. A large quantity of cargo was taken off the ship, but the loss involved in the vessel and the remainder of the cargo is estimated at $1,000,000.

Chinese Raid In St. John.

St. John, N.B., April 12.—In a raid last night of a Chinese gambling den by a squad of police, twenty-six orientals were captured and taken to headquarters in coaches. They were followed to the station by dozens of their brethren and pandemonium reigned before these were ejected and the prisoners safely locked up. The Chinamen were playing fan tan.

$100,000 For Jewish College.

Berlin, April 12.—Jacob Schiff, the New York banker, has placed $100,000 at the disposal of the Central Jewish Relief League toward establishing a technical college for Jews in Palestine.

The college is expected to attract Jews from all parts of the world. It will be located at Harfa.

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

During Change of Life, says Mrs. Chas. Barclay

Graniteville, Vt. — "I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter." — MRS. CHAS. BARCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weaknesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

FINE MUSIC AT CHARLOTTE ST.

Easter Services Were Especially Attractive---New Soloist is Engaged

The Easter music in Charlotte St. Methodist church yesterday was of exceptionally high order. The anthems were splendidly rendered by a large and well balanced choir. The solo parts were most effectively taken by Miss Pringle and Messrs. Jas. Browne and Harmer. Pleasing features of the services were a male quartette composed of Messrs. Lee, Tennie, Harmer and Skitch and a tenor solo from the Passion music of the Messiah by Mr H Lee. Miss Pringle of Norwich, recently engaged as soloist, possesses a clear, high soprano voice of much sweetness and power in her rendition of "The Resurrection Morn," by Rodney, in the morning and "Hosanna" by Grainer in the evening were greatly enjoyed by the large congregations present.

Charlotte street church is to be congratulated upon securing the services of so accomplished a vocalist and Miss Pringle will be a decided acquisition to the musical circles of Peterborough.

Presentation of "The Crucifixion"

The fifth presentation of Sir John Stainer's meditation on the Passion "The Crucifixion," took place in St John's church last Thursday evening at 8 pm. The conductor relied on the regular choir to sing the work, except for the bass solo part which was most tastefully sung by Mr Edward Barton of Toronto. Mr Herbert Morphet and Mr George Chandler, the city tenors were equally good in their part of the work, indeed the choir are to be most heartily congratulated for their singing on Thursday last, which amply repaid them for the arduous practice necessary to put on such a musical composition in addition to the regular work of an Anglican choir in the Sunday services.

Mr Richard J. Devey conducted effectively the phrasing and attack of the choruses and hymns being specially good. The work is too well known to need a detailed account but special mention may be made of the unaccompanied double quartette "God so loved the world," sung by Mrs R J Devey and Mrs G Evans, sopranos; Mrs Seward and Miss Martin, altos; Mr Morphet and Mr Chandler, tenors; and Mr. Greenhalgh and Mr Coleman bass. The fine effort of Mr Morphet in the dramatic recitative "And they laid their hands on Him," Mr Chandler gave his fine solo, "King ever glorious" and Mr Edward Barton for his artistic singing all through, specially in "There was darkness," and "Is it nothing to you," and in the duet with Mr Chandler, "So Thou Liftest." The following numbers from the Messiah "Since by Man," "For as in Adam" quartettes; "By man came also," "Even so in Christ," choruses were well sung, and the "Gloria in Excelsis" from Mozart's 12th Mass splendidly sung brought the programme to a close, the Rev Canon Davidson pronouncing the Benediction.

The organ accompaniments were played by Mr R. J. Devey, except for the choruses which were nicely rendered by Miss Maggie Flowers.

The Barrier

Burrell thought he saw Lee wink at the trader, but he was not sure, for at that moment the man of whom they were speaking re-entered. Lee introduced him, and the three men shook hands. While the soldier fell into easy conversation with the newcomer, Gale gazed at him narrowly, studying him as he studied all men who came as strangers. As he was doing so Alluna entered, followed by Johnny and Molly. She had come for sugar and asked for it in her native tongue. Upon her exit Stark broke off talking to the lieutenant and turned to the trader.

"Your squaw, Mr. Gale?"

The old man nodded.

"Pah-Ute, eh?"

"Yes. Why, do you savvy the talk?"

"Some. I lived in California once."

"Where?" The question came like a shot.

"Oh, here and there! I followed the mother lode for a spell."

"I don't recall the name," said the trader after a bit.

"Possibly. Where were you located?"

"I never lit on any one place long enough to call it home."

It seemed to Burrell that both men were sparring cautiously in an indirect, impersonal manner.

"Yes, and I got another one besides—older, a girl."

"She's a 'pip,' too," said "No-Creek" Lee fervently. "She's plumb beautiful."

"All of them half breeds?" questioned Stark.

"Sure." The trader's answer was short, and when the other showed no intention of pressing the subject further he sauntered away, but no sooner was he out of hearing than Stark said: "Humph! They're all alike."

"Who?"

"Squaw men."

"This one ain't," Lee declared. "He's different. Ain't he, lieutenant?"

"He certainly is," agreed Burrell. This was the first criticism he had heard of Necia's father, and, although Stark volunteered no argument, it was plain that his opinion remained unaffected.

The old man went through the store at the rear and straightway sought Alluna. Speaking to her with unwonted severity in the Pah-Ute language, he said:

"I have told you never to use your native tongue before strangers. That man in the store understands."

"I only asked for sugar to cook the berries with," she replied.

"True, but another time you might say more; therefore the less you speak it the better. He is the kind who sees much and talks little. Address me in Siwash or in English unless we are alone."

Suddenly she dropped her work and came close up to him. "Can he be the one?"

"I don't know. Stark is not the name, but he might have changed it. He had reasons enough."

"Who is this man Stark?"

"I don't know that either. I used to hear of him when I was in British Columbia."

"But surely you must know if he is the same. She must have told you how he looked. Others must have told you"—

Gale shook his head. "Very little. I could not ask her, and others knew him so well they never doubted that I had seen him, but this much I do know, he was dark"—

"This man is dark."

—"and his spirit was like that of a mad horse"—

"This man's temper is black."

—"and his eyes were cruel."

"This man has evil eyes."

"He lacked five years of my age," said the trader.

"This man is forty years old. It must be he," said the squaw.

Even Necia would have marveled had she heard this revelation of her father's age, for his hair and brows were grizzled, and his face had the look of a man of sixty, while only those who knew him well, like Doret, were aware of his great strength and the endurance that belied his appearance.

"The most wonderful thing has happened," she began.

"We will send Necia down to the mission tonight and let Father Barnum keep her there till this man goes," said the squaw after some deliberation.

"No; she must stay here," Gale replied, with decision. "The man has come here to live, so it won't do any good to send her away, and, after all, what is to be will be. But she must never be seen in that dance girl's dress again, at least not till I learn more about this Stark. It makes no difference whether this one is the man or not. He will come, and I shall know him. For a year I have felt that the time was growing short, and now I know it."

"No, no!" Alluna cried. "We have no strangers here. No white men except the soldiers and this one have come in a year. This is but a little trading post."

"It was yesterday, but it isn't today. Lee has made a strike, like the one George Carmack made on the Klondike. He came to tell me and Poleon, and we are going back with him tonight, but you must say nothing or it will start a stampede."

"Other men will come—a great many of them?" interrogated Alluna fearfully, ignoring utterly the momentous news.

"Yes. Flambeau will be another Dawson if this find is what Lee thinks it is. I stayed away from the upper country because I knew crowds of men would come from the States, and I feared that he might be among them, but it's no use hiding any longer. There's no other place for us to go. If Lee has got a mine I'll have the one next to it, for we will be the first ones on the ground. What happens after that won't matter much. You four will be provided for. We are to leave in an hour, one at a time, to avoid comment."

"But why did this man stop here?" insisted the woman. "Why did he not stay on the steamboat and go to Dawson?"

"He's a friend of Lee's. He is going with us." Then he added, almost in a whisper, "Before we return I shall know."

Alluna seized his arm. "Promise to come back, John! Promise that you will come back even if this should be the man."

"I promise. Don't worry, little woman. I'm not ready for a reckoning yet."

As he turned away she laid her hand on his arm and said:

"If you do not know him he will not know you. Is it not so?"

"Yes."

"Then the rest is easy."

But he only shook his head doubtfully and answered, "Perhaps; I am not sure," and went inside, where he made up a light pack of bacon, flour and tea, a pail or two, a coffeepot and a frying pan, which he rolled inside a robe of rabbit skin and bound about in turn with a light tarpaulin. It did not weigh thirty pounds in all. Selecting a new pair of water boots, he stuffed dry grass inside them, oiled up his six shooter, then slipped out the back way and in five minutes was hidden in the thickets. Half an hour later, having completed a detour of the town, he struck the trail to the interior, where he found Poleon Doret, equipped in a similar manner, resting beside a stream, singing the songs of his people.

When Burrell returned to his quarters he tried to mitigate the feeling of lonesomeness that oppressed him by tackling his neglected correspondence. Somehow today the sense of his isolation had come over him stronger than ever. His rank forbade any intimacy with his miserable handful of men, who had already fallen into the monotony of routine, while every friendly overture he made toward the citizens of Flambeau was met with distrust and coldness, his stripes of office seeming to erect a barrier and induce an ostracism stronger and more complete than if they had been emblems of the penitentiary. Even Doret and the trader seemed to share the general feeling; hence the thought of the long, lonesome winter approaching reduced the lieutenant to a state of black despondency, deepened by the knowledge that he now had an open enemy in camp in the person of Runnion. Then, too, he had taken a morbid dislike to the new man, Stark. So that all in all the youth felt he had good reason to be in the dumps this afternoon. There was nothing desirable in this place—everything undesirable—except Necia. Her presence in Flambeau went far toward making his humdrum existence bearable, but of late he had found himself dwelling with growing seriousness on the unhappy circumstances of her birth and had almost made up his mind that it would be wise not to see her any more. The tempting vision of her in the ball dress remained vividly in his imagination, causing him hours of sweet torment. There was a sparkle, a fineness, a gentleness, about her that seemed to make the few women he had known well dull and commonplace, and even his sister, whom till now he had held as the perfection of all things feminine, suffered by comparison with this maiden of the frontier.

He was steeped in this sweet, grave melancholy when a knock came at his door, and he arose to find Necia herself there, excited and radiant. She came in without sign of embarrassment or slightest consciousness of the possible impropriety of her act.

"The most wonderful thing has happened," she began at once when she found they were alone. "You'll faint for joy."

"What is it?"

"Lee has made a strike—a wonderful strike—richer than the Klondike. I came as fast as I could, because tomorrow everybody will know about it, and it will be too late."

"Too late for what?"

"For us to get in on it, of course. Oh, but won't there be a stampede! Why, all the people bound for Dawson on the next boat will pile off here. Then the news will go up river and down river, and thousands of others will come pouring in from everywhere, and this will be a city. Then we will stake our town lots and sell them for ever so much money and go around with our noses in the air."

"Hold on! Hold on!" said the soldier, stopping her breathless patter. "Tell me all about this."

"Well, 'No Creek' came in this morning to tell dad and Poleon. Then the boat arrived, with an old friend of Lee's, a Mr. Stark, so Lee told him, too, and now they've all gone back to his creek to stake more claims. They slipped away quietly to prevent suspicion, but I knew there was something up from the way Poleon acted, so I made Alluna tell me all about it. They haven't more than two hours' start of us, and we can overtake them easily."

"We! Why, we are not going!"

"Yes, we are," she insisted impatiently, "you and I. That's why I came, so you can get a mine for yourself and be a rich man, and so you can help me get one. I know the way. Hurry up!"

"No," said he in as firm a tone as he could command. "In the first place, these men don't like me, and they don't want me to share in this."

"What do you care?"

"In the second place, I'm not a miner. I don't know how to proceed."

"Never mind. I do. I've heard nothing but mining all my life."

"In the third place, I don't think I have the right, for I'm a soldier. I'm working for Uncle Sam, and I don't believe I ought to take up mining claims. I'm not sure there is anything to prevent it, but neither am I sure it would be quite the square thing. Are you?"

"Why, of course it's all right," said Necia, her eager face clouding with the look of a hurt child. "If you don't do it somebody else will."

But the lieutenant shook his head. "Maybe I'm foolish, but I can't see my way clear, much as I would like to."

"Oh, dear; oh, dear!" she exclaimed brokenly. "I do so want to go. I want you to be rich, and I want to be rich myself. I want to be a fine lady and go outside and live like other girls. Why, it means heaven to a girl like me!" Her eyes were wet with the sudden dashing of her hopes, and her chin quivered in a sweet, girlish way that made the youth almost surrender on the instant.

"We couldn't possibly overtake them if we tried," he said, as if willing to treat with his conscience.

"No, but we could beat them in. I know where Lee is working, for I went up last winter with Constantine and his dog team over a short cut by way of Black Bear creek. You see, his creek makes a great bend to the southward and heads back toward the river, so by crossing the divide at the source of Black Bear you drop into it a few miles above his cabin."

While she made this appeal Burrell fought with himself. There were reasons why he longed to take this trip more than he had longed for anything since boyhood. These men of Flambeau had disregarded him and insisted on treating him with contemptuous distrust despite his repeated friendly overtures, wherefore he was hungry to beat them at their own game, hungry to thrust himself ahead of them and compel them to reckon with him as an equal, preferring a state of open enmity if necessary to this condition of indifferent toleration. Moreover, he knew that Necia was coveted by half of them, and if he spent a night in the woods alone with her it would stir them up a bit, he fancied. By heaven, that would make them sit up and notice him! But, then, it might work a wrong upon her. And yet would it? He was not so sure that it would. She had come to him, she was old enough to know her mind, and she was but a half breed girl, after all, who doubtless was not so simple as she seemed. Other men had no such scruples in this or any other land, and yet the young man hesitated until, encouraged by his silence, the girl came forward and spoke again impulsively:

"Don't be silly, Mr. Burrell. Come! Please come with me, won't you?"

She took him by the edges of his coat and drew him to her coaxingly. It may have been partly the spirit of revolt that had been growing in him all day, or it may have been wholly the sense of her there beside him, warm and pleading, but something caused a great wave to surge up through his veins, caused him to take her in his arms, fiercely kissing her upturned face again and again, crying softly, deep down in his throat:

"Yes, yes, yes! You little witch! I'll go anywhere with you! Anywhere! Anywhere!" The impulse was blind and ungovernable, and it grew as his lips met hers, while, strangely enough, she made no resistance, yielding herself quietly till he found her arms wound softly about his neck and her face nestling close to his. Neither of them knew how long they stood thus blended together, but soon he grew conscious of the beating of her heart against his breast as she lay there like a little fluttering bird and felt the throbbing of his own heart swaying him. Her arms, her lips and her whole body clung to his in a sweet surrender, and yet there was nothing immodest or unmaidenly about it, for his strength and ardor had lifted her and drawn her to him as on the sweep of a great wave.

She drew her face free and hid it against his neck, breathing softly and with shy timidity, as if the sound of the words she whispered half frightened her.

"I love you. I love you, Meade."

It may happen that a man will spend months in friendly and charming intimacy with a woman and never feel the violence or tenderness of passion till there comes a psychic moment or a physical touch that suddenly inwraps them like a flame. So it was with Burrell. The sweet burden of this girl in his arms, the sense of her yielding lips, the warmth of her caressing hands, momentarily unleashed a leaping pack of mad desires, and it was she who finally drew herself away to remind him smilingly that he was wasting time.

"My lips will be here when those mines are worked out," she said. "No, no!" And she held him off as he came toward her again, insisting that if they were going they must be off at once and that he could have no more kisses for the present. "But, of course, it is a long trip, and we will have to sit down now and then to rest," she added shyly, at which he vowed that he was far from strong and could not walk but a little way at a time, yet, even so, he declared, the trail would be too short, even though it led to Canada.

"Then get your pack made up," she ordered, "for we must be well up toward the head of Black Bear creek before it grows dark enough to camp."

Swiftly he made his preparations. A madness was upon him now, and he took no pains to check or analyze the reasons for his decision. The thought of her loveliness in his arms once more far up among the perfumed wooded heights as the silent darkness stole upon them stirred in him such a fret to be gone that it was like a fever. He slipped away to the barracks with instructions for his corporal, but was back again in a moment. Finally he took up his burden of blanket and food, then said to her:

"Well, are you ready, little one?"

"Yes, Meade," she answered simply.

"And you are sure you won't regret it?"

"Not while you love me."

He kissed her again before they stepped out on the river trail that wound along the bank.

Two hours later they paused where the foaming waters of Black Bear creek rioted down across a graveled bar and into the silent, sweeping river, standing at the entrance to a wooded, grass grown valley, with rolling hills and domes displayed at its head, while back of them lay the town, six miles away, its low, squat buildings tiny and toylike, but distinctly silhouetted against the evening sky.

"Is it not time to rest?" said the soldier laughingly, yet with a look of yearning in his misty eyes as he took the girlish figure in his arms. But she only smiled up at him and, releasing his hold, led the way into the forest.

CHAPTER V.

A STORY IS BEGUN.

It's fonny t'ing how two brown eye
  Was changin' everyt'ing—
De cloud she's no more on de sky,
  An' winter's jus' lak spring.
Day mak' my pack so very light,
  De trail she's not so long—
I'd walk it t'orty mile tonight
  For hear her sing wan song.
But now I'm busy mak' fortune
  For marry on dat girl,
An' if she's tole me yass, dat's soon,
  Bonheur! I'm own de worl'!

POLEON DORET sang gayly as the trader came toward him through the open grove of birch, for he was happy this afternoon, and, being much of a dreamer, this fresh enterprise awoke in him a boyish pleasure. Had not this discovery of "No Creek" Lee's been providentially arranged for his own especial benefit? A fool could see that this was a mark of celestial approbation, and none but a fool would question the wisdom of the gods. Had he not watched Necia grow from a slip of thirteen and spoken never a word of his love? Had he not served and guarded her with all the gentle chivalry of an olden knight? Of course! And here was his reward, a gift of wealth to crown his service, all for her.

"Whew," said Gale, slipping out of his pack straps, "the skeeters is bad!"

"You bet your gum boots," said Poleon. "Dey're mos' so t'ick as du summer day kill Johnnie Platt on de Porcupine." Both men wore gauntleted gloves of caribou skin and head harnesses of mosquito netting stretched over globelike frames of thin steel bands, which they slipped on over their hats.

"Let's see. It was you that found him, wasn't it?" said Gale.

"Sure t'ing! I'm comin' down for grub in my canoe w'en I see dis feller on de bank walkin' lak he's in beeg horry. 'Ba gar,' I say, 'dere's man goin' so fast he'll meet hese'f comin' home!' Den he turn roun' an' go tearin' back, wavin' hees arms lak he's callin' me, till he fall down. W'en I paddle close up I don' know 'im no more dan stranger, an' me an' Johnnie Platt is trap togeder wan winter. W'at you t'ink of dat?"

"I saw a fellow killed that way at Holy Cross," interpolated the trader.

"'Hello!' I say. 'W'at's de matter?' An' den I see somet'ing 'bout 'im dat look familiar. Hees face she's all swell' up an' bleedin' lak raw meat." The Frenchman curled his upper lip back from his teeth and shook his head at the remembrance.

"Jesu, dat's 'orrible sight! Dem fly is drive 'im crasee. Hees nose an' ears is look lak holes in beeg red sponge, an' hees eye are close up tight."

"He died before you got him in, didn't he?"

"Yes. He was good man too."

"I guess you been purty glad for havin' Necia home again, eh?" ventured Poleon after awhile, unable to avoid any longer the subject uppermost in his mind.

"Yes. I'm glad she's through with her schooling."

"She's gettin' purty beeg gal now."

"That's right."

"By an' by she's goin' marry on some feller—w'at?"

"I suppose so. She ain't the kind to stay single."

"Ha! Dat's right too. Mebbe you don' care if she does get marry, eh?"

"Not if she gets a man that will treat her right."

"Waal, waal! Dere's no trouble 'bout dat," exclaimed Doret fervently. "No man w'at's livin' could treat her bad. She's too good an' too purty for have bad husban'."

"She is, is she?" Gale turned on him with a strange glare in his eyes. "Them's the kind that get the he devils. There's something about a good girl that attracts a bad man, particularly if she's pretty, and it goes double too. The good men get the hellions. A fellow can't get so tough but what he can catch a good woman, and a decent man usually draws a critter that looks like a sled and acts like a timber wolf."

"Necia wouldn't marry on no bad man," said Doret positively.

Neither man had ever spoken thus openly to the other about Necia before, and, although their language was indirect, each knew the other's thought. But there was no time for further talk now, for the others were close upon them. As they came into view Gale exclaimed:

"Well, if Lee hasn't brought Runnion along!"

Aroused by the receipt of a threatening letter and to fears that blackmailers or revengeful criminals would attempt to blow up the house where the body of Lieut Joseph Petrosino lies or the church where his funeral is to be held the New York police authorities have placed heavy guards in and around both house and church.

INTERESTING LETTER FROM DR. GRENFELL; ENLISTING HELP

Lecture Begins at 8.30 on Wednesday Evening in the Opera House—Practical Work—The New Socialism.

Dr. Grenfell has recently written from Boston to make known as early and as widely as possible the good news of the proposed visit of several eminent surgeons to St Anthony during the coming summer. Dr Stewart and Dr Little will by that time have gone forward to their more northern stations, and Dr Wakefield, whose services have already made him well known in the mission will again be in charge of St Anthony Hospital.

During the month of July, writes Dr. Grenfell the professor of surgery of Cornell university will be in residence at St Anthony; during the month of August the professor of surgery of Pittsburg; and during the latter part of August and September an eminent specialist on diseases of the ear and throat. Among the fishermen of Newfoundland there are many suffering from various diseases of the ear and if they do seek help during this summer I should like them to time their arrival at St Anthony that they may obtain the special advice in September. The expense of seeking the aid of the eminent men in the centres of civilization to which so many who are able to afford it resort, can thus be entirely obviated. The north coast of Newfoundland is a beautiful spot for these friends to come and spend their summer holidays and, while they are willing to freely offer their services, they consider that they are being repaid by the bracing air and the new experience and possibility of the opportunity to cast a line for trout and salmon in our beautiful rivers. The debt of gratitude to these men will be quite as much ours as it is the fishermen's, for in the multiplicity of duties that fall on our doctors, we are unable to specialise and attain the eminence in any one particular line that is within the reach of those who have only one line of work to pursue.

Believe me to remain,
Very sincerely yours,
WILFRED GRENFELL.

SUCCESS OF MR. FIELD'S PUPILS

A Brilliant Recital—Recognition of a Very Capable Teacher

The English and American Register, Berlin, Germany, dated March 13th last has the following to say regarding the work of three young Canadians who are studying with Mr. Harry M. Field, formerly of the Peterborough Conservatory:—"Sincere recognition should be given Mr. Harry M. Field for his pupils' recital in Hotel du Nord on March 8th. What we heard gave genuine pleasure. Though criticism in the case of the pupils' recitals should not be exercised, we cannot refrain from saying that Miss Kilmaster surpassed expectations. She evinced qualities that go toward the making of an artist; the young lady owns soul technique and interpretative gifts that augur well for her future career. Another highly gifted pianist is young Mr. Harold Jarvis also Mr. Gordon Langlois. Mr. Field was greatly complimented for his highly successful examination concert which proved the serious aims of his method of instruction."

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES HELD AT KNOX CHURCH

Large Congregations to Hear Rev. J. A. Wilson, B.A., of Hamilton, Who Preached Two Excellent Sermons —The Glad Message of Easter.

Rev. J. A. Wilson, B.A., of Hamilton, who was the preacher at the anniversary services at Knox church yesterday, preached the first sermon in that church seven years ago. It was on a Sunday morning that the "Mission" was opened and a large congregation turned out for the event. Rev. Mr. Wilson had the following text on that occasion, "What mean ye by these stones?"

Rev. Mr. Wilson referred to the above incidents before commencing his sermon last evening. He was glad that the "Mission" had prospered until it became self-supporting, that the new congregation was going ahead and that a new church was contemplated.

The anniversary services were very largely attended, the congregations both morning and evening being almost larger than could be accommodated. However, the ushers did everything in their power to provide seats for all and the services passed off most successfully. Special music was rendered by the choir, which was augmented by the presence of Mrs. S. Dickson Hall and Miss Bryce, of Keene.

At the evening service, Mr. Wilson, who is a former assistant pastor of St. Paul's church here, took for his text Job 14, 14, "If a man die shall he live again." From these words he preached a splendid sermon, showing that there was a life beyond the grave. Christ had died and had risen again and by doing so had won the victory over death and the grave. All the laws of nature taught that life came after death; there was no annihilation in the world. The seed died and produced a new plant, the petal of the violet perished that the flower might bloom again with a sweeter fragrance. "It is not to be supposed that when we lay aside these cold tenements of clay that all is over," said Mr. Wilson. "We will live again and for eternity. This is the message of Eastertide, a message that brings joy to the saints of God."

"Lift up your heads, ye saints of God,
And with the view take heart,
For Calvary day and Easter day,
The saddest day and gladdest day
Were but one day apart."

Miss Margaret Bryce, of Keene, gave a solo, "The Plains of Peace," very sweetly and at the evening service Mrs. Dickson Hall sang "Hosanna" in fine voice.

In the afternoon Rev. Mr. Wilson addressed the Sabbath school, at which there was a large attendance.

Special offerings were taken up at the services and the donations were of a generous nature.

OUT OF THE DEPTHS OF THE FOREST IN TWO YEARS; A NEW TOWN IN NEW ONTARIO

(By Mr. Walter S. Stewart C. E., Written for the Review)

The building up of a town from the virgin forest to a place of such importance as to earn the dignity of being placed on a map, or even a railway time table, is both unique and interesting.

The town of North Cobalt to-day stands out prominently as one of the important points on the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, two miles north of the well-known town of Cobalt. This day two years ago the first tree was cut in an almost impenetratable jungle to commence the clearing of the land, and the laying out of its streets.

To-day North Cobalt can boast of good sidewalks, a bridge, a railway station, telegraph, telephone and express office, seven stores, a hotel, three boarding houses, three churches, two schools, a saw and lath mill, dance hall, livery stable and last, but not least, a blacksmith's shop, three blind pigs and a town pump.

Two years ago yesterday I stepped off the train at Cobalt, and walked two miles north along the track, to locate the 750 acres of forest land which had been purchased by a Toronto syndicate for a town site, and which they named North Cobalt. It has always been a regret that the other Cobalt was ever located where it is. It is not sanitary and never can be made so without enormous expense. The conditions are such that sewage would have to be carried through solid rock and run into the only lake, which is small, only covering about thirty-five acres. On the north, south and west shores of this lake the town is built. It is rock, rock everywhere, and not enough soil to bury a cat.

North Cobalt is located in a clay belt with everything in its favor to make it a permanent town, and the people are gradually moving this way. As I stood on the track and viewed the jungle and general mix-up of slash or wind-fall and forest, with the plan of a town site in my hand and written instructions in my pocket, I indeed felt that I had a stupendous undertaking. A town had to be built, and in such a place. Not a soul or a house was in sight. Yes, there was, away in the corner of an acre clearing there was a little log cabin inhabited by an old settler and his family. This I adopted as my hotel, from which I would direct my operations. Men, teams and tools had to be procured at once. This was a difficult task, as men had the prospecting fever or were employed in the mines. They wouldn't think of anything so tame as clearing for a townsite. However, a good foreman was secured, and we together scoured Cobalt, Haileybury and the woods for twenty-five men. We succeeded, but had to offer them very high wages. Later the number was increased to fifty, a good many being from the Ottawa River valleys. Then the work commenced in good earnest. Our good, old Canadian bushmen soon showed that their old-time talent for handling the axe was only dormant in them. The way that bush was labelled, trees cut into logs, the tops piled for burning, stumps pulled by a machine, and skidways constructed for log piling, all accompanied by that musical ring of forty axes and illuminated by the steady fires of the many brush heaps was indeed a most inspiring sight. These fires were kept going all night and the hundreds of brush heaps blazing in all directions was indeed something to look at and enjoy. The ways soon became loaded with valuable spruce, pine and balsam logs, and as there was no immediate market for them as they were, I requested our company to send us a saw-milling outfit. This arrived in due time; then there was the task of putting it together. My limited experience in that line was gained when going down to see Dickson's dam as a kid and looking in the mill door to see the wheels go round. However, among the workmen I found an Ottawa riverdriver, who said he understood saw-mills. I soon wished he had forgotten all he ever knew, for he got things considerably mixed. The right man appeared though, got things together, and in a short time the merry hum of the mill added life to our surroundings and lumber to our use.

In the meantime outsiders began to sit up and take notice of us. Some came to watch our work, others to enquire the price of lots, and one day a man actually came and bought a lot. The first lot sold and it was on a Friday. I was so pleased I knocked 5 per cent. off the price and gave him a 10 cent cigar.

Next day another man came and bought two lots. I gave him two cigars, but his wife was with him and she told him to take them anyway. I thought there was a boom coming so built my land office. The boom didn't come, but I bought two lots for myself just to keep things moving. One day a whole crowd came. I thought it was a picnic. They had dinner at our camp, paid for it and bought fifteen lots. Business then commenced to hum and I had every accommodation to meet it except a bank. A man would buy a lot, then I would sell him lumber to build his house or store, and lend him some of our men to do the building for him. If any of my readers were here they could see in the walls, roof and floors of buildings lumber that a short six weeks before were trees in full growth. No one waits for lumber to dry here; it is taken right off the saw.

Our little town now began to look business-like, with houses and stores being erected, sidewalks being laid, a bridge over the creek being built, tents here and there dotted over the landscape. It began to get so civilized that we wished for a laundry to come along and give us boiled shirts once more. Our old bush clothes were getting out of date.

One day while we were cutting out a street through a small ravine, we disturbed a wild cat and its four kittens. There was a wild scramble for some minutes, the mother showing fight by spring first at one man, and then at another, but the axes were too many for her, and she drew off a short distance to watch, giving vent to her angry snarls at us, and anxious calls to her kittens. I caught one of them which put up a desperate fight and would have felt its trade mark on my hands with its claws and teeth had I not put on thick leather mits. I thought of sending it to one of the Toronto mining brokers as emblematic of some of this stock-selling operations. "Silver Bird," "watch us soar," was on the market then. I let the kitten go.

On May 15th 1907, the first cow arrived at North Cobalt; in the afternoon the first piano appeared, so we had milk and music to add to our luxuries. The first store was opened on the 20th, and we were able to obtain the few necessaries even tobacco, without having to walk to Cobalt or Haileybury.

A restaurant followed with Chinese cook and waiters. Then a whiskey detective butted in to see if any illicit selling of spiritous liquors was being carried on. How insulting, when good pure, spring water was so plentiful and we all so fond of it. However it was one of the signs of our rapid growth and he was doing his duty. Someone must have told him something to make him suspicious.

It was pay day and the men went to Haileybury to get their checks cashed. I will draw the curtain here while they are enjoying their hard earnings.

Now, I hope I have not taken up too much of your valuable time, and I trust, Mr. Editor, I have not taken up too much space in your valuable paper. I have written this because I was requested to do so by one of my old Peterborough friends and is the first of a series to appear once a week through April and part of May.

Yours very truly,
WALTER F. STEWART

A Great Work

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—I am pleased to notice that Dr. Grenfell is going to lecture in the opera house on April 14th. He is doing a great work among the poor fisher folk of Labrador, and very much for the cause of temperance, so I hope there will be a large audience to hear him as the mission ought to be of great interest to the people of Peterborough.

Yours truly,
W S. MERRELL.

Dr. Grenfell's lecture will begin at 8.30 o'clock.

Dr. Grenfell's Lecture

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—It is to be hoped everyone who can possibly do so, will be present to hear Dr. Grenfell's address on Wednesday evening. He is a man who deserves from us a very hearty expression of approval and support. His personal sacrifices, his utter disregard for self—where the welfare of others is concerned, cannot be too highly referred to.

Apart from the fact that his remarks will be extremely interesting a crowded opera house will evidence our appreciation of his devotion to his great work, and will tend to encourage him in his efforts, already so successful to improve the physical and moral condition of the fishermen of Labrador.

Yours truly,
E A. PECK.

THE SENATE HAS YIELDED

Women Win Out---Feminine Protest Against Payne Bill Has Had its Effect.

Washington, April 13.—The Senate committee on finance, with all members present, met at 10 o'clock yesterday, and Chairman Aldrich presented the tariff bill as amended by the majority of the committee. The increase of 15 per cent. on spirits and wines will it is expected increase the revenue by $3,900,000, mostly from champagnes. The agitation raised by the women against the proposed increases of duty on gloves, cotton hosiery and hats and bonnets has had its effect. The chief changes from the bill as passed by Congress are:

Fish—no change. Cocoa—put on free list. Cotton hosiery—back to old rates. Raw flax—duty restored. Wool—rates restored. Silks — slight reduction. Wood pulp—undecided. Hides—undecided. Coal—undecided. BRIDGE WORKER MEETS DEATH

New York, April 13.—John McShane, a young structural ironworker of Brooklyn, was killed yesterday by falling from the unfinished structure of the Manhattan Bridge over the East river. The coupling on a compressed air pipe burst beneath him and blew him off the structure. He landed 110 feet below in a backyard. A heavy projecting plank which the man struck half-way down in his fall, broke under him like a wafer. Another workman ducked the force of the explosion and managed to keep from falling by clinging desperately to the structure.

ELECTRIC DISPLAY WAS WONDERFUL

Louisville, Ky., April 13—Yesterday President Taft pressed the connecting button in the White House at Washington, igniting an electric lamp in the first regiment armory here and starting all the machinery in motion of the Southern Electrical and Industrial Exposition.

On the south wall of the armory is an electrical clock one hundred feet high, solid with electric bulbs of various colors through which the light runs and this indicates seconds, minutes and hours. On the north wall of the building is probably the largest oil painting ever hung.

COL. MERRITT DISCUSSES PATRIOTIC MILITARY SERVICE

Late Colonel of Governor-General's Body Guards Declares That Time Has Come For a Regeneration of Canada's Defence Organization.

Toronto, April 13.—"Had our people been alive to the true position in which we are, from a military point of view—a veritable fool's paradise—they would long ago have discarded our present military system in favor of patriotic military service. When I say the people of Canada, I mean, of course, those of our own time, for our forefathers were wiser, and, indeed, knew better what fighting for their country meant, after their hard lessons in 1812-13 and 14."

So said Lieut.-Col. William Hamilton Merritt, late commanding officer of the Governor-General's Body Guards and president of the Canadian Military Institute in concluding an address to that body last evening on "Patriotic Military Service." He added:

"What strikes an average Canadian more forcibly than almost anything else in the old world, is the real earnest serious tone that is assumed by even civilians when it comes to the matter of national defence, and the safeguarding of flag and country. Military and civilians alike seem keyed-up, under normal conditions, to what would be a war scare pitch in this country.

"No matter whether we like to allow ourselves to think it or not, the ordinary state of mind towards the military organization of our people by our people is that it is purely fool business waste of time and wholly unnecessary. Forgetting the lesson of a hundred years ago they ask who is going to attack Canada? War with the United States is unthinkable. Japan is our ally, etc.

"We can only give the old answer in reply: If we do not need an armed organization capable of putting a real, earnest strong defence—a united people striking all together for their homes and country—then we had better not spend money uselessly, and we should do away with all military expenditure, above all we should not waste it on a hopelessly inadequate and obsolete system.

"The great lesson for our countrymen to learn is that because we have a great and a potentially rich inheritance other countries will some day, if not now, wish to possess it, and that, instead of sneering at patriotism and soldiering, it should be held and taught that the highest duty and obligation of every male citizen is to fit himself to defend that inheritance with his own hands and his own body and his own life.

"This is but a feeble indication of what the fathers and mothers of the Japanese have from generation to generation instilled into the minds of their children, and the fruits of which amazed the world in the late war.

"When we become more unselfish, when the individual learns that on him rests an obligation to fit himself for the defence of his home, his flag and his country, then and then only will Canada be safe, and by safeguarding Canada we can claim to have made secure the future right hand of a greater Empire than has been."

Col. Merritt's remarks were supplementary to a previous paper of his on "Switzerland's Citizen Soldiery," and, by a review of the military systems of the civilized world, an endeavor to show that Canada's military system lags far behind as a practical means for safeguarding the country.

"The Canadian system might not improperly be designated the dollar system," he said. "Our city corps, who put in training at night in their local armories, might be compared to the abandoned volunteer system in Great Britain, who draw no pay; but to the main bulk of those attending the annual mobilization of our Canadian militia the dollar, with shelter and sustenance, is an extremely important factor.

"The Militia Department have been obliged to increase the pay to fill up the ranks with patriots." While Frenchmen draw one cent when in uniform, Canada, under the voluntary principle, has to adopt the 'dollar' basis to fill her ranks.

ROCHESTER BEING DEVOURED BY FLAMES TO-DAY

Over a Million Dollars Damage Already Done---Three Immense Fires Are Burning---Firemen Unable to Cope With Flames---Assistance Asked From Buffalo and Syracuse.

Special to J. N Barber.

Rochester, NY, April 13—One of the worst fires in the history of Rochester is raging here today. All the east side of the city is burning and over a million dollars damage has been already done. Fifty houses in a row are now ablaze and there is no apparatus to fight the flames. Big fires are also raging in other parts of the city.

The fire started at the corner of Gibbs and Main streets and spread rapidly. St Peter's church, the Jewish temple and other large buildings are on fire. The Selden building is a mass of ruins. The sparks were carried by the wind and ignited buildings far from where the fire first started.

The flames jumped across Gibbs St before the firemen had actually time to get to work. The house of Rev. Max Landberg on the opposite corner caught fire and the flames then spread to St Peter's church which is in the rear of the Landsberg residence. Fanned by a south wind, the fire spread quickly to the row of flats on the south side of Grove place and to residences across the street.

It is feared that several firemen have been killed as a number of them were caught beneath the falling walls.

It is feared that the block bounded by Main street east, Gibbs street, Grove place and Windsor street would fall before the flames. The wind is blowing a gale.

When the row of flats on the south side of Grove place caught fire, the flames started to jump across the street and spread to Gibbs street. The south wall of the Selden building fell at 1.15 pm, Berith Kodesh Temple caught fire at 11.45 and is totally destroyed.

One man is said to have been killed by the falling walls.

At 12.15 o'clock one of the towers on St Peter's fell with a crash and it was seen that the fire had gained a hole in the roof. At the same time the towers of the temple were on fire and burning briskly.

Several firemen are reported to have been injured by falling walls which went down within twenty minutes after the fire started. Two of them are said to have been injured so severely that they had to be taken to the hospital. The others were taken to their homes.

Assistance to fight the fire has been requested from Buffalo and Syracuse.

LATER.

The other two fires are on Chatham street and the other on University avenue. Over fifty houses are on fire on University avenue.

2.45 pm—On Chatham street a church and ten houses are on fire. Unless help arrives very soon the whole south side will be a total loss. The flames are gaining on the firemen every minute. They appear to have no control over the fire at all.

SMOKE SEEN AT COBOURG

Cobourg, April 13—The smoke of the Rochester fire can be seen from the top of the city hall here.

BAR OUT NASTY BOOKS SAYS WILFRID CAMPBELL

Poet is Unsparing in His Denunciation of Debasing Influences in Literature Creeping Into Modern Canada's Libraries.

Toronto, April 13.—"You can all be Neros; do not fiddle while Ontario is burning," said William Wilfrid Campbell, M.A., LL.D., F.R.S.C., poet and moral mentor, to the Ontario Library Association last night. This invitation to be up and doing referred to the necessity of stemming the tide of debasing influence of modern popular literature. The librarians and the newspapers were told. "You have bred the monster which is about to destroy you. He who in any walk of life descends to catering to what is called public opinion is dooming himself in the long run."

"Where books were once use magazines and newspapers are taking their place. The average library in its efforts to be popular is deteriorating the library ideal to the public appetite. Too much is being done to provide cheap American magazines for boys and girls and lounging men. The magazine list could be cut down to one-fifth with great advantage. The reading of newspapers and novels has become one of the vices of our age."

Librarians were exhorted to wake up to the fact of the terrible degeneration in fiction. "Back to Sir Walter Scott, the greatest and sanest of English writers, since Shakespeare!" seems to be the poet's battle cry.

The speaker fell foul of the works of George Meredith, which he described as "false and pedantic, injurious to British and Canadian culture, disgustingly immoral, a decadent and an exceedingly nasty one, a literary and ethical monstrosity."

"There is too much of the nasty in ordinary fiction. I tell you frankly the community won't stand it much longer. It is a sign of a terrible moral decadence. Hundreds of such books are on our library shelves to-day."

William De Morgan's "Somehow Good," was singled out for special execration. "There is no 'somehow' about it. I should call it 'altogether bad.' Its theme is unfit to be handled in a novel. The book has no excuse for being.

"You ought to be ashamed to allow such vicious literature to creep into your shelves."

Such books as "The Shuttle" were a gross libel on British family life. Incidentally he paid a high tribute to Nursey's book on Sir Isaac Brock, which, he declared should be read by every young Canadian.

"It is dangerous to drift, to allow all sorts of agitators to dictate our ideals. The duty of Canadian libraries is to inculcate the sound, old-time, ethical, British ideals. We worship smartness and forgive dishonesty. Any really great literature can only come from a sane, pure and God-like people."

A paper by Inspector T. W. H. Leavitts on "The Working Man and the Library," was read. It was high time he held, that Canada should shake off the lethargy of industrial indifference.

The following officers were elected: President, Judge Hardy, Brampton; first vice president, A. W. Cameron, B.A., Streetsville; second vice-president, D. J. Burpee, Ottawa; secretary, E. A. Hardy, B.A., Toronto; treasurer, Dr. A. B. Macallum, Toronto. Councillors: Dr. George F. Locke, Toronto; W. F. Moore, Dundas; Miss Janet Charteris, Chatham; H. J. Clark, Belleville; D. Williams, Collingwood; Rev. W. A. Bradley, B.A., Berlin.

In the afternoon Rev. W. A. Bradley of Berlin, the president, referred to the necessity of providing for the education of the artisan through the public library and the subjects for which at present he is largely dependent on U. S. correspondence schools. He believed that with a Government grant the average fee of $50 a year so paid, could be cut in two.

The secretary's report said that enquiries had been received from British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba and Nova Scotia. The annual list of "best books" issued by the association has become a quarterly bulletin, and the question of an editorial board to supervise the issue goes before the incoming executive.

The treasurer reported a balance of $214.19; receipts were $411.21.

Library institutes were reported as "all alive and very much in earnest." The building of a new library at Ridgeway was the result of the visit of an institute.

The report of the committee on the bibliography of Canadian history and historical fiction was given by L. J. Brupee of Ottawa. E. A. Hardy in presenting the report on Government grants, notes that the bill introduced by the Minister of Education made an effort to meet the associations.

ICE JAM IS STILL FAST AT NIAGARA

Estimate of Damage Done to Power Works Machinery Places it at One Million Dollars— Change is Going on But Break-up is Very Gradual.

Niagara Falls, April 13.—Conditions in the lower river are practically the same, and unless heavy winds blow more ice down the river to-day the damage done by the ice jam in the lower river will not exceed that already estimated, which totals at a reasonable estimate one million dollars. Already, before the jam has perceptibly started to break up, the gorge railroad has put a gang of 250 men at work repairing that portion of the track above the whirlpool, which can be reached. The lower portion is still submerged for five miles under millions of tons of ice. Yesterday morning a small section of the pack below the whirlpool broke away and swung out into the river. Then other sections broke off and the jam is now growing smaller. The change is going on very gradually. It is thought that when the rest of the jam goes out, the whole gorge track from Whirlpool to Lewiston may be carried away. The ice is breaking away in great masses of a ton or more and sections of the tracks are being carried away, poles and wire following the rails and ties into the river. Near the Cornell House, in Lewiston, the ice is piling still higher, although it is already 40 feet above the level of the river.

At the Ontario Power Co. hundreds of men are busy cleaning the machinery, which was flooded with ice and water on Saturday. The plant is now free from ice, and the machines are being dried, and until the power-house is opened for a full load, the Canadian Niagara Power Co. and Electrical Development Co. are supplying power to the disabled company.

The conditions in the river just below the falls changed yesterday. The ice bridge has worn away from the base of the cataracts and a huge bank of ice extends half way across the river above the upper bridge. The ice at this point is over ten feet above the normal level, having fallen about 30 feet.

CONSTABLE RE-ENTERED HOUSE AND FOUND HIS MAN COMING OUT OF THE CELLAR

Special to the Review.

Havelock, April 12—Fred Varty, the chief of the Varty Bros. who came to town on Tuesday night last to paint the town red and escaped from the police with the handcuffs on, is still at large. His brother whose interference allowed Fred to escape, was taken on Wednesday last.

Constables Cochrane and Moore, accompanied by Chief Brill drove out to the Varty residence about three miles east of town but were unable to find either Frank or Fred.

The family including the father are all very tall and powerful and it is reported that a third son drew out a knife and the sister told the constables what she thought of them.

Their search was fruitless and they started to depart, when Constable Cochrane re-entered the house and met Frank coming out of the cellar, and he was arrested.

It is quite likely that friends have released Fred from the handcuffs. They have a number of relations throughout the country among whom Fred is believed to be hiding. Frank comes up for trial before Magistrate Edmison at Peterborough April 14th.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

FLOOD PERIL IN THE ST. LAWRENCE

Montreal, April 13.—Last night the ice in the river opposite the city began to move down the river at the Boucherville Islands. It jammed with the consequence that in less than half an hour the water at the lower end of the city rose eight feet, covering the high level wharves, which are supposed to be above the high water mark.

The civic pumping stations have so far been able to keep the water out of the cellars along the river front.

Mrs. Legault, aged 60 years, was killed by a street car at Montreal.

The wife of ex-President Castro will not be allowed to land in Venezuela.

Evidence was heard at London against John Ward, charged with causing the death of Alex. Warwick.

T. S. Bonneau, a railway telegrapher, was found dead and frozen in a brook near the track at Farnham, Que.

A deputation from Montreal has gone to wait on Premier Gouin with the object of securing reforms in the civic administration.

Winnipeg Street Railway employes have refused an increase in pay offered by the company in lieu of their demands for shorter hours.

The man who was selling papers through a hole in the door at Hamilton made his escape from the building while four policemen were supposed to be watching it.

PREVENTION OF INFECTION

The Canadian Hospital Association Discusses Germ-Carrying at Toronto.

Toronto, April 13.—"This meeting is to discuss mutual problems, and bring enlightenment from the experience of others," said Dr. W. J. Dobbin of the Toronto Hospital for Consumptives, in opening the third annual meeting of the Canadian Hospital Association yesterday at the Parliament buildings.

The principal item was a paper on "Germ Carriers," prepared by Miss K. Mathieson of Toronto Isolation Hospital and read by Dr. J. N. E. Brown. There were four types of "germ carriers" (1) Mild or unrecognized cases; (2) convalescents released prematurely from quarantine; (3) nurses, physicians, attendants, members of the family and articles which have been in contact with a germ carrier and who, nevertheless, harbor a specific germ.

A great difficulty which isolation hospitals had to contend with was the visitation of friends, and whether they come from homes of the poor or palaces of the rich, they should be treated alike in respect of rules governing control of infectious diseases. Every city should have a steam disinfecting plant for treating carpets, curtains, in order that they could be returned free from germs.

The advantage of a water filtration system was spoken of by Dr. Charteris, who said that Chatham had enjoyed immunity of typhoid on that account.

ALFONSO STARTS MORAL REFORM

Madrid, April 13.—The old night life of Spain, the music and dancing that has been such an attractive feature to foreign tourists to Madrid and the southern cities of Seville, Cadiz, Benda, Malaga and Barcelonia, is a thing of the past.

A few years ago the Government decided that night Bohemianism was demoralising the youth of the country, and King Alfonso issued a royal decree closing music halls, cafes and other places of amusement at 12.30 a.m. Formerly these places never closed their doors.

A new royal decree, designed to raise the tone of the music halls, has just been issued. The women of the stage are prohibited hereafter from entering that part of the building intended for the public or from addressing or otherwise coming in contact with the audience.

The Daily Review

TUESDAY, APRIL 13, 1909.

THE COUNTRY'S INTERESTS

The Globe of Monday publishes a most eulogistic leading editorial upon Mr. Pugsley. It says he is gracious, pleasing, able and by inference—honest. On the other hand the Commission having been appointed by his enemies is necessarily biased unfair and untruthful. That must be the character of all the royal commissions of later years for they have all found against the Laurier government and its favorites. The truth is Pugsley has more cold calculating "cheek" than almost any man at present in the House of Commons. That the Globe should impeach a Royal Commission while defending Mr Pugsley, is just like the Globe.

ANOTHER SCANDAL

It is said that the public mind cannot absorb more than a certain amount of information whether it be of scandal or otherwise. A single scandal acting is much the same. But the capacity for taking it in increases all right. The limit is not so small in after years as it was in the earlier. Scandals in public life in Canada have become so tremendous and so persistent that when a man heard recently that Pugsley and Tweedie were accused of taking only $134,000 he accused his informants of being mere knockers and fault finders although he himself had not as many cents as his own property. We have heard so much of Niagara that we pooh! pooh! it. There has been "so much talk" of our boundless wealth that when a slice of it is stolen we only shrug our shoulders. And when it is only a question of ethics or morality, how absurd! The leaders in public life in Canada necessarily represent the people and when they and all of them are continued in office, what must we suppose? It is the downfall, the disgrace, the humiliation of modern civilization in Canada which we have not had time or disposition to digest.

POWER OF FARM PRICES

In the annual report of the Secretary of Agriculture, occasion is taken to point out the extent to which improved financial conditions have, within the past decade or more, become a feature of American farming.

"Momentous changes have occurred to agriculture in this country, during the last dozen years. Features of great import have been introduced. Forces have become operative whose results are already enormous, with the certainty of cumulative and accelerated future consequences for the nation's good and well-being. The farmer's work and harvest have had the benefit of more varied knowledge and more effective intelligence. His life and living have undergone transformations which increasingly make the farm preferable to the town.

The improvement in financial condition found its turning point in prices about the year 1897. Since that time there has been, with few exceptions, a steady progress to a high level, which may or may not by this time have reached its maximum. The measure of gain to the producer of staples is shown by comparing American farm values, at different years before or about 1897, with those of 1908. Among the several items produced on the farm the following suffice to emphasize the enormous change in the purchasing power of the farm, under conditions of departure from low to more profitable prices:

Dairy cows, 1892 $21.40, 1908 $30.67, per cent. increase 43.3.

Hogs, 1897 $4.10, 1908 $6.05, per cent. increase 47.5.

A majority of these prices, including the more important commodities marketed from the farm, rose over a hundred per cent. Such was the case with corn, oats, potatoes, horses, mule and sheep. Meanwhile, in some of these the price has advanced still farther than the one given at the end of 1908. It is sufficient, however, to point out that in the short span of a little more than a decade, farming has come to be one of the most profitable of competitive industries.

The surplus has made the farmer, representing six million or more separate estates, so much a source of demand for manufacturers that but for him the panic of 1907 might easily have left the country in as deplorable a condition as it was in 1894, rather than in the fairly tolerable situation which has characterised business during 1908-09.

Now that the same farmer is beginning work on several hundred million acres of crops for the current year, the business world cannot help but feel the reviving effect of as great a commercial influence as is indicated in the above figures.—Trade Review.

Seventeen families recently left Farnham, P.Q., for the U.S. The unprotective policy is beginning to tell.

The financiers and brokers in London are skimming the cream off Canada with a vengeance. $600,000.00 for financing a $15,000,000 loan is something to think over.

It is said that husbands and wives are so jealous of their life-partners who figure as stars on the stage that it is becoming more and more the fashion of Thespians not to wed.

A new theory or an old one revived has it that immortality is a gift to the believer conferred, at the same time with pardon for sin and that immortality does not belong by reason of birth to mankind.

"Maskelyne and Cooke could do much more wonderful things. Once we saw Maskelyne impersonate a doctor in his consulting room and Cooke impersonate a patient with strange pains in his head. Maskelyne advised having the brains taken out, repaired and cleaned, and Cooke consented. Then we saw the top of Cooke's head sawn off the brains removed and laid in a dish the top of the skull replaced, and Mr. Cooke walked off, after being told to call in a week and have his brains replaced after they had been cleaned and otherwise fixed up. And the verisimilitude of the performance was so great that it was difficult not to believe it real. Mr. Cooke, however, to end the story, never called for his brains. Meeting him on the street Mr. Maskelyne reminded him that they were ready and waiting for him; but he declared that he had been getting along better without them and had no further use for them."

Chicago, April 10.—Higher criticism of the Bible, more startling in many points than that advanced by Professor George B. Foster is voiced by Professor Henry B. Sherman instructor in New Testament history and literature in the University of Chicago Divinity School in a book on "The Teaching of Jesus About the Future" issued to-day from the university press.

Professor Sherman in an exhaustive consideration of the gospel of Matthew, Mark and Luke, repudiates much of the contents of these books to what he considers garbled reports of Christ's sayings false interpretations of Christ's views by outside influence, false messengers concerning future life and future punishment and unauthentic tales of Christ's life. He casts doubt upon the chief tenets of the orthodox church which he regards as the products of wrong interpretations of the New Testament.

That Jesus did not preach the doctrine of "heaven" and "hell," and the "day of judgment" and did not commission his disciples to preach the gospel are among the professor's assertions. He divides the material of the synoptic gospel into "what Jesus probably said" "what the earliest editors of the gospel thought he said or would like to represent him saying," and "what later editors thought it best to represent him as saying."

Missionary Sympathy With Indian Nationalism

Every advance in social and religious reform and in material progress that has been made during the British era in India, says an editorial writer in The Christian Patriot, Madras, owes either its inception or its success to the influence as disinterested labor of missionaries and those Anglo-Indians who have been imbued with the Christian spirit. In the present agitation for nationalism among the natives the missionaries are bearing a conspicuous part, as this writer shows;

"Even in the early stages of the unrest, when the best and most disinterested Indian leaders were the objects of the most cruel suspicion, and when the sinister and retrograde policy of Lord Curzon and his great host of Anglo-Indian sympathizers was in full swing, the foreign missionary body, with a very few exceptions, sympathised with the aspirations of the Indian reformers, and their generous words of encouragement at critical times, and their whole hearted support have endeared them to all Indians except those blinded by religious or racial hatred."

Even in Great Britain it is said, the tendency among the churches is to sympathise with Indian aspirations. Dr Clifford and the Rev C. Sylvester Horne are among the prominent English Free Churchmen who are mentioned as having openly identified themselves with the national movement. The protest issued by the Indian Civil Rights Committee was signed by several dignitaries of the English Church—a fact, however that leads the present writer to caution English sympathizers to consult missionaries or Indian Christians "before joining such bodies too freely." The writer quotes from a book on "India" by the Rev C F Andrews, —"one of the half a dozen missionaries who have been the most insistent on the justice and vitality of the national movement in and out of the church." Mr Andrews words are;

"We are speaking of the Indian church and this as you know, includes the bishop and the chaplains and the government establishment. The Church is one and the clergy are one. A chaplain traveling at double first class fare at the taxpayers expense and living in every way like a Sahib, with a Sahib's idea of the 'inferior race' remains a stumbling-block still to the logical Hindu mind, however much the anomaly may be explained away. "There is one form of Christianity for the English, and another which the missionary teaches to the Indian." Again, while the Indian Church itself is so government-ridden —and the government is a foreign government of a conquering race—will not Indians always remain subordinates. Will not the Indian point of view be continually subordinated to government interests? The pulse of a new life is beating in Indian hearts —they are critical of these things as they never were before; they feel subjection and inequality as they never did in the past. What will be the Church's answer to the new spirit. The Anglo-Saxon Church, even in its early missionary days, led the English people into freedom, unity and self dependence. Can the Indian Church tied as she is to a foreign state establishment do the same in India?

Christianity has never stood higher in the national consciousness than at present, declares the editorial writer. He adds;

"The self restraint of the Indian Christian amid the scarcely concealed hostility displayed to him solely on account of his faith, the sympathetic attitude of the missionary toward national aspirations and the great tradition of the Church in favor of reform —all these have contributed to place the Church higher than ever before. There is of course—as there will always be—a section that hates Christianity and all things Christian, but it is small and does not represent the better mind of India."

Coming American Prima Donnas

Mr. Hammerstein says he recently had a talk about opera with some United States Senators in Washington. None of them had ever seen an opera presented, and when "Pelleas and Melisande" was mentioned "they all believed that I was referring to a new canal for which I was down there to get an appropriation." No, Mr. Hammerstein catches himself — "one of them thought they were two Bulgarian provinces in revolt." This we are told by way of pointing the fact that the great mass of our population are equally ignorant about opera. Mr. Hammerstein declares that the Senators are typical; but being the optimist that he is he believes we are to learn much in the future. When that day comes it will find the American prima donna triumphant. It is "not out ignorance or stupidity or self-satisfaction" that are to blame but "it is the lack of opportunity — the lack of development which ought not to exist longer." Mr Hammerstein, who has provided opportunity for education in opera for two cities, sees a remote future when "houses for the production of grand operas are permanent features of all our large cities." That will be the golden day for the American prima donna. In the April Delineator, New York, Mr. Hammerstein previsages a glorious company;

"They are here in the raw material just as much as they are in Italy or France; they are younger, that is all. Today there are literally hundreds of American girls studying in Europe, from many of whom we shall hear in a very short time. I am expecting the great American wonder any minute.

"Of course while there are many good singers, and many more would-be Melbas who are fair targets for the wrath of the Society for the Suppression of Unnecessary Noises, there are very, very few great singers. These are not made— they are Nature's gift. But that same Mother Nature is no more prodigal of her gifts to the women of Europe than to ours of America; her garden is more rudely cultivated and her flowers bloom in more congenial soil than we have ever furnished.

"Aside from the American girl's dramatic force and deeply emotional temperament —both priceless assets —she has the pluck to work and study. She is not content to stay where she is, if patient painstaking will help her on. Our girls are bright, and as a natural consequence they have more heart than other girls. Stupid people cannot feel —they are mollusks. I find the heart that feels and throbs more often among American girls than among any others, and when my chorus,— American girls, every one— are bursting their throats in the grand finale, "Ah, we are thrilling now with joy," I know their ginger is induced by something finer than the thought that pay day is three hours nearer."

The American girl ought to surely be proud to hear Mr Hammerstein say that "all the possibilities are embodied" in her. The record she made during the latter half of the nineteenth century "foreshadows the future." "Against Billington, Grassini, Catalini, Sontag, and the long list of great European singers whose names are become distant memories," he proudly declares, "we need not hesitate to set the names of Nordica, and Eames and Farrar, and Garden".

He goes on,—

"A generation ago when an impresario ventured to present an American singer to her countrymen, he did so on the strength of a European reputation, and gave a foreign twist to her name. When Lillian Norton made her first appearance with Patti in the old Academy of Music, she attracted very little notice; but the Italianized Nordica and a halo of European glory won long and loud applause. Twenty years have radically changed that situation and Geraldine Farrar's own honest name does not imperil her supremacy.

"When the great people of America —not a few capitalists and devotees of fashion— demand grand opera and make its support the same serious business which continental Europe has done for three centuries, we shall not send abroad for our dramatic singers.

"It was in AD, 1691 that Tuscan Margarita de l'Elpine inaugurated the fashion in England, so industriously copied by Patti in America —an annual "positively last appearance." In AD. 1991 Mary Smith may just as reasonably be expected to hold the Italian populace in thrall by the magic of her American voice.

"At the conclusion of a busy life I have chosen the giving of opera as an avocation, an aim, never a business. Perhaps I am a musical philanthropist, for I want to give the great public a love for opera which it does not know, as well as stimulate its affection for that which it knows."

"I want music lovers to demand established opera in all our cities of any importance. Then American voices will be discovered; requisite training will not be the difficult, costly, remote thing it is today, and the American prima donna will be in possession of her kingdom."

A Time for Action

A tragic glimpse of an underworld is afforded by the Chicago correspondent of the Christian.

"The Christian citizenship of Chicago," he writes, "is rejoicing over the practical and effective crusade which our ever-strenuous President is carrying on against the White Slave traffic by means of the Department of Justice. With the vision of a seer he saw this vile octopus spreading its venomous tentacles over every immigrant wharf and every city in the Republic. He therefore caused the appointment of Mr. J. B. Reynolds to act as a Special Commissioner to investigate this traffic as it is being carried on in Panama in Japan, in China and throughout our own land from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast.

WHITE SLAVE TRAFFICKERS.

"Mr. Reynolds made his report to the Department of Justice about two years ago. It was upon the basis of this report that the President suggested to Congress and secured the passage of an amendment to the Federal statute enabling the Government to deal effectively with white slave traffickers. The President won this victory on Feb. 20, 1907.

"The Federal law, as amended, makes it an unlawful act to keep maintain support or harbour any alien woman for immoral purposes within two years after her arrival in the United States. The penalty for violation is a fine of £1000, and imprisonment for five years at the discretion of the court. It should be remembered that this is a Federal statute. Therefore the crusade of which I am writing concerns itself only with that aspect of the traffic which involves the importation of girls from other countries.

"The Government at Washington was inspired to action by this amendment. In every seaport and in every city instructions were received by United States District Attorneys to take such action as was necessary to apprehend the violators and convict them. It was fortunate for the Government and for the cause of civic righteousness in Chicago that, when these orders were given, they found a District Attorney at Chicago ready and willing to carry them out to the very letter—the Hon. Edwin W. Simms. He raided various houses and caused the arrest of seventy-five procurers. He interrogated 200 women and thereby brought to the Government a large fund of information concerning the 'operations' of the traffickers in flesh and blood.

"The chief procurers arrested were named Du Fors. They were man and wife. Their bail was fixed at 25,000 dols (£5,000). Furnishing their own bond, they gave the Government as security their own house and lot valued at 35,000 dols (£7,000). The next day they left Chicago for Paris —thus forfeiting to the Government —their handsome residence. Reaching France, they immediately resumed their shameless operations. But their traffic this time was in American girls. Recently they were caught, brought to justice and sentenced to a French prison—the man for a term five years, the woman for two years.

"The District Attorney came into possession of the book accounts of the Du Fors. The records of business transacted establish the following facts:

THE WHITE SLAVE SYNDICATE.

"That the White Slave Traffic is an organised syndicate, with headquarters in Chicago, and branch offices established in all our large cities. These branch houses become 'clearing houses' and "distributing centres' for this unthinkable syndicate! It buys a girl for £3, and sells her for £30, sometimes £100. The Du Fors House alone did a business of £22,000 the first nine months of 1906, and £40,000 for the year of 1907! Regularly and systematically it sends hunters to France, Hungary, Italy and Canada for victims. It stations its hirelings to almost every port of entry in Canada and America. They scan immigrants, and seek to trap unprotected girls by speaking to them in their own tongue, or by an offer of employment. Then follow in quick succession capture, ruin, slavery hell!"

THE DANGERS OF TRAVELLING.

The English aspect of this question has been discussed by the Law Times, which says that the actual perils run may be briefly illustrated by the following instance. The truth of the main points can be guaranteed. A parent sent two young daughters to London from the country to stay with some friends unknown to the girls in question. The correspondence may have been on postcards, but anyhow the arrangements were discovered by some agents. The girls on arriving were met by a 'lady' with a carriage, who apologized for the friends' absence, and asked them to proceed to the friends' house in her carriage.

"'On arrival they were at once asked to dress and come down to dinner. They found dinner had commenced, and the 'lady' beckoned them to their seats without further comment. The 'gentleman' seated next to one of these girls soon saw that she was trapped, and told her forthwith to leave the room on an excuse, and without any delay whatever to rush out of the house. She did so, and, in a state of mind bordering on frenzy, was found by a policeman and placed in safety. She cannot identify the particular house, which she had never seen in daylight. Her unfortunate sister has not been heard of since.

"Another instance is known to us of a lady accosting an English girl travelling to Berlin, and offering to put her in a cab for her destination. She was again saved by the spark of nobility remaining in an habitue of the establishment she reached. It is surely not for nothing that the Travellers' Aid Society has been formed," says the Law Times. "These are some of the tragedies which become known to people who engage in various aspects of social work. Reinforced by recent revelations consequent upon the conviction referred to, they should both warn those responsible for the interests of young girls and should spur the authorities to greater efforts to exterminate such traffic."

In the House of Commons recently Mr. Gladstone declared that, having read a report from the police, he may have to ask for fresh powers to deal with these matters.

THE CLEANSING OF A CITY.

In connection with this great problem we would call attention to a book published by the National Social Purity Crusade, Craven House, Kingsway, W.C., entitled "The Cleansing of a City," Greening & Co., 1s. net, by post 1s. 3d. In this book, as the Bishop of Hereford says, "Something of this underworld of degraded men and women and suffering children doomed to a life of sin is portrayed for us by those who have seen and know. It should stir in many readers new thoughts as to their responsibility for the conditions under which our social system leaves or condemns men and women to live and children to grow up."—Public Opinion, England.

A SURPRISED MINISTER

"For many years I have been a sufferer from bronchial catarrh, and had despaired of anything like a cure. Judge of my pleasant surprise when I first used Hyomei, has been a veritable godsend."—Rev. Charles Hartley, Sardinia, Ohio.

Thousands of catarrh sufferers have given up in despair. They have tried stomach dosing, snuff, sprays and douches without success, and now believe catarrh to be incurable.

But Wm. Madill, druggist, Peterborough, holds out hope to all distressed. He sells a remedy called Hyomei which is guaranteed for catarrh, colds, coughs, bronchitis, asthma and croup.

Hyomei —pronounced High-o-me — a medicated air, full of the healthy virtues of the mountain pines. You breathe in the delightful antiseptic air, and as it passes over the inflamed and germ ridden membrane it allays the inflamation, kills the germs and drives out the disease.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including a hard rubber inhaler, costs but $1.00 and an extra bottle of Hyomei if afterwards needed, costs but 50 cents. See Wm. Madill, druggist, Peterborough, about it today.

Council Started Year With a Deficit of $900—Havelock Man Had Narrow Escape in the Wreck at Tweed.

Special to the Review.

Havelock, April 12—Mr F J Squires has recently completed his cottage at Trent Bridge which stood on the land through which the course of the Trent canal will pass.

The Methodist Sunday School concert in the opera house on Good Friday night was largely attended. Numerous dialogues, readings and choruses were given by the Sunday School children. W E Marr of Toronto, also part in the programme among his many selections sing "When Father laid the carpet on the stairs."

The school children are enjoying themselves during their fortnight holidays. On Monday a large number made their way to the woods, laden with eggs and heartily enjoyed themselves despite the dampness of the ground.

Rev. R Balfour commenced his report of the recent National Missionary Congress in the Methodist church on Sunday last.

Reeve Knox is to be congratulated on his progressive ideas in respect to the policy that Havelock should adopt during the coming year. He thinks that action should be taken now so that when the town becomes larger, it will be up to date in every respect. At the council meeting on Monday last, April 5th, he gave his ideas to the council.

He thought that an engineer should be engaged at once to take the levels in the village in order that it may finally be determined what course has to be taken in regard to the drainage of the village. Hundreds of dollars have already been spent in drainage which prove of no value. The small creek running through the middle of the village forms the chief drainage at the present and it should be known whether it is better to continue this system or to run a drain down Ottawa street.

He thought also as the finances of the village were somewhat short, it would be best during the present year to make such repairs only as would be absolutely necessary and thus to keep the expenditure down to the lowest point. The council have an up hill job before them this year, starting with a deficit of over $900, and being without the license money last year's council received.

It is the Reeve's idea to submit, to the ratepayers in January next, a by-law asking for $10,000 to construct cement walks and drainage including the $1000 spent on cement walks last year, the debentures to cover a period of twenty-five years.

The Havelock auxiliary was called out on Friday morning last for the first time in a long while for the wreck at Tweed.

Mr. Ed Williams narrowly escaped. He was engineer on the up train and did not see the approaching train until the engines were within ten feet of each other. He had the presence of mind to climb into the window and brace himself. When the shock came he was thrown down the embankment but escaped with a bad cut in the side of his face and many bruises. Had he attempted to get out of the engine by the natural way he would have undoubtedly been instantly killed as the cab and tender were driven into each other.

Funeral of Late Mrs. Casey

The funeral of the late Mrs David Casey was held this morning from her late home, lot 29, con. 6 of Otonabee. The late Mrs Casey was well known and highly respected and a large number of friends and acquaintances attended the obsequies.

The funeral took place to St Peter's cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery for interment.

WHO PUBLISHED THE LOCAL OPTION PETITION? LETTER FROM REV. E. A. PEARSON

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Permit me a few words regarding that elongated list of names of those who signed the local option petition. That list was not published at the request of any friend of local option. Then by whom? The expense involved was not met by any friend of local option. Then by whom? Why has this been done? The question is capable of but one answer, so that nothing need be said. Is it unfair or "intemperate" to require that local option matter, both for and against, should be labelled so that the public may be able to place the responsibility where it belongs? It is a burden of a famous hand to hand conflict under the walls of ancient Troy:

"Through all that dark and doleful night
The prayer of Ajax was for light
To see his foeman's face."

Now, in our daily papers some seventeen hundred faces have been exposed to view; some of us would like to see that one other face that is missing. In this contest let everything be done in the open; no evading of responsibility; no beating about the bush; but a fair field and no favor. The issue is one which concerns every man, woman and child in our city.

Yours sincerely,
EDWIN A. PEARSON.

Note—It may be explained for the information of the correspondent that the list of names to the petition was published at the request of those opposed to the prayer of the petition, and who were required to defray the mechanical expense involved in putting such a mass of names in type. Had the local option people asked for the same publication they would have been required to pay just the same. The copy matter was really got together by the local option friends and deposited with the city clerk, where it is public property. In no sense was the matter prepared by the opposition. It did not express any views, argument, or take any side in the controversy. Hence it was not labelled. Just so soon as the opposition to local option offer to express their views, place them on paper, and offer them to the Review, the matter will be labelled. So far they have not done so.

NEW ARMOURY PASSES FROM ONE DEPARTMENT TO ANOTHER

Today the new Armoury here passed from the Public Works Department to the Militia Department of Canada.

Col. Young, D.A.G., of Kingston, and Major Fuller, of the Public Works Department, and Major Durocher, of the Militia Department, are in Peterborough today and made a thorough inspection of the armoury along with Major Clegg and Major Bennett. They found everything in the most satisfactory condition and the transfer from the one department to the other, as already stated, will be the result. It is the general opinion that Contractor Geo. A. Proctor, has done his work well. Mr. Proctor is also on the city to-day.

The contracts for the interior fittings, such as lockers, rifle gallery, bowling alleys, etc., will now be asked for without delay.

GAVE AN INTERESTING ASTRONOMICAL LECTURE

Mr H B. Collier, vice-president of Peterborough Centre Royal Astronomical Society gave a lecture in the Charlotte street Methodist church last night to the Epworth League, dealing with his astronomical subject in a most interesting way.

The large audience greatly enjoyed the skilful presentation of the subject. He prepared his audience for a trip to the skies and the first stopping was the moon. The speaker went over the moon carefully showing the mountain ranges, extinct volcanoes, and great plains. He explained the hydrogen fires on the sun, the great solar disturbances, and showed the movements of the various planets.

THIS BILL WILL RECEIVE THIRD READING BY COUNCIL

At the meeting of the Board of Health this morning the Board decided that it had no authority to certify a bill of $200 presented for nursing in connection with the scarlet fever cases, the nurses being engaged by City Relief Officer Miller. As the funds of the city relief department have been exhausted by the heavy demands on the department the bill was passed on by that department to the Board of Health to have the latter body confirm it before presentation to the city council. The board decided that it should be presented to the council directly.

The minutes of the two meetings on February 8th and 25th were read at the opening of this morning's meeting and received as read.

Dr. Burnham, the president, occupied the chair at the meeting.

OBITUARY

BURIED AT GUELPH.

The Guelph Herald says; — Few funerals held in this city evoked greater display of sorrow than that which attended the final ceremonies over the remains of the late Mrs. Eardley-Wilmot before they were laid in their final resting place in St. George's cemetery on Saturday afternoon. The popularity of the deceased both here and in other places where she had resided a sense of deep sorrow with the heart-broken husband and sorrowing relatives combined to make the funeral one where there was openly manifested the grief of many sorrowing friends at the untimely death of one dearly beloved.

A service was held at the house, conducted by Canon Belt of Milton, who was rector of St. James' church when Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot resided in Guelph. Rev. G. F. Davidson assisting. From there the remains were taken to St. George's church, where an impressive service was held. The cortege was met at the door by a large surpliced choir, in which some of the members of St. James' choir who were co-workers with Mrs. Wilmot when she labored there, and also some of the former members of St. George's choir. Rev. G. F. Davidson had charge of the service and he was assisted by Rev. C. H. Buckland, of St. James', and Rev. A. J. Belt. The hymns sung were "Thy Will Be Done," and "On the Resurrection Morning." There were few dry eyes when the service terminated.

From the church the remains were taken to St. George's cemetery, where the final committal words were said by Rev. G. F. Davidson as the remains were lowered in the grave. The chief mourners were deceased's husband Mr. K. Eardley-Wilmot and son, Trevor, and her only brother, Mr. C. H. Chisholm of Chicago. Other out of town people were Mr. R. A. Bull of Belleville; Mr. Spratt, of Hamilton; Rev. J. Wright, of Toronto and the Messrs. Lyon and Stuart Saunders. The pall bearers were Messrs. A. D. Sheward, Toronto; L. M. Hayes, Peterborough; T. & C. Saunders, Mexico; D. Hughes Charles, Peterborough; C. L. Dunbar and C. L. Nelles.

The floral offerings were simply magnificent and it may be truthfully said that the late Mrs. Wilmot was buried in flowers, notwithstanding that many of them were sent to the two Anglican churches for Easter Sunday. A large number came from Perth: the congregation of St. John's church, Peterborough, was also represented and other loving tokens came from the Old Women's Home, Peterborough; St. James' choir, St. George's choir and S.S. teachers, and from many other dear friends in Toronto, Hamilton, Brockville and those residing in Guelph.

THE LATE MRS HUSTON.

Ipsa Martyn, wife of the late J. G. Huston, and third daughter of the late Martin Martyn, of Peterborough, died at Chicago, April 11. The body arrived on G.T.R. at noon to-day.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday at 2.30 p.m. from the residence of her sister-in-law, Mrs. R. B. Martyn, 35 Crescent street, to Little Lake cemetery.

Mrs. John H. Mowry, of Sherbrooke street, is a sister and Mrs. Benson, of Winnipeg and Mrs. Cannon, of Chicago, daughters, the only surviving members of the family.

MARIA ALMA PICARD.

The death occurred yesterday of Maria Alma Picard, eldest daughter of Mr. Joseph Picard, of this city. The deceased, who was twenty-seven years of age, had been ailing for some time, and death came quietly yesterday.

The late Miss Picard was well-known by a large number of friends and acquaintances, who will be sorry to hear of her demise.

The funeral will take place Thursday morning at nine o'clock from the family residence, 105 Lock street, to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery for interment.

REV. J. A. WILSON GAVE AN ELOQUENT ADDRESS ON "A NATION'S BEST ASSET"

Concluding Services Last Evening in Connection With the Anniversary of Knox Presbyterian Church—Congregation Had a Social Evening.

The anniversary services in connection with Knox Presbyterian church were brought to a close last night when a large number of the congregation gathered in the church to listen to an address by the Rev. J. A. Wilson, a former pastor of St. Paul's church, now of St. Andrew's church, Hamilton.

The subject of the address was "A Nation's Best Asset," and the speaker dealt with in an interesting and eloquent manner. The chair was occupied by the Rev. H. J. Keith who in a few well-said remarks introduced the speaker.

Mr. Wilson in beginning his address said that it gave him great pleasure in being invited back to Peterborough. The years he had spent in this city had been very profitable as well as pleasant, as the experience he had gained while there enabled him to better fulfil his new duties in Hamilton. Proceeding with his subject, he said that there came a time in every business man's life when he comes to see just where he stands as regards his assets and liabilities, and also in our individual life, when we look over our past achievements and compare them with the opportunities which have presented themselves to us. All nations are interested in counting up their assets, and England counted hers by her Dreadnoughts and her soldiers, and we as colonials counted our assets up in pretty much the same manner. England should and was proud to count these as valuable assets, as whereever the British flag flies there could be found those who were filled with the spirit of patriotism and ready to give their last drop of blood if necessary, to stand by the nation in case of attack.

The resources of the nation was another valuable asset, but there are different ways of looking at the assets of any great nation and we should ask ourselves if these are the best that a nation should have. We should not be content to look upon warships, soldiers and the resources of the country as the best assets. There is something better than that. They may all be necessary but the greatest assets needed are manly men and womanly women. We should not be able to say that in Canada there was a scarcity in this respect, as it was necessary for a nation to be prosperous, as it should have men who were not afraid to do that which was right. That was the kind of assets that was needed in the life of a nation. Man was meant for noble things and should do noble things according to his opportunities. We should not look for other people to do these things, but we ourselves should show what manhood and womanhood meant. It was not too hard for the man or woman who had the purpose of right at heart, and we ought to do what we could towards the welfare of the cause of the Lord God, who had placed us on this earth with a mission.

At the conclusion of the address a vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Joseph Morrison and seconded by Mr. Robert Clifford and was tendered by Rev. H. J. Keith to Mr. Wilson for his helpful address, and also for coming to take part in the anniversary of Knox church.

Rev. Mr. Riddiford of Park street Baptist church, also delivered a short address in which he spoke of the happy relations that had existed between himself and Mr. Wilson, when they had worked together in days gone by. He also congratulated the congregation on the success that they had attained in the past years and wished them greater prosperity in the years to come.

During the evening the following musical programme was rendered in a very pleasing and creditable manner;—

Duet—Misses Snow and Chiles.
Banjo selection—Mr. F. Clarke.
Anthem—Knox church choir.
Solo—Miss Bryce.
Banjo selection—Mr. F. Clarke.
Anthem—Knox church choir.

A VERY SUCCESSFUL YEAR FOR THE SPRINGVILLE CHURCH

The annual meeting of the Springville Presbyterian church was held last night. After devotional exercises Rev. Dr. Marshall was chosen chairman for the evening, and Mr. R. Robertson was chosen secretary.

The various reports were received and adopted, and on the whole showed an encouraging state of affairs, especially in connection with the mission and the Sunday school. Last year was the most successful in connection with the Sabbath school since it was founded.

Mr. McIntosh produced a document giving some items of the history of the congregation, which showed it existed sixty-two years.

At the close of the meeting Dr. Marsh gave an address on the trip to Labrador with the Dominion Government's eclipse expedition in 1905.

FLOWERS AND POST CARDS IN BIG DEMAND THIS YEAR

Local florists report that there has been this year the largest Easter business they have ever experienced. The flowers have been of an exceptionally high plane and the demand for both cut flowers, especially carnations and plants of all kinds has been great. They were pretty well sold out in most cases. In all floral establishments of the city the displays this year have been finer than in previous seasons. On the whole this Easter has been a banner one for the local florists.

The number of Easter postcards in circulation this year, according to the local post office officials was almost 50 per cent larger than it has been in any previous year. Three extra men were put on to handle the increased amount of mail matter and the deliveries all worked smoothly. Not only the number of post cards but the number of letters sent increases at Eastertime. The rush however bears no comparison with that of Christmas but is on a par with that of St. Valentine's day. The post cards sent were all of a good quality and presented no objectionable features.

HELD UP AT PORT HOPE

Mr. M. Mowry of Peterborough Robbed on Saturday—Was Visiting There

Mr. M. Mowry, of Peterborough, who has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. Walter Pilling, Park street, was held up and robbed here on Saturday evening.

According to Mr. Mowry's story, a Port Hoper became quite friendly with him, and they walked together down the Midland track. When just south of the Dorset street crossing the companion struck him a blow on the head and then rifled his pockets, taking a quantity of silver and his watch. Chief Bond was notified, but the description given of the robber was so light that it is hardly likely an arrest will follow. Mr. Mowry told the Chief that he pleaded with the thief to return the watch, agreeing to allow him to keep the money, but his would-be friend would not part with the time-piece.—Port Hope Guide.

ABOUT THIRTY APPLICATIONS

For Position as Junior Judge of Northumberland and Durham

It is understood that some time will elapse before a junior judge will be appointed for the united counties of Northumberland and Durham in succession to the late Judge Ketchum. The population falls slightly short of 80,000, the number required for the appointment of two judges, senior and junior, by the Dominion Government. In cases of jurisdictions whose population is under 80,000, the Provincial Government must first sanction the appointment of a second judge, and the Dominion Government names the man. There are about thirty applicants for the judgeship.—Port Hope Guide.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH VESTRY MEETING

Past Year Was a Successful One—Finances are in Good Condition

St. John's church vestry meeting was held in the guild room last night. The rector, Rev. Canon Davidson, presided. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The financial report showed a surplus of $225.67, over and above all expenses. In addition to this the church has $760 on special deposit towards the reduction of the church debt. This means that the new vestry has been opened and paid for in one year from Easter to Easter. The financial report was referred to the auditors.

On motion of the retiring warden, Chas. H. J. Mitchell, seconded by Mr. Harry Long, the retiring rector's warden, Mr. Jos. Mills was elected people's warden for the ensuing year. The rector was not prepared to name his warden until after the adjourned meeting two weeks hence. In the meantime, upon the request of Rev. Canon Davidson, Mr. Mitchell will fill that office.

On motion of Messrs. C. H. J. Mitchell and Harry Long, Mr. Robert Fair was elected to represent the church on the Nicholls Hospital Board.

On motion of Messrs. Fair and Mitchell, the rector, the wardens Dr. Halliday and Harry Long were appointed a committee to name the Advisory Board.

Messrs. W. R. Morris and Frank Linton were appointed auditors.

The meeting then adjourned for two weeks.

At a subsequent meeting of the congregation Messrs. Jos. Bell, McFarlane Wilson and W. E. Conway were appointed lay delegates to the Synod.

THE REPORTS GRATIFYING IN NATURE

Easter Vestry Meeting at All Saints' Shows Church to be in Prosperous Condition

The annual Easter Vestry meeting at All Saints' church was well attended last night. It was most harmonious in spirit. The reports of the various societies showed a most prosperous year. The rector was in the chair and Mr. A. E. Wilson acted as vestry clerk.

The report of the Woman's Auxiliary was presented by Mrs. Gilbert, showing net receipts of $170.23. One life member had been added to the roll during the year.

Mr. Davis presented the reports of the Women's Guild, and Miss Bullen the Girls' Guild, showing net receipts of $464.23 and $84.03 respectively.

The Men's Association and Boys Club were reported by Mr. Metheral and Mr. Wilson respectively, showing receipts of $100 and $26.75. The Boys Club had been entirely reorganized during the year with younger boys, and had a membership of 40.

Mrs. Blois reported $45.00 receipts from the Junior Girls' Auxiliary, the sending of bales, and an average attendance of 25.

Miss Cairns reported on the work of the Chancel Guild. The receipts were about $15. The work of this Guild is much appreciated by the congregation.

Other reports were the Brotherhood of St. Andrew by Mr. Flowers, the Poor Fund by the rector, who also reported that the P.M.C. collections by the W.A. and the Women's Guild would this year, for the first time, pass the $100 mark.

Among all the encouraging reports none were more so than the Sunday school. The average attendance for the year had been 215; for the past six months the average had been 250 and 260. The spiritual side of the work, the devotion of the teachers, and the discipline and order had shown even greater improvement. Mr. S. D. Morley reported $260 receipts.

Mr. James Edgar read a most encouraging financial statement of the receipts for current expenses and building fund. The wardens had received, over and above the amounts handed over by the various societies for these funds, $2,349.03 and $563.74 respectively. He made the interesting statement that the average Sunday collections for the past six months had increased between 25 and 30 per cent. When the envelope arrears were all paid up there would be a balance of $100.

The rector reported since last Easter 28 baptisms, 10 marriages, 13 burials, 21 confirmed. There had been a very large increase in the morning congregations. The evening congregations couldn't increase. The mid-day communion had been more largely attended. There was need of more work among the young men, and in the choir, and the method of closing the warden's books on Easter Monday should be changed, as e.g. this year there were only 51 Sundays to pay the expenses of 52.

The election of officers for the ensuing year were as follows:

People's Warden—Mr. J. Edgar.

Rector's Warden—Mr. J. Hogan.

Lay Delegates—Messrs. E. L. Davis, W. G. Howden and T. H. Hooper.

Finance Committee—Messrs. Buller, Hoope and Mulholland.

Charity Board—Alderman Buller.

Auditors—Messrs. Davis and Dryland.

Committee to appoint ushers — The wardens and Mr. R. N. Jones.

The usual votes of thanks were given, that to the wardens being by standing vote.

Mr. Edgar also reported that in two weeks sufficient stone would be on the ground to allow the contractors to commence building operations.

SPLENDID VESTRY MEETING AT ST. LUKE'S LAST NIGHT

A most enthusiastic and harmonious meeting was held last night at St. Luke's and received the annual statement from the Wardens regarding the affairs of the church. The Rector, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, was in the chair. After devotional exercises the business of the vestry began. Mr. G. R. Browning, the People's Warden, gave his report, which which showed the finances of the church to be in a most satisfactory condition, and a handsome surplus on hand. The election of the People's Warden was proceeded with, resulting in the re-election of Mr. G. R. Browning, who has proved to be a most successful warden and who received very many complimentary remarks regarding his work. The tenure of office of Mr. Alex. Fitzgerald the Rector's Warden having expired, Dr. Langfeldt appointed Mr. G. L. Hay his warden. The election of sidesmen resulted as follows: Messrs. Wm. Manleece, G. G. Pratley, H. C. Potter, Chas. Crane, G. L. Hay, H. Gaskins, A. Fitzgerald, T. Whittaker, G. R. Browning.

Mr. Harry Adams was re-appointed vestry clerk with hearty words of commendation for his good and efficient work.

A committee was appointed to consider the advisability of vesting the choir, to report at the adjourned vestry meeting. Resolutions of condolence were passed to the family of the late Col. J. Z. Rogers and Mr. A. Fitzgerald.

A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. R. M. Roy for presenting an enlarged photograph of Col. J. Z. Rogers, also to Mr. Turner's Bible class for the substantial support given the finances of the church.

After the vestry meeting had adjourned a congregational meeting elected Messrs. G. L. Hay, Wm. Manleece and G. F. Warde lay delegates to the synod.

The Rector dismissed the meeting by pronouncing the benediction. The adjourned vestry meeting will be held on Monday, May 20th.

SPORTING NEWS

THE VICTORIA HARRIERS ARE GETTING READY FOR MEET

The Victoria Harrier Club had a meeting last night and decided upon the opening of a club room in the south part of the city. The club also came to the conclusion to have a white sweater with a sash across the breast of it with the letters V. H. C. on the sash.

Seven members of the club had a run of three miles on the Driving park last night and there are some fast performers belonging to the club. The runners will get into shape for the YMCA meet on May 24th.

MEETING OF SENIOR CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE TO-NIGHT

All those interested in the senior baseball league that has been organized for this year are asked to be present at the meeting to be held in the YMCA at 8 p.m. tonight. The Cordage Works will be represented at the meeting tonight and will likely enter a team. The TAS, YMCA, and Strathconas will have strong nines and Arthur Johnson may also enter a team so that there will be no trouble in getting together good, fast ball players which should make the league a big success from a playing and financial standpoint.

A constitution will likely be drawn up tonight and this is an important part as it will greatly depend on the success of the league as for who will be allowed to play.

There will likely be considerable discussion on this point, but the teams should take into consideration that to have a good fast league, it is necessary to have the best of the players that can be secured in this city.

"Y" FOOTBALLERS MEET TO-NIGHT

There will be a meeting of the Y. M.C.A. football club tonight at 7.30. Al Caniff, the representative of the club to the Midland League will present his report.

WRESTLING

The wrestling world is focussing its attention on the world's championship wrestling match between Frank Gotch, the present champion, and Yussif Mahmout, another of the "Terrible Turks" from Europe. The bout will take place in Chicago Wednesday night for a purse of $10,000. It will be at catch-as-catch-can style, best two out of three falls.

In Mahmout Frank Gotch will meet a man of unusual physical build. Not only is the Turk's neck so developed that it is practically a continuation of the back of the head, making a head hold almost impossible, but his feet are unusually short, muscular and heavy—a fact on which he counts to resist Gotch's toe grip. Not a single wrestler who has opposed Mahmout here has been able to secure a neck or head hold on him. He always wrestles in his bare feet, and his manager, Antoine Pierri, thinks this will be an advantage, as he does not believe Gotch can use the toe grip without the leverage afforded by a shoe. The men are practically the same weight, and seem to possess about the same strength, and Pierri insists his man will have an equal chance for the title.

SPORTING TALK

The clergymen of Guelph are making a strenuous kick against the Burns-Johnson fight pictures being put on there.

And now a sporting man in writing to a New York paper, says that he knew the Marathon Derby was fixed and it came out pretty much in the way it was supposed to. Perhaps there is some excuse for Longboat yet.

The National and American Baseball leagues open this week and it will soon be time to hang around the different places, where the results can be ascertained.

St. Yves will meet Alf. Shrubb any distance from fifteen to fifty miles, so his manager says.

The New York Americans were all compelled to be vaccinated before being allowed to enter Agusta, as Hal Chase was suffering from smallpox.

The public will soon be as tired of Johnson and Jeffries as they were of the Kinrade murder mystery, if the scrappers keep on talking and dodging each other.

It's pretty near time for some more wrestling matches to be pulled off here, as it's a shame to see the other cities getting all.

Fred Appleby wants another race with Simpson. Perhaps he will get it, but it's safe betting that Alfie Shrubb won't put up another $50 on his chances.

With Johnny Evers and Kling out of the game this season, the Chicago Cubs may have to call on some of Joe Kelly's men. They are good enough, according to the dope written about them.

SIMPSON MUST BE RECKONED

Fred Simpson has proved without a doubt that he is a serious contender in all races over fifteen miles. The Ojibway ran his race Saturday just as fast as St. Yves covered the twenty miles in his race with Maloney at Providence the same day, and Simpson was forced to travel the last five miles alone. There is no doubt but that Simpson at twenty-six miles is one of the big men in the game, and with that wonderful finishing power of his is able to give any of them a hustle. He is always in the best of shape, and it is to be hoped that he will be given a chance to hook up with St. Yves or Longboat in the near future.—Hamilton Spectator.

REACH'S 1909 BALL GUIDE

Twenty Seventh Yearly Official Hand Book a Good One

Reache's Official American League Guide for 1909, published by the A. J. Reach Companyy, of Philadelphia, and edited by Mr. Francis C. Richter, of Sporting Life, is out, and is, as usual first in the field, thus making it the harbinger of the baseball season. It can be said without any qualification that, excellent as all of the editions of the Reach Guide have been in recent years, the 1909 Reach Guide is the best hand book of the kind ever issued by this or any other publisher. The special distinction of the 1909 Guide is, next to the text, quality of paper used and the number and beauty of the engravings furnished, the world's championship series being specially well dowered with splendid action pictures. The American League Guid efor 1909 is in all respects a first class hand book of the national game and a decided credit to the American League and to the publishers, the Reach Company. This is the eighth annual issue of the Reach Guide as the official hand book of the American League, and the twenty-seventh consecutive year of its publication as a book of record and reference for the entire base ball world.

THE AMERICAN LEAGUE FIELD.

The book gives a complete review of the American League's eighth eventful season as a major league; complete records and averages of the American League 1908 race and players, a graphic story of the American League's part in the memorable post-season World's championship series of 1908; a synopsis of all remarkable American League pitching feats and also of all the noteworthy games of the 1908 season; and a general review of all matters affecting the American League during the whole of 1908 up to date of publication. In this section is also given a review of the remarkable happenings during the 1908 race. The illustrations comprise portraits of President Johnson, publisher A. J. Reach, Editor F. C. Richter; a group picture of the American League umpires; pictures of the champion batsman, Tyrus Cobb; of the leading base-runners, Dougherty and Hemphill, and of the leading pitcher, Ed. Walsh; and specially designed group pictures of all the American League teams of 1908. It may be justly said that these illustrations alone are worth more than the modest price of the volume.

LACROSSE

Those interested in lacrosse are reminded of the meeting to be held at the Crown Hotel to-night when a report of the C.L.A. convention held in Toronto Good Friday will be read. A good attendance is asked for.

FOOTBALL

A meeting of the Turf Club will be held at the City Hotel on Thursday evening, April 15th when arrangements will be made in connection with the matinee on May 24th.

All members of the club are asked to attend.

THE BURNS-JOHNSON CHAMPIONSHIP FIGHT PICTURES

On all sides, in all lands, it is admitted that the battle for the world's heavyweight championship, which took place at Sydney, Australia, on December 26th, 1908 between Tommy Burns, of Canada, and Jack Johnson of Texas, was the greatest event in pugilistic history. The moving pictures, of this remarkable contest taken at the ring side, under the clear Australia noon-day sun, will be shown here on Saturday, April 17th at the Grand Opera House, matinee and night.

Although being fought in Sydney, ten thousand miles from the great centres of the world's population, no previous contest ever attracted so much attention in England and America. The films themselves, reproducing every detail of the contest, will furnish a very substantial evening's entertainment, but they will be reinforced by other pictures showing the training camps of both contestants, and interesting scenes of every-day life in the Antipodes. The pictures are now being shown simultaneously at the first class theatres in New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, and all the leading cities of the United States and Canada and the best people of every city are crowding the theatres to witness a faithful reproduction of the most talked of contest in recent years.

TO AVOID ILLNESS.

Several Simple Health Rules That Make For Comfort.

There are a few simple rules for health that, carefully observed, are money in the pocket and peace in the household.

Avoid wet feet. That is a wise old saw that "the best place for a chest protector is on the feet." It is not hard to keep the feet dry, but should they get damp change the shoes quickly. More colds are taken by letting shoes or stockings dry on the feet than in any other way.

If your feet are sensitive to dampness it is better to wear cork soles when walking. These are more sightly and less apt to draw than the habit that some women have of donning sandals or overshoes in the fall and wearing them steadily until warm weather.

There are several waterproof mixtures than can be rubbed on shoes without injury to the leather. They should be used by all women who have the overshoe hatred.

Avoid living in too warm rooms, or, if you do, be careful when first going into the cold outer air to keep the mouth closed and to inhale slowly through the nose.

Wear sensible clothing. Do not go petticoatless because slimness is in order, and if you take cold easily do not adopt the prevailing net sleeves and transparent yoke.

It is not specially attractive to sensible people to see girls and women on the streets in winter weather with low shoes and unlined yokes. The former are even more injurious than the latter, as the ankles are extremely sensitive to changes of temperature.

Do not exhaust yourself either mentally or physically. The strain of overexertion leaves one less able to throw off any microbe that may come your way.

SIT; DON'T STAND.

Get Comfortable Chairs For Household Tasks When Possible.

A quaint old woman used to say: "There ain't no sense in them that has rockin' chairs being tired. Why don't they set in them?"

That is not a half bad question for many a weary housekeeper to ask herself. She would find life much easier, would fight the wrinkles off longer and would generally be brighter and happier if she could learn to sit down whenever she gets a chance.

Standing, unless one is trained to it, is very wearing on the average woman. She becomes worn and peevish, a burden to herself and to all around her, yet never realizes that all she needs to sweeten her temper is to get off her feet.

It is worth while to get comfortable chairs for almost every household task. Save sweeping, scrubbing and bed-making, there are few things about a house that cannot be done just as well sitting as standing.

A remarkably expert laundress says her back is so weak that unless she could sit over her ironing board she would have to go out of business. She carries with her from place to place a light high stool, just the right height to give her good purchase on her iron.

Get the rocking chair habit about your work, and you will be surprised how much less irritable you feel when that work is doing and done. If you can get your chair out on a porch or beside a sunny window, so much the better.

What if it does take a little longer to get a chair than to stand? Saved time is not the chief requisite of living. If you have not sense enough to see this for yourself, try the sitting down cure and see which the family votes more important—lost minute or saved temper.

Sit down, not grudgingly and half apologetically, when tired, but unless you are in training for your flesh stand only when you have no longer an excuse for sitting.

Arrowroot.

Use arrowroot to thicken fruit juices. It cooks clearly and does not destroy the color nor cloud the transparency of the fruit.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

The nervous patient should have eight or nine hours of sleep.

To get the full value of cold cream it must be let dry on the face. It takes time for the skin to absorb it.

In massaging wrinkles use the tips of the fingers and thumb, always working across the line. Never follow the lines of the creases.

A pallid skin indicates an anaemic condition of the blood, the lack of the red corpuscles. A good iron tonic is a necessity to improve such a complexion.

A glass of hot water before breakfast is a cleanser and tonic for the entire system. For an oily, greasy skin squeeze half a lemon into the water and drink without adding sugar.

For a soft, painful corn try the old fashioned remedy of binding it tightly in common baking soda moistened with a little water. The most stubborn and painful corns will disappear after three weeks of this treatment.

There is probably no more effective agent for producing the effect of a soft, clear skin than a sheer white chiffon or malines veil worn beneath the usual face veil. Women who are conscious of a few wrinkles are taking note of this fact.

If you wear corsets all day remove the side steels and you will not feel that bad effect that many do, especially if one's work requires one to sit at the sewing machine or desk all day. A corset will not lose its shape even though the side steels be removed.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Firm—Hogs Active at Buffalo and Chicago.

LONDON, April 12.—London cables for cattle are steady, at 13½c to 14½c per lb. for Canadian steers, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10c to 10½c per lb.

Toronto Junction Live Stock.

TORONTO JUNCTION, April 12.—The receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were light—only 30 carloads, consisting of 577 cattle, 14 sheep and 61 calves.

Exporters—Trade in exporters was not any better than it has been, but there happened to be one or two finished loads which sold a little better. Export steers sold at from $5.40 to $5.85, but only one load, sold by McDonald & Halligan brought the latter price. Bulls sold at from $4.25 to $5 per cwt.

Butchers—There was an excellent demand for finished butchers, which sold up to $5.40 per cwt., but that price has been paid several times before the Easter market trade. Prime picked lots and loads of butchers sold at $5.25 to $5.40; loads of good, $4.90 to $5.20; medium, $4.50 to $4.80; common, $3.90 to $4.40; cows, $3.40 to $4.60; canners and common cows, $2 to $2.75.

Milkers and Springers.

There were two cows bought by Fred Rowntree at $42 and $55 each.

Veal Calves.

Sixty-one calves sold at prices ranging from $4.50 to $6.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

The market for sheep and lambs was none too brisk, and prices seem to have reached their limit. Export ewes sold at $4.25 to $5 per cwt.; yearling lambs were reported at $5.50 to $6.50 per cwt. for common and $7 to $7.75 per cwt. for choice, grain-fed lambs. Spring lambs are worth from $5 to $8 each.

Hogs.

Prices were quoted firmer, at $7.35 for selects, fed and watered at the market, and $7.10 f.o.b. cars at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, April 12.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending April 10, were 963 cattle, 168 sheep and lambs, 1142 hogs and 2300 calves, while the supply for local consumption this morning consisted of 300 cattle, 705 hogs and 20 calves. As usual the first market after the Easter was one no different to any other year, it being a very quiet affair, owing to the fact that buyers generally had bought more stock than they wanted for their actual requirements last week in order to make a good showing in their shops. Consequently the bulk of them carried over considerable and will not require much beef this week. In consequence the demand was limited for cattle this morning, but as the supply was also limited the undertone to the market was steady and prices showed no important change. There was some buying for Quebec account, and this, coupled with what exporters and local butchers took, a good clearance was made. There were really no choice steers offered, and the top price realized for the best was 5¾c and lower grades sold from that down to 4c, while good bulls brought 4½c to 5c and feeders 3½c per pound. There were no sheep or lambs on the market and in consequence trade in these lines was very slow, but dealers stated that buyers would pay 6½c to 7c per pound for yearling lambs, and 5c to 5½c for old sheep, while spring lambs were quoted at $3 to $8 each. The few calves offered met with a ready sale at prices ranging from $2 to $8 each, as to size and quality.

The supply of hogs was light, for which the demand was good from packers and the feeling in the market remains strong, but prices show no actual change, sales of selected lots being made at $7.90 to $8 and straight lots at $7.80 to $7.85 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

FRUIT—THE GREAT PHYSICIAN

Wonderful Medicinal Value of Apples, Oranges, Figs and Prunes.

How many people realize what remarkable curative principles are contained in fruit juices. There are two—the bitter and the sweet. There is about ten times as much of the sweet as of the bitter, though the bitter principle is the one which has the curative effect on disease. Apples, oranges, figs and prunes contain the highest percentage of bitter principle and thus are the most healthful.

It was a theory of a physician in Ottawa, that if the amount of bitter principle in fruit juice could be doubled, the curative property would be increased, not twice but many times.

After many tests, this physician succeeded in forcing into the combined fruit juices an additional atom of bitter principle, and in doing so formed an entirely new compound. To the combined juices were added valuable tonics and antiseptics and the whole made into tablets.

These are "Fruit-a-tives"—the only remedy known to science that is made of fruit. The wonderful cures in cases of Stomach Trouble, Biliousness, Constipation, Rheumatism, Chronic Headaches and Neuralgia, Kidney, Liver and Skin Diseases are due solely to the fact that "Fruit-a-tives" contain the medicinal properties of fruit. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. ROCCO PIUCCI MUST CHANGE BOARDING HOUSE

Young Italian Who Stole From Freight Sheds Allowed to go on Suspended Sentence

Rocco Piucci, the Italian, who has been in jail for the past few weeks, to allow an examination to be made as to his sanity, appeared before the Magistrate this morning. He was allowed to go on suspended sentence.

A brother of the prisoner was called to the witness box and through his interpreter, Mr. Tom Mannicole, the Magistrate told him that the prisoner must move out of his present boarding house and behave himself, and if he neglected to do this, and ever appeared in court again, a long sentence would be given him.

The prisoner was also told what was expected of him and he left the court accompanied by his brother.

I know what these mean to delicate women—I have been discouraged, too; but learned how to cure myself. I want to relieve your burdens. Why not end the pain and stop the doctor's bill? I can do this for you and will if you will assist me.

All you need do is to write for a free box of the remedy which has been placed in my hands to be given away. Perhaps this one box will cure you—it has done so for others. If so, I shall be happy and you will be cured for 2c (the cost of a postage stamp). Your letters held confidentially. Write to-day for my free treatment. MRS. F. E CURRAH, Windsor, Ont.

The Barrier

"Humph!" grunted Doret. "I don' t'ink much of dat feller."

The three new arrivals dropped down upon the moss to rest, for the up trail was heavy. Lee was the first to speak.

"Did you get away without bein' seen?" he asked.

"Sure," answered Gale. "Poleon has been here two hours."

"That's good. I don't want nobody taggin' along."

Runnion volunteered nothing except oaths at the mosquitoes and at his pack straps, which were new and cut him already. As no explanation of his presence was offered, neither the trader nor Doret made any comment then, but it came out later, when the old miner dropped far enough behind the others to render conversation possible.

"You decided to take in another one, eh?" Gale asked Lee.

"It wasn't exactly my doin's," replied the miner. "Stark asked me to let Runnion come 'long, bein' as he had grub staked him, and he seemed so set on it that I ackerlesed. You see, it's the first chance I ever had to pay him back for a favor he done me in the Cassiar country. There's plenty of land to go around."

It was Lee's affair, thought the trader, and he might tell whom he liked, so he said no more, but fell to studying the back of the man next in front, who happened to be Stark, observing every move and trick of him and during the frequent pauses making a point of listening and watching him guardedly.

All through the afternoon the five men wound up the valley, following one another's footsteps, emerging from somber thickets of fir to flounder across wide pastures of "nigger beads" that wabbled and wriggled and bowed beneath their feet until, at cost of much effort and profanity, they gained the firmer footing of the forest. At one point Stark, hot and irritable, remarked:

"There must be a shorter cut than this, Lee?"

"I reckon there is," the miner replied, "but I've always had a pack to carry, so I chose level ground rather than climb the divides."

"S'pose dose people at camp hear 'bout dis strike an' beat us in?" suggested Poleon.

"It wouldn't be easy going for them after they got there," Stark said sourly. "I for one wouldn't stand for it."

"Nor I," agreed Runnion.

"I don't see how you'd help yourself," the trader remarked. "One man's got as good a right as another."

"I guess I'd help myself, all right," Stark laughed significantly, as did Runnion, who added:

"Lee is entitled to put in anybody he wants on his own discovery, and if anybody tries to get ahead of us there's liable to be trouble."

"I reckon if I don't know no short cut nobody else does," Lee remarked, whereupon Doret spoke up reassuringly:

"Dere's no use gettin' scare' lak dat, biccause nobody knows w'ere Lee's creek she's locate' but John an' me, an' dere's nobody w'at knows he mak' de strike but us four."

"That's right," said Gale. "The only other way across is by Black Bear creek, and there ain't a half dozen men ever been up to the head of that stream, much less over the divide, so I don't allow there's any use to fret ourselves."

They went on their way, traveling leisurely until late evening, when they camped at the mouth of the valley up which the miner's cabin lay. Camp had been made early at Gale's suggestion instead of pushing on a few miles farther, as Lee had intended, and now, when the cool evening fell and the draft quickened, it became possible to lay off gloves and headgear, so they sat about the fire, talking, smoking and rubbing their tired feet.

It is at such hours and in the smoke of such fires that men hark backward and bring forth the sacred, time worn memories they have treasured to turn them over fondly by the glow of dying embers.

"No Creek" Lee, the one eyed miner who had made this lucky strike, told in simple words of his long and solitary quest, when ill luck had risen with him at the dawn and misfortune had stalked beside him as he drifted and drank from camp to camp, while the gloom of a settled pessimism soured him, and men began to shun him because of the evil that seemed to follow in his steps.

"I've been rainbow chasin' forty years," he said, "and never caught nothin' but cramps and epidemics and inflammations. I'm the only miner in Alaska that never made a discovery of gold and never had a creek named after him."

"Is that how you got your name?" asked Runnion.

"It is. I never was no good to myself nor nobody else. I just occupied space."

Finally Gale arose, remarking sleepily that it was time to turn in if they wished to get any rest before the mosquitoes got bad again, then sauntered away from the fire and spread his blanket. The rest followed and made down their beds, then, drawing on gloves and hat nets and rolling themselves up in their coverings, fell to snoring—all except the trader, who lay for hours on his back staring up at the stars, as if trying to solve some riddle that baffled him.

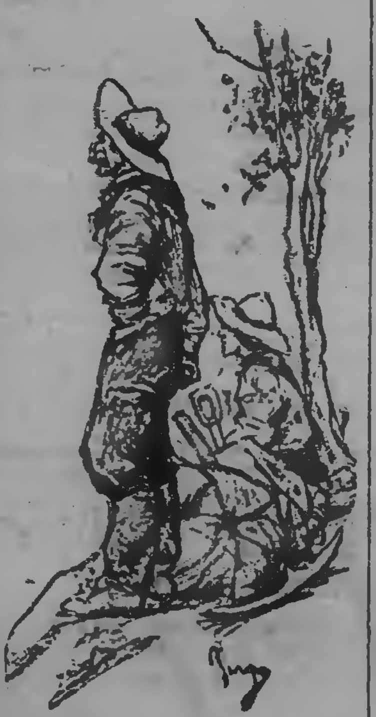
They awoke early and in half an hour had eaten, remade their packs and were ready to resume their march. As they were about to start Gale said:

"I reckon we'd better settle right now who has the choice of locations when we get up yonder. I've been on stampedes where it saved a heap of hard feeling."

"I'm agreeable," said Stark. "Then there won't be any misunderstanding."

The others, being likewise old at the game, acquiesced. They knew that in such cases grave trouble has often occurred when two men have cast eyes on the same claim and have felt the miner's causeless "hunch" that gold lies here or there or that the ground one of them covets is wanted by the other.

"I'll hold the straws," said Lee, "and every feller will have an even break." Turning his back on the others, he cut four splinters of varying lengths, and, arranging them so that the ends peeped evenly from his big hand, he held them out.



"Well, if Lee hasn't brought Runnion along!"

"The longest one has the first choice, and so on," he said, presenting them to Gale, who promptly drew the longest of the four. He turned to Doret, but the Frenchman waved him courteously to Stark, and when both he and Runnion had made their choice Lee handed him the remaining one, which was next in length to that of the trader. Stark and Runnion qualified in the order they drew, the latter cursing his evil luck.

"Never min', ole man," laughed Poleon; "de las' shot she's de sure wan."

They took up their burdens again and filed toward the narrow valley.

CHAPTER VI.

THE BURRELL CODE.

NOT until his dying day will Burrell lose the memory of that march with Necia through the untrodden valley, and yet its incidents were never clear cut nor distinct when he looked back upon them, but blended into one dreamlike procession, as if he wandered through some calenture where every image was delightfully distorted and each act deliciously unreal, yet all the sweeter from its fleeting unreality. They talked and laughed and sang with a rush of spirits as untamed as the waters in the course they followed. They wandered hand in hand into a land of illusions, where there was nothing real but love and nothing tangible but joy.

They held to the bed of the stream, for its volume was low and enabled them to ford it from bar to bar.

They had become so intimate by now as to fall into a whimsical mode of speech, and Necia reverted to a childish habit in her talk that brought many a smile to the youth's face. It had been her fancy as a little girl to speak in adjectives, ignoring many of her nouns, and its quaintness had so amused her father that on rare occasions, when the humor was on him, he also took it up. She now addressed herself to Burrell in the same manner.

"I think we are very smarts to come so far," she said.

"You travel like a deer," he declared admiringly. "Why, you have tired me down." Removing his pack, he stretched his arms and shook out the ache in his shoulders.

He built a fire, then fetched a bucket of water from a rill that trickled down among the rocks near by. He made as if to prepare their meal, but she would have none of it.

"Bigs should never cook," she declared. "That work belongs to littles," then forced him to vacate her domain and turn himself to the manlier duties of chopping wood and boughs.

First, however, she showed him how to place two green foot logs upon which the teapot and the frying pan would sit without upsetting and how long she wished the sticks of cooking wood. Then she banished him, as it were, and he built a wickiup of spruce tops, under the shelter of which he piled thick, fragrant billows of "Yukon feathers."

He filled his chest deeply and leaned on his ax, for he found himself shaking as if under the spell of some great expectancy.

"Your supper is getting cold," she called to him.

He took a seat beside her on a pile of boughs where the smoke was least troublesome. He had chosen a spot that was sheltered by a lichen covered ledge, and this low wall behind, with the wickiup joining it, formed an inclosure that lent them a certain air of privacy. They ate ravenously and drank deep cupfuls of the unflavored tea. By the time they were finished the night had fallen, and the air was just cool enough to make the fire agreeable. Burrell heaped on more wood and stretched out beside her.

"This day has been so wonderful," said the girl, "that I shall never go to sleep. I can't bear to end it."

"But you must be weary, little maid," he said gently. "I am."

"Wait. Let me see." She stretched her limbs and moved slightly to try her muscles. "Yes, I am very tired, but not the kind of tired that makes you want to go to bed. I want to talk, talk, talk, and not about ourselves either, but about sensibles. Tell me about your people—your sister."

He had expected her to ask this, for the subject seemed to have an inexhaustible charm for her. She would sit rapt and motionless as long as he cared to talk of his sister, in her wide, meditative eyes the shadow of a great unvoiced longing. He told her of his father, the crotchety old soldier whose absurd sense of duty and whose elaborate southern courtesy had become a byword in the south. He told her household tales that were prized like pieces of the Burrell plate, beautiful heirlooms of sentiment that mark the honor of high blooded houses, following which there was much to recount of the Meades, from the admiral who fought as a boy in the bay of Tripoli down to the cousin who was at Annapolis, the while his listener hung upon his words hungrily, her mind so quick in pursuit of his that it spurred him unconsciously, her great, dark eyes half closed in silent laughter or wide with wonder, and in them always the warmth of the leaping firelight, blended with the trust of a newborn virginal love.

Then he began to laugh silently.

"What is it?" she said curiously.

"Oh, nothing! I was just wondering what my straitlaced ancestors would say if they could see me now."

"What do you mean?" the girl asked in open eyed wonderment.

"I don't care," he went on, unheeding her question. "They did worse things in their time, from what I hear." He leaned forward to draw her to him.

"Worse things! But we are doing nothing bad," said Necia, holding him off. "There's no wrong in loving."

"Of course not," he assured her.

"I am proud of it," she declared. "It is the finest thing, the greatest thing, that has ever come into my life. Why, I simply can't hold it. I want to sing it to the stars and cry it out to the whole world. Don't you?"

"I hardly think we'd better advertise," he said dryly.

"Why not?"

"Well, I shouldn't care to publish the tale of this excursion of ours. Would you?"

"I don't see any reason against it. I have often taken trips with Poleon and been gone with him for days and days at a time."

"But you were not a woman then," he said softly.

"No, not until today, that's true. Dear, dear, how I did grow all of a sudden! And yet I'm just the same as I was yesterday, and I'll always be the same, just a wild little. Please don't ever let me be a big tame. I don't want to be commonplace and ordinary. I want to be natural—and good."

"You couldn't be like other women," he declared, and there was more tenderness than hunger in his tone now as she looked up at him trustingly from the shelter of his arms. "It would spoil you to grow up."

"It is so good to be alive and to love you like this!" she continued dreamily, staring into the fire. "I seem to have come out of a gloomy house into the glory of a warm spring day, for my eyes are blinded, and I can't see half the beautifuls I want to, there are so many about me."

"Those are my arms," interjected the soldier lightly in an effort to ward off her growing seriousness.

Wind Storm Was Severe in Vicinity of Warsaw—Latest News From That Locality

Special to the Review

Warsaw, April 12—Mr Chas James has sold out his real estate business, as the growth of his egg trade demanded his entire attention.

Mr Wm Crowe, of Peterborough is paying a visit to all his old friends in this neighborhood before leaving for Gowganda.

Miss E. Murphy of Dublin, Ireland is the guest of her cousin, Miss Maggie Fitzpatrick.

Several of the young folks of the surrounding country enjoyed the new born winter on Friday for sleighing.

The Warsaw Rifle Club are again organizing for the summer.

Mr A Helps, our local poultry raiser, still sticks to the brown leghorn hens. Mr Helps thinks they are the best egg producers for all the year.

Mr W Reid, our local merchant, was in Peterborough on business on Tuesday last.

The mills of Mr Selkirk are steady on the buzz and are a great boom to the village. Mr Selkirk has bought several thousand logs besides doing a large custom trade for the farmers of the surrounding country.

The farmers of this neighborhood are getting their seeding implements ready for the spring. As a result the blacksmiths are busy.

Several of the chimneys of the village burned out during the wind storm of Wednesday, but no other damage was done.

The farmers' stock is looking well this spring but in most places feed is getting scarce and it is to be hoped we will have an early spring.

Mr Joe Crowe, who has drawn the mail from Peterborough for the last 12 years prior to the first of April, is still running a stage drawing passengers over the same old route. Joe has been a very obliging stage driver and the villagers rejoice to hear him answer, "Very well, I am loaded pretty well but I will do the best I can for you."

The Dummer council met in the village on Saturday, Reeve C J. Darling was in the chair. They had a very busy day appointing officers and transacting other business pertaining to the township. It is probable that the next meeting will be for the Court of Revision.

Miss Ada Payne who has been teaching school at Galesbury is home for the Easter holidays.

During the severe gale last week the roof of Mr R Tedford's barn, about three miles from the village, was blown off. The wind was the most severe that we have known here for years.

ZAM-BUK CURED HER BABY

Mothers will find the following statement of more than passing interest, showing, as it does, how Zam-Buk ends the skin diseases of children, even when ordinary remedies have completely failed. Mrs C W. Bowerbank, of 128 Denison Avenue, Toronto, says:

"Not long ago my baby's face broke out in an eruption. The spots would crack and be very irritating and sore. At other times they itched fearfully, and caused the child to scratch and rub, thus making the sores very inflamed and painful. I tried all sorts of ointments and salves, but they somehow did not seem able to remove the trouble. Zam-Buk proved very different and a few applications gave the child relief. The sores are now healed completely.

"Since that time my little daughter has had occasion to use Zam-Buk for skin trouble. She broke out in blotches on her hands and arms, and in her case also Zam-Buk effected a cure.

"We now keep Zam-Buk handy as a household balm and do not intend to be without it.

"Not only for skin diseases, but for cuts, burns and bruises, it is a fine remedy. The other day I burned my hand badly. An application of Zam-Buk seemed to take the fire out of it at once, and it soon healed. In the course of my experiences I have tried pretty nearly all the salves and ointments obtainable, but there is nothing to come near Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk is Nature's own healing balm, being composed of pure herbal essences. It is a sure cure for pimples and eruptions, eczema, ring worm, ulcers, cuts, burns, bruises, poisoned sores, chronic wounds, bad leg, piles, festering sores, and all skin injuries and diseases. Druggists and stores everywhere sell at 50c a box, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, 3 boxes $1.25. You are warned against cheap and harmful imitations sometimes represented to be "just as good."

THE HOOK IN USE AT THE OPERA HOUSE

An audience that filled the Grand Opera House saw and heard the amateurs perform and had more fun than a ten year old at a circus.

The "hook" was in use and did effective work in putting a stop to the efforts of those whom the audience did not want to hear.

The first prize was won by Georgie and Prudence Long, two little girls who sang sweetly. Harold Hatcher got second prize with a song and George Lillie got third with an acrobatic set.

The others got the hook.

The judging was left to the audience, which was of a most demonstrative nature.

"Amateur night" closed the engagement of the Lorain Amusement Co.

ST. PETERS CATHEDRAL

The Easter music in St. Peter's cathedral was of exceptionally high order, the mass in F. by Loesch, being splendidly rendered by a large and well balanced choir. The solos and duets were most effectively taken morning and evening by Misses L. Hallihan, A. Simons, A. Primeau, A. Delaire, N. Simons, G. Clancy, and A. Millory, and Messrs. H. Quinlan, E. Keen, F. Hickey and J. Mercier. As an offertory Regina Coeli, by Wiegand.

In the evening musical vespers, O'Salutaris by Lanceleval, solo sung with sweetness and expression by Miss A. Simons, chorus by choir.

Miss L. Hallihan, who possesses a beautiful high soprano voice of much sweetness and power, was heard to great advantage in F. Millard's Tantum Ergo, with very brilliant chorus by full choir.

Miss M. Doherty presided at the organ.

INDIAN RIVER NEWS

Special to the Review.

Indian River, April 12.—Miss N. R. Shannon, teacher, has gone home for Easter holidays.

Mr. Joseph O'Leary has arrived home from the lumber camps. He is going back for the drive in a week or so.

Miss L. and Miss V. Dougherty, of Toronto, are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dougherty, for a few days.

Mr. S. Murphy, blacksmith, at Guerin, was in the village on Wednesday, and he reports business as being brisk in his town.

The sawing machine is buzzing in this neighborhood. Farmers are getting their summer's wood stored in, as the busy time is close at hand.

Much damage has been done in this vicinity by the wind storms of last week. Many of the fences are blown down, trees blown over, while four poles of the telephone line between here and Peterborough were broken down, leaving the wires lying on the ground.

Mr. P. G. Towns, of Slopeville, was in the village on Thursday, and he reported that there are many idle men in his town waiting for the factories to open in the spring.

Mr. John Ross leaves on the 15th for Bracebridge, where he will work on the steam-boat for the summer.

CRYSTAL WEDDING OF MR. AND MRS. R. C. BRAUND CELEBRATED LAST EVENING

Large Number of Guests Attended and Many Beautiful Presents Were Received by the Happy Couple—An Interesting Function.

One of the most interesting and joyous events that has taken place in Peterborough for some time was the crystal wedding of Mr and Mrs R C Braund which was held at their residence on Park street last evening. Sixteen years have come and gone. Joys and tribulations have been experienced by both who still look back with pleasure to the time when they were made man and wife at the Salvation Army Barracks by Staff Captain McIntyre.

Invited guests to the number of a hundred were present and a most enjoyable time was spent by all. The Salvation Army orchestra furnished the music for the evening and this added much to the enjoyment of the celebration. After all invited had assembled in the spacious dining room of the house where Mr and Mrs Braund received many congratulations and good wishes, the company adjourned to a large room over the store where a sumptuous repast was spread and partaken of. The tables were tastefully decorated with the colors of the Army and presented a pleasing spectacle.

Short speeches of a congratulatory nature were made by some of the guests and the host and hostess were called upon to respond and they thanked their friends for their many words and acts of kindness which had been shown to them on this occasion. Many beautiful presents were received, as follows,—

Mr Braund has the large poster, which announced the wedding to be held in the barracks 16 years ago and naturally prizes it very highly. It was hung in a conspicuous place in the house and bears the following announcement.

Mr. Braund has also kept the account of the wedding of which the following is a part;

"The bride was Miss Mary Green, daughter of Mr Henry Greene and the groom was Mr Ralph O Braund. The bridesmaids were Miss Nellie Bacon and Miss Nellie Smith. The groom was attended by the bride's brother, Mr Mendel Green and Mr Wm Cunningham. Among those present were Capt Sargeant of Madoc; Capt Tinney of Norwood; Captains Rawlings, Barker and Lieut Glass. Captain McIntyre read to them the "Articles of War to which they gave their acceptance. In the articles they promised that they were not seeking to please themselves but to better serve and please God in the salvation of souls and would always do their utmost as Salvation soldiers to prevent injury to the Army. After the solemn words by Staff Captain McIntyre, in the name of God and the Salvation Army I pronounce you man and wife, the groom clasped his wife and imprinted a kiss on her lips that was heard all through the barracks. Then came a deafening, tremendous outburst of volley firing. The soldiers cried hallelujahs, the bandsmen tooted their horns and the audience applauded them in any way that best suited them."

THE PREMIER IS RETICENT PUGSLEY SCANDAL HELD OVER

Members Are Disappointed When Dr. Pugsley Takes no Action Regarding Resignation—Discussion on Protection of the Woollen Industry.

Ottawa, April 14.—History doesn't always repeat itself. It was the Tuesday after Easter Sunday, two years ago, that Hon. H. R. Emmerson threw up his portfolio and went out to fight the "Beasts of Ephesus." Yesterday his successor, Hon. Wm. Pugsley, didn't do any such thing.

The members were all expectant when the orders of the day—Pugsley's opportunity—were reached, but instead of the Minister getting up and smiting three certain gentlemen in New Brunswick, hip and thigh, there were only some enquiries as to when the House might expect the budget announcement. If there would be any protection for the tin plate industry, and like matters. Mr. Pugsley sat silent. Once he got up, but it was merely to lay on the table the return of expenditures in Bonaventure County, the riding represented by Mr. Speaker Marcil.

Mr. Foster rose and observed: "I would like to ask the First Minister in view of the report of the commission at St. John, which affects to a certain extent two officers of this Government, he has yet decided on his course of action, or if he has anything to communicate to this House?"

"I have not seen the report," replied the Prime Minister, "except some extracts in the press, and at this moment I have no comment to make on it."

Mr. Monk then asked if there had been negotiations with Germany with regard to the improvement of trade relations with that country.

Mr. Fielding said there had been no negotiations, but from time to time representations along that line had been made by gentlemen interested in German trade.

To Mr. Foster, the Finance Minister said it was his intention to make his budget statement on Thursday. If it becomes necessary to postpone the statement, he would give due notice.

Mr. Monk was desirous of learning if Mr. Fielding proposed to make any tariff changes. It was rumored that there might be a change on tin.

It was never possible, replied Mr. Fielding, to make any statement in regard to tariff changes in advance of the budget speech.

Haughton Lennox brought up the question of the protection of the woollen industry. He pointed out the importance of the farming industry, showing that 3,798,000 of the people of Canada are supported by farmers. In Great Britain more than one-ninth of the population is supported directly through the textile industry and in Germany two are supported by this industry to one supported by all other industries.

We could not build up a great woollen industry so long as we exported our fleeces and bought them back as manufactured goods. We must not only raise wool, but spin it and card it and weave it and wear it. The woollen trade of Great Britain and the United States secured a foothold and was fostered and built up by means of trade and tariff laws, and the conditions of Canada, he said, were eminently adapted for the development of this industry. The present unsatisfactory conditions of the industry was in the main the result of the existing tariff.

Mr. Thoburn (North Lanark) urged increasing the ad valorem duty a little and putting a specific duty on shoddy goods, in the interests of the working man.

C. L. Owen (E. Northumberland) observed that last year Canada imported twelve million dollars' worth of cloth goods and he claimed that we could manufacture at least one-half of these goods in this country. He advocated the barring of shoddy goods, by the imposition of a heavy specific duty.

The northwest provinces were well adapted for the raising of wool and it would be in the interest of the farming community to foster this industry.

Dr. McIntyre (Strathcona) said the real question was the bolstering up of tottering industries. It was not the duty of the Government to make it hard for the people, who are struggling hard for existence, to buy the necessaries. It was not a national policy that protected one class of people to the advantage of another class. He hoped there would be no increase in the tariff on woollens.

Mr. Blain was in favor of a tariff high enough to keep out of Canada every dollar's worth of goods that we could produce. When Dr. Schaffner introduced a resolution favoring a reduction in the tariff on agricultural implements from 17 1-2 to 10 per cent., Dr. McIntyre was not present to support him. This was proof of the insincerity of the gentleman. Mr. Blain declared that many of the Liberal members had become converted to the doctrine of higher protection. Mr. Mackenzie of Cape Breton had advocated an increase on coal, while Mr. Sealey, another ardent free trader, wanted higher protection for pork.

Mr. Fielding closed the debate at 12.30 this morning. He said he was not free to express the conclusions of the Government on the question in advance of the budget speech.

He also said that on account of requests of two or three members of the Opposition for information he would postpone his budget speech till Tuesday next.

THEY ARE AGAINST MILITARY SERVICE

Trustee at Education Convention Strongly Opposes Idea.

Toronto, April 14.—"Lively" is a mild term with which to describe the proceedings of some of the sections of the Ontario Educational Association which opened its 48th annual meetining at Toronto University yesterday.

The inspectors were declared by the high school teachers to be "tyrants"; military training in the schools "barbarous"; and an educational rebellion was boldly advocated by a visiting speaker.

A climax was reached in the trustees' department over Mr. Trueman's denunciation of military training. President R. McKnight, Owen Sound, had some difficulty in preserving order. Mr. Trueman said there was no popular demand for military training. Its establishment meant the creation of an army of inspectors and drill masters. Military drill was founded on the idea of brute strength. Canada included in her citizenship many strangers from European countries who had come to escape from military service. The pioneers who cleared the land to make Canadian homesteads had no military drill. Physical culture was admirable, but military drill was akin to barbarism.

The sentiments of the speaker were applauded by some trustees from the rural districts, who in a turmoil, a number endeavoring to speak at once, voiced the view that the burden of military drill would fall upon the agricultural community, which would have to supply not only the men, but also the sinews of war.

Rev. W. T. Wilkins, Trenton, protested against the views set forth by Mr. Trueman, as not treating the subject in an adequate way, and as ignoring the patriotic aspects.

ONLY KNOWS OF FIRE BY REPORTS

Alex. Kellar, of Rochester, brother of Mr. Fred Kellar, of this city, is here to-day. Mr. Kellar has not been in Rochester for a couple of weeks and as a consequence has not seen the fire-swept section of the city.

All he knows about the damage is what he has read in the papers. He is acquainted with several persons in the section where the flames have wrought so much devastation.

DIVISION IN LABOR PARTY

Edinburgh, April 14.—The recent factional brawls in the ranks of the Independent Labor Party, which have militated against the usefulness of the party in the House of Commons, came to a climax at yesterday's session of the annual congress of the organization, when James Keir Hardie, Philip Snowden, Ramsay MacDonald and Bruce Glasier resigned their seats as members of the national administration council.

The immediate cause of the trouble was the adoption by the congress of what amounted to a vote of confidence in Victor Grayson between whom and Mr. Hardie there has been a feud of long standing.

TURKISH TROOPS REBEL A HOSTILE DEMONSTRATION

Demonstration by Soldiers Before the Parliament Buildings Results in Retirements of Members of Cabinet and Appointment of New Government.

Constantinople, April 14.—The troops of the garrison made a violent demonstration yesterday before the Parliament building against the committee of union and progress and the Government.

They demanded the dismissal of the grand visier, Hilmi Pasha, the Minister of War and President of the chamber.

The outbreak was caused by an order issued to the troops to the effect that they must obey their officers under all circumstances, even if called upon to shoot down their co-religionists.

The mutineers as the first move seized all the officers of the committee of union and progress and held them prisoners.

Only a few of the troops refrained from taking part in the demonstration.

The latter, which were chiefly artillerymen and cavalry, were massed at the War Ministry.

They had orders to fire on anyone approaching the building, and during the course of the day a number of persons were killed or wounded.

Deputies were escorted to the chamber in order that they might vote on the question of forming a new Cabinet and appointing a new president, but owing to the Easter holidays it was impossible to form a quorum.

The Cabinet met at the Porte early in the morning and after a long consultation, the Ministers sent in their resignations to the palace.

The Sultan's principal secretary read to the chamber an irade announcing that His Majesty had accepted the Cabinet's resignation and that a new Ministry was in process of formation.

Measures had been taken, the irade continued, to preserve order throughout the country.

It was announced that the mutinous troops had been pardoned and that they could return to their barracks and people to the occupations.

The irade was received with enthusiastic cheers for the Sultan.

SANTOS DUMONT HAS NEW FLYER

Paris, April 14.—M. Santos Dumont, who has been "lying low" for some time so far as aeronautics are concerned, during the last eight days has attracted considerable attention by the experiments he is making with his diminutive monoplane flying machine at Saint Cyr.

This monoplane, which is named "Mademoiselle," probably to indicate its slight build, can easily be carried on an automobile. The apparatus is less than 20 feet long and 15 feet broad. Its total weight, when M. Santos Dumont is on board, is only 330 pounds. A 24-h.p. motor with which it is fitted is sufficient to give a speed of 70 kilometres an hour.

Mademoiselle is built of canvas and bamboo. For starting purposes it runs along the ground on three bicycle wheels.

SIX SUITORS IN A MIX-UP

Pittsburg, Pa., April 14.—In a riot at Manifold, a mining town above this city, early yesterday, six foreigners were seriously injured, two of them fatally. Daggers and revolvers were the weapons used.

The six injured men were suitors for the hand of Lizzie Moeszka, the belle of the settlement. The father, to help the lovers, proposed drawing lots to decide the question. A foreigner named Chenzo won, and the five other suitors vowed vengeance. Early yesterday a free-for-all fight started and all the lovers were seriously injured. The police have arrested eight persons.

SAYS CANCER CAN BE CURED

Boston, Mass., April 14.—Cancer may be effectually cured, according to an address by Dr. James G. Mumford Monday at the Harvard Medical School.

"Cancer is incurable," he said, "only if you make it so by delay. It is readily curable if undertaken by a properly qualified surgeon. Patients come too late to the surgeon, partly because they are ignorant. The early symptoms of cancer are trifling. A slight, persistent sore on the tongue or lips; a painless lump in the breast; an occasional slight hemorrhage; a slight persistent dyspepsia, which does not yield to treatment, such are the symptoms of early cancer."

MARRIED TO-DAY

Miss Amy Gertrude Sterling Becomes Bride of Hon. Geo. A. Cox

Special to the Review.

Toronto, April 14.—The marriage of the Hon. George A. Cox and Miss Amy Gertrude Sterling, eldest daughter of Mr. Walter Sterling, was solemnized at four o'clock this afternoon at the home of the bride's father in Carleton street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George Jackson, pastor of Sherbourne street Methodist church, and the Rev. Prof. Wallace, of Victoria University, in the presence of only the immediate relatives.

The bride, who was unattended, was given away by her father, and left later in the afternoon with her husband for New York, en route for Europe. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Cox will reside in Mr. Cox's beautiful home in Sherbourne street.

MAN FOUND LYING IN POOL OF BLOOD DIES AT HOSPITAL

Special to the Review.

Toronto, April 14.—Joseph Dillon, aged about 40 years, who was found lying in a pool of blood outside 1113 Jarvis street, late last night, died at St. Michael's Hospital at 3 o'clock this morning. Two hours before Dillon died Harry Snider, his wife Eva, Harold Evans and Bessie Frayle, occupants of the house in question, were placed under arrest. The man appeared in the police court this morning charged with murder, with the women as material witnesses.

No evidence was taken, the case being remanded for a week.

Dillon, who was well knon to the police, is alleged by Snider to have gone to the latter's place and tried to assault Mrs. Snider, receiving injuries which resulted fatally in the row which followed.

PRICE OF FLOUR TO ADVANCE

Local flour dealers, although not officially advised of a rise in the price of flour, expect to hear at any time of an advance on the price of a barrel of 30 cents or 15 cents a bag. An advance of 10 cents per barrel was made recently and a further advance is being looked for. The price of wheat has been steadily advancing while flour has remained stationary, so that the quick jump in prices of flour will come all at once.

While it cannot be ascertained whether the raise will be a permanent one or not, it is not likely that the price of bread will make any advance. A three pound loaf is now sold for 10 cents and this piece of money makes it very convenient for dealers in bread and also for the consumers. Should the raise in flour be a permanent one and the price of bread make a corresponding advance, it is likely that the three pound loaf will be made lighter, so as to allow the ten cent piece to be used and in this way keep away from the inconvenience of using coppers.

A RUMOR IS FLATLY DENIED

Ottawa, Ont., April 13.—There is an unconfirmed rumor that all election petitions in the Dominion are to be dropped.

Each party has two protested elections on its hands in Ontario.

This is one more of the periodical rumors that being founded on the wish that is father to the thought are set agoing. The West Peterborough Election Protest is going to trial and a date for trial will be applied for in a few days by the solicitors for the complainant. There need be no mistake about that.

FOUND TEN GREAT WALLS IN CHINA

New York, April 14.—Back from an extended trip of exploration in China and Thibet, during which he made interesting discoveries along the Chinese great wall, Dr. William Edgar Geil, of Doylstown, Pa., arrived yesterday on the steamer Minnehaha from London.

Doctor Geil traced the great wall a distance of 1,800 miles from the coast to the northern border of Thibet, discovering about 200 miles of the wall that had not yet been mapped. He found evidences, he said, of the existence of at least ten great walls apart from the famous one.

Dr. Geil confirmed reports of the existence of a wild race of Chinese pigmies in the mountains north of the wall, where they have dwelt for twenty centuries.

MORE DETAILS OF THE ROCHESTER CONFLAGRATION

Latest of Series of Supposed Incendiary Fires Destroys Property Valued at Half a Million—Blaze Jumps Nearly a Mile and Starts Again.

Rochester, N.Y., April 14.—Fire breaking out at 11 o'clock yesterday morning in the Palmer building, a four-storey brick structure devoted to manufacturing interests at Main and Gibbs street, was the starting point of a conflagration in Rochester yesterday.

The fire spread over a wide area, jumping nearly a mile and started a second series of fires, of such proportions that the local fire department seemed inefficient to cope with the situation.

Aid was summoned from Buffalo and Syracuse, both of which rushed companies to Rochester. By the time of their arrival, however, the local firemen were masters within both fire areas.

The outside companies were held on reserve duty in the centre of the city, every Rochester company having been called out by the long series of alarms.

Although accurate estimates cannot be made at this time, the loss is estimated at least $500,000. This includes $60,000 on the Palmer building, $100,000 on the Hunting Company, manufacturing plumbers' supplies, which occupied the first floor; $90,000 on the beautiful Jewish Temple, Berith Kodesh, which is in ruins, and the rest in small amounts, is apportioned among smaller manufacturers, house owners and tenants.

More than 100 families are homeless, most of them being Polish Hebrews, who have not recovered from their fear of earlier in the day that the second coming of the Messiah was at hand, fear brought on by the pall of smoke and rapidly falling fire brands in their section of the city.

Mayor Edgerton last evening issued a call for relief funds for these families. Some of them are quartered in precinct houses, and a large number of them are spending the night at public school No. 9. Militia, with loaded rifles, are patrolling the fire area to-day, and will remain on duty until order is restored.

A heavy rain set in at 6 o'clock last night and while it helped in extinguishing the smouldering ruins, it was hardship on the homeless, especially those whose household effects are in the open. Thieving, which started early in the day, has been stopped by the presence of the militia.

Because of the numerous fires which Rochester has had lately, the board of fire underwriters has increased rates here on all buildings except dwellings 25 cents on every $100. The increase went into effect at 5 o'clock yesterday.

Draymen reaped a harvest. A large number of rigs of various descriptions invaded the district and offered for $5, $10 or more to remove goods to places of safety. Any amount asked was given by the half-crazed Polish Jews, and they stored as many of their goods as possible into the wagons, never knowing even their destination.

To-day Rochester is terror-stricken. Yesterday's fires are a culmination of an uninterrupted series of fires of weeks, many of which have been charged to incendiarism. Added to this natural fear is the fact that, although both of yesterday's fires have been under control since 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the flames are still smouldering in a dozen places. The wind is increasing in velocity and a close watch is being kept in those districts which are in its path.

LEGISLATURE IS OVER SESSION A SHORT ONE

Toronto, April 14.—The first session of the 12th Legislature of Ontario was proregued by Lieutenant-Governor Gibson yesterday. In all 168 bills were assented to, which is the largest number passed at any single session since confederation, 146 having been passed in 1908, and 126 in 1907.

Prayers were omitted in order that his honor should not be kept waiting, and the House passed a bill amending section 17 of the Statute Amendment Act, 1909. This section relates to sheriff's sales of tax lands in Parry Sound and Muskoka, and exempts any where litigation has been commenced. Such a proceeding has happened only once before, viz., under the late Hon. A. S. Hardy.

Hurried telegrams were despatched hither and thither to members Monday night, calling them to Toronto that a quorum might be present, and about 40 responded to the call, including two Liberals and Allan Studholme (East Hamilton). T. R. Mayberry (South Oxford) kept a lonely vigil on the Opposition benches until he was joined by Valentine Stock (South Perth).

Occupying members' seats were Chief Justice Sir William R. Meredith, Justice Riddell, Justice Teetzel, President Falconer and Hon. R. Southerland, ex-Speaker of the House of Commons.

A guard of honor was provided by the Queen's Own Rifles and the 9th Field Battery fired the usual salute of 13 guns. A detachment from the Royal Canadian Dragoons acted as cavalry escort.

His honor was met by Sir James Whitney and was preceded to the Legislative chamber by Lt.-Col. Septimus Denison, who acted as chief of staff in the absence of Gen. Cotton, Major J. Macdonald, A.D.C., Capt. Douglas Young, A.D.C., and Capt. A. E. Gibson, A.D.C.

"Although this, the first session of the 13th Legislature of Ontario, has not occupied a long period of time, the number, the variety and the important character of the enactments placed upon the statute book bear witness to the intelligence and the industry with which you have applied yourselves to the performance of your public duties," said his honor.

"Recent events have made it again clear that constant watchfulness is necessary to prevent interference with the jurisdiction of this and the other provinces through the medium of Federal legislation, and it is to be hoped that a permanent understanding will be reached by means of which this danger may be removed."

Mention of various measures passed by the Legislature was then made in congratulatory terms, and Dr. Pyne declared the House prorogued.

Speeches will be made from the rear platform at several towns by members of the delegation, which includes Mrs. Helen M. Henrotten, well known as a club woman; Mrs. Jane A. EMPIRE AND AUTONOMY

We gather from Le Nationaliste of April 4th instant, that there is great rejoicing among French-Canadians at the successful repulse by Sir Wilfrid Laurier of the recent attempt to obtain a snap-verdict at Ottawa in favour of imperialism or unity of Empire. "Our autonomy remains intact" Le Nationaliste, Le Soleil, Le Canada, etc., cry as if, indeed, the cause of empire was the deadly enemy of French-Canada and French-Canadian freedom. Sir Wilfrid appears in a new light as the slayer of dreadnoughts. To the journals mentioned he would appear to be the one great bulwark between French-Canada and a united empire. The avowal is very frank.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY

Where, oh! where is all that rural mail delivery that this county was promised? Other counties have got a bit of it—a little bit of it—but Peterborough, as yet, has got none. The Conservatives at the last election made rural mail delivery the contribution of the nation to the farmer as his share of protection and advancement at the national expense. At first the Examiner, following the lead of Grit journals everywhere, ridiculed it as too absurd for words—in fact worse, by a good deal than the T.V.C. used to be in its estimation. When the scene was changed, and suddenly. The rural mail delivery scheme was no longer foolish. Not having anything else to swallow the Examiner swallowed itself. BUT WHERE IS THE APPROPRIATION FOR RURAL MAIL DELIVERY FOR PETERBOROUGH? We advocated it before and shall continue to do so until it is granted. What is Peterborough county getting except "damages" that count more for the donors even than the donees? Let us have some legitimate, healthy enterprise and quickly. The Ottawa government is far behind the Whitney Government in this respect. In fact we fear the farmers have been buncoed. However, keep shouting and we'll get it yet. Now, all together, "Give us rural mail delivery!"

WHY CIVILIZATIONS DIE

It is recognized that the world is old—very old. Civilizations of a different character from ours have arisen from time to time and have as regularly disappeared. Why? It is conceded that nations die in the cradle. Declining birth-rate is the cause and a very effective cause too. The more intellectual a nation the smaller the family—the fewer the progeny. France has reached or is reaching that stage. The conditions of existence in U.S. are equally artificial, in a domestic sense, if not equally intellectual. Dress-parade is effective as an extinguisher also. In other words all that interferes with the enjoyment of life, a pursuit, a profession or a hobby, is cast to one side or suppressed. It is the supreme enjoyment that makes a nation what it is and where the cultivation of the home is not that supreme enjoyment the home and all that it contains and means must "go to the wall." It will be seen therefore, that we are not permitted to get very far from nature. She views us with a jealous eye. Yet the world as a whole is rapidly increasing in population. The next world sub-mergence will come from numbers as before. It is a long age or series of ages since these successive tides of population began. Even the Turanian dates far back and the Turanian immigration was but one of a number. Excavations show that the earth was full as at present long ages ago. We can get no line on the age of the world from considering time with reference to population. We have been accustomed to consider ourselves of this modern day and date a product of which nature may well be proud, but that is merely to "fancy ourselves." After all we are largely flies on the wheel. A man of artistic taste 3,000,000 years old has been discovered, but he was dead. He had died and was buried in a state of advanced civilization so long ago. He had no telephones, etc., but he had other forms of amusement. He was not then a scientist, but he was a philosopher and an artist. He was a hunter also. Men are so yet. After all mankind has not changed much in a long time.

THE BALD LAKE BRIDGE

We have been looking for the appropriations promised (not by the governments) for this bridge. It has been stated time and again within the last nine months that the Ottawa Government would give largely for the building of this bridge. Where is the money? Then in an ill-advised moment the Ontario Government, which should have been approached first was interviewed last with the result that it agreed to give what Ottawa gave. This is statesmanship on the teething-ring as "Uncle Joe" Cannon would call it.

FREE TRADE

> "We are frequently told, or we used to be until lately, about wonderful developments of opinion in other countries in favor of free trade as understood here. Sometimes it is in France, sometimes in Germany, and sometimes in the United States that tardy conversion to Cobdenism is described. These wonderful discoveries never come to anything. The American free-traders are unable to effect legislation, and French free-traders have to witness a deliberate attempt to increase duties already high. Other nations are clearly determined not to interfere with our one monopoly of Cobden's theory. They are all very prosperous; they are all increasing in wealth, and none of them has such a burden of pauperism to carry as that which afflicts ourselves. It really looks as if they knew something of business and the sources of the wealth of nations. But we are still asked to believe that they know nothing at all about the matter, and are wandering in the mazes of economic superstition, happily dissipated for us by the science that illuminated our path some sixty years ago. In these days of ironclads we are expected to go to battle in unprotected ships, because somebody once proved at great length that when no other nation had ironclad ships our wooden ones did extremely well, and that they are cheaper to build and to maintain than monsters encumbered with thousands of tons of iron."
> —The Times, London, Eng.

And this in the face of The Globe's recent "powerful" reference to the folly of four neighbors who would in spite of everything stick to protection. Old fogey ideas die hard. The Globe defends Pugsley, and the ten million loan. Is it any wonder Crazy Snake says that there may be a few honest whites but he hasn't met them yet.

PLAY WILL BE GIVEN AGAIN

"All the Comforts of Home" Will be Repeated in Lindsay

Lindsay, April 14—Irving Beers, who directed the local production of "All the Comforts of Home" here this season is in town for the purpose of reproducing the piece, providing the local amateurs are once more willing to go on the boards. On the next presentation of this clever play a chorus of forty or fifty voices will be introduced, which will add greatly to the success of the production, and the play itself will go much better next time. In addition to this four act comedy a beautiful one act play entitled, "The Littlest Girl" will be put on as a curtain raiser. This will no doubt prove to be one of the events of the present theatrical season.

Forty-seven millions have been added to Canada's debt.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Hogs Firm at Buffalo and Chicago.

LONDON, April 13.—London cables for cattle are steady, at 12½c to 14½c per lb. for Canadian steers, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10c to 10½c per lb.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, April 13.—The railways reported 55 carloads of live stock at the City Market, consisting of 831 cattle, 808 hogs, 132 sheep and lambs and 374 calves.

Exporters.

Steers for export purposes did not reach as high as at Monday's market; in fact, there were not more than two loads on the market all told—one straight load at $5.75 and then a few odd lots sold at $5.25 to $5.65. But there were a few cattle of export weights that were bought for butcher purposes, as there were so few choice cattle on the market. Export bulls sold at $4.25 to $4.75.

Butchers.

Prime picked lots of butchers sold at from $5.20 to $5.50, but not enough to make a load brought these figures; loads of good, $5 to $5.25; medium, $4.60 to $5; common, $4.20 to $4.50; cows, $3.25 to $4.50; canners, $2 to $2.50.

Stockers and Feeders.

Harry Murby reports receipts of feeders and stockers as being very light; in fact, everything with any flesh on it in the shape of a feeder is being taken for butcher purposes on account of light receipts. Mr. Murby bought 80 stockers and feeders at the following quotations: Steers, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, at $4 to $4.75; steers, 800 to 900 lbs. each, at $3.75 to $4; stockers, 600 to 700 lbs. each, at $3 to $3.25.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts of milkers and springers were light, but plenty to supply the demand. Trade slow at prices ranging from $30 to $55 each.

Veal Calves.

Receipts of calves were larger than for some time, with prices easier, at $3 to $6.50 per cwt. There are too many young calves, that is, calves not more than a week old, and some less, that are being marketed, and dealers as well as butchers complain of not being able to get enough of decent quality to supply their customers.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts light, but plenty, considering the general quality and the prices they are selling at. Export ewes, $4.50 to $5, with a few light sheep for butchers' purposes at $5.25; rams, $3.50 to $4.25; yearling lambs of choice quality, $7 to $7.50 per cwt.; common $5 to $6 per cwt.; spring lambs, $4 to $8.50 each.

Hogs.

Mr. Harris reports another rise in hog prices of 15c per cwt. Hogs f.o.b. cars at country points, $7.25 per cwt.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, April 13.—Cattle—Active and steady; prime steers, $6.60 to $6.75.

Veals—Receipts, 75 head; slow and 25c lower, $7 to $8.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 1500 head; slow; pigs 10c higher; others steady; heavy $7.75 to $7.80; pigs, $7 to $7.10; dairies, $7.25 to $7.65.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 2800 head; sheep and heavy lambs slow; handy lambs active; lambs, $5 to $8.25.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Beeves—Receipts, 1800, all for slaughterers; nothing doing in live cattle; feeling steady. Exports to-morrow, 1200 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 31; steady feeling; poor to medium veals, $4 to $7.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 3176; sheep nominal; lambs slow but steady; fairly good Buffalo lambs (unshorn), $8.15.

Hogs—Receipts, 2625, all for slaughterers; nominally steady.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, April 13.—Cattle—Receipts estimated at 1500; market a shade higher; beeves, $4.85 to $7.20; Texas steers, $4.60 to $5.85; western steers, $4.60 to $5.80; stockers and feeders, $3.15 to $5.60; cows and heifers, $2.10 to $6; calves, $5.50 to $7.75.

Hogs—Receipts estimated at 10,000; market 5c higher; light, $7.10 to $7.45; mixed, $7.20 to $7.65; heavy, $7.25 to $7.60; rough, $7.20 to $7.35; good to choice, heavy, $7.35 to $7.60; pigs, $6 to $6.85; bulk of sales, $7.40 to $7.60.

His Generosity Misplaced.

St. Petersburg, April 14—Max Johnston, the foreman of a big English factory in St. Petersburg, was murdered Monday by men in his employ. The workmen were dissatisfied with the Easter gratuities given them by Johnston. They pinned him to the ground with a heavy bobbin and beat him to death with ropes.

OF INTEREST

New York's Bridges

People who have long regarded New York City as a thing separate and apart from the rest of the country are gradually being forced to amend their ideas. It is no longer to be classed as a kind of detached urban free lance or as a synonym for municipal insularity. As the press points out for some years now it has been sending atee. roots tunneling under the rivers to grip the Jersey and Long Island shores and at the same time it has gradually been extending one great arm after another across parts of these waters for a more open and above-board friendship. Whether this is a deep-laid scheme of father Knickerbocker's to draw reinvigorating sustenance from Jersey's virgin soil or a benevolent plan to extend the benefit of his trusts to Long Island, the editorial writers refuse to say. They are a unit, however, in emphasizing the fact that New York City, with last week's opening of the Queensboro Bridge is fast developing adequate facilities for bridge and tunnel transportation to and from the metropolis. There are now, completed, or about to be completed four bridges and three sets of tunnels connecting New York and Long Island and three underground tube systems to New Jersey.

In viewing the construction and completion of the new bridge the press writers bring out many points of interest.

"It is the first real outlet to the heart of Long Island" says the New York Journal of Commerce; while the New York Tribune with a reproving eye on Tammany Hall declares "it is only surpassed in length by one in Scotland and as an engineering blunder by one that was in Quebec." The New York World alludes to be reconciled to the great cost of the structure. "As it stands to-day," it comments, "the bridge is a costly and magnificent monument to official inefficiency."

The Tribune reviews this phase of the matter further;—

"It is venal to spend $20,000,000 or so on a bridge that should cost about $10,000,000, because the bridge is desirable. A colossal blunder will be ignored and stupendous waste regarded with indifference, if the city gets much-needed facilities."

"Who of the crowd in Queens that welcomed the opening of the new Queensboro Bridge cared because the structure cost nearly twice as much as was necessary? Queens needed a bridge to Manhattan and there was the bridge. What matter that it did not come up to expectations, that it did not provide the facilities it had been planned to provide that it cost nearly twice as much as a bridge of its carrying capacity should have cost that in an effort to make it stronger it was burdened with useless steel that had only made it weaker that enough money had been wasted on it to build nearly half the Fourth avenue subway. There was a bridge. It was desirable. It was what the people wanted. It would get them to Manhattan more quickly and cheaply. The men who had built it were public benefactors. If they had constructed for $10,000,000 a bridge that had fallen into the river before it was opened no words would have been black enough to characterize their blundering, their incompetence, their wastefulness. After an expenditure of $20,000,000 on a bridge that should have cost $10,000,000 there are no words at all about blundering, incompetence and wastefulness."

A New York Post writer describes the new bridge as "the most conspicuous thing in sight" for miles along the river front. He goes on thus:—

"In the matter of gracefulness of proportion the Queensboro Bridge is not likely to displace the Brooklyn or even the Williamsburg structures in popular estimation. Its curves are not as gradual as those of the suspension type; it does not sweep up and then down like its two companions farther down stream. From a distance its lines give the impression of power and tremendous strength. At close range this effect is proportionately increased and, as the passerby pauses at the beginning of the approach to gaze upward at the first tower, a maze of red girders and beams is presented to view, stretching far out across the river, in seemingly aimless fashion. That is the cantilever's misfortune. Its construction, the principle on which it supports itself, is not so obvious to the layman as in the case of the suspension bridge. Out on the span proper, for instance, the labyrinth of steel appears even more intricate and confusing.

"Unlike the Brooklyn Bridge the towers of which there are four—two on Blackwell's Island and one on the New York and Long Island sides—are of steel. They are "rocking" towers. That is, they are constructed on a pivot so as to "give" this way or that with varying strains. This is necessary in winter. Annual variation, it is said is about one inch for every hundred feet. The piers on which the towers rest are built of stone, as are also the approaches, but otherwise, the bridge is steel throughout. Consequently the expansion and contraction due to change in temperature must be figured in hundreds of feet."

The New York Times gives the main dimensions of the bridge, and compares it with the other great structures of its kind. We read:

"Only three bridges with longer spans than the Queensboro Bridge exist —the Brooklyn Bridge, of 1595 feet; the Williamsburg bridge of 1600 feet, both of the suspension type, and the Firth of Forth bridge, Scotland, of 1710 feet. The Queensboro comes next with 1182 feet."

A writer in Collier's Weekly deals in more detail in the figures of this structure. He says in part:

"Measured by the combined length and capacity of its five main spans, the Queensboro bridge, across the East River from Fifty-ninth street, New York, to Ravenswood, Queens, is the greatest bridge in the world. Including approaches, its total length is 8600 feet, width 86 feet, and greatest height over 300 feet above the water. It crosses from shore to shore, 135 feet above the river, with three enormous spans of 1182 feet, 630 feet, and 984 feet, the the middle one reaching across the full width of Blackwell's Island. Besides these, there are two more great "anchor" spans, one at each end, wholly over dry land, with a length of 3724 feet for five, which together, contain over 105,000,000 pounds of steel. No other spans in this country ex suspension bridges, approach the longest of these, and the only true rival span in the world which exceeds it is the Forth Bridge, which, although 1710 feet long, has a capacity for only two railroad tracks, less than one-thirds of this. There are two decks, the lower one designed for a wide driveway and four electric car tracks, and the upper one for two sidewalks and two elevated railroad tracks, and having in all, an estimated capacity for 200,000,000 car passengers and millions of vehicles and pedestrians annually."—Literary Digest.

TIDES IN THE EARTH.

The Moon Pulls Our Solid Globe Out of Shape Twice a Day.

That the attraction of the sun and moon not only causes tides in the ocean, but has a corresponding influence on the solid earth itself, has now been definitely proved by Dr. O. Hecker, a Prussian physicist. A quarter of a century ago Professor G. H. Darwin concluded that there must be tides in the solid earth as well as in the fluid seas, but he was unable to detect them, and his only conclusion was that the earth's mass was very rigid—at least as rigid as steel. Dr. Hecker now confirms this conclusion, but with his improved instruments and methods he has been able to detect and measure the amount by which the moon pulls the solid earth out of shape twice a day. Dr. Hecker's measurements, which lasted continuously more than two years, were to ascertain the lunar influence on the earth's gravity by observing the oscillations of a delicate pendulum. It was by comparing his results with the figures as calculated for a rigid earth that he was able to detect the tidal deformation caused by the pull of both moon and sun. Dr. Hecker's pendulums were a complicated series of bars joined together, and they were installed in a specially designed brick lined room seventy-five feet below the surface of the ground, where the temperature remained practically constant at about 12 degrees centigrade, or 54 degrees F. A continuous record of their position was kept by means of photography. Working here daily from December, 1902, to May, 1905, Hecker carried on the laborious series of observations that have now established the existence of lunar and solar tidal waves in the solid but flexible mass of the globe.—New York Herald.

Little Girl's Trip.

St. Thomas, April 13.—Mary Manning, the 13-year-old daughter of Jas. Manning of this city, has arrived here from Waterford, Ireland, having made the entire journey alone. Her father had not seen her since she was an infant, when her mother having died, he put her in a convent and came to Canada. Recently he opened correspondence with the convent and succeeded in getting permission to have her come to this country.

Serious Riots in France.

Meru, France, April 13.—The striking button makers of Meru, whose demands for a continuance of the previous wage scale in the button factories, have been followed by violence and disorders, recalling the days of the revolution, have brought about a veritable reign of terror here, and in the neighboring towns of Crepin and Lormaison. About 2,500 soldiers and police are under arms.

Tug Captain Drowned.

Meaford, April 13.—Capt. John McInnis, owner of the fishing tug Primrose, fell overboard and was drowned off Cape Rich, in rounding which boats are compelled to run for some distance in the trough of the sea. The deck being coated with ice, McInnis lost his balance while going from the pilot house to the engine room. He leaves a wife and three young children.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Belleriver, Que.—"Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would not be alive. For five months I had painful and irregular periods and inflammation of the uterus. I suffered like a martyr and thought often of death. I consulted two doctors who could do nothing for me. I went to a hospital, and the best doctors said I must submit to an operation, because I had a tumor. I went back home much discouraged. One of my cousins advised me to take your Compound, as it had cured her. I did so and soon commenced to feel better, and my appetite came back with the first bottle. Now I feel no pain and am cured. Your remedy is deserving of praise."—Mrs. EMMA CHATEL, Valleyfield, Belleriver, Quebec.

Another Operation Avoided.

Adrian, Ga.—"I suffered untold misery from female troubles, and my doctor said an operation was my only chance, and I dreaded it almost as much as death. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me without an operation."—LENA V. HENRY, R.F.D. 3.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases.

THE CARE OF LINEN.

Let Your Sheets and Pillowcases "Rest" at Times.

Few housekeepers realize that all linen in constant use will keep longer if it is allowed to "rest" at times. This same principle holds good with garments and various toilet articles. Take, for example, the plan followed by a woman whose house linen is limited and who likes to make it last. She has a family of three and keeps out eight sheets each week. As soiled ones come in fresh from the laundry she places them always at the bottom of the pile, so in this way the same sheet is not used two weeks in succession, but is sure of a fortnight if not three weeks of "rest." In a store closet she keeps two other piles of eight, and every two months the sets of sheets that have been in use are put into the store place, another set being put into the cupboard for weekly use. The arrangement takes very little time, and it is more than worth while in the saving to linen. Pillowcases and towels she manages in the same way, only the quantity of the latter is greater.

Her table linen is used for six months and then put away for a year.

Luxurious as it may sound to have such a quantity of linen, the gathering of it is inexpensive, for the woman buys a sheet or table cover occasionally and puts it away, thus keeping her store in condition. At the same time pieces wear out so slowly that there is never much loss to be made good at one time, and the pocketbook is saved accordingly.

Linen sheets, like others, wear first in the center, and it repays to slit them down the middle to get the edges in the place. This is done by tearing them in two lengthwise. The selvages are then overhanded together with very fine cotton, that a big seam shall not be made, and then the raw edges are hemmed. The life of a sheet is greatly prolonged if this is done in time.

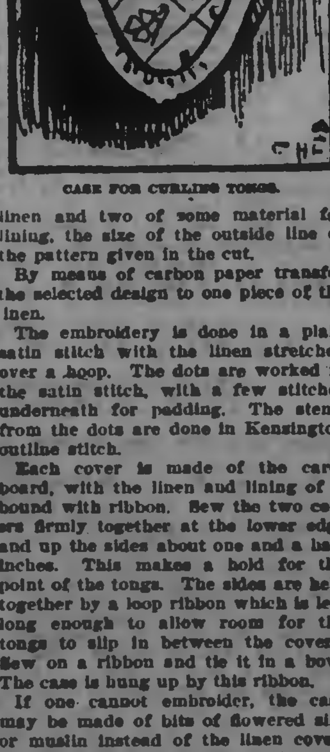
CURLING TONG CASE.

When Hung Near Dressing Table Saves Much Annoyance.

A pair of curling tongs is found on nearly every dressing table. Sometimes they are on a tray, but more often they are laid carelessly on the cover, frequently leaving little brown, partly scorched patches.

A case hanging beside the dressing table in which to slip the tongs will be found a great convenience. Besides being useful, it is a pretty and attractive little accessory of the dressing table.

To make the curling tongs case cut two pieces of thin pasteboard, two of linen and two of some material for lining, the size of the outside line of the pattern given in the cut.



CASE FOR CURLING TONGS.

By means of carbon paper transfer the selected design to one piece of the linen.

The embroidery is done in a plain satin stitch with the linen stretched over a hoop. The dots are worked in the satin stitch, with a few stitches underneath for padding. The stems from the dots are done in Kensington outline stitch.

Each cover is made of the cardboard, with the linen and lining of it bound with ribbon. Sew the two covers firmly together at the lower edge and up the sides about one and a half inches. This makes a hold for the point of the tongs. The sides are held together by a loop ribbon which is left long enough to allow room for the tongs to slip in between the covers. Sew on a ribbon and tie it in a bow. The case is hung up by this ribbon.

If one cannot embroider, the case may be made of bits of flowered silk or muslin instead of the linen cover. The one illustrated is of ecru silk with fine lines of dark brown and green flowers. The ribbons match the stripe in the silk.

For a summer cottage or for a room done in pretty light colors any of the flowered cretonnes with pink or blue ribbons would be effective.

Cotillion Favors.

A novelty in rose decoration is the illuminated jacqueminot rose. The wands with roses on top secrete an electric battery, which when pressed upon will illuminate the rose. They are sold by the dozen and used as cotillion favors.

The Newfoundland elections have been called for May 8th.

C Squadron R.C.D., at Burford, may be moved to Hamilton.

Old Putnam.

Old Putnam, the eighteen-year-old pet horse of Battery C, Fifth United States artillery, died at Fort William McKinley, near Manila, Dec. 12. Old Putnam, who had been enjoying well earned ease on the retired list after his useful life, first went to the Philippine Islands in 1898 with the Astor battery. He was later assigned to Captain Reilly's battery, F, Fifth field artillery, with that battery in China. When the allied armies arrived at Pekin, Putnam and another horse of the name of Corregidor were pulling the first of the American light field guns. Just as they had started up a hill to gain one of the positions overlooking the city Corregidor's traces broke, and a moment later, after that horse had been cut away from the gun, Putnam, straining every muscle, started up the hill, arriving there in time for the American gun to open the first fire in the storming of Pekin.—Chicago News.

Poet Southey's Grandson.

At Shap, in Westmoreland, Charles Southey, son of the late vicar of Askham and grandson of the poet Robert Southey, has been sent to jail for a week for begging at Patterdale Hall Sunday night. He told the bench a pathetic story. His father, he said, gave him a good education, but no trade, so he took up literature. He got married and had a comfortable home, but his wife left him years ago, and he had to sell his home. Afterward he stole half a sovereign, for which he was sent to prison. He had since been unable to pursue literary work, his appearance being against him.

"I have not known what it is to have a proper meal for a long time," added the prisoner, "but have had to subsist at the best of times on fish and chips in common lodging houses."—London Mail.

LOCAL MAN NOT SURE WHETHER HE WILL GO TO BISLEY MEET

Col.-Sergt. W. Moore, of Peterborough, is entitled to a place on the Canadian Bisley team this year, but he is unable to say at present whether he will be able to make the trip this year or not. His friends are hoping, however, that he will cross the pond to represent this city at the big meet.

The Canadian team which will go to Bisley this year will be in charge of Lieut.-Col. A. Bertram of the Third Infantry Brigade, Dundas, who has been appointed commandant of the team. Major W. F. Mercer, of the Second Queen's Own Rifles, Toronto, has been appointed adjutant of the team.

No definite date is fixed for sailing yet, but the team is expected to leave Montreal for England about June 19.

EXPERTS BUSY EXCAVATING FOR DIAMONDS AND COAL IN OPS

Mount Pleasant, April 13—It was believed last week that a stratum of coal had been found on Mr George Winn's farm, Ops township. This week it is diamonds, believed to have been discovered on an adjoining farm, lot 15, con 11, the property of Mr. Patrick Tracey. It is said that the clay formation strongly resembles that found in Kimberley, South Africa. Ever since operations were commenced by two mining experts from the United States the property has been carefully watched. Notices have been posted up warning trespassers and no one is even allowed to carry away any of the clay. Those who are behind the work of investigation strongly of the opinion that diamonds can be found while not a few ridicule the contention. Now comes the story that on Sunday a stone strongly resembling a diamond in its rough shape was found among the earth thrown up during excavation which has reached a depth of thirty feet. The stone was closely examined and tested, and it is declared, it is said, by some who are "on the inside" to be worth $300. Some of the farmers in the vicinity of the diamond and coal "mines" are greatly excited over the finds.

MRS. EVA FAY ANSWERING QUESTIONS AT MONTREAL NOW

Mrs. Eva Fay is making a hit in Montreal with her answering questions stunt. Speaking of her appearance at Bennett's theatre, the Star says;

"I have communicated from the balcony," droned Mrs. Fay, "'from one giving the name of Corinne D'Amour.'"

A little flutter of expectation went thorugh Bennet's last night, because the name was the same as that connected with the recent sensational doings at Wilder's store. It seemed that the young lady had come to take counsel of the mysterious lady. More flutters.

"'Corinne wants to know if she will get her position back,'" wailed Mrs. Fay. "She will; but Miss D'Amour will not hold it long. She will be called upon to change her name, and consequently her position too."

Of the many surprises at Bennet's last night, this, of course, was the biggest, and, when the name was first pronounced, everybody expected much spicy scandal, but there was none of it. The simple and happy ending seemed to fall flat.

There was only standing room left at eight o'clock at Bennet's, and it was very apparent that Mrs. Fay, with her facetious answers to cunningly worded questions, was the attraction. She mystified as much as ever, although her assistants might be advised to use some catch-word other than "hard-knot." The first part of the turn consists chiefly of tying "hard-knots."

WORLD THINKS THE MONEY SHOULD BE SPENT ON THE PETERBORO'-TORONTO LINE

Speaking editorially the Toronto World of yesterday says;—

The Canadian Pacific Railway, with all its millions of money, its land grants and its accumulated surplus, has been unable after twenty-five years to improve in any substantial way its line between Toronto and Smith's Falls, though it is probably the most heavily taxed portion of the system. For years the management has had under discussion the question of a double track, of straightening out the track between these points and of increasing its increasing its train mileage. But up to the present time it has failed to make good in any one of these respects. It is a notorious fact that there is more trouble on the Canadian Pacific between Toronto and Smith's Falls, and especially between Toronto and Peterborough, than on any other portion of the road, and yet this appears to be the stretch of line that has been starved in the way of telegraph operators, sidings train mileage and other protections and accommodations for the travelling public. At the present moment millions are being spent in building a model road from near Midland on the Georgian Bay to Peterborough, for the accommodation of through grain traffic. But nothing is being done in the way of improving the track from Toronto to Peterborough where thousands of lives are placed in jeopardy by a one-horse service.

Probably it is because Toronto is concerned and not Montreal that this policy is being perpetuated. The accident on Friday morning near Tweed is just another reminder which the authorities will continue to ignore.

"LITTLE SHY" WANTS TO KNOW

War Correspondent Receives Letter Concerning New Armouries

War Correspondent of the Review

Dear Sir,—Having noticed several items in one of your contemporaries about the opening of the new armories, one would naturally think that the 57th Regiment almost own them, nothing being mentioned about their sister corps. Several members of the Rural Corps, 3rd PWCD and 24th Field Battery, were under the impression that they too, would have a little to say about the occupation of these fine armories. Can you say whether the Sergeants of these Rural Corps will have to have a Sergeants' mess of their own or is it going to be a Garrison Sergeants Mess

Yours truly,
"LITTLE SHY."

Very interesting and enjoyable was the banquet held in the basement of George street Methodist church by the junior league last evening. The arrangements were all made by the girls, and they received many compliments for the way in which every detail of the affair was carried out. There were about one hundred present last night, and after everybody had partaken of the many dainty things that had been prepared on the tables, the following toast list was carried out, the Rev. E. Mr. Wm. Pickle was appointed sexton, the former sexton, Mr. J. Robinson, being otherwise engaged.

A GOODLY HERITAGE

Hymn composed for the 70th anniversary of the Methodist church, Norwood, by S P Ford, MD.

"The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea, I have a goodly heritage.

Tune—"Aurelia".

We hail this glorious morning,
This day of sweet delight,
With happy memories bright;
With happy moments bright;
Our anthem of thanksgiving,
Our cheerful songs of praise,
To, Thee, our God and Father,
With grateful hearts we raise.

The heritage our fathers
Bequeathed us when they died.
We venerate and cherish,
With honest, Christian pride,
And here, before God's altar,
And standing face to face,
We pledge anew our fealty,
To God and to this place.

The heritage of doctrine
They taught us in our youth,
We cherish still and cling to
As God's most holy truth;
That Jesus came to save us
From guilt and fear and shame,
Through faith in His atonement,
And in His precious Name.

The grand, old hymns of Zion,
Sweet heritage of song,
That cheered them on their journey
And made them great and strong;
We sing them still with fervor,
We raise our voices high,
Our battle-cry in conflict,
Our requiem when we die.

Our heritage of courage,
That dared to do the right,
Tho' hosts of hellish legions
Opposed them in the fight,
That never feared nor faltered,
Whatever might betide,
But followed in the foot-steps
Of Christ, the Crucified.

With all the faith and fervor
That marked them in the way,
We supplicate High Heaven,
To bless us here today;
And fill us with the spirit
That made their lives sublime
And keep their memory precious,
Through all the years of Time.

Some Musings of a Country Merchant

"Yes," remarked a country merchant, "I certainly have a snap. Whole sale houses send duns every month and draw on me at sight, but if I send a bill to a farmer he becomes swearing mad and quits trading at my store. While I am hard up for money, many of those who are owing me are sending money in advance to mail order houses. If I contribute money to any cause people say I am bidding for trade. If I do not they say I am a hog. Every day I am expected to dig up for everything that comes along, from a raffle to a church fund by people who claim I ought to do this because they do part of their trading here, but our friends Robt Simpson and T. Eaton, neither buy tickets nor help the church fund, and yet they get the cash in advance business. If I sell a pair of pants I must treat the family to candy and cigars; if I buy a load of potatoes I must do the same. Customers who are able to pay hang on to their money while I pay ten per cent at the bank to get ready cash. I have a big business during hard times and poor crops from people who are willing to trade with me provided I can duplicate catalogue house prices and wait until harvest for money. My scales weigh too much when I sell sugar, and too little when I buy butter. I am a thief, a liar and a grafter. If I smile I am a soft soap hypocrite, and if I don't, I am a grump. Yes, certainly this is a snap." And he looked over $10,000 worth of accounts all good and wonders how he could raise $350 to pay a sight draft due tomorrow.—Exchange.

SENIOR BASEBALL LEAGUE HELD ENCOURAGING MEETING AT Y.M.C.A. LAST NIGHT

Four Teams Were Represented and a Constitution Was Drawn up—Another Meeting Will be Held April 21st.

The senior city baseball meeting held at the YMCA last evening was of a very encouraging nature. The president, Mr E N McWilliams, was in the chair and a large amount of business was transacted. The TAS, Strathconas, Cordage Works and the YMCA were represented.

A constitution was drawn up after the idea of the city hockey league, and the rules are of a very strict nature. It was practically decided to play all games at Riverside park and the directors will be interviewed as to what arrangements will be made.

It was decided to hold another meeting next Wednesday night when the constitution will be presented for consideration.

There is every indication that the league will have a successful season and some good baseball will be dished up for the fans.

SOUNDS BAD TO THE WORLD

Rogers Injured Rib Didn't Inconvenience Him Much

Are the Toronto papers at last seeing the light? The following is from today's World;

Fred Banks, the heavyweight who was disqualified and suspended for stalling the second round in his bout with Henderson last Saturday night, insists that he would have cut loose in the third and won all the money. This statement looks good if some one could explain why even money, was offered in the first round in profusion against Banks chances.

All of which is a reminder of a recent local wrestling bout between Rogers and the Bulgarian Turk when the good thing gamblers got away with the coin. It was given out before the show that Rogers was to quit hurt, and even after he won the first fall, the wise coterie were around with Abdallah money. Then sure enough the Turk put his man out of business the next time down with a trick rib torn from the cartilage. This however, did not prevent Rogers wrestling just seven days later in Hamilton.

WRESTLING

A meeting of the city intermediate baseball league will be held at the YMCA on Monday evening at 8 p.m. The business of the meeting will be of an important and interesting character and a full attendance of players is looked for.

Sec-Manager—Jack Toms.

The Red Birds would like to arrange games with any amateur teams

The new scoring rules for baseball are very fine as far as they go, but in one instance the men who made the changes did not go far enough. The rule that does not permit the scoring of a stolen base when a double steal is attempted, and one of the runners is retired, is a mighty welcome change. And the new rule that gives a batter the credit of a sacrifice hit on a fly ball that ought to have been caught is also approved by the ball fans. But it is the rule that gives a pitcher or a catcher an error if a batter reaches third after a third strike that does not look right. The change makes it compulsory to give a pitcher an error if the third strike goes wild, or the catcher gets an error if he permits the third strike to get away. Now, there is nothing said about a run that is scored from third base on a wild pitch or a passed ball. Or if a runner advances from first to second or second to third, on a passed ball or wild pitch. Why has this rule been drawn so fine. Is it an oversight, and if not why discriminate between the two plays. Surely it is a most glaring error if the catcher has a passed ball that permits a man to race home from third with a run that may prove the winner, or if the pitcher makes a wild chuck and a runner comes across the plate. Indeed, such a "battery error" is more dangerous than if a batter gets to third after having three strikes called on him.

Eliminating Fog.

All navigators will be interested in the news which comes from Liverpool that Sir Oliver Lodge recently succeeded in completely clearing away for a radius of sixty feet a thick fog by means of electrical discharges. The Marine Journal states that the Lodge system consists of driving electricity into a fog laden atmosphere at a very high voltage from a series of disks at the top of poles. The current acts directly upon the constituents of the fog, the electric influence whirling these hither and thither, causing them gradually to fall to the ground. A test is soon to be made of the apparatus in London.

Thousands of Women's Clubs.

Nobody knows how many women's clubs there are in the United States. The General Federation of Women's Clubs was registered in the almanacs of 1908 as having over 3,000 clubs in its membership, with 150,000 women on their rolls. But that was in January, 1908, and the federation grows every year amazingly. It contains, too, only a few out of the numberless women's clubs in the land, since there are small clubs, societies and circles everywhere which do not affiliate themselves with any state or national organization, but exist simply for the pleasure and profit of their own membership.—Harper's Bazar.

French Artillery Invention.

Colonel Deport, the well known French expert, has just invented an improvement in the three inch field gun that will enable the battery to be worked by five men instead of six. This will free 2,400 men in the French army, enough to serve twenty-four new batteries. The colonel's system consists in employing the recoil to open the breechblock, which then shuts automatically on the cartridge being introduced. There is also an ingenious contrivance for obviating the necessity of lowering the gun, and the total weight is reduced by six hundredweight for the gun and almost as much for the ammunition wagon, which thus makes the new model especially fit for use in the artillery attached to independent cavalry divisions.

Racing on Snowshoes.

By traveling ninety miles across an unknown country and mostly in the dark in fifteen hours the winner of the military skee race in the Swedish northern games has splendidly shown the possibilities of snowshoes as a means of locomotion. In a former contest some years ago over a distance of 138 miles the start was made at 6 o'clock one morning, and the majority of the competitors completed the journey early in the afternoon of the following day, while in a more recent race the first man home, a Finn, covered the distance, forty miles, at an average speed of eight and a half miles an hour.—Westminster Gazette.

HER NEWEST IDOL

He watches Gladys while she writes.
He sits beside her as she sews.
She fondly nods and smiles at him.
A kiss to him she often blows;
To callers she denies herself,
Lives quite retired since Lent's begun,
But morning, noon and night he's there,
Caressed and welcomed, lucky one!

He is not handsome, for a fact;
With grace or wit 'is not endowed.
For downright ugliness, in truth,
You'd single him in any crowd.
It's just from feminine caprice
That Gladys vows he's "sweet" and "dear,"
Declares that fortune, happiness,
Depend upon his presence near.

There's cunning in his twinkling eye,
But Gladys simply won't believe
That while she wastes her love on him
He's laughing at her in his sleeve.
My jealousy, perforce, I hide,
Although I hate him worse than she,
A fickle lady's latest fad—
That hideous old god, Billikin!

The Poet and the Editor.

WISE WILLIAM.

Why He Did Not Want a Lawyer to Defend Him.

When Justice Buffum opened court in a small town in southern Georgia one morning last week he called loudly, "Jones against Johnson!"

A dignified gentleman came to the bar and said: "I am Dr. Jones, your honor, the complaining witness. My chickens were stolen and found in the possession of"—

"One moment, doctor," the judge interrupted. "We must have the defendant at the bar. Jones against Johnson! Jones against Johnson! Is the defendant present? Is William Johnson in court?"

A tall and shambling negro shuffled to the bar, ducked his head, pulled his woolly forelock in token of respect and grinned a propitiatory grin.

"Ah's Willyum Johns'n, please, suh, jedge," he said. "Ah doan' know nuffin' 'bout no 'fendant, suh. Ah'm jes' de man wot took de chick'ns."

"Don't talk like that," the court warned William. "You ought to have a lawyer to speak for you. Where's your lawyer?"

"Ah ain' got no lawyer, jedge"—

"Very well, then," said his honor. "I'll assign a lawyer to defend you."

"Oh, no, suh; no, suh! Ple-e-ease don' do dat!" William begged.

"Why not?" asked the judge. "It won't cost you anything. Why don't you want a lawyer?"

"Well, Ah'll tell yo', suh," said William, waving his tattered old hat confidentially. "Hit's jes' dis away—Ah wan' tuh enjoy dem chick'ns mase'f."—Harper's Weekly.

Not So Particular.

Little Johnnie, five years old, whose father was a missionary in India and whose mother was dead, had been instructed by his grandmother, to whom his rearing had been intrusted, always to place ladies before gentlemen in his thought and action. A few nights ago he was saying his prayers, prompted by his grandmother, who added:

"O God, bless my father in India. O God, bless my mother in heaven"—

"There, grandma, you've done it!"

"Done what?"

"Why, you've taught me to put ladies first, and here you've made me pray for papa first. But never mind. Perhaps God is not so fussy about politeness as you are."—Judge.

Aesthetic Lily.

"Here comes my little Lily!" exclaimed a doting mother to a room full of guests. "I have nursie take her for a walk in the park every afternoon, and you have no idea how rapidly it is developing her sense of the aesthetic, the beautiful. Come here, my darling. Tell us what you remember best about your walk in the park today."

Lily's breath came hard. She paused a moment, then answered in a shrill, excited treble:

"Oh, mamma, the bears smelled awful."—New York Herald.

Saving an Ancient Fresco.

It is not only in England that church restorers are allowed to do much as they like. An interesting story comes from Hal. The church is under restoration, and the workmen came across traces of a fresco. Its existence had been unknown, and, according to the plans, the plaster was to come away. Fortunately a townsman knew a process by which the plaster could be taken off intact on canvas. He obtained permission to make the experiment, and it has been carried out with success. He is said to be now the possessor of a valuable fifteenth century painting. The Brussels museum authorities have learned of the existence of the painting, and they are endeavoring to prevent the alienation of this interesting work of the middle ages.—London Globe.

What Becomes of the Corn.

People often wonder, particularly those who have traveled for hundreds of miles through the corn belt, what becomes of the corn which is grown every year. In the year 1908, when the total crop was 2,666,000,000 bushels, 241,000,000 bushels were consumed in flour and grist mill products, 8,000,000 bushels in the manufacture of starch, 9,000,000 for malt liquors, 17,000,000 in the production of distilled liquors, 40,000,000 for glucose, 190,000,000 for export and 13,000,000 for seed, making a total of 518,000,000 bushels, or 19.3 per cent of the entire crop. The remaining 80.7 per cent, or 2,148,000,000 bushels, seems to have been used almost entirely for feeding purposes.—Corn Reporter.

Lost—A French Colony.

The government of France has mislaid a colony, and the government of Mexico has found it. It is Clipperton island, a little isle in the Pacific ocean, 10 degrees north and 109 degrees longitude west. It is one of a large group of islands which are visited periodically by a French warship. Some time ago, when the warship visited the island, the French sailors found soldiers there in Mexican uniform and the Mexican flag floating serenely over the island. The island is directly east of the mouth of the Panama canal, which gives it a certain amount of importance. The matter has been placed in the hands of the French foreign office, and "communications are pending." The warship discovered that the French government had mislaid the island two years ago.—Harper's.

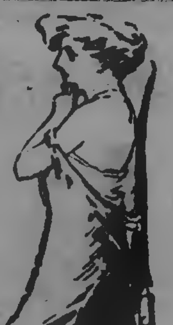
The Barrier

By

Rex Beach



COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"I've never been afraid of anything, and yet I feel so safe inside them. Isn't it queer?"

The young man became conscious of a vague discomfort and realized dimly that for hours now he had been smothering with words and caresses a something that had striven with him to be heard, a something that instead of dying grew stronger the more utterly this innocent maid yielded to him. It was as if he had ridden impulse with rough spurs in a fierce desire to distance certain voices and in the first mad gallop had lost them, but now far back heard them calling again more strongly every moment. A man's honor if old may travel feebly, but its pursuit is persistent. It was the talk about his people that had raised this uneasiness and indecision, he thought. Why had he ever started it?

"The marvelous part of it all," continued the girl, "is that it will never end. I know I shall love you always. Do you suppose I am really different from other girls?"

"Everything is different tonight—the whole world," he declared impatiently.

"I've had a big handicap," she said, "but you must help me to overcome it. I want to be like your sister."

He rose and piled more wood upon the fire. What possessed the girl? It was as if she knew each cunning joint of his armor, as if she had realized her peril and had set about the awakening of his conscience deliberately and with a cautious wisdom beyond her years. Well, she had done it, and he swore to himself. Then he melted at the sight of her, crouched there against the shadows, following his every movement with her soul in her eyes, the tenderest trace of a smile upon her lips.

When she beheld him gazing at her she tilted her head sideways daintily, like a little bird.

"Oh, my! What a fierce you are all at once!"

Her smile flashed up as if illumined by the leaping blaze, and he crossed quickly, kneeling beside her.

He piled up a great sweet scented couch of springy boughs and fashioned her a pillow out of a bundle of smaller ones, around which he wrapped his khaki coat; then he removed her high laced boots and, taking her tiny feet, one in the palm of either hand, bowed his head over them and kissed them with a sense of her gracious purity and his own unworthiness. He spread one of the big gray blankets over her and tucked her in, while she sighed in delightful languor, looking up at him all the time.

"I'll sit here beside you for awhile," he said. "I want to smoke a bit."

At times a great desire to feel her in his arms, to have her on his breast, surged over him, for he had lived long apart from women, and the solitude of the night seemed to mock him. He was a strong man, and in his veins ran the blood of wayward forbears who were wont to possess that which they conquered in the lists of love, mingled with which was the blood of spirited southern women who had on occasion loved not wisely, according to Kentucky rumor, but only too well. Nevertheless they were honest men and women, if oversentimental, and had transmitted to him a heritage of chivalry and a high sense of honor and courage. Her love had placed a barrier between them greater and more insurmountable than her blood.

He gently withdrew his fingers from her grasp and, seeing the other side of the wicking, covered himself over without disturbing her and fell asleep.

It was early dawn when Necia crept to him.

"I dreamed you had gone away," she said, shivering violently and drawing close. "Oh, it was a terrible awakening"—

"I was too tired to dream," he said.

"So I had to come and see if you were really here."

He quickly rekindled the fire, and they made a hasty breakfast. Before the warmth of the rising sun had penetrated the cold air they had climbed the ridge and obtained a wondrous view of broken country, the hills alight with the morning rays, the valleys misty and mystical.

"I wish Stark was not one of Lee's party," he said once. "He may misunderstand our being together this way."

"But when he learns that we love each other that will explain everything."

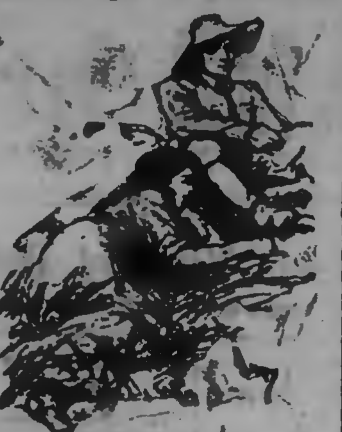
"I am not so sure. He doesn't know you as Lee and Poleon and your father do. I think we had better say nothing at all about—you and me—to any one."

They clung to the divide for several hours, then descended into the bed of a stream, which they followed until it joined a larger one a couple of miles below, and there, sheltered in a grove of whispering firs, they found Lee's cabin nestling in a narrow, forked valley.

"There's no one here," said Necia gleefully. "We've beat them in! We've beat them in!"

They had been walking rapidly since dawn, and, although Burrell's watch showed 2 o'clock, she refused to halt for lunch, declaring that the others might arrive at any moment. So down they went to the lower end of "No Creek" Lee's location, where Burrell blazed a smooth spot on the downstream side of a tree and wrote thereon at Necia's dictation. When he had finished she signed her name, and he witnessed it, then paced off 440 steps, where he squared a spruce tree, which she marked:

Lower center end stake of No. 1 below discovery. NECIA GALE, Locator.



"I'll sit here beside you for awhile," he said.

"Now you stake the one below mine," she said. "It's just as good and maybe better. Nobody can tell." But he shook his head.

"I'm not going to stake anything," said he.

"You must!" she cried quickly, the sparkle dying from her eyes. "You said you would, or I never would have brought you."

"I merely said I would come with you," he corrected. "I did not promise to take up a claim, for I don't think I ought to do so. If I were a civilian it would be different, but this is government land, and I am a part of the government, as it were. Then, too, in addition to the question of my right to do it, there would be the certainty of making enemies of your people, old 'No Creek' and the rest, and I can't afford that now."

All arguments and pleading were in vain. He remained obdurate and insisted on her locating two other claims for herself, one on each of the smaller creeks where they came together above the house.

"But nobody ever stakes more than one claim on a gulch," objected the girl. "It's a custom of the miners."

"Then we'll call each one of these branches a different and separate creek," he said. "The gold was carried down one of those smaller streams, and we won't take any chances on which one it was."

CHAPTER VII.

THE MAGIC OF BEN STARK.

BEFORE the party came in sight the sound of their voices reached the cabin, and Burrell rose nervously and sauntered to the door. Uncertain how this affair might terminate, he chose to get first look at his enemies, if they should prove to be such, realizing the advantage that goes to a man who stands squarely on both feet. Then he heard Lee say:

"Well, I'll be d——d! Somebody's here ahead of us."

"We've been beaten!" growled Stark angrily, pushing past him and coming around the corner, an ugly look in his eyes.

"Good afternoon," Burrell nodded pleasantly.

Lee answered him unintelligibly. Stark said nothing, but Runnion's exclamation was plain.

"It's that cursed blue belly!"

"When did you get here?" said Stark after a pause.

"A few hours ago."

"How did you come?" asked Lee.

"Black Bear creek," said the soldier curtly, at which Runnion broke into profanity.

"Better hush," Burrell admonished him. "There's a lady inside." And at that instant Necia showed her laughing face under his arm, while the trader uttered her name in amazement.

"Lunch is ready," she said. "We've been expecting you for quite awhile."

"Ba gar! Dat's funny t'ing for sure," said Poleon. "Who tol' you 'bout dis strike, eh?"

"Mother. I made her," the girl answered.

"Take off your packs and come in," Burrell invited, but Stark strode forward.

"Hold on a minute. This don't look good to me. You say your mother told you. I suppose you're Old Man Gale's other daughter, eh?"

Necia nodded.

"What time of day was it when you learned about this?"

"Cut that out!" roughly interjected Gale. "Do you think I double crossed you?"

The other turned upon him.

"It looks that way, and I intend to find out. You said yesterday you hadn't told anybody."

"I didn't think about the woman," said the trader, a trifle disconcerted, whereupon Runnion gave vent to an ironical sneer.

"But here's your girl and this man ahead of us. I suppose there's others on the way too."

"Nonsense!" Burrell cut in.

"I call it sleeck work," chuckled the Canadian, slipping out of his straps. "De nex' tam' I go stampedin' I tak' you 'long, Necia."

"Me, too," said Lee. "And now I'm goin' to tear into some of them beans I smell a-bilin' in yonder."

The others followed, although Stark and Runnion looked black and had little to say. It was an uncomfortable meal. Every one was ill at ease. Gale in particular was quiet and ate less than any of them. His eyes sought Stark's face frequently, and once the blood left his cheeks and his eyes blazed as he observed the gambler boldly eying Necia.

"You are a mighty good looking girl for a 'blood,'" remarked Stark at last.

"Thank you," she replied simply, and the soldier's dislike of the man crystallized into hate on the instant. There was a tone back of his words that seemed aimed at the trader, Meade thought, but Gale showed no sign of it, so the meal was finished in silence, after which the five belated prospectors went out to make their locations, for the fear of interruption was upon them now.

First they went downstream, and, according to their agreement, the trader staked first, followed by Poleon and Stark, thus throwing Runnion's claim more than a mile distant from Lee's discovery. From here they went up the creek to find the girl's other locations, one on each branch, at which Stark sneeringly remarked that she had pre-empted enough ground for a full grown white woman.

Runnion's displeasure was even more open, and he fell into foul mouthed mutterings, addressing himself to Poleon and Stark while the trader was out of earshot.

"This affair don't smell right, and I still think it's a frame-up."

"Bah!" exclaimed Doret.

"The old man sent the girl on ahead of us to blanket all the good ground. That's what he did!"

"Wait wan minnit," interrupted Poleon, his voice as soft as a woman's. "I tol' you dat I know all 'bout dis Black Bear creek too. You 'member, eh? Waal, mebbe you t'ink I'm traitor too? W'at? W'y don' you spik out?"

The three of them were alone, and only the sound of Gale's ax came to them, but at the light in the Canadian's face Runnion hastily disclaimed any such thought on his part, and Stark shrugged his denial.

There are men quite devoid of the ability to read the human face, and Runnion was of this species. Moreover, malice was so bitter in his mouth that he must have it out. So when they paused to blaze the next stake he addressed himself to Stark loud enough for Poleon to hear.

"That lieutenant is more of a man than I thought he was."

"How so?" inquired the older man.

"Well, it takes nerve to steal a girl for one night and then face the father, but the old man don't seem to mind it any more than she does. I guess he knows what it means, all right."

Stark laughed raucously.

"That's probably how Gale got his squaw," concluded Runnion, with a sneer.

It seemed a full minute before the Frenchman gave sign that he had heard; then a strange cry broke from his throat, and he began to tremble as if with cold. He was no longer the singer of songs or the man who was forever a boy. The mocking anger of a moment ago was gone. In its place was a consuming fury that sucked the blood from beneath his tan, leaving him the pallor of ashes, while his mouth twitched and his head rolled slightly from side to side like a palsied old man's. But evidently Poleon meant no violence, for he allowed the passion to run from him freely until it had spent its vigor, then said to Runnion:

"Somebody goin' die for w'at you say jus' now. Mebbe it's goin' be you, m'sieu; mebbe it's goin' to be him. I can't tell yet, but I'm hope an' pray it's goin' be you, biccause I t'ink w'at you say is a lie, an' nobody can spik dose kin' of lie 'bout Necia Gale."

He went crashing blindly through the underbrush, his head wagging, his shoulders slumped loosely forward like those of a drunken man, his lips framing words they could not understand.

When he had disappeared Runnion drew a deep breath.

"I guess I've framed something for Mr. Burrell this time."

"You go about it queer," said Stark. "I'd rather tackle a gang saw than a man like Poleon Doret. Your frame-up may work double."

"Huh! No chance. The soldier was out all night alone with that half breed girl, and anybody can see she's crazy about him. What's the answer?"

"Have you got your eye on her too?"

"Sure! Do you blame me?"

"No, but she's too good for you. Better stay out," the gambler advised. As a matter of fact, I don't like her father any better than you like her lovers"—

"Well, it's mutual. I can see Gale hates you like poison."

—"and I don't intend to see him and his tribe hog all the best ground hereabouts."

"They've already done it. You can't stop them."

"Yes, I can stop them," said Stark. "I want the ground that girl has staked, and I'm going to get it. It lies next to Lee's, and it's sure to be rich. Ours is so far away it may not be worth the recorder's fees. This creek may be as spotted as a coach dog, so I don't intend to take any chances."

"She made her locations legally," said Runnion.

"You leave that to me. When will the other boys be here?"

"Tomorrow morning. I told them to follow about four hours behind and not to run in on us till we had finished. They'll camp a few miles down the creek and be in early."

"You couldn't get but three, eh?"

"That's all I could find who would agree to give up half."

"Can we count on them?"

"Huh!" the other grunted. "They worked with me and Soapy Smith on the Skagway trail."

"Good—five against three, not counting the girl and the lieutenant," Stark mused. "Well, that will do it." He outlined his plan; then the two returned to the cabin to find Lee cooking supper.

Poleon had finished several pipes and after supper sat in the shadows in the open doorway apparently tired and dejected, though his eyes shone like diamonds and roved from one to the other. Half unconsciously he heard Stark saying:

"This girl was about your size, but not so dark. However, you remind me of her in some ways. That's why it puts her in my mind, I suppose. She was about your age at the time—nineteen."

"Oh, I'm not eighteen yet," said Necia.

"Well, she was a fine woman anyhow, the best that ever set foot in Chandon, and there was a great deal of talk when she chose young Bennett over the Gaylord man, for Bennett had been running second best from the start, and everybody thought it was settled between her and the other one. However, they were married quietly."

The story did not interest the Canadian. His mind was in too great agitation to care for dead tales. His heart burned within him too fiercely, and he felt too great a desire to put his hands to work. As he watched Burrell and Runnion bend over the table looking at a little can of gold dust that Lee had taken from under his bunk his eyes grew red and bloodshot beneath his hat brim. Which one of the two would it be? he wondered.

HE READ HIS MAN.

Lincoln's Rebuke to a Visitor Who Would Not Meet His Gaze.

As I came up to the railing in front of the president he was reading a paper that had just been presented to him by a man who sat in the chair opposite him and who seemed by his restlessness and unsteady eyes to be of a nervous disposition or under great excitement.

Mr. Lincoln, still holding the paper up and without movement of any kind, paused and, raising his eyes, looked for a long time at this man's face and seemed to be looking down into his very soul. Then, resuming his reading for a few moments, he again paused and cast the same piercing look upon his visitor.

Suddenly, without warning, he dropped the paper, and, stretching out his long arm, he pointed his finger directly in the face of his vis-a-vis and said, "What's the matter with you?"

The man stammered and finally replied, "Nothing."

"Yes, there is," said Lincoln. "You can't look me in the face! You have not looked me in the face since you sat there! Even now you are looking out that window and cannot look me in the eye!"

Then, flinging the paper in the man's lap, he cried: "Take it back! There is something wrong about this! I will have nothing to do with it!" And the discomfited individual retired.—T. B. Bancroft in McClure's Magazine.

Ice on Lake Superior.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., April 13.—A wire from Port Arthur last evening says the steamer Moore of the Booth Line arrived there yesterday afternoon from Duluth. Navigation is now open up Lake Superior from the Soo as far as Round Island, five miles above the locks. The ice is clear all the way from that point to Whitefish. Ice is still solid below the Soo, but is gone as far as Six Mile Point and the lake is still solid and there is still two feet of ice around Pipe Island, just this side of Detour.

WAS DRUNK AND WANTED TO FIGHT

Young Man Fined $2.00 for Being Disorderly Yesterday in a Public Place

Was drunk and wanted to fight

For being drunk and disorderly in a public place Angus MacDonald was arrested yesterday and appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning. He was fined the usual $2.

The accused when he appeared in the prisoner's box, presented a very delapidated appearance. His clothes were covered with a thick coating of mud and his face was besmeared with blood. It appears he tried to get into trouble with a young Italian in a local hotel yard and as a result he received a good shaking up, which will no doubt teach him to leave trouble alone in the future.

Grand Opera House, Wednesday, April 14th, 1909. Lecture by Dr Grenfell upon his work in Labrador. The lecture will commence at 8.30 p.m. so as to give those attending church services an opportunity of hearing Dr. Grenfell. Admission 25c. No seats reserved.

TURKISH TROOPS AND PEOPLE BELIEVED IN THEIR RULER

New Cabinet Has Been Installed in Ottoman Empire and Peace is Now Restored After Dangerous Crisis—Refrained From Destroying Property.

Constantinople, April 15.—After the stirring events of Tuesday and the early part of yesterday in the Turkish capital, the successful formation of the Cabinet and the issuance of an imperial proclamation, ordering the observance of the Sheri laws and the preservation of the constitution, served to bring about a comparatively peaceful situation here to-day.

The members of the new Cabinet, of which Tewfik Pasha is the grand vizier, have been installed in office.

Grand Vizier, Tewfik Pasha; Minister of War, Edham Pasha; Minister of Marine, Vice-Admiral Adjiemin Pasha; Minister of the Interior, Adil Bey; Minister of Justice, Hasan Fehmi Pasha; Minister of Finance, Nury Bey; the other posts are filled by previous incumbents.

During the whole thrilling momentous episode the salient features of the revolution were the loyalty of the troops and the people to the Sultan, whose name was frequently acclaimed, and the absence of attacks on the lives and property of citizens.

When it was learned that their demands had been granted the mutineers, headed by a band, marched to Yildiz Kiosk for the purpose of acclaiming the Sultan. They requested His Majesty to repair to Stamboul and wear the "Green Turban" in order to testify his respect for religion. On their way to Yildiz Kiosk the troops were cheered by the people, with cries of "Long live the Mohammedan religion."

The new Cabinet held a meeting last night to deliberate on the situation. The Grand Vizier and the Sheik Ul Islam arrived at the porte in state at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and were cheered by the immense crowd that had gathered there.

On the approach of the cortage an intimation was sent to the troops and the discharges of musketry ceased like magic. The precincts of the porte were crowded in every part, and the hall where the Ministry was installed was packed to overflowing. An imperial irade, appointing Tewfik Pasha Grand Vizier and confirming Zie Eddin Effendi as Sheik Ul Islam also ordains the strict observance of the Sheri laws and the preservation of the constitution "for the maintenance of the security and progress of the Government and country and the welfare of all my people."

A THEATRICAL MECHANICAL ASSOCIATION FOR PETERBORO'

The organization of a Theatrical Mechanical Association in Peterborough is being seriously considered and it is likely a meeting for that purpose will likely be held at an early date. The T.M.A. is widely represented in other cities and those interested locally are of the opinion that it would be a good idea to form one here. A membership would be obtained from the Grand Opera House, the Crystal and the Royal Theatre.

There was talk of the organization of an association some time ago, but the matter never took definite shape.

WILL START PICTURE SHOW IN TORONTO AT EARLY DATE

A moving picture house with a seating capacity is what Mr W A Edwards of the Crystal proposes to conduct at the corner of King and Bay street, Toronto. He is in Toronto today looking over the premises.

Mr Edwards had the idea for some time that in spite of the many moving picture places in Toronto there was room for another good one. The place will be fitted up in the most modern and convenient manner.

NOT CONSIDER APPLICATIONS

A meeting of the Board of License Commissioners is called for to-night to consider the applications for liquor licenses for the year. Mr. H. Lebrun, one of the commissioners, is out of the city, however, and it is understood that the consideration of the applications will be left over until a meeting to be held early next week.

MANY MARINERS ARE ON STRIKE

Buffalo, N.Y., April 15.—Insurance on shipping went into effect at midnight last night and marks the official opening of navigation on the great lakes. The labor troubles are still a long way from a settlement. Four package freight lines are ready to start with union crews as soon as ice conditions permit, and one line claims to have enough non-union men ready to man its fleet.

The Lake Seamen's Union, the Marine Firemen, Oilers and Water Tenders' Association and the Marine Cooks and Stewards' Union have refused to work on boats with non-union engineers. These men, numbering about 15,000, are idle to-day.

WILL TEST THE LEMIEUX ACT

Winnipeg, April 15.—Efforts will be made to have the trouble existing between the Street Railway Co. and its employes settled by arbitration, and the men will apply to the Department of Labor at Ottawa for a board of conciliation and arbitration.

Magnus Sinclair, general officer of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, is here from Toronto to bring about a settlement.

As organized labor, as a whole, is putting the act to test this year, Mr. Sinclair thinks this will be a chance for local union men to see the working of the act.

LADY CARLING DEAD AT LONDON

Special to the Review.

PUGSLEY QUIBBLES TRYING TO STOP READING OF AFFIDAVIT

Dr. Daniel's Attempts to Read Mayes Charges Against Minister of Public Works Are Blocked by Liberals for Two Hours by Appeals on Technical Points---Reflections on Him Offensive.

Ottawa, April 15.—Hon. William Pugsley's seat was the storm centre for two hours yesterday afternoon in the House, and scenes of disorder approaching the Foster-Laurier jangle of ten days ago were witnessed.

The Wednesday 6 o'clock adjournment rule put a temporary stop to the uproar, both sides being no closer together than when Dr. Daniel precipitated the trouble about 4 o'clock, and to-day the hostilities will be resumed.

It was all over the celebrated affidavit made by G. W. Mayes, dredging contractor of St. John, on the eve of the last election. The affidavit that Mayes was induced to withdraw his tender for dredging at 50 cents a cubic yard and substitute another tender at 55 cents, the difference of five cents a yard totalling $39,500, going to George McAvity, a Liberal politician. The affidavit was read by Premier Hazen of New Brunswick at a public meeting on Oct. 13.

Dr. Daniel yesterday attempted to move a resolution calling for an investigation of the McAvity-Mayes transaction, and calling on the Government to take steps to recover the $39,500 paid as rake-off to McAvity, but he was met at the very first with objections and the whole time at the disposal of the House was taken up with heated arguments over points of order.

Before the motion to go into supply, on which Dr. Daniel rose to move for the enquiry, the more recent matter of Mr. Pugsley's connection with the New Brunswick Railway & Coal Co. was referred to.

"I would like to ask the First Minister a question," said Mr. Foster, "in addition to the one I put to him yesterday, and that is, as to whether he has yet received any copies of the report of the New Brunswick commission, and if, when he receives them he will lay one upon the table of the House," to which Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied: "In regard to the latter request of my hon. friend, I have no hesitation in stating that I do not think we are called upon to lay the document upon the table of the House and to have it printed. I may say that I, this morning, sent to the library to get a copy of that report, and I received it about 12 o'clock."

Dr. Daniel began by declaring that the affidavit of Mayes was on all fours with the charges of Major Hodgins, which had been referred to a special committee to investigate. Yet the Government had not moved to appoint a committee to investigate the Mayes' charges.

"Does the hon. gentleman assert that there is an affidavit?" asked Mr. Pugsley.

"Yes," replied Dr. Daniel, "I have the affidavit." (Conservative applause.)

Mr. Pugsley asked that it be sent over to him, and Dr. Daniel proceeded to read the document.

Mr. Pugsley said all he asked was that the affidavit as sworn to and read by Mr. Hazen at the St. John public meeting be read by Dr. Daniel.

Dr. Daniel said he was reading the affidavit with the corrected date and re-sworn to.

Mr. Pugsley promptly objected. "I desire," he said, "to take objection to the hon. gentleman reading any statement reflecting on myself." (Loud Conservative laughter.)

He appealed under the rule invoked by Mr. Foster recently, he added. He was willing that Dr. Daniel should read the affidavit, as read by Mr. Hazen at the St. John meeting, and as published throughout the press, but he objected to the reading of what purported to be an affidavit made months after the St. John meeting.

"If he desires to make a charge," asserted Mr. Pugsley, "he is at liberty to do so, and I shall welcome it, but he must take the responsibility as a member of this House."

Dr. Daniel said he was reading exactly as the affidavit was read by Mr Hazen.

Mr. Crockett reminded the Minister that he (Crockett) had attempted early in the session to read the original Mayes affidavit and Mr. Pugsley had then objected to it.

Mr. Speaker ruled that if Dr. Daniels proposed to conclude with a motion asking that certain matters be referred to a committee, he had no objection.

That was exactly what Dr. Daniel intended, he said, and he sent his resolution to Mr. Speaker who, after reading it, said there was no charge against the Minister.

Mr. Foster began an explanation of the affidavit. Among other things Mayes swore that he met Mr. Pugsley and that the latter "wanted money."

Mr. Pugsley interposed an objection and called for a retraction of the last statement, but Mr. Foster held that he was only quoting the language of the affidavit.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier had taken no part in the discussion up to this point, but he rose to say that the issue was whether the affidavit should be read. While that point was being discussed it was not allowable to read the affidavit or quote from it. If Dr. Daniel would take the responsibility of making a charge, the affidavit would be in order.

Haughton Lennox discussed the point of order. The affidavit about to be read by Dr. Daniel reflected upon the honor of a public man.

"I ask my hon. friend to withdraw that statement," demanded Mr. Pugsley.

Mr. Lennox refused to admit that there was anything to withdraw, and Mr. Speaker read the rule that no member may say an offensive thing of another.

Mr. Crocket asked if the Minister of Public Works admitted that there was a serious charge made against him.

Mr. Pugsley admitted it, but said Dr. Daniel now proposed to read a new affidavit. The statement in the affidavit was false and Mr. Lennox was bound to take his word. If Dr. Daniel proposed to read the original affidavit and place it upon the table he was satisfied.

"That's what I've been trying to do for the last half hour," replied Dr. Daniel, who resumed his reading, but Mr. Speaker interposed that he must not read any offensive words of another member.

Dr. Daniel contended that the words could not be offensive to Mr. Pugsley, since he had rested under them for months and not taken action.

The House wrangled for some minutes on this point till finally Mr. Foster made an appeal to the Prime Minister.

"Are we in a Parliament or a mad house " asked Mr. Foster. "I leave the whole matter to the right hon. gentleman."

Sir Wilfrid said in reply to this query that, as on a previous occasion, it was for him to set the example. They had the rule that no member may speak offensively of another, but there was the exception in the case of a member who makes a charge, which, if he fails to prove, would leave him open to grave censure. He cited several cases where such charges were made. Dr. Daniel should proceed with his speech, remembering the caution of Mr. Speaker.

Hon. Mr. Haggart maintained that it was not competent for any one to make a charge against Mr. Pugsley who was not a member of that House in 1905, and it was "childish, boyish, babyish" for Mr. Pugsley to seek refuge in such a subterfuge.

Six o'clock arrived with the two parties still sparring and wrangling, and under the Wednesday rule Mr. Speaker left the chair.

HIS BETTER HALF WAS AFTER HIM

English Woman on Trail of Hubby Who Has Married Again.

Portland, Maine, April 15.—Mrs. Elizabeth Webb, 57 years old, who arrived Tuesday on the steamship Dominion, told the immigration officers that she was on her way to Toronto in search of a husband who, she says, has married another woman.

She was married twenty years ago and lived with her husband at Pontepool, England. About a year ago, Mrs. Webb says that her husband came to America and the understanding was that she should follow him as soon as he established himself in business. She received many letters from him and some money. A few weeks ago Mrs. Webb got a letter from her daughter, who lives in Toronto, stating that her father had run away with another woman and married her.

Vowing vengeance Mrs. Webb left for Toronto yesterday, telling the officers that she would follow her husband to the end of the world to bring him to justice.

IT MUST HAVE TRAVELLED ON FREIGHT TRAIN

A registered letter addressed to "The Peterborough Review, Peterborough," and posted at Emmetsburg, Iowa, on March 18th, reached the Review office to-day. It was for the "contest department," and contained a sum of money. After the letter got started on its way someone put the letters "N.Y." after Peterborough, on the envelope, and this, no doubt, caused some of the delay. The letter went to Peterborough, New Hampshire, and also paid a friendly call to Buffalo, N.Y. It took it nearly a month to travel from Iowa to Peterborough, Ont.

ATTEMPTED TO END LIFE

Woman Walked Out on Boom and Jumped into River at Campbellford

Campbellford, April 14— The town was startled on Sunday afternoon by an attempted suicide. Mrs Rice, wife a patent medicine agent, who with her husband was boarding at the Queen's Hotel, tried to do away with herself by jumping into the river. It seems that on Saturday, Mrs Rice had accompanied her husband about the country in his efforts to sell medicine and returned to Campbellford under the influence of liquor. On Sunday evidently in a state of despondency she decided to commit suicide and robed in a wrapper went down to the water's edge behind the hotel, walked deliberately for some distance on the boom, and threw herself into the river, Mr Rice knowing her intentions, followed her and as soon as she arose to the top of the water rescued her. It is not known what the immediate cause of the affair was, but certain it is that drink was at the bottom of it all.

Mr. Rice is agent for Rundle's medicines and for some years past has visited Campbellford, and in his drives about the country was generally accompanied by his wife.

QUEBEC FARMER SHOT TO DEATH

Domina Pelletier, of Beauharnois, Found Shot Behind Ear.

Beauharnois, Que., April 15.—Tuesday night Wilfrid Gendron of St. Etienne de Beauharnois, while proceeding about his work, remembered that he had not seen his neighbor, Domina Pelletier, for some little time.

Fearing that Pelletier had been overtaken by some calamity or other—an accident or an illness—he set out to investigate. He arrived at Pelletier's farm, and the missing man was soon found—stretched out dead on his own property, and with a bullet wound behind the left ear.

He was lying at the foot of a barn door, and had evidently been entering the building when shot from behind.

Help was summoned and a search made for clues. About 40 feet away, in the direction from which the shot had evidently come, an empty cartridge was found. It was lying behind the door of a second barn—a door which had been pierced to allow the passage of a rifle barrel.

Pelletier had been dead some time.

TWO GIRLS END LIVES ON SHIPBOARD

Liverpool, April 15.—During the voyage of the Cunard liner Lusitania, which sailed from New York April 7, two young women who had occupied a second-class cabin together committed suicide by shooting. They were Margaret Clarke, 29 years of age, who killed herself the second day out of Brooklyn, and her companion, Annie Miller, 22 years of age, who four days later took her own life.

Neither left any address with the Cunard Line officials, who say that they were apparently not acquainted before sailing, as they booked passage separately and were assigned to the same stateroom merely by accident.

MANY TRUSTEES OPPOSE MILITARY TRAINING SCHEME

Delegates to Educational Convention in Toronto Hold Hot Debate on Resolution Against Compulsory Drill—Many Counties Object to It.

Toronto, April 15.—Interest at the Ontario Educational Association convention yesterday again centered in the stir at the trustees department over the question of military training in the schools. At the morning sitting a resolution by those opposed to compulsory training was proposed by J. I. Morrison, Arthur, seconded by J. S. Laughlin, Parkhill, and saying: "That the Trustees Association approve a provision looking to the introduction of physical training in public schools, but is opposed to compulsory military training in the same, and believes that the matter should be left optional with the trustees of each school section."

President McKnight brought in the discussion at the afternoon meeting with the words, "We will now take up that all-important question raised in Mr. Truman's paper yesterday, which I hope will be discussed in a more calm and reasonable way than yesterday. It should be remembered that military training largely means physical training."

The mover of the resolution said it was an axiom "as our schools so our country." Then if the schools are turned into military camps so will be our country. There had much been heard of the necessity of agricultural education, but the tendency of agricultural training was towards the farm, while military training was away from the farm.

Trustee Henry, Collingwood, could not see why physical training would not suffice. The country from Fort William out to Vancouver was filled with settlers who had fled from Europe to escape the exactions of compulsory military service.

Trustee Little, Dufferin County, said: "Let any young man who wants to take military drill, join the volunteers." He had three sons who drilled in military camps, and he himself had served four years in the militia, but was opposed to military training being forced into the schools.

Mr. Little concluded: "We don't care for Lord Strathcona's millions, our boys have the shooting practice now. They can shoot the fox on the run, and the enemy on the run, too. We want our boys to go to school for practical education, but not for little red caps and guns. We can clothe them ourselves. We are determined in the County of Dufferin not to have it."

A. Werner, secretary, said the department in sentiment was a unit. There is no division in regard to the willingness of every trustee to do his utmost for the defence of the Province of Ontario. The present public school act provided for optional military drill, and no action by the section was necessary.

Mr. Anderson, Welland, declared military drill all right if optional. It gave boys a clean, neat, manly step. England never had coerced her sons, and would never need to.

Rev. Dr. Eby said the promotion of military training was the thin end of the wedge of allowing the War Office to secure authority within the public schools.

Col. Farwell (Whitby) said there was no line, or suggestion of anything compulsory proposed. It was an optional system for teaching the boys of Canada how to do the right thing at the right time in the right way.

The debate was suddenly closed by the six months' hoist, moved by L. K. Murton, Oshawa, seconded by J. Wright, Sarnia, but immediately flared up again in a motion by C. Ramage, Durham, seconded by Rev. J. Bell, Laurel, that Mr. Truman's paper be printed in the report. After a short fervid debate the paper was ordered printed by a vote of 20 for to 2 against.

The public school section elected these officers: James D. Denny, Ottawa, president; Wm. Linton, Galt, vice-president; Chas. E. Fraser, Toronto, secretary; J. T. Curtis, Guelph, treasurer; J. W. Rogers and J. Burnett, auditors.

The continuation section elected these officers: R. H. Cowley, B.A., hon. president; A. C. Berneth, Huntsville, president; J. A. Magee, Hanover, vice-president; T. E. Langford, Shelburne, secretary; W. W. Scott, W. B. Weidenhauser, N. W. Willson, Mrs. J. S. Burchill and Miss M. H. Tupling, councillors.

The mathematical section elected these officers: Hon. president, W. Taylor, B.A.; president, J. D. Dickson; vice-president, Jno. Elliott; secretary-treasurer, T. Kennedy, M.A.; councillors, J. T. Crawford, W. W. Nichol, J. S. Wren, E. T. Eaton and W. C. Spring.

The officers elected in the trustees' section are: Fred W. Wright, St. Thomas, president; Dr. White, Lindsay, vice-president; A. Werner, Elmira, secretary; J. B. Dow, Whitby, and J. S. Laughlin, Parkhill, representatives on the advisory council.

STILL HARPING ON MY DAUGHTER

The Witness of Montreal is an old and reliable journal in every sense. It is not tainted by the new journalism, which, like a recent form of criticism, thinks that cutting loose is the sum of liberty and common sense. Yet it is not, as a rule, reactionary. The one exception is with respect to Free Trade. It will insist that the summum bonum of human existence is to buy in the cheapest and sell in the dearest markets. If this ancient maxim were the true rule of life, then the South Sea Islands ought to be the Fields Elysian to which the Witness would have us go. Labour is as cheap as sea-water there, and the price paid for bits of coloured cotton print would surely proclaim that market as the very dearest in the world, except, perhaps, where the people are still more ignorant and gullible. But, strange to say, this fact does not prove the desirability of being South Sea Islanders. As a consequence, we must restate the case for ourselves. We must lay it down, that the people who conform most nearly to the highest ideal are those who are most progressive in every way, and most commanding in the world's work amongst the world's workers, and in the best sense. However, it is not freedom of trade that these nations strive for, but balance of trade. If trade maintains its balance, then necessarily those who work will win. But if trade, i.e., the instruments, the paraphernalia and the weapons of trade are stolen, or otherwise unscrupulously or adroitly made use or misuse of, then the balance of trade is lost and the conditions of trade and commerce altogether changed. This condition of unstable equilibrium is, we submit, the condition we must all prepare for from day to day, even while crying the maxims and shibboleths of a Free Trade condition of commercial existence that may exist in name, but certainly nothing more. Manifestly if a nation is best protected by the innocence of its rivals it had best leave that innocence severely alone. This has been the attitude shown by Britain in many ways in the past. But her rivals awoke to find that they were naked and unprotected, and became ashamed. Whereupon they clothed and protected themselves so successfully that Great Britain has had to revise her programme and call in her commercial war-cries. But still the Witness harps on Free Trade as did the lover in the play.

NATURE VINDICATED

The faddists have received a setback in France which will probably do them for a week or two. It has reference to the cultivation of the art of design which in this country is understood as freehand drawing. The system hitherto employed of educating the young in this respect has been the geometrical one which excluded the floral or what is known as the curve style of design. The effect of being fed on geometry was to narrow and stupify the minds of the youth to such an extent that they became useless in the great outside world of work and ideas. It seems very odd that the minds of the youth should have been so cramped as stated but Nature has asserted herself and has proven for the hundredth time that she can work at her best only when free to do so. The poor little fads that have been foisted upon a long-suffering childhood in Ontario during a long series of years are gradually meeting their Waterloo also. It is time.

THE NEW CANADA

Winnipeg Manitoba, April 13.—The police court yesterday was crowded as the result of the Easter celebrations among the Galicians. There men with faces scratched and gashed, men with parts of their noses missing, men with pieces chewed out of their ears, men and women with all kinds of bandages.

The battle on Sunday raged all over the foreign settlement. A woman threw a beer keg through a door smashing it from its hinges. Another keg went through a window. A man stole a keg, was seen getting away with it and was hammered over the head with a stick of wood till he became unconscious.

From a point on Mangus avenue there were three fights in sight at one time and the police had no time to make arrests for they could not be spared from the difficult task of keeping the gang from killing each other. The whole affair was bestial in the extreme. The fines yesterday morning ranged from $10 down. There are prisoners awaiting trial on more more serious charges and gangs of foreigners are besieging the stations wanting to lay information against others who beat them during the carousal.

Western Canada a few years ago was an offshoot or branch of the elder part, but now it has become in some districts a branch of Galicia, Bohemia or what not. Of course we do not refer to those portions taken up by Americans who, like ourselves are accustomed to more advanced ways. Canada is paying a frightful price for the mistaken policy of indiscriminate immigraton which like the Government's fatuous development policy, is rapidly landing us on the rocks.

EDITORIAL NOTES

According to the Auditor-General's report for 1908 dredging in the Otonabee river cost $13,995.84.

"It is dangerous to drift, to allow all sorts of agitators to dictate our ideals. The duty of Canadian libraries is to inculcate the sound, old-time, ethical, British ideals. We worship smartness and forgive dishonesty. Any really great literature can only come from a sane pure and God-like people."—William Wilfrid Campbell.

A contributor to the "The Point of View" in the current Scribner's deploring the "monumental style of hats and head dresses" tells of the old days of the French court when the coiffure went by the name of the pouf sentimental. This was a collection of objects symbolic of all that was dearest to the wearer. The wife of a naval officer bore on her head a frigate breasting the waves with all sails set. A mother loaded down her head with five dolls to represent her five children. The Duchess of Lausen wore a superstructure presenting an entire landscape, a stormy sea, a sportsman in his shooting box, a mill with the miller's wife flirting with an abbe while the miller himself in another part of the headdress was seen leading an ass. The director of the royal opera ruled against the admission of women wearing extravagantly large coiffures.

Might Have Been Killed.

Galt, April 15.—James Mathews had a miraculous escape from death when a C.P.R. engine running light crashed into the baggage wagon he was driving, killing the horses and demolishing the wagon. Mathews was thrown some distance clear of the track, but sustained only injuries to his head and face.

Stoessel to Be Pardoned.

OF INTEREST

An Interesting History

1892—The hospital vessel Albert sailed from England with Dr Grenfell in charge as the only Mission doctor. He spent three months on the coast, holding services and treating nine hundred sick folk.

1893—Battle Harbor Hospital was presented by friends in St John's Newfoundland and opened during the summer under a qualified nurse and doctor. The launch Princess May was added to enable the ship to do more work.

1894—Indian Harbor Hospital was opened for the summer and for the first time Battle Harbor Hospital was ekpt open in winter. Friends in Canada began to help the Mission.

1895—The sailing hospital was replaced by the steamer Sir Donald, the gift of Sir Donald A Smith who has lived many years in Labrador. Nineteen hundred sick folk received treatment. Dr. Roddick, of Montreal, presented the sailing boat Urelia McKinnon to the Mission.

1896—A small cooperative store was started at Red Bay, in the Straits of Belle Isle, to help the settlers to escape the "truck system" of trade and the consequent loss of independence and thrift. This has since spread to a series of eight with very beneficial results to the very poorest. The Sir Donald was carried out from her harbor by the winter ice and found by the seal hunters far at sea still frozen in. She had to be sold.

1897—The steam launch Julia Sheridan, given by a Toronto lady, replaced the Sir Donald. A large mission hall was attached to Indian Harbor Hospital for the use of the fishermen. 2000 patients were treated.

1899—Largely through the munificence of the High Commissioner, the steel steam hospital Strathcona was built at Dartmouth, England, and fitted with every available modern appliance. At the request of the settlers, a doctor wintered in North Newfoundland.

1900—The Strathcona steamed out to Labrador. The settlers on the Newfoundland shore of the Straits of Belle Isle commenced a hospital at St Anthony, and the Mission decided to adopt that place as a third station.

1901—The Newfoundland Government granted $1500 to stimulate the erection of St Anthony hospital. A small co-operative lumber mill was started to help the settlers of the poorest district to get remunerative work in the winter, when they often faced semi-starvation. The schooner Cooperator was purchased and rebuilt by the people to assist the cooperative store efforts.

1029—A new wing was added to Battle Harbor Hospital, with a fine convalescent room and a new operating room. Indian Harbor Hospital was also considerably enlarged. Two thousand seven hundred and seventy-four patients received treatment.—110 of these being in-patients in the little hospitals. The launch Julia Sheridan with one of the medical officers in charge was chartered by the government to suppress an outbreak of smallpox among the people.

1903—Some new outbuildings were added to the Indian Harbor Hospital and a mortuary and store were built at Battle Harbor Hospital. The third and fourth cooperative stores were started at West St Modiste and at Flowers Cove to encourage cash dealing and thrift. The Princess May went out of commission and was sold.

1904—A new house for the doctor was built at Battle Harbor. The steam launch Julia Sheridan had to be sold. She was replaced by a 10 HP ekrosene launch called by the same name. An orphanage was built at St Anthony to accommodate fifteen children. A building was also added for teaching loom work and general carpentering and lathe work.

1905—A doctor was appointed at the request of the people on the Canadian Labrador, with headquarters at Harrington, near Cape Whittle, on the north side of the Gulf of St Lawrence. The first schooners were built at the lumber mill, which is now flourishing and helping to maintain one hundred odd families. Two consulting surgeons from Boston universities visited us, during the summer to help the work. Through the generosity of Mr. Andrew Carnegie between thirty and forty small portable libraries were distributed along the coast, containing from 50 to 100 books in each.

1906—Through the help of friends in Montreal and Toronto a new hospital and doctor's house were built at Harrington, and a second ekrosene launch, called the Northern Messenger, was given for the work there. New dog sledges and teams were also given by the Montreal Weekly Witness. Some new buildings were erected at St Anthony, including some small farm outbuildings, and some land was taken up from the Newfoundland Government with a view to trying to introduce cattle.

1906-1907—In connection with the cooperative store at Flowers Cove an industry of making seal skin boots has sprung up and 1500 pairs of boots were made and exported the summer. Around these small industries it is possible to aggregate women and children in the winter for the purpose of better education. A new wharf, stores for clothing and coal, and a large mission room are being added to Battle Harbor. Seven volunteers have joined the staff:—the lady in charge of the orphanage, an electrical engineer in charge of the general mechanical work, a teacher for night school and library work. The fourth hospital was kept open all last summer by a volunteer doctor from Harvard University and volunteer nurses from England. A teacher of arts and crafts will be in charge of the industrial work at St Anthony this year. The steam launch Daryl was given by the Inside Reform Union of New York City.

1907-08—The experiment of placing a trained nurse in fishing settlements farthest from the little hospitals has taken definite form in the building of a house at Forteau on the southern coast of Labrador in which a nurse is permanently situated. The people of the place give the labour freely and the money for the material was the gift of a veteran of the Civil War, who, after being wounded at Gettysburg journeyed on a fishing schooner to Labrador in quest of health, and in gratitude for great kindness shown him, wished to make some return to the people of the coast. A second station is to be opened at Flower Cove at which place the people have guaranteed $200 a year being a poll tax of $1 per annum on every family over that long district.

No less than four more small co-operative stores have sprung into existence showing the belief of the people in the advantages they confer in helping to give independence and a sufficient living.

An electric light plant has been installed at St. Anthony, largely through the kindness of the Trustees of Pratt Institute of Brooklyn. Not only has the light been introduced into all of the Mission buildings but large lights have been placed at the wharf. Pratt Institute also sent up one of their graduates to install the plant. Already it has proved of inestimable value.

Through the generosity of the same institution two Labrador students have commenced the study of engineering that they may on their return afford their invaluable aid to communal life on the coast.

His Excellency, the Governor of Newfoundland Sir William MacGregor a highly skilled geodetic surveyor, has spent part of the summer with Dr. Grenfell on the Strathcona, improving the new chart of all the northern Labrador coast. This it is hoped, will be issued shortly because it is so badly needed by the many fishing craft that visit those waters.

A friend from Washington Mrs. H. B. Buckingham presented the Mission with a new launch, the Pomiuk, which was safely brought down from Lynn to Labrador by a crew of volunteer students from Yale.

The Orphanage is now overfull with twenty children some of whom are already learning trades. It will shortly be doubled in size owing to the generosity of a voluntary worker of Williams College who was much impressed on his visit by the need of more room.

The Industrial Work has made considerable progress and some $200 worth of the products have been sold and the money returned to the work to further develop it. There are several looms at wor kregularly and the new furnace for baking pottery is in working order. The expert from Providence who has started us at work has prolonged her visit and already speaks of joining the force again next summer.

The reindeer still under the charge of the same volunteer worker who has had charge of them from the beginning have done magnificently. 50 were sold to help defray the expense of bringing them over leaving 250 of the original herd. These after only nine months, have become 400 splendid animals deducting all losses. The fawns are already as large as their mothers and the condition of the animals is simply not to be compared with the miserable state of the herd when they landed in January after their long voyage. The Lapps who brought them over are still with us and the Newfoundland Government has contributed two apprentices from Labrador to learn the business.

The milk the animals give has proved to be very rich and the cheeses will be very useful for winter. The problem as to their future is practically solved but it will be some time before the milk and butter distribution will be possible at distances and before it will be wise to kill the animals for their valuable meat and hides. Next year the experiment will be made of trapping the wild cariboo and uniting them with the herd.

Volunteer teachers did excellent work this year at some of the small schools and a volunteer from the experimental farm at St. Anne's did splendid work showing us that we can grow many vegetables we have sore need of. Next year we shall warmly welcome a number of volunteers to help us develop more land tracts and to show the people the possibilities of the soil.

Rarely has an out of the way land been brought to such attention in the world beyond it, as Labrador through its benefactor and minister, Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell. In the highest and best sense of the word an adventurer, he chose one of the bleak and barren spots on earth as the field of his life work. With warm sympathy for those who need help, a practical inventive mind, a strong and manly Christian faith, a shrewd sense of humor, a cheerful optimism, and an undaunted courage, he has made the coast of Labrador his own and it has claimed and appropriated him. And he is able somehow to make Labrador interesting, with its rocky ice-bound and fog-bound shores and its scanty population of poor fisher folks, whose principal stock in trade seems to be their misfortunes. The latest disaster, which swept the whole coast, was July 20th, when a fierce gale piled up the wreckage of vessels in every harbor, leaving their homeless occupants to shelter themselves under tents made of spare sails on the shore. Dr. Grenfell describes it in an interesting letter to the Boston Transcript, and evidently without intention on his part he appears as the benefactor of the stricken people. With his boat, the Strathcona, he pulls off the rocks such of the wrecked vessels as can be saved, takes on board about forty men and women who have lost everything, and is so glad that no lives have been lost that he gets more joy than heartache or abckache out of the storm, the worst in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. Only a few months ago he barely escaped drowning on an ice flow after a night of suffering to which almost any man would have succumbed unless he possessed those rare gifts, a perfectly healthy body, a perfectly pure conscience and a great love of life for the sake of the good that life can do. The story of his rescue as he simply told it has been reprinted in scores of magazines and newspapers. The public is constantly expecting news about Labrador and is not disappointed. Dr. Grenfell is its ministering spirit, and a century hence he will be remembered as its patron saint.

DOES BIT IN MOUTH HINDER A HORSE WHEN IT IS EATING

Can a horse eat his food properly with a bit in its mouth?

Ask the Fays.

This is the question that the Fire, Water and Light Committee has to settle and to decide it information is being sought from other cities.

The horses at the fire hall have the bits in the mouths all the time, and Ald. Morgan says it is not right; also unnecessary.

Ald. Buller says a horse can eat just as well with the bit in the mouth as with it out; in fact, he thinks it is more good than harm. The bit keeps the horse from eating too fast and better digestion follows;—

The matter came up at the meeting of the committee last night. Ald. Morgan wanted to have the bits taken out of the horses' mouths.

"It don't hurt them at all" said Ald. Buller.

"That's not so" said the Ashburnham alderman, "and I'll leave the question to any veterinary surgeon in town."

"They might not know anything about it" said Ald. Buller.

Ald. Hicks said he would prefer seeing the bits out of the horses' mouths if it could be done without hindering the brigade in turning out.

Ald. Turner suggested that the clerk write to the fire departments in several other cities and find out what was the rule elsewhere.

This will be done.

THE ELECTION OF POPE PIUS X FROM THE CATHOLIC REGISTER

From "The Catholic Register."

'Elsewhere will be found the full text of our Holy Father's letter demolishing forever the veto myth. Henceforward civil powers will not attempt to interfere in Papal elections. People would have thought it an absurd proposition anyway, but when one remembers that Cardinal Rampolla may have lost the tiarra because Cardinal Puzyna arose in his place in the conclave as the election proceeded and delivered the Emperor Francis Joseph's veto to the elevation of the late Secretary of State of Leo XIII., it will be seen that Pius X. is not so very visionary after all. The present Pope never wanted the office. He consequently feels agrieved at the untoward circumstance which he considers forced it upon him. But, after all, it was nothing else than the Holy Ghost which gave us at this particular time to rule the Church so wisely the great, paternal, lovable Pope Pius X.

Relative to that important election however these facts will be recalled with general interest. On the first scrutiny but two names came before the conclave. These two names were Cardinal Rampolla, who polled twenty-four votes, and Cardinal Gotti, who polled seventeen.

This scrutiny was held on the morning of Saturday, Aug. 1st. In the evening of the same day, the Cardinals again adjourned to the chapel and the second vote was taken. Three names were bulletined with two figures after them. The count began as follows;—Cardinal Rampolla, 29; Cardinal Gotti, 16; Cardinal Sarto, 10.

The third scrutiny took place on Sunday morning Aug. 2nd. When the Cardinals had assembled in the Sistine Chapel preparatory to casting their votes, Cardinal Puzyna arose and declared it to be the wish of Francis Joseph, the Emperor of Austria, that Cardinal Rampolla should not be elected to the Roman Pontificate.

The Austrian Cardinal labored under visible excitement when he delivered the imperial message. He was not distinctly understood at first. When the full force of his words was realized Cardinal Rampolla arose and entered strong and telling protest. He was not worthy of the Supreme Pontificate. Indeed nothing more agreeable and nothing more honorable could happen to him than this imperial interdict. Here are his words: "Nihil jucundius nihil honorabilius accedre." He was followed by Cardinals Oreglia and Perraud, both of whom protested with splendid emphasis against the interference of Francis Joseph.

The third scrutiny was then made. Cardinal Rampolla's friends remained unshaken. His Eminence the Prefect of the Propaganda dropped into the single figure row. The result of the vote began as follows;—Cardinal Rampolla, 29; Cardinal Sarto, 21. When the Sacred College again convened in the Sistine Chapel, their convictions had undergone no apparent change. Thirty votes were cast for Cardinal Rampolla; twenty-four for Cardinal Sarto.

Next day however, the first scrutiny indicated that the imperial veto was having a moral effect with the electors. On collecting the votes the name of Cardinal Sarto appeared first with twenty-seven votes; that of Cardinal Rampolla second with twenty-four.

When it became apparent to the Patriarch of Venice that the tiara might be voted to him he arose and with voice trembling with emotion, besought his fellow conclavists that his name might be forgotten—ut mei nominis obliviscamini. No one doubted that His Eminence's words came from the depths of his terrified heart. Some thought that his decision was final. At the sixth scrutiny thirty-five votes were registered after Cardinal Sarto's name.

Meanwhile it was brought home to the Patriarch of Venice and apparently to the majority of the members of the Sacred College that it was his duty to submit the burden of the office laid down by Leo XIII. He consented reluctantly and after long protestations of uncertainty and unworthiness to bow to the will of Heaven. The seventh and last scrutiny was made on the morning of Tuesday August 4. The result was as follows: Cardinal Sarto, 50 votes; Cardinal Rampolla, 10; Cardinal Gotti, 2. As two-thirds of the vote were necessary and sufficient for election, the count revealed the fact that the Patriarch of Venice was the new Pope.—The Catholic Register.

A FLOWER LEGEND.

How the Myosotis Came to Be Called Forgetmenot.

Dr. A. F. Thomson communicated to Mills' "History of Chivalry" the following romantic account of the origin of the popular name, forgetmenot, of the favorite little flower myosotis: "Two lovers were loitering on the margin of a lake on a fine summer's evening when the maiden espied some of the flowers of myosotis growing on the water close to the bank of an island at some distance from the shore. She expressed a desire to possess them, when the knight, in the true spirit of chivalry, plunged into the water and, swimming to the spot, cropped the wished for plant, but his strength was unable to fulfill the object of his achievement, and, feeling that he could not regain the shore, although very near it, he threw the flowers upon the bank, and, casting a last affectionate look upon his ladylove, he cried 'Forget me not!' and was buried in the waters. As the world insists upon a reason, this story is as good as another, but the worthy knight must have been sadly out of his element not to have been able to return from a bank on which his mistress could discern so minute a blossom, unless, indeed, we suppose him to have been clad in armor, which was a habiliment ill adapted for a lover by land or water."

THE RHINOCEROS.

This Malicious Brute Is the Assassin of the Jungle.

If the genius of hell used up all his mental energy making a devil for the animal kingdom, he could not have created a more uncertain, malicious and ugly brute than the rhinoceros. This animal has buried more hunters than all other big game combined. It seems to be the hired assassin of the jungle.

Its success as a homicide is not due to the fact that it seeks its victim, but because its victim falls over it. If the rhino knows that there is an enemy about, it will try to get away without being seen. If, on the other hand, it thinks that by keeping still it will be passed unnoticed, it stays as silent and motionless as Gibraltar, its little hog eyes watching the direction of the noise and its nose sniffing the air.

Should an enemy show up suddenly in the jungle the rhino charges like a flash, nose down and horns leveled like swords for the thrust, its huge bulk crushing through the brush like an express train. It is always a fight to the death, for a rhinoceros, once in a fight, wins or dies, and it mostly wins if it is not confronted with an express rifle in the hands of a cool, good shot.—Hampton's Magazine.

The Old Time Album.

"The terrors of the autograph album" must have been more general in the middle of the last century than they are now. The volume had embossed pages of various colors and showed alternate literature and art—original verses and drawings of ruins and bridges heightened with white chalk. Girls presented it for contributions so universally that Charles Dickens was on one occasion much astonished to find none forthcoming. He had actually brought with him some verses addressed to a beautiful maiden, on whose parents he was calling, and he carried them away again. Sending them to her by post, he wrote, "I had meant to put these lines into your album, but you, who do nothing like anybody else, did not produce one."—London Standard.

In Morocco.

In Morocco the prevailing tone is grayish white, men's clothes and houses, towns, bushes, tall umbelliferae, nodding like ghosts in autumn—all are white; white sands upon the shore and in the Sahara and over all a white and saddening light, as if the sun was tired of shining down forever on the unchanging life. In no part of Morocco I have visited does the phrase "gorgeous east" have the least meaning, and this is always noted by the wandering easterners, who find the country dull and lacking in color compared with Asia, or, as the Arabs call it, "Blad Es Schark."—"A Journey to Morocco."

Russian Vengeance.

The Russian revolutionaries have absolutely no mercy on those who betray them. It is well known that in the year 1903 a traitor caught at Odessa was bricked up alive in a cellar.

Regnier, a French spy in the pay of the Russian police, for a long time eluded the vengeance of the revolutionaries. But they caught him at last, and that just at the moment when he fancied himself safe. His body was found in his cabin on a ship which reached Antwerp. He had been suffocated by fumes of sulphureted hydrogen. How this was done was never discovered.

The Considerate Clock.

"One kiss!" pleaded a departing lover.

"Nonsense!" exclaimed his fiancee in a teasing mood. "Some one might see us."

"Who?"

"Why, the clock; it has a face."

"Yes, but it keeps its hands in front of it!"

When He Missed It.

The baldheaded man was asked if he missed his hair much.

"Only when some fool question makes me so mad I want to pull it," he replied pleasantly.

The rain falls on the just and unjust, but the latter nearly always have the former's umbrellas.—Town Topics.

FIRE, WATER AND LIGHT COMMITTEE HELD MEETING

The Fire Water and Light Committee had a busy session last night, many matters that had been on the fyle for months coming in for consideration in order to get the slate cleared.

Ald. Buller chairman, Mayor Rush, Ald. Morgan, Ald. Hicks and Ald. Turner were present.

In view of the fact that the appropriation of the committee has been cut down from $21,600 to $11,000 it was decided to have the chairman and chief of the brigade go over the list of requirements for the fire hall for the year and pare it down to $11,000 to keep well within the appropriation.

"It would be nice to have some money to offer the other committees at the end of the year," said one of the aldermen.

Ald. Turner moved, seconded by Ald. Hicks that the city clerk be instructed to secure information as to an accident and insurance policy to cover the firemen and to find out what is done in other cities in this connection.

This was carried.

A bill from a local physician for attending ex-deputy chief Taylor who was injured at the fire hall was left over for the present.

A request from a number of ratepayers for a change from an arc light to incandescent lights on Gilmour street was left over until the committee makes an inspection of the conditions on the street. Twelve incandescent lights are wanted in place of one arc light.

The committee decided to have Mr. Robert Hull look after the purchasing of two horses for the fire department. This was moved by Ald. Turner and seconded by Ald. Hicks.

A letter was received from Fire Chief Howard, stating that about $25 damage had been done at the sidewalk by a grass fire on Concession street near Nicholls Oval, on Monday.

On motion the order for the arc light at Jackson park for which the township of Smith is to pay one-third was cancelled and the light will not be put up this year.

Ald Hicks suggested that the committee ask the council to allow the committee to retain the $500 saved by the reduction in the cost of hydrants. A motion to this effect was passed.

DOURO MAN THINKS THERE IS LOTS OF GAS IN TOWNSHIP

In conversation with the Review today Mr. David Forsythe, of Douro, stated that he had been offered $8,000 by a Montreal enterprise for the right of way on his farm for the purpose of making use of the natural gas there. Some time ago Mr. Forsythe was drilling for a well when he discovered gas at a depth of 40 feet. The drilling was continued to a depth of 83 feet and gas was found in large quantities.

Mr. Forsythe thinks there is a considerable quantity of gas in the section of Douro in which his farm is located.

DRILLING MACHINERY IS DELAYED

Some delay has been caused in starting to drill for gas west of the city owing to the drilling machinery being held back on account of "strikes" being made in the district near Dunnville where boring is going on at the present time. Mr Leary has been notified, however, that the machinery will be here in a few days and that drilling will commence at once.

BANQUET WILL BE HELD TO-NIGHT

All those interested are reminded of the senior church league banquet to be held this evening at Jacob's restaurant when the St Andrew's church hockey team will be presented with the Burnham Cup. Everything is necessary to make the affair successful has been well looked after by the committee who have had the arrangements in hand.

The All Saints' hockey team who won the junior league will be present at the banquet as will also a number of the clergymen of the city and a very enjoyable evening is looked for.

WAS HONORED BY THE LEAGUE

At the regular meeting of the Epworth League of Mark street Methodist church this week, Mr. M. W. Matchett, who is leaving town, was presented with a silk parasol with gold handle embellished with mother of pearl and an address. Rev. Mr. Coon occupied the chair and the meeting which was of a social nature was largely attended. Mrs. Matchett made a suitable reply and Mr. Matchett also spoke a few words as to his pleasant relations with the league. Miss Alice Wand made the presentation, while Miss Bessie Crowe read the following address;

To Mrs M. W. Matchett,

Dear Sister and Friend,

In this busy world and interesting age, the occupations and engagements of life seem to demand frequent removals of families to new scenes and associations, and your many friends in Peterborough, and especially those in Mark street church among whom you have so long labored for your Master, Christ, have learned with exceeding regret that you and your family have become involved in those demands and are about to leave for another home.

For a number of years your devotion and ability have been exercised ungrudgingly in connection with our Sunday school, our League and choir, whose interests have been very dear to you, and to sustain which you have toiled even beyond your strength.

In view of your early removal and because of the value you have been to the church in general and to the work among the young people in particular. We, the members of the Epworth League and choir, wish to unite in their expression of our appreciation of your devoted service and also of our esteem of your worthy christian character.

From our point of view your departure can only be thought of with regret. In the interests of your home and family we shall hope and pray that your removal may involve larger measures of blessing, as well as larger opportunities of usefulness than ever here enjoyed. It is in our hearts to present you with a small memento of this occasion, an earnest appreciation of our real affection, a pledge that you will often be in our thoughts. We therefore beg you to accept this gift, and as we pass the token to you we do so hoping that it will ever mean much more than its intrinsic value; and our hope will be too, that you cherish the kindest recollection of its donors.

Signed on behalf of the Mark street choir and Epworth League.

PLACE "D" RAILS AND SEMAPHORES AT CROSSING

Officials of the Grand Trunk Railway were in the city this morning and held a consultation with Mr. J. H. Larmouth, of the Street Railway, on the proposed new semaphores and "D" rails, which will be installed at the railway crossing on Charlotte street. A semaphore will be placed on each side of the street car track, at a position where they may be seen by the conductors on the cars. The "D" rails will be put on each side of the railway on the street car track, and both semaphores and "D" rails will be operated by the gateman in charge. This new arrangement will simplify matters for both passenger trains and street cars, and there will be less danger of accidents. The same idea is in operation at the Lock bridge and has given every satisfaction. The work is to be completed about the first of June, and work will be started in the near future. The officials of the G.T.R. who were present this morning were: W. R. Tiffin, superintendent of the northern division; Trainmaster Irwin, H. W. McCall, C. E.; and F. Sandy.

PIANO RECITAL THIS EVENING

Miss McCaw will give a piano recital at the Conservatory of Music this evening. She will be assisted by Miss Choate, violiniste, and Miss Frances Manning, soprano.

WEDDING BELLS

COX—STERLING

Miss Amy Gertrude Sterling, eldest daughter of Mr. Walter Sterling, chief City Auditor, was married at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon to Hon. George A. Cox, president of the Canada Life Assurance Company. The wedding was solemnized at the residence of the bride's father, 266 Carlton street, and owing to the recent death of the bride's mother, only the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom were present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George Jackson, pastor of Sherbourne street Methodist church, assisted by Rev. Professor F. H. Wallace, of Victoria University. The bride, who was given away by her father, Mr. Walter Sterling, was unattended. Her wedding dress was a cream broadcloth, Princess costume and coat, handsomely braided in the same shade, with yoke and sleeves of silk net embroidered with coin spots, and hat and feathers to match. Her travelling dress being a sapphire, blue Rajah costume and coat, with yoke and sleeves of white net embroidered with blue soutache braid, with hat en suit. The Hon. George and Mrs. Cox left for New York by the 5.20 train, returning to Ottawa in ten days. On the 22nd of May they sail for England in the Baltic, and return to their residence in Sherbourne street by the first of July. Mrs. Edward Cox, who was present at the wedding, wore a blue cloth Directoire costume and large hat of white Irish lace and feathers. Mrs. Davis was in a brown gown and hat, and Mrs. H. C. Cox wore a taupe costume and hat to match.—Mail and Empire.

TOOK SIX—GOT WELL.

Mrs. R. C. Small, of Ottawa, certainly ought to know a lot about Rheumatism. Goodness knows, she suffered long enough. For years, she was almost a cripple and at times, the pain was so severe that she was compelled to lie helpless in bed.

"About a year ago," writes Mrs. Small, "I saw Fruit-a-tives advertised and decided to try them for my Rheumatism. After I had taken two boxes, I was much better. I took six boxes in all — have had no pain for over six months—and feel that I am completely cured. I have gained over ten pounds in weight and am strong and well."

And yet there are some people suffering with Rheumatism, who have not given "Fruit-a-tives" a fair trial. Perhaps they don't want to get well.

"Fruit-a-tives" are a positive cure for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuralgia and all troubles arising from impure blood.

NOT CONSIDER APPLICATIONS

It is understood that the management of the Peterborough Protestant Home are contemplating the disposing of the building now used as a home and securing a larger and more modern one. The present home is not large enough to provide proper accommodation for the number of persons that have to be cared for and as a result it is likely that a new building will be secured.

$45,000 NEEDED TO COMPLETE THE SEAMEN'S INSTITUTE

The object of Dr. Grenfell's lecture last night was to raise money for Sailors and Seamen's Institute at St. Johns N.B. The worthy object of this place. which is now being constructed. is to afford a place for the sailors to go when they land and one from which the temptations of the saloon and other degenerating resorts is removed.

At last night's lecture there was a fairly large attendance. the receipts amounting to nearly $140. which is however, a very small sum in proportion to the expenditure involved in the construction of the building. The total expense will be $100,000, and $55,000 of this amount has been collected. It is necessary to raise the other $45,000, and Peterborough people desirous of contributing may leave their contributions with Mr. D. Hughes Charles at the Bank of Commerce and he will forward them to Dr. Grenfell.

THE ICE IS NOT OUT OF ALL THE BACK LAKES YET

All the locks along the Trent Can-system are ready to be operated now with the exception of the lift lock. which will be ready for the opening of navigation about the first of May. There is an impression that the opening of navigation along the entire system takes place today but it was given out at the Superintendent's office that the ice is not all out of some of the back lakes.

BUILDING USED AS PLACE OF WORSHIP IN EARLY DAYS OF CITY BEING TORN DOWN

Mr. J. C. Shook is building a large and handsome residence on the north side of McDonnel street adjoining the residence of Mr. R. H. Leary. To make room for this new building men are engaged in tearing down one of Peterborough's old landmarks which has an interesting history. The front part of the brown house which until recently has been standing in the background. was in very early days a Methodist church. When the congregation outgrew this building a new edifice. which is now the double house opposite the George street church. was built. Shortly afterwards an addition 30 feet in depth was added to this building, and afterwards when the Methodists were building the present church they sold the old church and property in lots. The thirty feet that was added was moved around to face McDonnel street and is the double house now occupied by Col. Miller as a residence. The large Sunday school was torn down, but an upper story was built to the infant class room and it is being torn now. The library was a district house situated at the rear of the lot. Returning to the original church. this building was converted into a parsonage and was placed opposite the land where Mrs. O'Sullivan's residence is located. and the building was used as such until the sale of the church property in 1873. Prior to this time Mrs. O'Sullivan's house was built. and to make way for it the old parsonage was sold to Mr. Wm. Toole a former mayor of Peterborough. Mr. Toole moved the building around to the lot upon which Mr. Shook is now building his residence.

An examination of the old building shows evidence of the conversion of the church to a residence, and has many remarkable features about it. It was built after the old fashion heavy frame with sides consisting of lath and plaster on the inside and the same on the outside with a layer of sheeting. Anyone sufficiently interested to have a look at this old structure must naturally wonder why more timber, which was then so cheap, was not used, but still what the houses then lacked in lumber they made up in heaviness of frame.

And now the building is being done away with. Who can tell what sacrifices were made, what joys and disappointments were shared by those who were instrumental in its being built in the first place. The now large and commodious Methodist church stands as it were, a monument to those who have as to years gone by passed from this earth.

MANY CITIZENS HEARD DR. GRENFELL AT OPERA HOUSE

The noblest friend of the Labrador fishermen, Dr. Wilfred F. Grenfell, needs no lengthy newspaper introduction to the people of Peterborough. His work has been before the public so much that his name stands for all that is uplifting in connection with the Christian and material progress of the people to whom he has devoted the last twenty years of his life.

Dr. Grenfell's Deep Sea Mission is one of the best known missions in North America.

The proceeds of the lecture will go towards the expense in connection with the institute for fishermen and sailors being erected in St. Johns, N.B.

Mr. J. H. Burnham was chairman for the evening and made a few introductory remarks.

Dr. Grenfell said the work that he was engaged in was known more or less in Peterborough because he had had the opportunity of speaking in Peterborough two or three years ago. The pictures he would show were not shown for their value as pictures, because they were amateur photographs, but because of the scenes they represented. The speaker told of the great value of faith in Jesus Christ, which he said was the greatest gift one man could give to another.

The upbringing perhaps of a medical man made him perhaps anxious to see the result of his work. Twenty years ago he went to the deep sea to work among the fishermen and he knew of no jollier, happier and physically strong and better set of men generally than the fishermen. Happiness dwells in homes where contentment is rather than in homes where the people want a little more or to be thought a little more of. The dangers of life were not from the hardships, storms and the simple diet, but but from the very antithesis of that. The fishermen were strong, healthy and independent people. The speaker was an optimist in almost everything and believed in the future of Labrador, the part of Canada inhabited by the fishermen among whom he was working. Hardly any of the parts of North America yielded anything very tempting at first and it is only in recent years that Arizona, New Mexico and other territory in that section of the country became of any value and it is now selling there at $1,000 an acre.

Dr. Grenfell spoke of the vegetation and fruit growth in Labrador and thought there was good prospects for the development of that cold country. He is naturally familiar with conditions there and spoke with authority on the various conditions of Canada's snowy peninsular.

He also told of animal life in Labrador, telling of the great number of caribou there. These could be used like beef for table purposes and could be domesticated. The caribou was an animal that needed no food or housing summer or winter, except what nature provided.

The scenic attractions of Labrador were certainly unique in North America.

The speaker had given the information, he said, because he was going to lecture in mission work in the country he had described. In Labrador he had had to do without many of the conveniences, but found that they weren't really so hard to dispense with after all. But in the land where he was the services rendered were needed and appreciated.

Dr. Grenfell explained that he had been doing the work of the Lord and he had to go wherever the service of the Master called him. He had received discouragement when he wanted to go to Labrador. After twenty years of work in Labrador he was only beginning to feel the real joy of it. Quite a number of his colleagues in the mission work were performing their duties for nothing. They belonged to different sects and creeds and it made very little difference what the special beliefs were as long as they all were laboring for the same end.

Dr. Grenfell's remarks were punctuated with several humorous sallies and the audience frequently laughed heartily at his witty statements.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE.

The lecture proper was then proceeded with. The first slide shown was a map of North America. Reference was made to the inhabitants of Labrador and judging from Dr. Grenfell's description of them there was indeed a cosmopolitan population to deal with.

The use of intoxicating liquors among the fishermen was a source of great ruination among them. When the lecturer went to Labrador twenty years ago there were many saloons, but they had driven them completely out of the country from one end of it to the other. (Applause.) Any man today who wants to do what Christ would do, he would take a strong stand against the use of intoxicating liquors.

There was excellent fishing in Labrador and several views in connection with the work of the fishermen were thrown on the curtain. The speaker dwelt for some time on the different phases and conditions of the fisherman's occupation. The more the doctor dwelt among the men the more he believed them and loved because of their unselfish dispositions. The men were a very fine set of men in regarding to keeping Sunday and kept the Sabbath strictly.—Applause. The fishermen do not engage in their occupation on Sunday.

What was needed was better markets and higher prices for their fish. But life without difficulties was not worth living.

The fishermen were of a philosophical disposition.

"Last year," said Dr Grenfell, "we lost forty-three vessels."

A picture of a fisherman who had lost his ship and entire equipment was shown, and bore out the statement that the fishermen took their losses in a philosophical manner. In spite of his great losses the man appeared perfectly contented and Dr Grenfell said he was very grateful that his life and that of his crew had not been lost in the storm.

Some realistic slides showed the great natural beauty of the ice-bound scenery of Labrador with its background of sea and sky.

The divers duties of a missionary were told of and the teacher of the gospel has a great many different duties to attend to. Amid laughter the speaker said he used to picture a missionary as an individual with a hymn book talking to a lot of crocodiles on a beach but he had found out he had to be an entirely different man.

The amount of crime is a minimum and the court is an informal sort of court, held in the open air. The services were also held in the open air generally as sheltered places of worship were very rare.

Dr. Grenfell commended the nurses and students for the excellent work they were doing in the hospitals of Labrador. Those in charge at the hospitals were very much addicted to the open air treatment and all the patients were given as much open air treatment as possible. A number of illustrations of the hospital proved that excellent work was being done in these well equipped institutions. A large number of patients were admitted to the hospitals and at one hospital last year every boat brought from twenty-five to thirty patients. There were only fifteen beds in the hospital so tents had to be built as means of extra accommodation.

Interesting pictures of the Esquimaux and Indians and the work among them showed the great range of the missionary labors and also illustrated the many difficulties of the missionary in the frost regions of Canada. The little orphans of the country were well looked after.

The schooners and boats of the country, the co-operative stores, the dairying, the growing of vegetables, the caribou, the reindeer, brought from Lapland, the Lap families of Labrador and the picturesque aurora borealis were dealt with in the order named and explanatory illustrations in connection with all the above subjects were shown on the sheet.

The long Labrador winter and the work of the dog teams formed a very interesting phase of the discourse. Labrador is not without its games and pastimes and has a tried good feeling and a friendly rivalry among the competitors.

The dog teams rendered invaluable service in the transportation work and have a keen instinct for direction. And the best of the steeds was they did not need a stable. Long and hazardous trips were made with the dog teams.

The man who has done so much for the deep sea fishermen told of the narrow escape he had had from being drowned while marooned on a large floating piece of ice which was gradually giving away. He was at length sighted and saved after he had given up all hope.

This concluded the lecture and the audience by prolonged applause showed its hearty appreciation of the speaker's eloquent and instructive discourse. Sheriff Hall, at the request of the chairman bespoke the gratitude and appreciation of the audience for Dr Grenfell's magnificent address.

New Striped Linen Wash Goods
The Vogue for 1909.

Linen, this season has a strong tendency to become the most popular fabric for two and three piece Suits, also for Empire and Princess Dresses but in most cases the less elaborately trimmed style is more suitable where the striped linen is used as the material.

The most popular yet moderately priced, is the plain weave in white ground with half inch stripes, in colors showing equal color and white ground, shades include pink, wood brown and pale blue. ¶ Another at the same price is the colored ground linen with clustered hair line stripes of white. This is very new and is much in vogue in the American cities, The shades include Hamburg blue, pink and green in plain woven fabric.

SMITH MAN MET WITH VERY PAINFUL ACCIDENT LAST NIGHT

Mr. Robert Haddie, of Smith, had a very nasty accident befall him last night when he was thrown out of his buggy while turning at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets. The horse turned very suddenly throwing Mr. Haddie out on to the road.

The side of his face was cut badly and the skin was all taken off the back of his left hand. The gash in his face bled freely and it took several stitches to close the wound.

Mr. Haddie was found on the road in a semi-unconscious condition by Mr. Fred Herron, who took him to Dr. Galliven's surgery, where his wounds were dressed and he was able to proceed home afterwards.

Charles Young, whose arm was torn off in the Maple Leaf Harvest Tool Works at Tillsonburg, is dead.

LITTLE GIRL HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Was Knocked Down by a Horse Last Evening While Playing on the Street

Myrtle, the little daughter of Mr. H C Thompson, 239 Hunter street had a remarkable escape from serious injury last night when she was knocked down by a horse which was being driven rapidly.

The little girl with a number of companions about her own age were playing on the side of the road, near the corner of Hunter and Aylmer Sts. about 6.30 last evening. The driver of a local express rig when drawing near the children, pulled his horse off to one side, so as to pass the young people but by some reason the young girl became frightened and excited with the result that in trying to get past the horse she was knocked down. The driver acted promptly and the little girl was picked up and carried into her home where it was found that fortunately she had received no further injuries than being badly cut about the face. The little girl was able to be out this morning but naturally does not realise the narrow escape she figured in.

DR. GRENFELL

The good angel of Labrador is a name much more appropriate to Dr. Grenfell than "hero" or other hackneyed and effusive decoration of a man who cares absolutely nothing for applause or advertisement. In conversation he very plainly expresses himself as desirous of realising the Christ in well-doing. It is the only way to realise Him, he contends. The attack upon the foundations of faith as they are so frequently called, he regards with wonder. "Faith is faith," he observes. "It is not something that can be demonstrated by criticism or found out by study." To study and to criticise is to analyse, and to analyse is to doubt. Constrictive criticism is impossible. Reconstructive criticism is what is meant. Reconstructive criticism means the editing of the Word, and more—it means the explaining of it. Therefore, and before all these things, Dr. Grenfell believes only in Christ and the spirit of Christ. To realise this one must not criticise, but DO. It is the only way in which it is possible for humans to realise. It is the most glorious, the most satisfying, the most noble way. It deprecates the exaltation of the individual. It necessitates humility in service. To die is to live. To lose one's life is to save it. Loving ones neighbour is the realisation of the real Christ. Dr. Grenfell has enlisted men and women of great eminence and reputation in his work. The high and the lowly meet with him on common ground—that of love. Extremes meet and the problem is solved. Results prove it, and results are everything with Dr. Grenfell. Theories count for nothing. They are eggs that may never hatch. He blends the divine and the human in a natural way. It is open to the simplest and least educated to be a true servant of God. Learning, itself, can be no more.

ANNOUNCEMENT MADE REGARDING KAWARTHA LAKES SUMMER SCHOOL

The following announcement has been sent out regarding the Kawartha Lakes Summer School to be held at Chemong park:

The Kawartha Lakes Summer School is held under the auspices of the Bay of Quinte Conference Epworth League.

The date of the School is July 5th to July 12th, 1909.

We have again secured as the seat of our school the beautiful and charming resort known as Chemong park. The park is situated about six miles north of the city of Peterborough, and about five minutes walk from the picturesque village of Bridgenorth. It lies on the shore of Chemong Lake, is beautifully shaded and affords excellent facilities for boating and bathing, and is an ideal spot for the work of the School.

The work of the school consists of real, honest study with the best teachers available for Bible study, and mission study classes, and of methods of work. Much attention will be given to the devotional aspect of the school, and an effort made to equip each delegate in attendance, for real leadership in the local church and League.

Last year we had a registration of a hundred and thirty-seven. Everyone who desires the benefit of the school may attend; ministers, Epworth League and Sunday School workers and others. Every League and Sunday School should be represented.

Those especially interested in Sunday School work will be glad to know that the Bible study this year is to be in the Acts and Epistles right along the line of the Sunday School lessons for the last half of 1909.

Excursion rates will be given on all railroads at a fare and one-third. Each person should buy a single first-class ticket to Peterborough and secure standard certificate. Special rates on boats are also being secured.

The programme, which will be printed and mailed to every minister and league in the Bay of Quinte Conference, is now almost complete. The forenoons will be devoted to study, the afternoons to recreation, and the evenings to platform meetings.

There will be four study periods each afternoon. The first, Bible study, conducted by Rev. Prof. McLaughlin, of Victoria University. The study will be in the Book of Acts and the Epistle of Paul, and will be made especially helpful to Sunday school teachers.

The second period will be given up to addresses by returned missionaries, among whom will be Rev. J. L. Stewart, B.A., B.D., of West China, and F. G. Joblin, of Norway House.

The third period will be devoted to "round tables" on the departments of league work by prominent workers.

The fourth period will be Mission Study Period. The classes will study "Strangers Within our Gates," by Rev. J. S. Woodsworth, and "The Uplift of China," by Dr. Arthur H. Smith. Rev. Prof. Doxee, of Albert College, Belleville, and Miss May Dobson, B.A., of Ontario Ladies College, Whitby, will teach the first and Rev. J. L. Stewart, B. A., B.D., of West China, will teach the second. For evening addresses we have secured R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., Lindsay; J. M. Denyes, B.A., Principal Newburg High school; F. R. Foley, Esq., Bowmanville, President Bay of Quinte Conference Epworth League; Revs. G. W. Henderson and C. H. Coon, Peterborough; J. L. Stewart, B.A., B.D., West China; W. E. Hassard, B.A., B.D., Toronto, and others.

Rates at the School Board and lodging for the week will be $5, or $1 per day; 25c. per meal for members of the school. The regular rate at this hotel is $2 per day and up. Excellent arrangements, even better than last year, for accommodation have been made. Mr. Brown, the proprietor of the hotel, is anxious to do all he can for the convenience of delegates.

A registration fee of $1 will be charged for registration for the week; 50c. for three days; 25c. for one day.

A Book Room will be opened at the school for the sale of missionary and other literature, note books, pencils, post cards, etc.; Rev. R. A. Whattam, of Woodville, will be in charge.

Applications for billets and all requests for information, should be sent to Rev. A. H. Foster, Castleton, who is business manager.

Bus Line. The Peterborough headquarters will be the Young Women's Christian Association building, which is only a minute's walk from the G.T.R. station. Regular busses will be run from there to the Park, fare 25c. each way. A reception committee will meet all trains, etc., Monday, and Tuesdays July 5th and 6th.

Those who receive this announcement, pastors, Sunday school superintendents, Epworth League presidents and secretaries, will kindly see that the school is well announced in their congregations. Sunday schools and leagues and delegates appointed at an early date. As soon as delegates are appointed report their names immediately to Rev. A. H. Foster, business manager, Castleton, Ont.

Readers of the Daily Review who are served by newsboys should insist on receiving the Review. In any case where this is not done, prove and send message to the Review business office and arrangements will be at once made to supply promptly the Daily Review. Insist on having the paper you want—the Review.

PARK ST ATHLETIC CLUB HELD MEETING LAST NIGHT

A meeting of the Park street Athletic Club was held last night to talk over the summer sports. It is likely a baseball team will be entered in the intermediate league. The prospects are also bright for a field and track team, and several of the fellows have expressed their intention of turning out for a run.

It was decided to lease the club dressing-rooms on Wednesday evenings and Saturday afternoons to the Victoria Harrier Club. This club will hold week-end runs, which should be popular.

On Tuesday evening, May 4, the public is invited to hear Dr. Langfeldt give his amusing lecture on "The Evolution of a Boy." This will be a rare treat, and will be well worth hearing. It will be given under the club's auspices.

MAHMOUT WAS A MARK FOR CHAMPION FRANK GOTCH

Chicago, April 14—By the time the first preliminary to the Gotch-Mahmout wrestling match was in progress tonight there were about 12,600 persons in the amphitheatre and several thousand more outside, hundreds of whom held tickets, clamoring for admission.

Eugene Trembley, of Canada, defeated Ted Tonneman of Chicago in straight falls in the first preliminary match.

The second preliminary between Henry Gehring of Cleveland and Chas Olfpatl, of Buffalo was declared a draw by Referee Dick Fleming.

It was announced that after a conference lasting the greater part of the day over Mahmout's determination to enter the ring in his bare feet as has been his custom in his matches in his country in spite of Gotch's assertion that this would invalidate his chances of obtaining the toe hold the dispute had been settled by Mahmout proposing to forfeit $500 of his end of the purse to Gotch and enter the ring in his bare feet. Rather than call off the match Gotch agreed to the proposal.

Gotch entered the ring at 10.35; Mahmout folowed shortly after. Gotch appeared to be the favorite with a majority of the crowd.

Referee Edward Smith called the principals to the centre of the ring and gave them their final instructions. It was 11 o'clock before the big match began. For three minutes the big men rolled about the ring before they got a hold. After three minutes of wrestling Gotch secured a hold on Mahmout's leg, and threw him to the mat. The American champion was after the foreigner like a wildcat, and the Bulgarian responded with every ounce of strength in his body but could not break the hold of Gotch. Mahmout bridged and used every artifice to forestall the fall that appeared to be approaching. Gotch gradually forced his opponents shoulders to the mat. It was a magnificent test of strength between two great exponents of the wrestling game but the champion, cheered on by his admirers, finally secured a crotch and half Nelson hold and Referee Smith gave him the fall in eight minutes.

Mahmout's shoulders were pinned to the mat for the first time since he has been in America.

Gotch won the second fall and the match with a crotch and half Nelson the same as the first fall in nine minutes and ten seconds.

SPORTING TALK

Alfie Shrubb has recently published a book on short distance and cross country running.

A four year old, Durham bull of Waynesburg, Pa, has a 2.30 second on the track and a race is being arranged in which the bull and a race horse will figure.

Fred Simpson and Svanberg run at New York next Sunday. A victory for the Indian will put him right in line for a race with Longboat or St. Yves.

It is gradually dawning upon the sporting public that Jeffries will never enter the ring again. It is up to Jeff to make a few farewell appearances.

The Macon team of the South Atlantic League, defeated Mercer University by a score of 1-0 in a game marked by the remarkable pitching of Sam Weems. Neither team made an error. Weems did not allow a hit or give a base on balls. He struck out fourteen men and retired 27 successive batters. This equals the world's record held by Cy Young and Addie Joss.

The Brantford to Hamilton Marathon on Victoria Day is to be 26 miles and 176 yards, which was the distance of the Athens Marathon won by Willie Sherring.

"Batting is a matter of luck, like anything else," observed Fred Falkenberg, who is one of the greatest observers with the Naps. "If you don't have the luck you don't have the hits."

The result of the Gotch-Mahmout bout was favorably received in Peterborough. Gotch was the favorite in what little betting was done, although no wagers of any great size were made.

WRESTLING

This afternoon at the Y.M.C.A. the Juniors are holding a wrestling competition.

Gilbert Lee, an immigrant from Blooming Prairie, Minn., was suffocated in his settler's car, which caught fire.

BASEBALL

Campbellford will probably have a town baseball league the coming season. It is proposed that the Trent Valley Mills, the CMB, a social club and the clerks of the town each will enter a team. This would make a three cornered fight for a trophy cup that Mr C H Nadob has announced he will offer for competition provided a league can be formed on a proper working basis.

AUTOMATIC FOOTBALL.

Actions of One Player After a Kick In the Head.

"Speaking of queer things in football," said an old player, "I recall a game that was played at Annapolis some years ago between Columbia and the Naval academy teams.

"One of the men on the Columbia team, the quarterback and a very prominent player of the year, started the game in good condition, but after part of the first half he was kicked in the head in one scrimmage. It took some time to get him around, but he suddenly arose and gave a signal. The two teams lined up and play went right on.

"This man went through the game, and no one noticed that anything was wrong with him. When the game was over and the Columbia team was on the way back to New York in the train this player, who had appeared to be in a brown study, suddenly turned to the man next to him and asked, 'Who won the game—what was the score?' and a number of other questions that made it seem as if he hadn't been anywhere near the field of play.

"The players were greatly surprised and thought perhaps the kick in the head had hurt the man so that his mind was affected. Later they learned that he was unable to tell what happened from the moment he got the kick in the head until the time he recovered consciousness, so to speak, on the train.

"His playing of quarterback and his giving of signals had been entirely automatic, or, rather, subconscious. That case was referred to frequently in the psychology courses at Columbia, you may well imagine."

And So He Left Them.

With a heart full of good intentions and a bag full of uplift tracts he approached the cottage in the bucolic wilds.

"Madam, may I leave some tracts with you?"

"You may, kind sir, but leave the heel marks of them pointing directly toward these steps.".

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, April 14.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market this morning the offerings were 200 cattle, 60 sheep and lambs, 223 hogs and 1500 calves. There was no actual change in the condition of the market for cattle, prices being firmly maintained, owing to the limited supply and the improved demand from butchers. A fairly active trade was done, as buyers in some cases were short of stock. Choice steers sold at 5¾c; good at 5¼c to 5½c; fair at 4½c to 5c; medium at 4c to 4¼c; good cows at 5c; medium at 3¼c, and bulls at 3c, 3½c and 4½c per pound.

Supplies of sheep and lambs continue to be very limited, for which the demand is good, and buyers in some cases found it difficult to fill their requirements. Sales of yearling lambs were made at 6½c to 7c, and old sheep at 5c to 5½c per pound, while spring lambs brought from $4 to $8 each, as to size. The offerings of calves were large, which met with an active sale, but prices ruled low at from $2 to $5 each, as to quality.

A stronger feeling developed in the market for hogs this morning, owing to the small run, and prices scored a further advance of 25c per 100 pounds. The demand was good, and sales of selected lots were made at $8 to $8.25, and straight lots at $7.30 to $7.85 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market there were 200 cattle, 40 sheep and lambs, 575 hogs and 1150 calves. There was a good trade done in cattle, and, as supplies were small, prices ruled firm, with sales of choice steers at 5¾c; good at 5¼c to 5½c; fair at 4½c to 5c; medium at 4c to 4¼c, and common at 3½c to 4c per pound. Sheep and lambs also met with a good demand at firm prices. Yearling lambs sold at 6½c to 7c, and old sheep at 5c to 5½c per pound, and spring lambs at $4 to $8 each, as to size. The trade in calves was active, of which supplies were ample to fill all requirements, and sales were made at from $2 to $5 each, as to quality. The market for hogs was strong under a good demand and small supplies, and sales of selected lots were made at $8 to $8.25, and straight lots at $7.80 to $7.85 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

PROF. CROSS MAY GO TO NEWTON

McMaster Professor, Who is a Native of Peterboro' County, May go to the United States

Toronto, April 14.—McMaster University seems likely to lose one of its most popular and most scholarly professors. At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Newton Theological Institution, held yesterday at Boston, Prof. George Cross, M.A., Ph.D., professor of church history at McMaster, was unanimously chosen to fill the chair of Christian theology.

A despatch from Boston states that it is confidently expected that Prof. Cross will accept and begin his duties next September. At McMaster faculty and students alike are depressed over the outlook, as Dr. Cross is beloved by all, as well as being a scholar of no mean reputation. At the present time he is lecturing in history at Chicago University, which institution offered him its chair in history last year at a salary double that he is receiving at present at McMaster. Dr. Cross declined the offer, electing to stay with McMaster. It is no secret that he had long had a desire to give up historical work for theology, and this explains his apparent determination to leave Toronto. All hope has not yet been given up by the Chancellor, and the Board of Governors of McMaster, and an effort is being made to hold him here. His final decision will be known in a few days.

Dr. Cross is a graduate of Toronto University, and he got his Ph.D. at Chicago University, of which institution he has long been a favorite son. He has also studied in Germany, and won academic distinction there. He was born of English parentage at Northumberland, Ont., in 1862. He is married, and has two young daughters.

At Newton he will succeed the Rev. Dr. Woods, who retired last year. This year Dr. H. C. Sheldon, of Boston University, has been conducting the course.

Dr. Cross was born on a farm near the head of Rice Lake. He is a nephew of Mr. Crook, who will be remembered as a missionary teacher at Chemong Indian village in the time when Rev. Mr. Roberts was the Baptist minister there.

NORWOOD

Rev. Mr. Wm. Peer, of New Ontario, is renewing acquaintances in Norwood at present. Mr. Peer is in excellent health, and is untiring in his praise of the glorious new country, of which he is a worthy pioneer.

The sacred musical cantata "From Olivet to Calvery," given last Friday evening under the auspices of the Presbyterian church, was a decided success. Those who were fortunate enough to attend had a musical treat seldom enjoyed in a place of this size. The house was not crowded, but it must be remembered that a large number of people were away on their Easter holidays. Mr. H. Nicoll, conductor, deserves credit for the successful conclusion of the programme.

During the extremely high wind-storm that raged last Wednesday night the village was thrown into a state of excitement by the clang of the fire bell about 8.30. The chimney on Mr. Fred Anderson's barber shop had caught fire and for a few minutes it looked as though the Reynolds block was in danger. But prompt action averted the danger, and the citizens once more breathed freely. A man was put to watch during the night, but nothing further developed.

Mr. I. Puffer received word on Monday that Mrs. Puffer, who is in the hospital in Peterborough, after a serious operation, had taken a turn for the worse. Mr. Puffer went to town on the four p.m. train. Many anxious friends are hoping to receive favourable word to-day (Tuesday.)

The funeral took place to-day of Mrs. D. McNaughton, who passed away at her home on the Hastings road on Sunday last. Mrs. McNaughton was 65 years of age, and death was due to a brief illness of pneumonia. Deceased was a member of the Baptist church, and leaves her husband and six children (four girls and two boys) to mourn her loss. The funeral, which was largely attended, took place to-day from her home at two o'clock, the remains being interred in the Norwood cemetery.

AN INFERNAL MACHINE.

Its Fearful and Deadly Work In the Bremerhaven Explosion.

The greatest fatality ever caused by an infernal machine is known as the Bremerhaven explosion, and it occurred near the end of 1875, when a fellow who called himself Thomas and was said to be an American took up his residence with his family in Bremen. His finances were at a low ebb, and to replenish them he conceived the idea of sending to America some worthless but highly insured packages of goods. By the same vessel he intended to ship an infernal machine, which was to have exploded a few days after the vessel had left port. The explosion occurred, however, just before the package was put on board, causing terrible loss of life.

Thomas, whose real name was said to be Alexander, charged his machine with nitroglycerin, which he had procured in America and purchased the clockwork and the case containing the machine in Germany. The hammer of the clockwork, which was to act in six days after leaving port, was to strike a blow of thirty pounds weight. In his confession later Thomas said that when testing the clockwork the hammer smashed a mahogany table.

He sent the contrivance to Bremerhaven to be shipped on the Mosel for New York via Southampton. He himself took passage to the latter port, where he had arranged to ship his cases of rubbish for New York. The Mosel was to leave Bremerhaven on Saturday, Dec. 11, and on that day the infernal machine was sent to the dock, which was crowded with porters, passengers and their friends. For some reason that has never been explained the heavy case slipped from the crane on to the wharf as it was being lifted up the ship's side, and the charge was instantly exploded. Death and destruction were dealt around, 128 men, women and children being instantly killed, while fifty-six others were terribly wounded.

Thomas was waiting on board the ship to receive his case and see it stowed away in the hold, but right after the explosion he went to his cabin, locked the door and shot himself in the head with a revolver.

He lingered for several days in the hospital and made a full confession before he died.—Exchange.

A CRATER TOWN.

Where the Inhabitants Build Ships Inside Extinct Volcanoes.

Saba, in the West Indies, is one of the most extraordinary places in the world. By courtesy it is called an island, but it is really nothing more than the summit of an extinct volcano sticking up out of the sea.

Inside the crater live the only inhabitants of Saba. They live there because there is nowhere else for them to live, the outside slopes being nearly as steep as the sides of a house.

The place belongs to Holland, and the people are all Dutch. Nevertheless they speak English as their native tongue. They call their crater town Bottom because it is situated on the top of a mountain.

Although surrounded on all sides by the sea, they often spend weeks without seeing it, for that involves a long climb up to the rim of the crater. Still less frequently do they touch salt water, because to do so they must, in addition, climb downward for a distance of 1,500 feet by a precipitous rock hewn path known as "the ladder."

It is, however, in regard to their staple industry that these Dutch people who speak English and who live aloft in a volcano in a summit city called Bottom reach the extreme of topsyturveydom. One might imagine them making balloons or kites or, in fact, anything but what they do make, which is ships—not ocean going liners, but good, serviceable schooners and luggers, whose repute is great all over the Windward islands. The ships when finished have to be hauled up to the rim of the crater and then lowered over a precipice into the sea.—Exchange.

African Pygmies.

The pygmies of Africa, says Captain Guy Burrows in his "Land of the Pygmies," are masters in the art of hunting. They can kill even elephants with their little bows and arrows, blinding the animal first by shooting at its eyes. Once he is blinded they never leave him till he falls. A pygmy, I have no hesitation in saying, eats, as a rule, twice as much as will suffice a full grown man. He will take a stalk containing about sixty bananas, seat himself and eat them all at a meal, besides other food. Then he will lie and groan throughout the night until morning comes, when he is ready to repeat the operation.

Error of Judgment.

"I thought, count, you were a dead shot?"

"I am."

"And yet, though you said you would shoot your adversary through the heart, you hit him in the foot?"

"It was an error of judgment. I thought his heart was in his boots. It turned out to be in its right place."

Wouldn't Be Convinced.

"Bobson thinks he plays a good game of bridge."

"Yes, he does. I spent $27 the other night trying to disabuse him of the idea—and failed."

Plenty of It.

"Jedging from the amount of it killed in this settlement," remarked a visitor in Plunkville, "I persoom there must be a bounty on time."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE CARPET SEWER.

A Wonderful Machine That Does the Work of Twenty Women.

Twelve hundred dollars for a sewing machine would suggest to the average householder a silver mounted, gilt cased, jewel incrusted piece of mechanism which ordinarily would have a show place in a front parlor of the millionaire's granite residence on the boulevard.

As a matter of fact, this $1,200 sewing machine proper isn't bigger than the crown of an opera hat, and it's fully as homely. It resembles a sewing machine about as much as it does a gas range. It costs $1,200 largely for the reason that it romps up and down the seams of a carpet or sewed rug, putting about twenty of the old style women carpet sewers permanently out of business in every shop in which the machine is used. Incidentally it does the work far better and more accurately than the women workers ever did it.

However, this framework of the machine is a formidable bit of engineering work altogether. Stretching thirty-eight feet down the wall of a long room in a State street store, this frame and carrier structure is not unlike a model for demonstrating the monorail car for the newest thing in transportation.

In the main this superstructure is not unlike the slide bar of a typewriter, with its parallel ratchet bar, on a large scale, suspended about four feet above the floor by steel supports fastened down securely. At intervals of about four feet are miniature "stations," corresponding to those of an elevated railroad, and at which the traveling sewing machine may be stopped automatically or past which it may go on an express schedule, at the will of the operator. The traction power is delivered from a series of one inch round belts that travel from one end of the framework to the other, driven by a small motor and against which various pulleys of the machine impinge.—Chicago Tribune.

From the corner of his eye he saw Gale rise from Lee's bed, where he had stretched himself to smoke, and take his six shooter from his belt, then remove the knotted bandanna from his neck and begin to clean the gun, his head bowed over it earnestly, his face in the shadow. He had ever been a careful and methodical man, reflected Poleon, and evidently would not go to sleep with his firearm in bad condition.

"Nobody imagined that Gaylord would cause trouble," Stark was saying, "for he didn't seem to be a jealous sort, just stupid and kind of heavy witted. But one night he took advantage of Bennett's absence and sneaked up to the house." The story teller paused, and Necia, who was under the spell of his recital, urged him on:

"Yes, yes. What happened then? Go on!" But Stark stared gloomily at his hands and held his silence for a full minute, the tale appearing to have awakened more than a fleeting interest in him.

"It was one of the worst killings that ever happened in those parts," he continued. "Bennett came back to find his wife murdered and the kid gone."

"Oh!" said the girl in a shocked voice.

"Yes, there was a deuce of a time. The town rose up in a body, and we—you see, I happened to be there—we followed the man for weeks. We trailed him and the kid clear over into the Nevada desert, where we lost them."

"He died of thirst in the desert maybe, he and the little one."

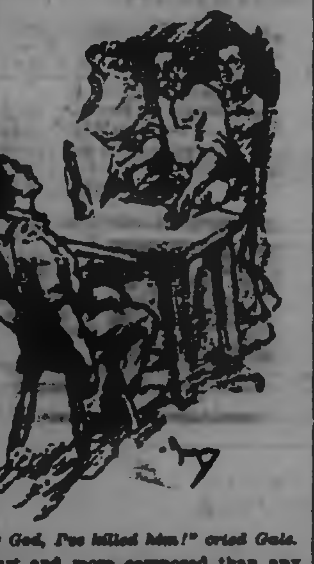
"That's what we thought at the time, but I've crossed his trail since then. No, Gaylord is alive today, and so is the girl. Some time we'll meet." His voice gave out, and he stared again at the floor.

"Couldn't the little girl be traced?" said Necia. "What was her name?"

Stark made to speak, but the word was never uttered, for there came a deafening roar that caused Lee's candle to leap and flicker and the air inside the cabin to strike the occupants like a blow. Instantly there was confusion, and each man sprang to his feet, crying out affrightedly, for the noise had come with utter unexpectedness.

"My God, I've killed him!" cried Gale. And with one jump he cleared half the room and was beside Stark, while his revolver lay on the floor where he had been sitting.

"What is it?" exclaimed Burrell. But there was no need to ask, for powder smoke was beginning to fill the room, and the trader's face gave answer. It was whiter than that of his daughter, who had crouched fearfully against the wall, and he shook like a man with ague. But Stark stood unhurt and more composed than any of them. Following the first bound from his chair, he had relapsed into his customary quiet. There had blazed up one momentary flash of suspicion and anger, but it died straightway, for no man could have beheld the trader and not felt contrition. His condition was pitiable, and the sight of a strong man overcome is not pleasant. When it was seen that no harm had been done the others strove to make light of the accident.



"My God, I've killed him!" cried Gale.

"Get together, all of you! It's nothing to be excited over!" said Stark.

"How did it happen?" Runnion finally asked Gale, who had sunk limply upon the edge of the bunk, but when the old man undertook to answer his words were unintelligible, and he shook his head helplessly.

Stark laid his finger on the hole that the bullet had bored in the log close to where he was sitting and laughed.

"Never mind, old man; it missed me by six inches. You know there never was a bullet that could kill me. I'm six shooter proof."

"Wha'd I tell you?" triumphantly ejaculated Lee to the lieutenant.

Doret of all in the cabin had said nothing. Seated apart from the others, he had seen the affair from a distance, as it were, and now stepped to the bed to lay his hand on Gale's shoulder.

"Brace up, John. Sacre bleu! Your face look lak flour. Come outside an' get li'l' air."

Poleon led his friend down the trail for half a mile without speaking till Gale had regained a grip of himself and muttered finally:

"I never did such a thing before, Poleon; never in all my life."

"Why?" insisted the Frenchman.

"I—I—I— What do you mean?"

"Don't lie wit' me, John. I'm happen to be watch you underneat' my hat w'en you turn roun' for see if anybody lookin'."

"I thought you were asleep," said Gale.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE KNIFE.

IN every community, be it ever so small, there are undesirable citizens, and while the little party was still at breakfast on the following morning three such members of society came around the cabin and let fall their packs, greeting the occupants boisterously.

"Well, well!" said Lee, coming to the door. "You're travelin' kind of early, ain't you?"

"Yes, early and late," one of them laughed, while the other two sprawled about as if to rest.

"How far are you goin'?"

"Not far," the spokesman answered. "We want a piece of this creek."

"What are you goin' to do with it?"

"Cut that out, Lee. We're on."

"Who wised you up to this?" inquired the miner angrily.

"Never mind who put us Jerry. We're here, ain't we?"

The harm was done, and there was no use in concealment, so Lee reluctantly told them of his discovery and warned them of the stakes already placed.

"I'll step along with the boys and show them where our upper stakes are," volunteered Stark, and Runnion offered to do the same, adding that it were best to make sure of no conflict so early in the game. The five disappeared into the woods, leaving the others at the cabin to make preparations for the homeward trip.

"I don't like the look of this," observed the lieutenant thoughtfully. "I'm afraid there's some kind of a job on foot."

"There's nothing they can do," Gale answered. "We've got our ground staked out, and it's up to them to choose what's left."

They were nearly ready to set out for Flambeau when the five men returned.

"Before you go," said Stark, "I think we'd better organize our mining district. There are enough present to do it."

"We can make the kind of laws we want before the gang comes along," Runnion chimed in, "and elect a recorder who will give us a square deal."

"I'll agree if we give Lee the job," said Gale. "It's coming to him as the discoverer, and I reckon the money will be handy, seeing the hard luck he's played in."

The group assembled in the cleared space before the cabin to make rules and regulations governing the district, for it is a custom in all mining sections removed from authority for the property holders thus to make local laws governing the size of claims, the amount of assessment work, the size of the recorder's fees, the character of those who may hold mines and such other questions as arise.

It was of wondrous interest to Necia to be an integral part of such important matters, and she took pride in voting on every question, but Burrell, who observed the proceedings from neutral ground, could not shake off the notion that all was not right. Things moved too smoothly. It looked as if there had been a rehearsal. Lee, Poleon and the trader, however, seemed not to notice it.

The surprise came when they had completed the organization of the district and had nearly finished adopting bylaws.

Runnion moved the adoption of a rule that no women be allowed to locate mining claims, and one of the strangers seconded it.

"What's that?" said Lee, raising his one eye from the notebook in which as secretary he was transcribing the minutes.

"It isn't right to let women in on a man's game," said Runnion.

"That's my idea," echoed the seconder.

"I s'pose this is aimed at my girl," said Gale, springing to his feet. "I might have known you bums were up to some crooked work."

Poleon likewise rose and ranged himself with the trader.

"Ba gar, I don' stan' for dat!" said he excitedly. "You want for jump Necia's claims, eh?"

"As long as I'm chairman we'll have no rough work," declared Stark, glaring at them. "If you want trouble, you two, I reckon you can have it; but, whether you do or not, the majority is going to rule, and we'll make what laws we want to."

He took no pains now to mask his dislike for Gale, who began to move toward him in his dogged, resolute way. Necia, observing them, hastened to her father's side, for that which she sensed in the bearing of both men quite overcame her indignation at this blow against herself.

"No, no; don't have any trouble!" she pleaded as she clung to the trader. "For my sake, daddy, sit down." Then she whispered fiercely into his ear: "Can't you see he's trying to make you fight? There's too many of them. Wait! Wait!"

Burrell attempted to speak, but Stark, who was presiding, turned upon him fiercely.

A moment later he saw the futility of interference when Stark continued, addressing the trader:

"This isn't aimed at you in particular, Gale, nor at your girl, for a motion to disqualify her isn't necessary. She isn't old enough to hold mining property."

"She's eighteen," declared the trader.

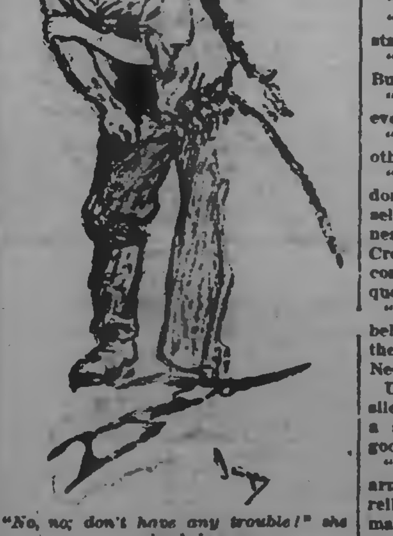
"Not according to her story."

"Well, I can keep her claims for her till she gets of age."

"We've just fixed it so you can't," grinned Runnion cunningly. "No man can hold more than one claim on a creek. You voted for that yourself."

Too late Gale saw the trick by which Stark had used him to rob his own daughter.

"No Creek" Lee had the name of a man slow in speech and action and one who roused himself to anger deliberately, much as a serpent stings itself into a painful fury, but now it was apparent that he was boiling over, for he stammered and halted and blustered explosively:



"No, no; don't have any trouble!" she pleaded.

"You're a bunch of rascals, all of you, tryin' to down a pore girl and get her ground. But who put you wise to this thing, in the first place? Who found this gold? Just because there's enough of you to vote that motion through that don't make it legal, not by a d——d sight, and it won't hold, because I won't write it in the book. You—you"— He glared at them malevolently, searching his mind for an epithet sufficiently vile and, finding it, spat it out—"dressmakers!"

So this was why both Stark and Runnion had gone up the creek with the three new men, thought Burrell. No doubt they had deliberately arranged the whole thing so that the new arrivals could immediately relocate each of Necia's claims—the pick of all the ground outside Lee's discovery and the surest to be valuable—and that Stark would share in the robbery.

Carefully slipping around the corner of the cabin and keeping the house between him and the others, Burrell broke into a swift run, making the utmost possible speed for fear they should miss him and guess his purpose, or, worse yet, finish their discussion and adjourn before he could complete his task. He was a light man on his feet, and he dodged through the forest, running more carelessly the farther he went, visiting first the upper claims; then, making a wide detour of the cabin, he came back to the initial stake of Necia's lower claim, staggering from his exertions, his lungs bursting from the strain. He had covered nearly a mile; but, even so, he laughed grimly as he walked back toward the cabin, for it was a game worth playing, and he was glad to take a hand on the side of the trader and the girl. Coming within earshot, he heard the meeting vote to adjourn. It could not have terminated more opportunely had he held a stop watch on it.

Runnion addressed the other conspirators loudly:

"Well, boys, there are three good claims open for relocation. I'm sorry I can't stake one of them."

"They won't lie open long," said one of the undesirable citizens, starting to turn downstream, while his two companions made for the opposite direction. But Burrell stopped them.

"Too late, boys. Your little game went wrong. Now, now, don't get excited! Whew, I had quite a run!"

Gale paused in his tracks and looked at the young man queerly.

"What do you mean?"

"I've jumped those claims myself."

"You jumped them!" cried Necia.

"Sure! I changed my mind about staking."

"It's a lie!" cried Runnion, at which Burrell whirled on him.

"I've been waiting for this, Runnion, ever since you came back. Now"—

"I mean you haven't had time," the other temporized hurriedly.

"Oh, that sounds better. If you don't believe me take a look for yourself. You'll find my notice just beneath Miss Gale's." Then to "No Creek" Lee he continued, "Kindly record them for me so there will be no question of priority."

"I'll be d——d if I do!" said the belligerent recorder. "You're worse'n these crooks. That ground belongs to Necia Gale."

Up to this time Stark had remained silent, his impassive face betraying not a shadow of chagrin, for he was a good loser, but now he spoke at large.

"Anybody who thinks the American army is asleep is crazy." Then to Burrell, "You certainly are a nice young man to double cross your friends like that."

"You're no friend of mine," Meade retorted.

"I? What do you mean?"

"I double crossed you, Stark; nobody else. There's no use mouthing words about it," said he. "These thugs are your tools, and you tried to steal that ground because it's sure to be rich."

Stark exclaimed angrily, but the other gave him no time to break in.

"Now, don't get rough, because that is my game, and I'd be pleased enough to take you back a prisoner." Then, turning to Lee, he said: "Don't make me force you to record my locations. I staked those claims for Miss Gale, and I'll deed them to her when she turns eighteen."

Poleon Doret called to Runnion: "M'sieu, you 'member w'at I tol' you yestidday? I'm begin for t'ink it's goin' be you."

Seeing that the game had gone against him, Stark got his feelings under control quickly and shrugged his shoulders as he turned away.

"You're in the wrong, lieutenant," he remarked, "but I don't want any trouble. You've got the law with you." Then to Runnion and the others he said, "Well, I'm ready to hit the trail."

When they had shouldered their packs and disappeared down the valley Gale held out his hand to the soldier. "Young man, I reckon you and I will be friends."

"Thank you," said Burrell, taking the offer of friendship, which he knew was genuine at last.

"I'm in on that," said "No Creek" Lee. "You're all right."

Poleon had been watching Stark's party disappear, but now he turned and addressed the young soldier.

"You mak' some enemies today, m'sieu."

"That's right," agreed Lee. "Ben Stark will never let up on you now."

"Very well. That is his privilege."

"You don't savvy what it means to get him down on you," insisted Lee. "He'll frame things up to suit himself, then pick a row with you. He's the quickest man on a trigger in the west, but he won't never make no open play, only just devil the life out of you with little things till you flare up; then he'll down you. That's how he killed the gold commissioner back in British Columbia."

Necia had said little so far, but the look in her eyes repaid the soldier for his undertaking in her behalf and for any mischief that might ensue from it. She came forward and laid her hands upon his.

"Don't worry, daughter," reassured Gale. "There's nothing Stark can do, and whatever happens we're with the lieutenant. He's our kind of people."

THE Cowboy BARONET

PRAISES ZAM-BUK.

EVERYBODY has heard of Sir Cenilie Cave-Brown-Cave, "The Cowboy Baronet"! Most people know that this gentleman, whose home is at Stretton Hall, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, England, prefers the active life of a traveller and a worker to that of a titled gentleman. Sir Cenilie Cave, in his cowboy role, made himself well-known in several of the States. He has also lived at different times the life of a sailor, a soldier, a gold-miner, and a contractor, so that his opinion on many subjects is exceedingly valuable. Like most men of note, Sir Cenilie Cave is a firm believer in Zam-Buk. He has carried it with him to all corners of the earth, and proved its value in a thousand emergencies. He has used it when in the wilds of Australia, the deserts of Egypt, the plains of India, and the mysterious cities of China. When working as a "Cowpuncher" in the States it was his great stand-by. Writing to a friend recently, he said of this great balm:—

"I feel it is only my duty to let you know what great benefit I have derived by keeping Zam-Buk handy, and having it in constant use. For the sprains and bruises which I have incurred in my cowboy life generally I have found it a reliable and speedy healer. Some of the best riders in the West that I know use Zam-Buk regularly with the greatest benefit. On one occasion my horse, "Bob," came down with me. He rolled over my limbs, bruising me generally, and tearing pieces of skin off my arms. By the use of Zam-Buk immediately, the wounds and bruises were cleanly and quickly healed, and the raw parts covered with new healthy skin. When on the plains I have used Zam-Buk for poisonous insect bites, and have found it particularly beneficial for mosquito bites, and the aches and pains following malarial fever caused by mosquitoes.

"Zam-Buk has yielded me far more remarkable results and generally proved more reliable than anything could have done in the way of mere ointments and embrocations, and I think it is without equal as a healer of skin diseases and injuries."

No clearer evidence than that above from this well-known Leicestershire baronet could be needed in order to finally establish the reputation of Zam-Buk. Never before has any "First-Aid" preparation attained the success Zam-Buk has attained with the classes and the masses all over the world. This is because never before has such a rich, pure, and unique balm been discovered.

The secret of Zam-Buk's strength lies in the refined herbal extracts which form the essential feature of the balm, and to the ingenious manner in which these herbal juices are combined with one another. Parents in the home, foremen in the workshops and factories, and athletes in the field, cannot do better than "Keep a box of Zam-Buk Always Handy."

FOR A BETTER SYSTEM REGARDING INSTALLATION OF ELECTRICAL WIRING

Members of Local Electrical Firms Met Fire, Water and Light Committee Last Night—Opinion is General That an Improvement Must be Made at Once.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee is taking up the question of putting the installation of electric wiring in the city on a better basis. A number of firms doing electrical work in Peterborough have requested that something be done along this line and the committee realise that an improvement is necessary in conditions.

The matter came up at a meeting of the committee last night, when three members of electrical firms in the city were present to outline the proposition they had made in writing to the council at the last meeting, namely, that the electricians be licensed by the city and made responsible for the work they done. The gentlemen present were, Messrs. F. R. MacPherson, N. H. Miller and D. M. MacGregor. The matter was gone into pretty fully, and many points that will be of use to the committee in solving the problem were brought out.

It may be stated that the necessity for a change in the system of electrical wiring has been brought out prominently of late by the visit of the Underwriters' Association's inspector to this city, and the ordering of changes in the wiring of many buildings at a great deal of expense to the owners. What is wanted is some system that will guarantee the owner of a building that the wiring will pass the Underwriters' inspection.

The local electricians have suggested that the city license the men doing this work, and that they be fined if their work does not come up to a prescribed standard.

Mr. MacPherson pointed out to the committee that much of the trouble was caused by additions being made to the wiring systems after installation. In this way a circuit was often overloaded, and then the trouble started. Mr. Miller and Mr. MacGregor also brought out many good points in connection with the matter in hand.

Mr. MacPherson said that if the city appointed an inspector of electrical wiring it would not be necessary to have the licensing system proposed.

Ald. Turner said it was not fair to have a contractor complete a job and then to have the Underwriters' inspector come along and order expensive changes. The people should be protected.

Ald. Hicks said the matter was one that deserved careful consideration. It was plain that a change was needed, and the proposition should be gone into very thoroughly.

Ald. Buller, the chairman, agreed with Ald. Hicks, and informed the deputation that the committee would go into the matter carefully.

GAVE LECTURE AT LINDSAY

Mr. T. F. Matthews Told About Trip to Egypt and the Holy Land

Lindsay, April 14.—In spite of the inclement weather, there was a good attendance last night at the lecture on Egypt, Mr. T. F. Matthews, of Peterborough at the Baptist church last evening. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Welch, occupied the hair and after a selection by the Baptist church quartette the chairman introduced the speaker.

Mr. Matthews was well qualified to handle the subject, he having, with other Peterborough citizens, visited the land of the pyramids as well as Palestine and the Holy Land. His lecture therefore was a rare treat, as the innumerable places of interest in the countries referred to were described with a thoroughness and the many scenes so vividly portrayed that the audience was entertained and were sorry when the word pictures ended.

At the conclusion of Mr. Matthews' admirable address a hearty vote of thanks was extended by Messrs. Kitchner and E. Sharpe.

RATS PLENTIFUL AT INDIAN ISLAND

Redskins There are Meeting With Much Success in Their Trappping

Lindsay, April 14.—There seems to be a big difference in the minds of some of the trappers as to the scarcity of the muskrats this season. From the time that the season opened the trappers in these parts have been complaining that the skins are scarce, but away down on Indian Island, on Sturgeon Lake, there is a bunch of redskins who are meeting with good luck.

They are the Taylor brothers, and they claim that the Muskrats will be just as plentiful this season as they were last year. They are of the opinion that the low water which has prevailed chased the rats away and made them seek other quarters. Now, however, that the water has again reached high level, they expect to see the furry animals flock back in large numbers.

POLICE COURT THIS MORNING

Two Drunk and Disorderlies and a Blacklist Man Before the Magistrate

Matthew Edwards was charged in the police court this morning with being drunk and disorderly yesterday. He pleaded guilty but was allowed to go with a warning.

Edwards hails from Otonabee and is a good worker but unfortunately takes a little too much liquor at times and as a result has been in trouble on other occasions.

He promised to go to work again and leave liquor alone so Magistrate Dumble allowed him to go.

Will be Posted

James Hayes was arrested yesterday and faced the Magistrate this morning on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

For his own good he will be posted and the liquor houses and hotels will also receive notice not to give him any liquor. Hayes is a good workman when he keeps away from drink and he expressed a wish that he be posted. He was accommodated and left the court.

Blacklist Case

A black listed man was arrested this morning and came up before the Magistrate. He was still under the influence of liquor when brought to the court room and the case was enlarged for one week.

License Inspector Stewart gave evidence that the defendant had been served with the notice as had also the hotels and liquor houses.

The accused admitted being served with the notice.

CONVICT SLAYS HIS GUARD IN PRISON AT EDMONTON

Prisoner Named Barrett, Without Any Apparent Motive Strikes Official at Base of Skull With a Carpenter's Axe Half Severing Head

Edmonton, Alta., April 16.—While superintending six convicts in the penitentiary carpenter shop yesterday, Deputy Warden Richard Stedman was suddenly set upon and murdered with an axe by Gary R. Barrett.

Barrett, aged 55, is serving a life sentence for the murder of his stepson about a year ago on the homestead near Battleford.

No reason is known for the crime, which was witnessed by five other prisoners.

The blow half severed the head from the shoulders. The deputy warden was taken unawares, sank to the floor and in ten minutes was lifeless.

After the blow the murderer quietly surrendered and was locked up in his cell. The deputy warden had left the office of Warden McCauley about 10.25 for a tour of the building. He went direct to the carpenter shop, which is in a part of a new building recently erected at the rear of the yard. Entering the shop, in which were Instructor A. Pope and six convicts, to speak to the instructor.

In an instant Barrett had picked up a short carpenter's axe that was lying nearby, and advancing a step towards the unsuspecting man, struck him a fearful blow with the sharp edge of the instrument. The axe struck the back of the head at the base of the skull and half severed the head from the trunk.

There had been no quarrel with the deputy warden, and the fatal blow was delivered without warning or provocation. The murderer has never been a troublesome prisoner, but was constantly complaining about his health, and claimed that he did not get a fair trial. He was always morose.

SOME ADVICE TO TEACHERS

How Tuberculosis Could be Swept From Continent in a Few Years.

Toronto, April 16.—Tuberculosis could be swept from this continent in a few years, being only a question of dollars versus the value of human lives, was a declaration in the inspectors' section of the Ontario Educational Association yesterday afternoon. Inspector Chapman presided.

Dr. Elliott quoted statistics to demonstrate that tuberculosis had attacked many constitutionally strong who withstood the disease though it had left traces in their lungs.

Dr. Hastings declared that tuberculosis was much more prevalent among children than generally supposed. Its most potent cause was infected milk. He was positive that every infected cow in Canada could be weeded out in one year and in the United States in two years. Pending that the next best remedy was the boiling of milk. Impurity in cream was much greater than in skimmed milk.

RIOTING IN MINING CAMP

Results in Death of Thirty-two Men—Priest Arrested

Mexico City, April 15.—Rioting which occurred at Velardena, a mining camp in Coahuila, last Saturday, was more serious than at first reported, 32 men being killed and many injured. The trouble was instigated by Father Ramon Valenzuela, parish priest, it is asserted, who lies in a hospital hovering between life and death. Fourteen of the rioters were executed by the Government troops, and many were imprisoned.

The fighting occurred when Jefe Politico, of the town, an officer corresponding to that of the mayor, attempted to stop a religious procession headed by the village priest, the laws of Mexico forbidding such parades. A thousand parishioners followed the priest, wishing to witness the annual burning of Judas, and when the orders of the mayor became known the mob stoned and later burned the house of the mayor, who, with his wife, escaped by climbing a rear wall and seeking protection in the American colony.

The rioters then stoned a Chinese hotel, looting it of all liquors and foods and terrorizing the neighborhood during the night by their drunken orgies. The police force fired on the mob, many members of whom were well armed. The officers were forced to retreat, leaving six of their number dead in the main street.

Later troops arrived in a special train, and a short, fierce, fight between troopers and rioters ensued, bringing the total deaths to 32, with a number injured.

The priest was arrested. One of his followers smuggled a knife to his cell, and the priest stabbed himself six times in a vain attempt to commit suicide. He is now in the prison hospital. Quiet was restored.

FOOT CAUGHT BETWEEN COGS

Earle Francis of This City the Victim of Very Painful Accident Yesterday

Earle Francis, a twelve year old boy whose home is at 498 Boliver street, met with a painful accident yesterday. He was at the home of some relatives in the country, about eighteen miles from the city, where a "drag-saw" was at work cutting wood. The boy got his foot caught between two cogs and before the machine could be stopped the toes were badly crushed, so much so that the great toe will have to be amputated. The boy was brought to his home in the city this morning and will be laid up for some time.

HAVE CEREMONY IN THE EVENING

Suggestion Regarding Decoration of Graves by Oddfellows

The suggestion was made to the Review to-day that the Oddfellows should hold the ceremony of decorating the graves of departed brethren in the evening instead of in the afternoon, which is the usual custom. The Review's informant pointed out that by leaving the hall about 6.45 or 7 o'clock there would be plenty of time for placing flowers on the graves and having a short service at the cemetery before dark, provided the ceremony was held when the days are long, as in June or July.

When the ceremony is held in the afternoon the attendance of the members of the Order is not as large as is desired. There is no doubt but that there would be a large turnout in the evening.

St. John's, Nfld., April 16.—With but a short distance separating them from their port and a market for their catch, the 200 men composing the crew of the sealing steamer Vanguard were forced to abandon their ship, and all the results of a month's strenuous work. The steamer's main shaft was broken among the icefields. The steamer Algerine picked them up after their own craft had sunk. A catch of 9,000 seals went down.

"Blackhand" Duel In Streets.

New York, April 16.—Andrea Gambino, a young Italian barber, who three years ago killed a man with two loads from a shotgun, was himself killed in a running battle with three countrymen through Brooklyn streets, while thousands of persons looked on. Petro Zarcone, a butcher, who started the shooting, told the police that Gambino approached him and demanded $50 under penalty of death.

LIBERALS RALLY AROUND THE MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS

Debate on Dr. Daniel's Resolution Asking for an Inquiry into Dredging Scandal is Marked by Undignified Episodes and a Stiff Fight to Avoid Probe—Mr. Foster Will Bring Up Charge.

Ottawa, April 16.—Whatever may have been the feelings of a section of the Liberal party Wednesday when the row began over Hon. William Pugsley, Minister of Public Works, it was evident at 6 o'clock last night, when the House rose for dinner, that the whole body of Liberals in the House were with that Minister in his defence against the charges levelled against him by Dr. Daniel, the Conservative member for St. John.

Dr. Pugsley's luck has continued with him. He has rallied all the Liberals behind him. Sir Wilfrid looked pleased. Mr. Aylesworth patted him on the shoulder and there was abundance of party cheers.

The scene all the afternoon added nothing to the dignity or the quality of the House. There were interruptions of unseemly appeals to the speakers. The Speaker was on his feet many times, and he played his part in a befitting way.

One could see before 6 o'clock arrived yesterday that the Liberals saw the opportunity of using the McAvity-Mayes incident and Pugsley's answer to it as a cushion to break his fall, if fall there was to be, in regard to the more serious charges of the royal commission.

The Prime Minister made it plain that Mr. Pugsley was not to be thrown overboard because of the condemnatory report of the New Brunswick Railway Commission. He said this in reply to Mr. Foster, who immediately gave notice that on Monday next he would challenge the judgment of the House.

After a brush between Mr. Conmee and Mr. Foster, Dr. Daniel took the floor to move his resolution for an inquiry into the McAvity affair.

Mr. Speaker said there was a point of order to decide first.

Dr. Pugsley said he had a statement to make before the point was decided. He had stated on Wednesday that if Dr. Daniel read the original affidavit he would have no objection. During the morning he had had a conference with Dr. Daniel, who had undertaken to file with the clerk the original affidavit. Upon that understanding Mr. Pugsley had no objection to the other affidavit being read.

Dr. Daniel then read the affidavit without further interruption.

Having concluded the reading of the affidavit, assigned by Mayes, before Commissioner Harrison on Oct. 12, 1908, and on March 24, 1909, showing payments to McAvity totalling $35,933. Dr. Daniel proceeded to summarize the case thus: In June, 1905, Mayes put in a tender for certain dredging in St. John harbor for 49c. per cubic yard.

"But he says 50 cents," interposed Mr. Pugsley.

"I know it is so spoken of," replied Dr. Daniel. "Even the Minister himself spoke of it as 50 cents, but the tender was really for 49 cents." That tender, he continued, was not accepted. Then Mayes appealed to Dr. Pugsley, at that time Attorney-General of New Brunswick, who had advised him to apply to George McAvity.

Then Mayes and McAvity came to Ottawa, saw the then Minister of Public Works, Mr. Hyman, talked over prices, etc., with him, and on the strength of those interviews Mayes signed a contract with the Department of Public Works at 55c. per cubic yard, and also signed an agreement to pay McAvity the extra five cents per yard as already stated.

Mayes thought that agreement altogether one-sided, as he was to do the work, while McAvity got all the profit. McAvity's own affidavit showed he had no financial interest in the dredge.

"All his interest seems to have been that, for the consideration of five cents a yard, he gave his influence with the Department of Public Works to get the contract for Mayes," said Dr. Daniel.

After quoting the clause in the code against the taking of a fee to obtain any sort of grant from the Government, Dr. Daniel added: "Therefore, this $35,933 paid to McAvity was nothing but plain plunder of the public purse and undisguised robbery of the public treasury."

Dealing with the payment of $2,000 to Mr. Pugsley Dr. Daniel said the answer to that would be that it was for professional services. That would be perfectly legitimate and it would be an easy matter for Mr. Pugsley to bring those accounts before the committee.

Dr. Daniel referred to the Emmerson resignation and read Sir Wilfrid Laurier's letter to that gentleman, in which he said his action was in the public interest. Parliament must take some notice of Mayes, and he therefore submitted a resolution asking for an enquiry.

The Minister of Public Words replied. Dr. Pugsley asked for the original Mayes' affidavit. Dr. Daniel sent it to him. Dr. Pugsley complained that this was not the original affidavit sworn to on Oct. 12, 1908.

Proceeding, the Minister of Public Works said that the purpose of the first affidavit was to make the people wrongfully believe.

Dr. Daniel attempted to be heard in protest against this implication, but Dr. Pugsley kept the floor and for some minutes there was disorder, in which several objections were taken and charges and questions flew thick and fast. Then Mr. Speaker said:

"I earnestly appeal to both sides of the House to assist me in maintaining the rules which make for the honor and credit of the House and in discharging the duties which pertain to my office. I hope I shall have the support of both sides in maintaining the dignity and decorum of debate."

Mr. Pugsley then went on to point out that the original affidavit of Mayes being dated 1907, implied that the Department had paid money to him when he was Minister of Public Works. The document showed now that the date had been changed to "1905," so that the first affidavit was false.

If there was any evidence to support a charge, Mr. Pugsley invited Dr. Daniel to make it. That was the proper and manly course, but it was neither manly nor honorable to seek to destroy the character of a public man when he was not prepared to submit to a direct charge. Dr. Daniel insisted that the words "neither honorable nor manly," be withdrawn, but Mr. Pugsley denied having made use of them. Mr. Speaker ruled the expression unparliamentary.

Then the Minister said Dr. Daniel had made insinuations against his character. Dr. Daniel said he made no insinuations. He had simply read the affidavit. "I think the Minister should accept this statement," said Mr. Speaker.

"That's it, coax him to take it back, coax him, coax him," yelled Sam Hughes above the din.

Mr. Speaker rebuked the colonel for this, observing that he wasn't taking orders from the member for Victoria. There were numerous interruptions here, but Mr. Pugsley finally got well going again. He declared that, contrary to the Mayes' affidavit, there were two tenders for the dredging each time and that Mayes was lower than the other, Haney & Miller.

There would be no action for the recovery of the rake-off unless it could be shown that there had been collusion between Mayes and McAvity and the then Minister, and such was not charged.

Dr. Pugsley then told how Mayes wanted to make a new contract but the Minister had kept him at the work.

Finally Mayes had wanted to get out of the dredging business, and offered to sell his dredge to the Government for $150,000, intimating that if he got the price he would contribute $20,000 to the Liberal campaign fund and if he didn't he would publish documents most damaging to the Liberal party.

It was with sorrow the Minister of Public Works was obliged to say that there were people in this country who sought to advance their interests not by building themselves up, but by attempting to destroy their opponents by false statements and slanderous attacks. Of such were the bogus Gouin telegram, the forged Borden telegram in Victoria, and the false Mayes affidavit, but the people had spoken and the Government's vindication was complete.

Dr. Pugsley admitted he had made mistakes in his time, but they were mistakes of head rather than of heart. He had always striven to do his duty, especially since he had come into the Federal arena.

Mr. Crockett replied to the Minister asking him why he objected to the manner of bringing the charges if he was innocent.

PRIEST STARTS A FATAL RIOT

Mexico City, April 16.—Rioting occurred at Velardena, a mining camp in Coahuila, 32 men being killed and many injured. The trouble was instigated by Father Ramon Valenzuela, parish priest, it is asserted, who lies in a hospital hovering between life and death. Fourteen of the rioters were executed by troops.

The fighting occurred when the mayor attempted to stop a religious procession headed by the village priest, the laws of Mexico forbidding such parades. A thousand parishioners followed the priest, wishing to witness the annual burning of Judas and when the orders of the mayor became known the mob stoned and later burned the house of the mayor, and then started on a general rampage.

Father Valenzuela was arrested. One of his followers smuggled a knife to his cell and the priest stabbed himself six times.

Scientists Cannot Incorporate.

Quebec, April 16—The Upper House of the Legislature killed yesterday the bill to incorporate the first congregation of Christ Scientists in this province, situated in Montreal.

The leaders of both political parties supported the measure, but the rank and file, headed by the medical men in the House, and their friends, killed the measure by their opposition to the principles of faith cures, supporting themselves on extracts read by them from Mrs. Eddy's writings.

FAMILY ARRESTED

Farmer Near Orangeville Says His Own Relations Threatened Him.

Orangeville, April 16.—As the result of information laid by James Johnston, a well-known and wealthy farmer of Mulmer Township, near Lavender, five members of his own family are now in jail here, charged with threatening to injure the person and property of the informant. They are:

Mrs. Tod Jane Johnston, his wife, aged 70.
Jane Johnston, daughter, aged 37.
David Johnston, son, aged 23.
Albert Edward Johnston, aged 25.
James Johnston, son, aged 27.

Constables William Laverty, Joseph White and George Waltam encountered many difficulties in arresting them, and it was only after a struggle that the informant's wife was handcuffed. Three men were necessary to hold her down.

The constables found the two women in a nude state and it was with difficulty that they found enough in the house to dress them before bringing them to town.

Not quite as much difficulty was encountered with the other members of the family, but several attempts were made by the son on the journey to town to escape.

Inquest Perhaps on Tuesday.

Toronto, April 16.—There is a possibility of the Kinrade murder inquest being brought on next Tuesday instead of Thursday evening, as the crown has some 30 witnesses yet to call, and it will be impossible to hear them all at one sitting, and it is likely that several more sessions will have to be held.

Brown was fishing on Round Pond near here, fell asleep in his boat and was carried out into the lake. Word was sent to the life-saving station, and Capt. Forbes manned the boat with his crew. After four hours' fighting, they had to give up.

WHEAT TAKES BIG TUMBLE DROPS MORE THAN SIX CENTS

James A. Patton, Leader of the Bulls in Chicago Pit, After Titanic Struggle in Which He Buys Three Million Bushels for July Delivery.

Chicago, April 16.—It was a day of tumult and sharply shifting fortunes in the wheat pit of the Board of Trade yesterday. July wheat following a docile advance to a new high level, suddenly dropped an extreme 4 3-8 cents. The "pyramider" fortunes of small speculators vanished in a trice and the day was saved from rout only by the vigorous exertions of the bull leader, James A. Patten.

Within the last fifteen minutes of trading Mr. Patten bought 3,000,000 bushels of wheat for July delivery, while he chewed the stub of a cigar and ran his fingers reflectively through the unshaven grey stubble which there had been no time to remove from his face.

"Nothing but a flurry," he said, but that was after the turbulent pit had been deserted for the day.

The speculative day on the board opened without indications of the sensation to come. May and July wheat quietly rose to new high prices, the former to $1.29 1-4, and the latter to $1.18 7-8. The July price was the highest since 1877, when a European war exhausted reserves, but neither mark created unusual comment.

It was fifteen to twenty minutes before closing time when the selling tornado hit the pit.

Here Patten purchases made their influences felt and the close of the season found July at $115 5-8 to 3-4; May at $1.27 1-2 to 5-8, and September at $1.06 1-4.

Winnipeg, April 16.—For a time yesterday morning it looked as though the long-expected slump in wheat prices had come and the bottom had fallen right out of the market. Pandemonium reigned in the trading pit, and scenes unprecedented in the history of the local exchange were witnessed. Eleventh-hour speculators found themselves at the tender mercies of the bears, and they got a squeezing they will not soon forget.

FALSE ALARMISTS CAUSE ANNOYANCE AT FIRE HALL

The false alarms are coming to the fire hall with altogether too great frequency. Last night at two minutes to nine an alarm was rung in from box 42 at the corner of Dublin and George streets. When the brigade responded it was found that the alarm was a false one.

Several false alarms have been sent in recently and if the offenders are caught an example will certainly be made of them. A reward of $25 is offered for information leading to the conviction of any persons sending in false alarms.

C.P.R. TACKLES MR. JIM HILL

Winnipeg, April 16.—The Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to invade North Dakota in competition with the Hill lines.

It is announced that the road will at once extend its branch, which now ends at Mowbray, in southern Manitoba, to Dakota, to connect with the Soo line. The Soo line also will be extended to Brandon, Manitoba, giving a direct line from Brandon to Minneapolis, running parallel and between two Hill lines, which now run into Manitoba, one ending at Brandon, and the other at Portage la Prairie.

This follows Hill's announced intention of building an air line into Winnipeg from the boundary and of building extensive terminals here.

LATEST NEWS AS TOLD IN DESPATCHES

Four Men Drowned.

Glace Bay, N.B., April 16.—Four men, Michael Driver, Geo. Hancock, Harry Gardiner and William McLeod, were drowned yesterday off Big Glace Bay by the capsizing of a boat. Another, Thomas Wrench, was rescued in an unconscious condition, and has not yet sufficiently revived to give an account of how the accident occurred. Two of the men were found tangled up in the sail, and the remaining three discovered a short distance from where the accident happened, and about three-quarters of a mile from shore. The water is quite shallow. Driver leaves a wife and seven children.

Windsor, April 16.—Crown Attorney Rodd has applied for extradition papers for W. D. C. Moebs, a wealthy Detroiter, on a charge of robbing and endangering the life of Miss Celeste Lootens, now of this city.

She claims that while in company with Moebs at a roadhouse in Sandwich West Township, he attacked her, threatening her life with a revolver and choking her, and that Moebs grabbed some valuable jewelry from her. She found it unsafe to remain in Detroit and has taken up her residence here. Moebs has engaged counsel to fight against extradition.

THE CANADIAN HOG

The Canadian hog is in the background. The last issue of Farm and Dairy makes him the subject of its cover-page cartoon. He is made to stand in the background while the Danish and the Irish hog is feeding in the British bacon market. It exemplifies the present condition of Canada's foreign bacon trade. We have been ousted from our high position held in the British market by the countries named. Cheese and butter have also experienced a serious setback. The trade of Canada is no longer a theme of such self-complacent rejoicing as it was a year or two ago. The deficit in revenue of 11 1-2 millions is somewhat serious most people will admit.

THE C. N. R. GRANT OF LAND

When asked if he had seen the official declaration of the executive committee of the Dominion Grange signed by Messrs. Drury and Lethbridge with reference to the grant offered to the Canadian Northern Railway, Sir James Whitney replied:

"Yes; and I am concerned with one statement made by these gentlemen. They say, 'We look upon the proposal to grant the company one acre in every eight of the 16 million acres clay belt as wanton and wicked waste of the people's heritage and one which, by tying up in the hands of a private corporation large blocks of land to which prospective settlers have free access is bound to work untold injury. Now this suggestion or statement that large blocks of land to which prospective settlers have free access will be tied up in the hands of a private corporation is absolutely untrue.

"No person who has read the statute will make such a statement. As these gentlemen did not, of course, intend to deliberately deceive the public, it is clear that they are ignorant of the provisions of the act, in which there is not a word justifying their statement. Under it not an acre can be tied up. The Government is to settle the time of sale and the price of the land which has to be sold besides which, the settler gets everything on the land except what is reserved to the Government. This means that the pine is reserved but that the settler gets every other description of timber including all pulp wood.

"Perhaps Messrs. Drury and Lethridge are not aware that at the last moment Messrs Mackenzie and Mann were about to refuse the grant for reasons as to which they were presumably good judges."

THE G. T. P. LOAN

1. The Governor in Council may, upon the terms and conditions herein provided, advance by way of loan to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company (hereinafter called "the Company") a sum not exceeding ten million dollars, for the purpose of aiding the company in the completion of the construction of the Prairie Section of the Western Division of the National Transcontinental Railway, as defined in section 5 of Article One of the schedule of this Act, and the sum so advanced shall bear interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum, payable half-yearly, and shall be repayable in ten years from the time the moneys are advanced, or if advanced in instalments, then in ten years from the time the first of such instalments is advanced.

2. The sum advanced under the authority of this Act, whether in one instalment or several instalments, shall be advanced upon the pledge of an issue of bonds to be made by the Company as collateral security for the payment of such sum and interest, and the principal amount of the bonds received in pledge shall equal the sum advanced.

The above sections one and two are from the Act to Authorise a Loan to the G. T. P. The exact wording enables disputants to prevent efforts to explain this bagless transaction by means of suppositions and the like. It will be observed that it is a loan on bonds. The bonds of the G. T. P. having become a drug on the market, it was necessary, if this ten millions was to be raised, that some other market should be found. Moreover, it is not a loan on any particular bonds, but upon bonds that are to be issued. This opens the door of opportunity with a smile. As a matter of fact, that sum and others yet to come will never come back or be repaid, but will form the contribution of the public taxpayers of Canada to the fortunes of the managers of the G. T. P. This all is called business. So it is. It is excellent business for the G.T.P., and gives one an idea what is in store for us in the future.

VIBRO-MASSAGE IN THE HOSPITALS

"The managers of London hospitals are gradually introducing the system of vibro-massage into their different institutions," says the Western Mail. "Since it became known that his Majesty the King was a great believer in this system, and that he had the most up-to-date apparatus installed at Windsor and Buckingham Palace, persons suffering from rheumatism, neuritis, and similar diseases have taken up the system with much, and, I believe, profitable, enthusiasm. In the hospitals the system is found to be not only successful, but economical. Instead of outdoor patients coming at the commencement of the week with an empty quart bottle and taking away this full of rheumatic mixture, which, after one or two doses have been taken, is generally thrown away, they now receive application to the affected part from the apparatus, and are greatly benefitted, if not permanently cured. The apparatus is not an expensive one, and the system is well worth a trial by public institutions throughout the country."

A FRENCH-CANADIAN ENTHUSIAST

From the Huntingdon Gleaner

"Pour la Patrie," by J. P. Tardivel, is the title of a book published by Darome & Calvdeux, Montreal.

This is a political novel giving the author's views as to public affairs and the ends he considers will be attained. With him there are only two parties in Canada, on one side, the Church of Rome; on the other all who are opposed to it. The party in favor of the Church is very good—the party opposed to it is inconceivably bad. The latter party is represented to control the Dominion Government, and its aim is to overthrow the Catholic Church and the blotting out of the French race. Those working to do this are not all Protestants. It is represented there by worse beings than Protestants in Canada, namely Free Masons. In fact the author has a contempt for Protestantism which is a mere pretence of religion for it is only a step towards atheism. It has, it seems, such so low that it is now on its last legs, and is not worth the attention of the priesthood. Left alone it will soon dwindle away by natural decay. What the priests have to fear are the Free Masons. They are agnostics, unbelievers, who, if they worship anything, worship the devil. It is they who are the leaders in the movement to overthrow the papacy in Canada and blot out the French race. One chapter gives an account of a meeting in a Free Masonal lodge.

How the author came to know of the doings he describes he does not tell us, but he sets them forth with elaborate detail. The subject considered by the members is the overthrow of everything French and Catholic. Reports are made of progress and then consultations as to what is next to be done. The work is not going on as quickly as they would wish, and to secure help the lodge decides to call up the devil. On the floor of the lodge there is an altar; living fire is started on it, and the members gather around in worship of the evil one. While prostrate before the unholy light on the altar the devil comes forth, and enters freely into conversation. He is told what has been done and of the obstacles that still exist. The devil advises them how to accomplish their purpose, encourages perseverance and disappears. Just when the Free Masons are about to consummate the plot, it is revealed. A French-Canadian who, in an evil hour, joined the Free Masons, repents, confesses the plot to his old priest and arranges to get copies of the Masonic documents. These the priest takes to the archbishop of Montreal, who, realising the danger, consults with the Jesuit fathers. When the Masons find they have been betrayed, they commission a member to follow the traitor, which he does, and stabs him to the heart under the shadow of the Jesuit church on Fleury street. Their plot discovered the archbishop, aided by the Jesuits, takes steps to defeat it and the plot fails at every point with the result that the Dominion Government consents to Quebec, leaving the Confederation which is forthwith proclaimed as a French republic under the care and direction of the Church of Rome, and becomes the glory of America. This is the merest outline of the book, which abounds in episodes, involving many characters, both men and women. The Jesuits are ever present, and are depicted, as the champions of French nationality and as more than a match for the Free Masons and the devil. The author then tells his purpose in writing the book:

> "God has planted in the heart of every French Canadian patriot a flower of hope, which is the aspiration for the establishment of New France upon the banks of the St. Lawrence, whose mission it will be to continue in this land the work of Christian civilization which Old France pursued with such glory through a long series of centuries."

The realization of the French Catholic Republic is certain, but it can be hastened by work.

It is not to be achieved with folded arms, there must be steady effort. Laziness is no faith in God, and the book is written to cause those who believe in a free and regenerated Quebec to active exertion. The author says:

> "To reach the rank which Providence has appointed us among the nations it is necessary that we return to the spirit of our ancestors, giving religion the first place. It is necessary that love of the French-Canadian country be united strictly to faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. The man whom God will use to constitute definitely a French-Canadian nation will be less a great organizer, an able politician, a fiery agitator, than a perfect Christian, who labors, sacrifices himself and prays.
> "Can we not see many expectations that the past has justified, aspirations realized towards the future which Providence reserves for us, the accomplishment of our national destiny. I ardently aspire to the triumph of the French race upon this corner of the earth which Providence has allotted it."

Is it asked, why give space to notice of such a book? The reason is this, the legislature of Quebec has voted the money to buy five hundred copies of it for distribution as a prize among the pupils. A book which is steeped in bigotry, which is a shameful libel on Protestants, an absurd perversion of Free Masonry, and teaches in every page that the duty of French-Canadians is to cut the tie that binds them to Britain and to the Confederation, and to set up a French-Catholic republic on the banks of the St. Lawrence, is thus put in the hands of innocent children who will believe every word at the expense of the taxpayers. Is there not cause for protest? Ten thousand dollars to erect a statue to Mercier, 500 copies of a seditious and intolerant book bought with public money. Are these not indications which tell what the men at Quebec cherish in their hearts and what they are preparing to do when opportunity comes?

EDITORIAL NOTES

A new club has been formed in London, embracing all the members both clerical and lay, of the Lamiglia Pontificia, or all those who hold titles in the gift of the Holy Father. It has been named "The Pontifical Court Club."—The Catholic Register.

"There is no place in theology for the casuistry which permits a political thief to retain his ill-gotten goods. The moral teaching which opens a loophole to the boodler and grafter is on a par with those legal technicalities which enable them to escape the penitentiary."—The Catholic Register.

"I suppose Dr. Carman is so busy looking after the Rev. Mr. Jackson and other Higher Critics that he has no time to keep an eye on the growing mass of literature which in our day has ceased connecting morality with any form of religious creed, and practically ignores all religious tradition as only the survival of an obsolete point of view destined to perish gently in the growth of scientific and humanitarian ideals of life."—Prof. Cappon, Queen's University.

If ever, after all, the somewhat prevalent idea, that the work of a parliamentary session is more or less perfunctory in character, had any foundation in fact, there was nothing to strengthen it in the session that will have closed before our readers read this page. The labor has been brisk and strenuous throughout, and though no special interest was at stake, results of a general nature, have been arrived at that must in time spell betterment for province and people.—The Catholic Register.

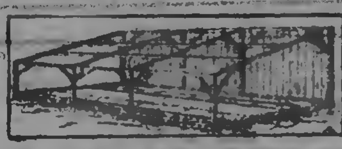
Farm and Garden

INEXPENSIVE HOTHOUSE.

Practical Structure For the Farm or Suburban Residence.

All farmers and their families, as well as people who live in the suburbs, are interested in hothouses. The illustrations in this article are nearly self explaining, the principal feature being the heating system. The cut showing the exposed framework also shows two trenches excavated the entire length of the house. These trenches are walled with stone, brick or portland cement concrete. The front end, however, must be made of brick and also covered with brick at least eight feet from the outer end. The inside dimensions are about 12 by 14 inches. A tight fitting iron door is bricked in and the remaining portion of the trench finished with stone or cement. Thin stone may be used to cover the top, or cement slabs may be molded. A galvanized iron or brick smoke flue is built at the rear end and must be provided with a good, tight damper. The doors may be secured of any foundry and are not at all expensive. The furnace and smoke flue must be as near air tight as possible, and no trouble will be found in holding the heat at almost any temperature between 70 and 103 degrees. A stick of cord wood placed on a live bed of coals will hold the heat at 100 for twelve hours or more.



FRAMEWORK FOR HOTHOUSE.

For a hothouse fifteen to eighteen feet wide two of these furnaces are used, and the fire doors may be outside or have a roof over them, as suits your fancy. Compared to steam or hot water heat, the cost to install this system is very small, and the expense to operate will be still smaller. The south, east and west sides and ends are of glass. The north side is boarded up and down with boxing or stock boards, these covered with two or three layers of tar building paper, and the paper in turn covered with drop siding. The gable ends are finished in the same manner. The north ends, also the gables, have several nail ties for the boxing not shown in the drawing.

The posts for this structure are of 4 by 4 and about six feet at the low side and seven and a half to eight feet at the highest point. The posts are sixteen feet on centers and well braced, as shown.

Regular hotbed and storm sash are used for the sides and roof, as they may be secured ready glazed for less than a carpenter can make the open sash. As shown on the roof, the sashes are placed as shingles are laid, and all are fastened to the timbers with heavy screws, but each alternate sash of the top section is hung on hinges and arranged to be held open with long iron hooks. The sashes on the ends and sides are also hung on hinges, and each alternate sash opens out at the bottom. The cracks between the sashes are covered with O. G. battens, and a small one-quarter inch groove, cut three-eighths of an inch from the edges of sash, catches any water that may blow under the battens, and the same is carried down on the lower sash. It is needless to say that this house should have a good foundation and all woodwork kept well painted. Curtains must be so arranged under the glass that the operator may at will exclude the sun's rays. If not so arranged the tender vegetables are very likely to be burned up.

HOTHOUSE COMPLETE.

Kerosene Emulsion.

To make kerosene emulsion boil one-half pound soap in one gallon of water and when boiling add two gallons of kerosene. Remove from the fire and churn vigorously for ten minutes, using for the purpose a hand force pump, or for small lots shake the material together in a pail or can. When the emulsion has a milky appearance cool it and add from ten to fifteen gallons of water. For the scale the preparation should be used with not over ten gallons of water to the quantity stated. In winter spraying for San Jose scale trees will stand a stronger spray, and the scalecide solution or the lime sulphur mixture is used.

Tightening Fences.

For tightening barbed or other wire in long lengths the farm wagon is a very handy and efficient tool. One of the rear wheels is raised from the ground, and the wire is passed once around the hub and fastened to a spoke of the wheel. The wagon is then braced by any suitable means and the wheel turned in the manner of the mariner's wheel. In this way a pull of a hundred pounds on the tire will exert a force of 400 or 500 pounds on the wire.

Thos. Inglesney, a fireman on the steamer Celtic, was drowned in Vinegar harbor.

HAVELOCK WILL ALWAYS BE A TERMINAL POINT

So Says General Superintendent Oborne—Board of Trade of That Village Interview High Official and Receive Assurances of Permanency

Special to the Review.

Havelock, April 14.—A deputation from the Board of Trade consisting of President Thomas Bennett, Secretary J. P. Wright and Mr. S. S. Joyce accompanied by Reeve Jos. Knox and Councillors George Phillips and Thomas Wood met General Superintendent Jas. Osborne and Superintendent J. R. Nelson of the C.P.R. Co. at Peterborough, on Good Friday, in Mr. Osborne's private car, and interviewed those officials regarding certain matters of importance to Havelock and its interests.

The members of the deputation were received with great cordiality by Mr. Osborne and Mr. Nelson and were informed that the company's operations in Havelock this year would be quite extensive. It was their intention to expend twenty or twenty-five thousand dollars in improving their yard facilities. The new track to the West End semaphore, for which the town council granted permission to cross Concession street last week is intended to serve as a lead for all the sidings at the west end of the yard. This work will also necessitate the abolition of the old cattle sheds at that point to make room for moving the sidings further south and when completed, the Havelock yard will be one of the most up-to-date terminals on the line.

Speaking of the Company's water supply here Mr. Osborne stated that he thought the present supply controlled by a new dam erected last fall would be sufficient for some years yet but that should at any time prove insufficient, it would be an easy matter to secure an unlimited supply by laying a pipe line to Trent River.

In discussing the Victoria Harbor grain route he said the directors had informed him that the line could be constructed far cheaper by building it direct to Havelock and that it would be in the interests of the Company to adopt that course instead of joining the present road at Peterborough. He would not commit himself to any definite statement as to which survey would finally be adopted but told them to go home contented; that Havelock would always remain a terminal point on the Company's system and that he was much pleased to see that the Board of Trade and the Council had take much action as would lead to better relations and understanding with the company the officials of which by the way, recognized that they had created Havelock that it was one of their children and that its interests were their interests.

The deputation are greatly delighted with the assurances given by Mr. Osborne and with the courtesy with which they were received.

KING OUTLINES PRINCE'S CAREER

London, April 15—Kind Edward, before he left for Biarritz, sketched in broad outline the career he intends his eldest grandson, Prince Edward of Wales, to follow. It is probably not generally known that His Majesty has really charge of the education of the young prince, who some day, in the natural order of things, is destined to occupy the throne.

It is not expected that Prince Edward will return to the Royal Naval College at Osborne after the Easter vacation.

He will probably be sent to the senior Naval College at Dartmouth for a year or a little longer, a portion of this time being spent on a seagoing cruise.

The prince will then do some reading under carefully selected coaches, in view of his future university career but this will be interrupted in order that following the precedent in the case of his father and the late Duke of Clarence, he may make a tour of the outlying portions of the empire, accompanied in all probability by his younger brother Prince Albert.

Small boys smoking burned a brick stable with three horses and damaged Mrs. Drew's residence at Guelph.

Bread in Montreal will be advanced one cent a small loaf.

A rate war is likely between the Hamilton and Waterloo breweries.

George Bennett fractured his skull by jumping from a Vancouver street car.

FOR THE GAS STOVE.

New Cooking Utensils That Are a Joy to Use.

Judging from the number of cooking utensils to be used over gas, it appears as if the kitchen stove would soon become a thing of the past.

Among the latest inventions for gas stoves is the waffle iron. It fits into a frame underneath which the gas is turned on.

A good sized iron that is divided into four quarters, making three corner shaped cakes, is $1.10. There are French waffle irons that make four or more small cakes that cost $1.75, $2.50 and $3. Each size comes with a frame to fit.

Then there is a new steamer that will cook an entire dinner over one burner. There are four vessels, each setting into each other, made from tin with an excellent copper bottom.

The water is placed in the first one and put on over the gas stove. When the water boils the food to be cooked can be put in. The odor from one pot cannot escape to the other, and a dinner consisting of a chicken, potatoes, beans and apple dumpling (boiled) can be cooked at one time over the same burner with the latter turned off half way.

In using this boiler the chicken is placed in the pan next the water, then the potatoes in the third, setting on a wire rack, which comes (15 cents extra) for keeping them dry and mealy, and lastly the apple dumplings.

It is not necessary that all the pots shall be used—two, three or four, as meets one's needs. But it is extremely necessary that the little cap shall be placed on the tube of the last pot; otherwise the cooking will be a failure, as the steam will escape.

This vessel comes in four different sizes and costs from $1.75 to $3.50, according to size.

By its use food cannot burn, of course, and as a fuel saver it has no equal. Nickel frying pans, especially good for use over gas, are delightfully clean looking and exceedingly strong, as the nickel is over iron. A medium sized pan in this style may be bought for 65 cents. Large sizes sell for more.

When it comes to the question of buying a roasting pan it is quite a problem, for there are so many good ones. The seamless are supposed to be best, and there are a number of these which include also the self basting feature. One style in iron which has an extra tray or rack inside the ventilated cover is only $1 and is of a reliable quality. Then there is another style similar to the first in merit, but has glazed iron, which makes washing and scouring easier. These are $1.25 to $1.50.

Then there are agate self basting pans and enameled pans that do the same service, and really all are excellent in their way.

Though a number of new griddlecake pans have been introduced, there is nothing, I am told, to beat the soapstone models. The aluminium ones are practical, but are expensive, and, while iron is satisfactory, it is apt to make the house smell of cooking and is not as clean looking as some of the others, so that, all in all, the soapstone is conceded to be the best kind.

DEMOCRATIC PEERS.

The House of Peers Not One of Birth or Ancestry.

Strangely enough, the house of lords still remains the most democratic institution in England. It may still claim for itself to be the Witenagemot, or gathering of wise men, and one wonders why it does not defend itself along those lines.

It is not a house of birth or ancestry, for it is composed today to an overwhelming extent of successful men from almost every walk of life. No one cares a fig what a man's ancestry was in this matter of fact land if he succeeds, if he becomes rich and powerful.

The mother of the great Queen Elizabeth was the daughter of a plain English gentleman.

A pot girl of Westminster married the master of the pothouse. After his death she consulted a lawyer named Hyde. Mr. Hyde married her. Mr. Hyde afterward became lord chancellor, with the title of Lord Clarendon, and his wife, the former pot girl, bore him a daughter. This daughter married the Duke of York and became the mother of Mary and Anne Stewart, both afterward queens of England.

It is evident that if queens of England may have a barmaid for grandmother lesser mortals need not fret on the subject of ancestry.

The Englishman would not be what he is nor would he in the least be transmitting his very valuable Saxon heritage if he gave up his democratic custom of an aristocracy of power for the feeble continental custom of an aristocracy of birth. What the one and the other is today answers the question as to the relative merits of the two systems without need of discussion. The English, though nowadays many of them do not know it themselves, are the most democratic of all nations.

William the Conqueror divided England among the commanders of his army and conferred about twenty earldoms. Not one of these exists today, nor do any of the honors conferred by William Rufus, 1087-1100; Henry I., 1100-1135; Stephen, 1135-1154; Henry II., 1154-1189; Richard I., 1189-1199; or John, 1199-1216.

His Mean Way.

"Henry asked you if you had made that cake, did he? Well, what was there in that to wound your feelings, child?"

"It was the—the way he said it, mamma. He—he didn't ask m-me if I'd made it. He—he said, 'Darling, d-did you perpetrate this cake?'"

And Went.

"When I leave you tonight"— began Mr. Stoplate.

"Goodness!" interrupted Miss Teesleep. "Are you coming again tonight?"

He glanced at the clock and apprehended her meaning.—Exchange.

There is always reason in the man for his good or bad fortune.—Emerson.

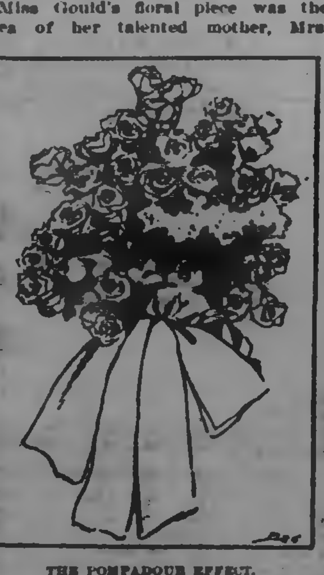
MISS GOULD'S BOUQUET.

A Novel Bunch of Flowers Designed by Mrs. Gould.

What promises to become one of the greatest fads in society is the new floral piece, "La Pompadour," such as was carried by Miss Marjorie Gould at her coming out dinner and dance at the Hotel Plaza. The creation, which consists of American Beauty roses, ferns and lilies of the valley, was made by Alex McConnell, society florist of New York city.

La Pompadour is a loose bunch of flowers arranged in pyramidal form, standing about two feet in height. It required much effort on the part of the young debutante to carry it.

Miss Gould's floral piece was the idea of her talented mother, Mrs. George Gould. She wished for something elegant, but plain, and with the aid of Mr. McConnell designed La Pompadour.



THE POMPADOUR EFFECT.

Bordering the roses is a fringe of lilies of the valley that falls over a ruche of blush pink chiffon spangles with crystal dewdrops. This is fitted into a holder of lace made of blush chiffon on which a lace design is painted in white. The latter is puffed and shirred and has the artistic French touch, which makes the new creation one of the most exquisite floral designs known. Tied around the stem is a broad pink satin ribbon, veiled with dewdrop chiffon, making a big bow with long ends.

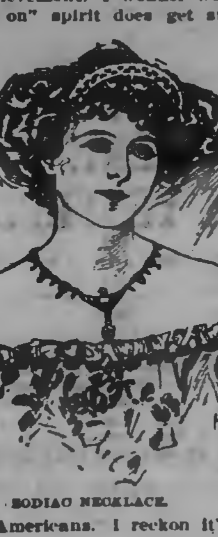
DECORATING HINTS.

An Artistic Bedroom Done In Gray and Pink.

A REAL STROKE OF GENIUS.

Tidies Again the Vogue In Smart New York Homes—The Zodiac Necklace Is the Thing to Conjure With. Handicraft Work.

My Dear Elsa.—I have just come back from a week end spent with Elinor N. You know the N.'s have recently finished their new house at Short Hills, and when they are not exploring all the unexplored regions of the globe they will be located at this delightful colonial abode, situated in one of Jersey's most exclusive spots. The place will be in the market a year from now, I am absolutely certain, but for the time being they are perfectly bewitched with their latest architectural achievement. I wonder why the "moving on" spirit does get such a grip on Americans. I reckon it's because we are so bent upon improving ourselves we just can't rest. We certainly do lack repose as a nation; but, as the English complacently hint, we'll "arrive" when we get over the novelty of having barrels of money to dispose of as the whim seizes us. But I haven't time this morning to moralize, for I must tell you about Elinor's bedroom, which is the sweetest thing you ever imagined. Titania's bower, Mrs. George Gould's famous boudoir at Georgian Court, the magnificent Lakewood palace, isn't a patch on this apartment in point of artistic conception. I couldn't shut my little peepers in such a beauty spot. The wonder of it would keep me awake. Raving, as usual! Now, listen to how it's "done" and you'll rave with me.



ZODIAC NECKLACE.

To begin with, the room is a good sized square apartment. I loathe a great barn of a bedroom, don't you? It started out for a "square deal," but got sidetracked at one end, where a slightly bowed diamond paned window breaks up the architectural precision. Under Elinor's supervision—you know she's artistic to the finger tips—a New York interior artist, a woman by the way, did the decorating. A gray and pink scheme was selected, and to carry out the misty, hazy atmosphere that was planned to float o'er this Eden the floor was first painted and then enameled a soft French gray and partly covered with a square rug of silvery gray green wilton. The walls were hung with a pale gray cartridge paper suggesting the tone of the floor. Now comes evidence of the divine afflatus possessed by the decorator.

Departing from the commonplace frieze, this original craftswoman ran a stiff border of pink hollyhocks immediately under the place dedicated to this piece of mural decoration. Where the frieze wasn't, to be Irish, was a blurry effect in grays that melted into the ceiling, rather indicating the gathering of a storm with the sun shining through. On either side of the dressing table, which was of gray enameled satinwood, were arranged silver candelabra in branch style, fitted with electric light, softened by shades in the form of pink hollyhocks. The single bed was of the same wood; also a small colonial table, on which were placed the night light of silver, with hollyhock shade, and a few of Elinor's favorite books bound in gray suede. Talking about genius, it surely was burning when it came to the dressing up of this bed. A spread and bolster roll of white handkerchief linen edged with deep cluny lace and embroidered with a row of the pink hollyhocks was designed for this particular couch and carried into effect.

Have I told you why the old kitchen garden flower was selected as a motif? No? How stupid, for hereby hangs a tale! You should and must know that the decorators imported just two patterns of a French cretonne in gray besprinkled with the dear, stiff old posies; and one of these lengths Elinor annexed and had her couch, easy chairs and window seat upholstered in it. Naturally the blossoms became the theme of the furnishings. But, to come back to the spread, when it was laid on the bed it became a whited sepulcher, and, as an editor friend of mine says, "it hit one in the eye." Something had to be done. Sleepless nights ensued for Elinor and the interior decorator. Like Sentimental Tommy, they "found a why," and such a funny way! It was decided the spread had to be dyed a pale gray, the right sort of nuance to tone in with the other effects. But how get it? I believe in "leadings," both in things divine and material, and an earthly manifestation took place in this instance. One evening Elinor had for the moment forgotten the spread and was getting ready for a dinner party. When her maid, frock in hand, was about to slip over her head a Worth creation she gracefully dodged the service, flew to a bundle of old newspapers that happened to be in the room and, while Marie looked on aghast, tore them up, tossed them in the basin and poured boiling water over them. Impatiently walking the floor for a second, she returned to the experiment, lifted the paper from the water with the aid of a toothbrush handle and gazed in ecstatic rapture at the grayish solution left in the basin. When Marie had brought her the spread and bolster roll milady gathered the embroidered part of the work up in her hands and dipped the rest of the linen in the water. After sousing the material up and down, behold a lovely tone of gray was the result! Satisfied with the undertaking, Elinor allowed herself to be dressed for the dinner and departed in high glee.

Next day the tidies were treated to the same kind of bath. Tidies, you say, who uses anything so antiquated? We up to date Gothamites do, my dear. They've been the smart caper all winter, but not the antimacassar of hideous English origin. No; the new affairs are of the sheerest handkerchief linen and are used merely on the arms of upholstered furniture. There were no pictures on the walls of this exquisite room. In fact, nothing of a pictorial nature was attempted save the portraits of the master of the house and Elinor's small girl, Kathleen, framed in dull silver, that were to be seen on the dressing table. At the bow window were sash curtains of gray brussels net and long hangings of cretonne lined with pink silk. The toilet things were of perfectly plain dull silver, each article decorated with a single hollyhock. When I tell you that the doors entering the boudoir and bath were of plate glass with dull silver knobs you can gather, I hope, a faint idea of the attractiveness of this room.

I know how fond you are of needlework, so when my hostess showed me a tea cloth she had just bought I took in all the points so I could pass them along. The cloth was a large oval affair of white handkerchief linen, measuring probably two yards around. A superb piece of handmade Russian lace was used as a finish. For about a depth of two feet at intervals around the cloth were the most natural stalks of wild carrot. The blossom part was worked in tufts of mercerized white cotton and the stalks and spiky leaves in a pale green. The flowers were raised so high and were so true to nature that one instinctively looked for the funny little black beauty spot that is to be found in all wild carrot flowers. Between the bunches of blossoms were medallions the size of a bread and butter plate of Russian lace. The whole thing was gorgeous and yet in perfect taste.

Hand wrought jewelry is the fad of the moment, and classes are being formed for courses of instruction during Lent, one of which I have joined, but all I expect to accomplish is a much battered up pair of hands. Some of the reproductions of ancient amulets and charms are stunning, and I spent all my last allowance the other day on a zodiac necklace, which is the latest thing to conjure with. Everybody nowadays has a fetich, a particular luck charm, which is supposed to ward off misfortune. My charm is an Egyptian one, the twelve signs of the zodiac, all in dull beaten metal, arranged to encircle the throat and connected in front with a sacred scarab, or Egyptian beetle with spread wings. Below the scarab hangs a little pendant showing the asp, another Egyptian charm. If your astral color and birthstone have played you false, let me know, and I'll lend you my necklace, and in the meantime believe me ever mostly sincerely yours, MABEL.

Crystallized Orange Peel.

Save all the orange skins from the table and throw them into a large crock filled with salt and water, about a cup of salt to a gallon. When it is full wash them in two or three waters, scraping out the white inside. Simmer gently, changing the water from time to time, till all trace of the salt disappears. Drain and with the scissors or a sharp knife cut into very narrow strips and weigh. For each pound allow a pound of sugar and a half cupful of water. Boil the sugar and water a moment, add the orange peel and simmer gently about thirty minutes or until tender.

Drain, roll each piece in granulated sugar and put on a platter covered with oiled paper to dry in the sun or on buttered tins in a slow oven.—Harper's Bazar.

The Sheepfarmers' Enemy.

Perhaps the deadliest foe of the Australian sheepfarmer is the eaglehawk, and many and wonderful are the contrivances invented for his destruction or capture. In a letter to hand by the current mail a correspondent at Singleton says it is no uncommon thing for a farmer with a run of quite average extent to lose a hundred sheep in a season through the depredations of these carnivorous birds. "Their strength," he writes, "is so abnormal that it is practically impossible for the sheep on which one pounces to resist the attack, and their appetite for live mutton appears to be insatiable. They are occasionally caught by means of a trap attached to the carcase of a sheep, and sometimes poisoned; but their numbers are, nevertheless, continually increasing. There is a fortune for the man who invents a means of dealing effectively with these pests."

BIBLE STUDY DISCUSSED AT BANQUET AT THE Y.M.C.A.

Splendid Address by Mr. R. C. Drum—A Helpful Discussion Among Those in Attendance—An Enjoyable and Successful Occasion.

The supper table conference on Bible study, held at the Y. M. C. A. last night, was most profitable and interesting. It was something new, and it took exceedingly well with those present. As a result some benefits are looked for. The feature of the evening was the address by Mr. C. R. Drum, of New York, who is here in the interests of the association.

Supper was served in the banquet hall at the Y.M.C.A. at about seven o'clock, and about fifty of the city's best men gathered round the festive board. The menu, which was furnished by Coleman Bros., included many appetizing dishes, and was all that could be desired.

Following the supper was Mr. Drum's address on Bible Study. He took up the value and necessity of Bible study, and suggested ways in which the church could use teh association in developing Bible study in fields that are not now used. Mr. Drum's address was a stirring one, and was closely followed by the interested gathering. Much information of value was received, and it will be acted upon.

Rev. Mr. Keith, of Knox church, spoke on the need of Bible study in relation to the church, and Mr. F. B. Warne on the need of Bible study in relation to the association.

Following the three addresses was an open discussion in which a large number took part on the best method of producing more efficient and a larger number of male teachers in the Sunday school. There is a dearth of male teachers, a condition which should not exist, and it is felt that if there were more men in the Sunday schools, and it is the intention of the association to take up this branch of the work.

The meeting passed a resolution whereby the religious committee of the association, in co-operation with the Sunday school superintendents and the pastors, will take up the matter of a male teachers' training class.

THREE SMALL BOATS WERE LOCKED THROUGH YESTERDAY

At the Peterborough locks three boats were let through. Two gasoline launches, one of which went down and two came up, and the Rob Roy were the first to navigate the river. The Otonabee Navigation Company's steamer Monarch is ready at Rice Lake and will be up on Saturday and the Rainbow is also expected up tomorrow.

On the Lakefield section the Government boat, Empire, is running between Lakefield and Young's Point, while on the Lakefield division, Baker's tugs have started bringing logs down from Scugog Lake.

The fourteen lighthouses on the Lindsay river are now being fixed up and will be ready next week for the season.

The ice is all out of the canal waterway, except in Clear Lake, but even that is no tvery bad and a steamer could navigate with a little trouble. It is not expected that the ice will last for more than a few days. Stony Lake is now practically clear as are also the other lakes and rivers further up the canal south to Rice Lake, there is no more ice than there is in summer.

All the navigation companies are busy with their boats getting them ready and it is anticipated that the freighters as well as the passenger boats will have a busy season.

A DISTINGUISHED VISITOR MR. JOHN B. SLEMAN, JR.

It is not generally known that Durham county has more than a passing interest in the Laymen's Missionary Movement, the object of which is to evangelize the world in 25 years. Mr. John B. Sleman, jr., of Washington, D.C., who received one of the most enthusiastic receptions accorded any speaker at the National Missionary Congress in Toronto recently is a son of a former resident of Darlington and a clerk in F. Y. Cowle's store—Mr. John B. Sleman of the Government Civil Service at Washington—brother of the late Wm. Sleman of Haydon, Ont. Mr. John B. Sleman jr., who is the founder of the Layman's Missionary Movement visited his cousin, Mr. John Sleman, Haydon, for a day or two and a few citizens were given the pleasure of meeting him in Bowmanville on Wednesday April 7, when Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Trewin, Wellington street, gave a dinner in honor of their cousin's visit to this town. Those present were Mr. John B. Sleman, jr., Washington; Mr. John Sleman Haydon; His Worship Mayor Mason, Rev. John Garbutt, Principal John Elliott, Messrs. C. M. Cawker, T. C. Jewell and M. A. James.

Mr. Sleman is a gentleman of broad vision and is full of missionary enthusiasm. He was one of the fifty Americans who went at their own expense to China, Japan, India and other countries to study the missionary problem and being an intelligent observer and well versed in national affairs it was an opportunity highly prized to meet Mr. Sleman and spend an evening in his company. By request of Pastor Garbutt he has promised to visit Canada again at his earliest convenience and address our citizens on the subject on which he is an acknowledged authority and leader.—Bowmanville Statesman.

EAST CITY MAN IN COURT ON CHARGE OF ASSAULT

A resident of Ashburnham was this morning charged at the Police Court with having attempted to assault a little girl on Wednesday afternoon and her mother on Thursday morning.

The Magistrate reserved judgment until Friday morning, April 23rd.

The little girl was first called and stated the particulars which was to the effect that the defendant called at the home and asked for some clothes which the mother had been washing for him. On being told that the mother was away, the defendant stated that he would call again and it was then that the little girl was assaulted.

The mother was next called and stated that the accused had came to the house yesterday morning and had behaved in an ungentlemanly manner. She told the particulars to her husband at the noon meal, and it was then her daughter told of the defendant coming to the house on Wednesday afternoon.

The accused when called to the witness stand to give his version of the affair, said that he did not do anything out of the way as regards to the little girl, but the evidence that the mother had given in regard to herself was mostly true.

The Magistrate held that the evidence was strongly against him, but he would reserve judgment for one week.

OPERA COMPANY HAVING TROUBLE

The Royal Italian Grand Opera, which recently played here, according to a story from Montreal, is having troubles of its own. The cause is the original manager, Ivan Abramson, who allowed salaries to drop far back, and finally the company disbanded in Pittsburg. It was reorganized and brought to Montreal, when a bomb in the shape of an announcement published in Toronto that Abramson was still connected with the company was sprung. The members of the company immediately signed letter explaining that Abramson had nothing to do with it.

WANTED HOTEL BACK AGAIN

But Millbrook Man Was Not Succesful in His Effort

Millbrook, April 15—The Sothern vs Sothern case, at Cobourg last week, was thrown out by Mr Justice Britton. In this case John Sothern sought to regain possession of the hotel which he had rented from his father and which he verbally gave up when he left town, when a second charge of selling liquor was made against him. Mr T Sothern then rented the house to Mr Emerson and John Sothern sought re-possession. A A Smith, for defendant, and D O'Connell, Peterborough for plaintiff.

THE LAND OF NOD SCORES

Knox Wilson Extremely Funny as April Fool — A Wealth of Scenery and Accessories

Knox Wilson had them all laughing in the "Land of Nod," the brilliant extravaganza which afforded an unlimited supply of amusement to a large audience at the Grand last night. In the Simple Simon part of April Fool, Wilson gives an abundance of comedy of the most laughable character and no better equipped comedian has visited Peterborough this season. As the blank April Fool he has a difficulty character to portray and does it in an incomparably funny way. Unceasing laughter and applause were his portion for the evening.

The pretty dream comedy was presented by a company of merit and a large and capable chorus. The scenic pictures were splendid and the electrical effects were particularly good. Adelaide Harland as the chorus girl appeared to advantage and was captivating and clever in the part. Maurice Darcy made quite a hit as the Man in the Moon. Dorothy Webb was childlike and appealing as Bonnie; Grace Drew, as Jack of Hearts showed she possessed a voice of much showed she possessed a voice of rich quality and much culture. William E Morgan did very fine work in the difficult character role of the Sandman and Martin J Faust and Nelson Riley as the King of Hearts and Weather Man, respectively, played their parts excellently.

The musical numbers were of course of the light and popular order, "The Same Old Moon" being the most appreciated song of the score.

SOME SIGNS OF A COMING EVENT

Rumor has it that a young man engaged as fireman at the fire station, is about to become a benedict. Of late he has been acting strangely. Leave of absence was granted to him recently, and it is presumed that a local jeweller and a ring parted company. Last night he was allowed off again, and was seen conversing with a real estate agent, the inference being that a house also changed hands. Fire fighters and marriages are very essential necessities in this life, and the coming event will clearly demonstrate the nerve of anyone who undertakes to handle both these positions.

WEDDING BELLS

DUNSFORD—PETERS

A pretty home wedding was celebrated Wednesday evening, April 7, at the residence of Mr George Peters, Queen street, being the marriage of his only daughter Miss Lillian, to Mr. Fred E. Dunsford, Hall's Glen, Ont. Rev Geo A MacLennan, BA, the brides pastor, officiated. After the ceremony the company sat down to a recherche dejeuner. The floral decorations were of carnations and smilax. The bride wore a beautiful cream princess gown. Her travelling suit was of taupe vitian cloth. The presents were many, useful and costly indicative of the high esteem in which the bride is held by a large circle of friends. Mrs Dunsford is highly esteemed by the members of the Presbyterian church, having been an active member of the Knox Society, the Young Ladies' Club, and the choir of the Sabbath School, and her removal to her new home will leave behind her pleasant memories of her former associations. The young couple are spending a few days with friends in Peterborough and Orillia.—Norwood Register.

WEST PETERBORO' ELECTION PROTEST

A motion will be made at Osgoode Hall to extend the date of the trial of the West Peterborough election petition and cross petition—Star.

SIR WILFRID'S WEAKNESS

It is impossible for even the most ardent amongst the honest friends of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Liberal party to avoid the unhappy conclusion that Sir Wilfrid is not strong enough to rescue Canada from her corrupt and fallen condition. When crises of a similar character have arisen hitherto there has been really no attempt to block inquiry, however much there may have been to excuse. At present however, it is Sir Wilfrid and his band as it was in the days of ancient Venice when there was no law but that of the Doge's will. The Toronto Star which is a recognized Liberal journal of incisiveness and power is applying the knife. The following editorial is given especial prominence on the first page:

SHOULD BE AN INQUIRY

The Liberals at Ottawa ought to court the fullest inquiry into the McAvity case, and into the charges against the Hon. Dr. Pugsley. The public mind is undoubtedly disturbed by these charges and will not be satisfied by anything less than a full investigation. The Opposition may not be adopting the right means of bringing about an inquiry, but that is all the more reason why the Government and their supporters should take whatever measures are necessary. Dr. Pugsley has announced that he will make a statement as to the charges made against him by the Provincial Commission, but this does not cover the McAvity case, which relates to the expenditure of Federal moneys upon a Federal work, and cannot be allowed to remain in its present position.

FIRST MEETING AT GOSPEL HALL LAST EVENING

Mr. Alexander Marshall Heard by Large Audience — Is Being Warmly Welcomed Here

Mr. Alexander Marshal held his first meeting last night in Gospel Hall, corner George and Brock streets. He is a clear old-time preacher of the orthodox style, and leaves no room for doubt as to his faith in the plenary inspiration of the books of Genesis, Daniel and Jonah, and all other books of the Bible. The scripture forming the subject of last night's address was Jude last chapter. This scripture, he said, revealed the state of the last days of this dispensation, and the great apostacy apparent on all sides and the necessity for contending earnestly for the faith that was once delivered to the saints. Mr. Marshall will speak again to-night, when everyone should make a special effort to hear him.

Twenty-five years ago Mr. Marshal first preached in Peterborough, and many old friends are welcoming him here again.

NO HOPE FOR LIFE OF REV. FATHER COLLINS

Rev. Father Galvin, of St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough, is in charge of the parish.

SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST PRISONER

Lindsay Chief of Police Bags Man Accused of Poisoning His Brother.

Lindsay, April 15.—Chief Vincent returned to town Wednesday evening with the Eldon township resident who is charged with attempting to poison his brother. The accused evaded the police, and gave them a merry chase through the township.

Chief Vincent followed his man until he secured him, even going as far as the Indian reserve on Lake Simcoe.

The charge against the accused is—"That Henry Parliament did, on or about January 1st, unlawfully, and maliciously cause to be administered to Thos. Parliament a large quantity of a certain deadly poison, commonly known as rough on rats, or white arsenic, and thereby did endanger the life of the said Thomas Parliament."

The case will likely be tried at an early date.

Further information is to the effect that the accused lives on a ranch at Washago, Simcoe county, while his brother is a resident of Eldon township.

Peterborough Oddfellows Given Hearty Reception—Put on the Ritual

Speaking of the visit of the Peterborough Oddfellows to Millbrook, the Reporter says;—

Upon invitation from Millbrook Lodge Independent Order of Odd Fellows, some forty of the Peterborough brethren came out on Friday evening last by special train to confer degrees upon new members of the lodge here. It is needless to say to those who know of the reputation that Peterborough has for doing anything it undertakes well, and never before was the work so graphically exemplified as it was on this occasion. Dr. Morrow, the veteran in the work was one of the chief exponents of the ritual and, if possible, eclipsed himself in his personifications. Their costumes and regalia were truly magnificent, twelve hundred dollars being expended thereon. The three degrees of the subordinate lodge were exemplified, and the lodge rooms were packed to witness the ceremonies. After the work was completed adjournment was made to the dining room of the Dominion Hotel where Mr. H. Nattress had supervised the preparation of a splendid supper. Mr. J. N. McGill, the Noble Grand, occupied the chair and introduced a brief toast list when local members and visiting brethren responded in a happy strain. The visitors returned about 2 a.m.

UPSET MEDICINE ON THE STREET

A citizen going along Hunter street this morning, was surprised to see a little girl with her dress covered with some liquid and crying very hard. Going further he was startled to see on the sidewalk a pool of some oily substance and the fragments of a broken bottle, with the ominous words "poison," staring up at him. Fearing that the child had dropped the bottle and had come to some harm from the contents, he hastily took out his handkerchief and dipping it into the liquid he smelt it, and found his worst fears realized. It was—castor oil.

M. G. Hay was elected president of St. Thomas Board of Trade.

FRED SIMPSON IN THE $3,000 CANADIAN MARATON DERBY

The long-expected Canadian professional Marathon Derby is a reality.

The $3,000 Canadian Marathon Derby.

That is the title.

The date is May 1, and the scene of the racing and chasing will likely be Rosedale Athletic Field. Frank H. Elmore, of the Mail and Empire, Toronto, is the secretary of the club that is promoting the race, and the contest is open to residents of Canada only.

The two first entries in are:

Fred Simpson, the Ojibway Thunderbolt, who trimmed Fred Appleby, the 15-mile champion, and Red Hawk (Henry Jackson) of Midland.

John D. Marsh's entry was promised a week ago by his manager, James Bell, but he has not signed up yet, and among those who are expected are:

Hans Homer, of Halifax.

W. R. Cumming, of Toronto.

Jimmie George, the Georgia Island Indian.

Abbie Wood, of Montreal.

Hilton Green, of Six Nations Reserve.

Tom Longboat is not barred. As a matter of fact, if he does enter there will be a barrel of money bet that Simpson will wallop him. Simpson, on Saturday's form, will make the best of them step lively to lead him to the wire.

There are a number of Indian runners training around the various reserves, and several entries are expected from them. "We have not decided whether we will limit the entry list or not," said Mr. Elmore to-day. "A three-thousand-dollar-purse will attract a big field, and there is a proposal from the club to limit the field to 12 runners. Let the runners send in their entries, and we will decide before the week is out how many we will let start. I think this race will bring out a bunch of good new men."

A professional race with a $3,000 prize, too, is likely to pull some good amateurs from the ranks of the simon pures.

THE LAWN BOWLING CLUB GETTING READY FOR SUMMER

A meeting of the executive of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club was held at the office of J. E. A. Fitzgerald, Wednesday evening, April 14. Estimated of the cost of the new tennis lawn were received from the chairman of the committee in charge, and it was unanimously decided to go on with the work of putting the lawn in shape, which work is now under way.

Many players have signified their intention of joining the club. A central location and the two games for one membership fee being too good to be missed.

The following members have charge of getting the grounds in shape: Messrs D. H. Moore, T. Brightman, D. Belleghen and Dr. Marshall.

The following names were added to the membership committee: S. .. Medd, T. B. Yeates, Dr. Wightman and R. M. Waddell.

It was also decided to finish the competition for the set of bowls presented by Mr. R. Neil, the same to be completed by June 15th. Players still in that competition please take notice.

BURNS BLAMES EARLY WALLOPS FOR HIS BEING DEFEATED

New York, April 16.—Tommy Burns saw Hugh McIntosh's fight pictures here last night at the Orpheum and says they give a better representation of the fight than he had anticipated a moving picture could. Burns has been wanting to see the pictures for some time, but owing to circumstances was not able to view them until last night. He states that if he hadn't have received that awful wallop to the law in the opening round he would have been easily able to stay the limit.

"The blow was one of those surprise packages any fighter is liable to get," said the ex-champion to the Telegraph to-day, "and while Johnson deserves credit for landing it, it was both a surprise to him and to myself, that it was so smashing and effective. It disorganized me greatly, but I'll guarantee if we meet again he won't pull off any more such early features."

GOOD RACE

In connection with the matinee a five mile open road race will be held. The runners will start at Bears Creek on the Lakefield road run down through the city and finish a mile and a half on the Driving park track. No entry fee will be charged. Those desirous of entering should send their names to Secretary Jones of the Turf club. The prizes will be; First gentleman's gold watch; second, signet ring; third, hat.

A large and interested audience saw the junior wrestling bouts at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium yesterday afternoon. The youngsters wrestled hard and fast, and considering their youth, put up a good exhibition of the mat game.

WRESTLING

Gene Hurtubise will try and do the Gotch trick with Chris Miller, of the Toronto Leiderkranz, at the Star Theatre tomorrow night after the show. Hurtubise is big and strong and needs no introduction to the Toronto public and Miller knows which side of the mat to restle on. It should be a nice struggle.

FRED SIMPSON IS AFTER ST. IVES

All the crack distance runners are out after a race with St. Yves, the Frenchman, and present world's Marathon champion. Fred Simpson, the Ojibway Indian, is the latest to issue a challenge to the Polo grounds victor. Simpson beat Fred Appleby, the great English ex-amateur, at Toronto, Saturday, and his manager, Tom Eck, believes he can take the Frenchman's measure.

With Dorando resting and Longboat in temporary retirement, Simpson appears the logical candidate for St. Yves, after the latter's race with Alfred Shrubb, which will take place April 24.

RACE MEANS MUCH TO SVANBERG

New York, April 15—When John Svanberg the champion of Sweden, toes the mark for his race against Tom Eck's Indian, Fred Simpson, at Celtic park next Sunday afternoon, his thoughts will be in far-off Sweden. Svanberg has a wife and little child in the northland and with an ordinary run of luck he hopes to be able to bring them to this country and long and start up a cosy little American home.

It is easy to reason out, then, just how much Sunday's race means to the sturdy little Swede. If he beats Simpson and St Yves' record of two hours and forty minutes, as Hjertberg says he can, Svanberg's prospects for the next few months will look very rosy. There will be fifteen and twenty mile races with Shrubb, Appleby, Pat White and others and a sure Marathon match with St Yves, the world champion.

On the other hand if Svanberg loses Sunday's race he will find himself in much the same position as does Matt Maloney. Matt was a fine amateur but has not been much of a success as a professional.

Svanberg is a decorative painter by trade and has been a married man for five years. Seldom has a man had so many important events crowded into one day of his life as befell Svanberg on May 1st, 1906. To begin with, it was his own birthday. Secondly it was the day on which he sprang into worldwide fame by running second in the Athens Marathon. Lastly when he had finished the race Svanberg was handed a cablegram telling him that his wife had presented him with a fine baby girl—the one that he will run for next Sunday.

SPORTING TALK

"I am satisfied that Tom Longboat really has a sore heel," says Shrubb, "I feel sorry for him, and sincerely hope it will not be permanent. It is particularly unfortunate, coming just when all this money is in sight for us."

Hockey is still being played in Port Arthur. A game for the city championship was played Tuesday.

Frank Gotch would not allow any pictures to be taken of the wrestling match Wednesday night, Gotch did not want to take any chances with the heat and light necessary for the taking of the pictures.

Jim Jeffries' manager says that if Jeff fights and defeats Jack Johnson he will present the title to a white man, on condition that he won't fight negroes. "Tommy" Burns fights negroes and is excluded.

A spectator at a lacrosse game became mixed up in a fight which started among the players. He was badly beaten up and took action against the lacrosse association for $50 damages. All the satisfaction he got was that the judge dismissed the case and gave him a good lecture about looking for trouble.

"In six weeks' time I will be a resident of Toronto, Canada, with a home in the Broadview avenue district," says Alfred Shrubb. "I have sent for my wife and family, and they will come from England. I like Toronto, and after I get through running, I am going to set up in business."

"I did not know Gotch was so good," says Mahmout. "I beat all the men that Gotch did, and I thought I had a chance. He is the best man I ever met. I do not know anyone who can beat him. I am going to my home in Bulgaria, and take a rest. I may return next year, and try to get another match. At present he is a better man."

BASEBALL

If a satisfactory schedule could be arranged the CLS might put a team in the Midland league, in case a local league is not formed this summer. If arrangements could be made so that a Lindsay team could play at Port Hope and return the same day one of the great difficulties would be overcome. However, the season has not opened yet, and there is no telling what may happen yet in the local baseball circle—Lindsay Post.

POOL

Ottawa, Apr. 15.—The second night's play in the championship pool match at St. Patrick's Hall again resulted in a victory for Alfred De Oro, who secured 141 balls to 78, and now has a total of 302 against 144 by Pelletier. Six hundred balls will be played, the match continuing to-night and tomorrow night. Before the game commenced, ex-Ald. Kilt announced that in the event of De Oro maintaining only 139 balls would be played, and as he did keep ahead the game was adjourned when he passed the 300 mark. Up to 35 balls the play was close, but then the Cuban steadily forged ahead and never allowed his opponent to get within striking distance.

Pelletier made a better showing than on the previous evening, but he was never dangerous and the safety plays of De Oro seemed to be too much for him. De Oro ran all 15 balls three times, and also secured fourteen and thirteen twice. Pelletier also cleared a full frame, but his only other breaks of note were twelve and nine. Two of the medals which De Oro has won were on view, one of which is valued at $900. Both are magnificent specimens of the goldsmith's workmanship and were much admired. De Oro is also the proud possessor of eight other medals and a cup. Len Howison, of Montreal, and W. J. McCaffrey again officiated as referee and scorer respectively. The table which is being used was brought specially from Montreal.

Theodore Roosevelt is expected at Mombasa on April 21.

The Boy and the Celebrity

By Fanny Medbury Pendleton.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Every sojourner in the apartment house knew him as the boy. He had come to the city to wrest success from the hands of fate. His capital consisted, first, of dreams, of which he had an unlimited supply, and, second, of a small income, just sufficient to pay the rent of his two rooms and to keep him from a rough contact with the realities of life.

Although these stern realities were all about him, he regarded them from afar because he had never been forced to grapple with them.

Day after day he bent over the keys of his typewriter, transferring to paper a cloud of visions that were then hidden in long envelopes and took wing to the literary market, whence too often they fluttered back.

Still he wrote on, and his dreams rose as a bulwark against the buffets of the world, and his cheerful face smiled at life.

Among the many other dwellers in the house was the little music teacher across the hall, who squeezed barely enough income from the world to keep together her slender body and her gentle soul.

Her face was young and sweet, but the struggle with life had set its work upon it, and she sometimes envied the boy his cheerful face, though she took herself to task most sternly for harboring such unworthy thoughts.

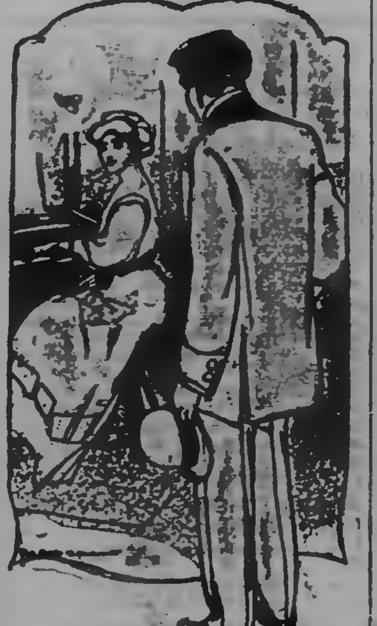
The boy thought little of his neighbor, although he always liked to listen in the evening when her sweet voice and the notes of her old piano floated across the hall.

This afternoon the boy's mind was busy with quite another person than the music teacher.

"I wonder," he said to himself, "if she'll wear them. Of course she'll never know from whom they came."

A wistful line deepened between his eyes.

"Of course she'll never know," he repeated, with a little sigh. "She must have any number of admirers."



SHE RAISED A STARTLED FACE AT HIS KNOCK.

He straightened his square shoulders as though to shake off an invisible burden.

"She is so beautiful and so successful. I wouldn't want her to know."

He wrapped his package carefully and sought the janitor, whom he requested to act in the capacity of messenger.

The man looked at the boy with amiable tolerance. Every one was amiable with the boy.

"Hello!" he called after him. "You haven't told me which lady on your hall."

The boy turned with flushed cheeks and shy eyes.

"Why," he said, "she"— He could not bring himself to speak her stage name. It jarred upon him, and he shrank from confessing that he did not know her real one. The amused eye of the janitor was upon him, and he threw up his head with sudden, unwonted dignity.

"Please take it to the beautiful singer," he said proudly.

That evening the boy pictured the celebrity pressing her fair face in the fragrant violets. Would she wear them? He opened his door and walked down the long hall to the window at the end. His eyes were on the door of the celebrity's sitting room. Presently she would come out on her way to the theater.

She was most lovely in the big black velvet hat and lace veil, and without the veil, thought he, she must be lovelier far. His eyes were bright when her door opened and a woman looked out into the hall.

She wore a soiled kimono, her cheeks were lined and sallow, her hair was only half arranged, and in her hands she held a string of auburn puffs. The boy gazed at her with startled eyes. With a horrible sinking of the heart, he recognized the celebrity.

Gone were the rosy visions; gone was his golden haired ideal whom he had worshiped from afar as the personification of youth and beauty. The real woman was worn, and there was something in her face that checked the boy more than even her slatternly attire. The door closed, and he fled.

As he groped his way through the darkness of his sitting room he trod on the pages of his latest manuscript that had fallen to the floor, but he did not heed. Throwing himself into an armchair, he leaned against the table and buried his face in his arms.

For a long time he sat in the darkness. He thought of his violets now only with a feeling of self disgust.

Suddenly the soft strains of "Annie Laurie" fell on his ears, played and sung by the girl across the hall. He raised his face and listened. A sudden contrast rose before him—the hard features he had seen and the sweet, modest face of his little neighbor. He obeyed a sudden impulse that brought him to his feet and sent him across the hall. The door was ajar.

The strains of the old song had ceased, but the girl was still sitting before the piano, her face buried in the fragrance of a bowl of violets.

She raised a startled face at his knock, but at sight of the boy her face brightened. He looked at her in wonder—at the smooth coils of her soft brown hair—and marveled that the garish gold had ever seemed so fair.

"Oh," she said, "I have had such a lovely present!" And, lifting the violets, she took a long, luxurious sniff. "I don't know who sent them. Just think, the janitor said they were for the sweet singer." And she laughed happily.

There was something in the boy's face that startled her.

"Oh," she cried, "did you—I believe you sent them!"

The boy laughed in a light hearted way that quite surprised him.

"I am glad you like them," he said. "They are like you somehow—the violets."

The girl's eyes filled with a sudden moisture, and she held out an impulsive little hand.

"Oh, you don't know!" she said. "I was tired and lonely, and I love flowers. I feel so very helpless sometimes." She finished with a tremulous laugh.

The boy stepped to where she sat and laid a gentle hand on her shoulder.

"Little girl," he said softly, "you sing all the old songs. Let us try together the one that says 'the first sweet violets of early spring.'"

And on the ear of the celebrity as she came forth from her room, the latest "song hit" under her arm, fell the sweet strains of "Oh, Promise Me!"

George Munroe, an Aldborough farmer, is dead as a result of a fall from a load of grain.

Tasting the Climate.

The summer climate of Alaska is often described as possessing a charm and fascination which cannot be described in words. Nevertheless in "Alaska, the Great Country," Ella Higginson tells of an old Klondiker who declared that one could "just taste Alaska climate."

"It tastes different every hundred miles," he declared, with that beam of the eye which means love of Alaska in the heart. "You begin to taste it in Grenville channel. It tasted different at Skagway, and there's a big change when you get to White Horse.

"I golly! At White Horse you'll think you never tasted anything like it, but it don't hold a candle there to the way it tastes going down the Yukon.

"If you happen to get into the ar'tic circle, say, about 2 in the morning, you address yourself and kike out on deck, and you can taste more'n climate. You can taste the ar'tic circle itself. Say, can you guess what it tastes like?"

I could not guess what the arctic circle tasted like and frankly confessed it.

"Well, say, it tastes like icicles made out of them little blue flowers you call voylets. I picked some out from under the snow once and et 'em. There was moisture froze all over 'em, so I know how they taste, and that's the way the ar'tic circle tastes.

"Just you remember when you get to the circle an' say, straight goods, if Cyanide Bill ain't right."

Remarkable Reasons For Duels.

Colonel Montgomery was shot in a duel about a dog, Colonel Ramsey in one about a servant, Mr. Featherstone in one about a recruit, Sterne's father in one about a goose, and another gentleman in one about a bottle of anchovies. One officer was challenged for merely asking his opponent to pass him a goblet. Another was compelled to fight about a pinch of snuff. General Barry was challenged by a Captain Smith for declining wine at a dinner on a steamboat, although the general pleaded as an excuse that wine invariably made him sick, and Lieutenant Cowther lost his life in a duel because he was refused admittance to a club of pigeon shooters.

In 1777 a duel occurred in New York between Lieutenant Featherstonehaugh of the Seventy-fifth and Captain McPherson of the Forty-second British regiment in regard to the manner of eating an ear of corn, one contending that the eating was from the cob and the other contending that the grain should be cut off from the cob before eating. Lieutenant Featherstonehaugh lost his right arm, the ball from his antagonist's pistol shattering the limb fearfully, so much so that it had to be amputated. Major Noah lost his life in 1827 at the dueling ground at Hoboken in a simple dispute about what was trumps in a game of cards.—London Chronicle.

Getting Ready For Dry Territory.

"I am drinking four quarts of water a day."

"For your health?"

"No."

"Because you like it?"

"Not exactly. Just in training for my trip south."

PRISONERS OF WAR.

Friendly Foes That Changed Places as Guests and Hosts.

A cheerful incident of the war between the states is told in "Mission Ridge and Lookout Mountain." The Third Ohio, under Streight's command, was en route for Richmond, prisoners of war.

One night they camped, worn, famished, with hearts heavy and homesick, near the place where a Confederate regiment, the Fifty-fourth Virginia, was stationed. Many of the southerners strolled over to the prison camp to see the sorry show of the poor, supperless Yankees.

They did not stay long. Back to their own camp they hurried and soon returned with kettles of coffee, corn bread, bacon—the best they had and all they had. Presently little fires began to twinkle in the prison camp, and the aroma of coffee rose like a fragrant cloud of thank offering. Union guests and Confederate hosts mingled. The next morning the prisoners departed.

Now comes a happy sequel which well balances the affair. Later, when the prisoners were exchanged, the Third Ohio was encamped near Kelly's ferry, on the banks of the Tennessee. On the day of the storming of Missionary ridge among the prisoners taken were numbered the Fifty-fourth Virginia.

Some of the Third Ohio were on duty at the ferry when the prison detachments arrived.

"What regiment is that?" they asked.

When told they started on the run, shouting as they went:

"The Fifty-fourth Virginia's at the ferry!"

They dashed into their camp with the news. The place was astir instantly. Treasures of coffee, bacon, sugar, beef, preserved peaches—everything was turned out and carried double quick to the ferry. The circumstances were the same, with the difference that guests and hosts had changed places.

Getting a Line on Prospects.

"Sir, I have a very personal business proposition to make to you, but before approaching that would you care to make a statement of your financial condition?"

"Certainly. I have been established in this business for more than twenty-five years, my yearly income is well into the hundreds of thousands and constantly increasing. I have unlimited credit and also have real estate valued at a couple of millions. Go ahead!"

"That is quite satisfactory. Now, may I ask for the hand of your daughter?"

"Only when some fool question makes me so mad I want to pull it," he replied pleasantly.

Shovel Handles For a Barrel.

A couple of railroad laborers carrying a barrel of water between them clearly demonstrated that necessity is the mother of invention. A closer investigation showed that they had made use of the handles from two broken shovels. The handles were cut to the proper length and trimmed on an angle, as shown in the sketch. These handles were then fastened to the sides of the barrel opposite each other with large screws.

Japanese Millet.

Japanese millet requires less attention than corn, is easily cut and handled and gives a great yield to the acre. Under favorable circumstances it will grow four to five feet high. The cattle eat it as well as they do the corn, with about the same results in milk and butter production.

THE DEATH PENALTY.

Horrors Incidental to Old Time Execution by Drowning.

Execution by drowning was abolished in France by Henri Quatre, only to be revived by one of his successors. It was finally abolished as a statutory method of execution by the earliest decree of the great revolutionaries.

As late as the eighteenth century death by drowning was decreed to a felon in Edinburgh, and in the middle ages it was a common enough mode of doing a convicted criminal to death. That execution of this nature was considered as humane as any other, so far as the victim was concerned, is shown by the fact that it was not unknown among the early Jews, who varied the punishment of stoning adulteresses by drowning them. Among the Egyptians it was common. The Roman lex cornelia sanctioned the method by placing it on the statute records. Tacitus tells us that the Germans copied the practice from the Romans. The Teuton termed it the "last baptism," and he did not allow his powers of imagination to sleep when he set about devising additional varieties which should add to the excitement attending upon the doomed person's departure from life. The convict was sewed up, Monte Cristo fashion, in a bag, and with him were inclosed a vicious dog, a hungry cat, a violent rooster, a venomous viper, all very much alive and presumably kicking.

For what reason it is hard to see, but death by drowning was by many peoples considered preferable for criminal women. In the case of very debased or very mean offenders the Romans had a more or less pleasant fashion of drowning the doomed ones in marshes, first incasing them in elaborate crates.

For refined cruelty in killing off their female criminals the earlier Albanians were certainly the most inventive in the matter of ingenuity. It is commonly known, of course, that even the modern Albanian has less respect for womankind than any other known male in the human catalogue, not even excluding the Chinese. The approved method of doing a criminal or even a displeasing woman to death prevalent among them up to rather less than a century ago was to chain her in a tank into which the water was allowed to flow gradually. As the water reached her breast it was allowed to recede sometimes back to her ankles, when the refilling of the tank began anew. If the woman had children the torture was varied by the drowning or mutilation of them before her eyes. To various parts of her body was attached such food as attracts rats, of which a number would be let loose.

Much Like Demosthenes.

"Woman," he said, "really ought to be a better orator than man."

"Why so?" she asked.

"Because," he replied, "to a certain extent at least she follows the methods of that famed orator Demosthenes."

"In what way?" she inquired, still busy with the finishing touches of her toilet.

"You remember," he answered, "that Demosthenes used to practice talking with his mouth full of pebbles."

She hastily took the pins out of her mouth and informed him that he was a mean old thing anyway.

The Barrier

By Rex Beach

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

Burrell liked this grizzled old fellow with the watchful eyes and was glad now that he could grip his hand and face him squarely with no guilt upon his conscience.

By this time Doret had finished with their blankets, and the four set out for town, but instead of following the others they accepted Necia as guide and chose the trail to Black Bear creek.

The party reached Flambeau on the following day, sufficiently ahead of Stark and his men for Lee to make known his find to his friends, and by sunset the place was depopulated, while a line of men could be seen creeping slowly up the valleys.

Gale found Alluna in charge of the store, but no opportunity of talking alone with her occurred until late in the evening, after Necia had put the two little ones to bed and had followed them wearily. Then he told his squaw. She took the news better than he expected and showed no emotion such as other women would have displayed, even when he told her of the gunshot. Instead she inquired:

"Why did you try it there before all those others?"

"Well, when I heard him talking the wish to kill him was more than I could stand, and it came on me all at once, so that I was mad, I suppose."

"Does this man suspect?"

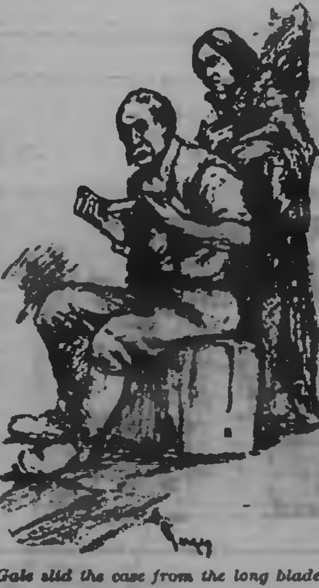
"No."

"Then it is child's play. We will lay a trap."

"No, by heaven!" Gale interrupted her hotly. "I tried that kind of work, and it won't do. I'm no murderer."

"Those are only words," said the woman quietly. "To kill your enemy is the law."

When he made no answer the squaw slipped out into the shadows, leaving him staring into the flames, to return a moment later bearing something in her hands, which she placed in his. It was a knife in a scabbard old and worn.



Gale slid the case from the long blade.

"There is no magic that can turn bright steel," she said, then squatted again in the dimness outside of the firelight. Gale slid the case from the long blade and held it in his palm, letting the firelight flicker on it. He balanced it and tested the feel of its handle against his palm, then tried the edge of it with his thumb nail and found it honed like a razor.

The glancing, glinting light flashing from the deadly thing seemed to fascinate the man, for he held it a long while silently. The he spoke:

"For fifteen years I've been a haunted man, with a soul like a dark and dismal garret peopled with bats and varmints that flap and flutter all the time. I used to figger that if I killed this man I'd kill that memory, too, and those flitting, noiseless things would leave me, but the thought of doing it made me afraid every time, so I ran away, which never did no good—you can't outfoot a memory—and I knew not all the while that we'd meet sooner or later. Now that the day is here at last I'm not ready for it. I'd like to run away again if there was any place to run to, but I've followed frontiers till I've seen them disappear one by one. I've retreated till my back is against the circle, and there isn't any further land to go to. All the time I've prayed and planned for this meeting, and yet—I'm undecided."

"Kill him!" said Alluna.

"No! I don't think I can do it—not in cold blood, anyhow. Good night! I'm going to sleep on it." He crossed to the door of his room, but as he went she noted that he slipped the knife and scabbard inside the bosom of his shirt.

CHAPTER IX.

THE AWAKENING.

Early the next morning Corporal Thomas came into the store and found Necia tending it while Gale was out. Ever since the day she had questioned him about Burrell this old man had taken every occasion to talk with the girl, and when he asked her this morning about the reports concerning Lee's strike she told him of her trip and all that had occurred.

"You see, I'm a mine owner now," she concluded. "If it hadn't been a secret I would have told you before I went, so you could have been one of the first."

"I'm goin' anyhow," he said, "if the leutenant will let me and if it's not too late."

Then she told him of the trail by Black Bear creek which would save him several hours.

"So that's how you and he made it?" he observed, gazing at her shrewdly. "I supposed you went with your father?"

"Oh, no! We beat him in," she said and fell to musing at the memory of those hours passed alone with Meade, while her eyes shone and her cheeks glowed. The corporal saw the look, and it bore out a theory he had formed during the past month, so as he lingered he set about a task that had lain in his mind for some time. As a rule, he was not a careful man in his speech, and the delicacy of this maneuver taxed his ingenuity to the utmost, for he loved the girl and feared to say too much.

"The lieutenant is a smart young fellow," he began, "and it was slick work jumpin' all those claims. It's just like him to befriend a girl like you. I've seen him do it before"—

"What!" exclaimed Necia. "Befriend other girls?"

"Or things just like it. He's always doin' favors that get him into trouble."

"This couldn't cause him trouble, could it, outside of Stark's and Runnion's grudge?"

"No, I reckon not," assented the corporal, groping blindly for some way of expressing what he wished to say. "Except, of course, it might cause a lot of talk at headquarters when it's known what he's done for you and how he done it. I heard somethin' about it down the street this mornin', so I'm afraid it will get to St. Michael's and then to his folks."

"I don't understand," said Necia. "He hasn't done anything that any man wouldn't do under the same circumstances."

"No man's got a right to make folks talk about a nice girl," said the corporal, "and the feller that told me about it said he reckoned you two was in love." He hurried along now without offering her a chance to speak. "Of course that had to be caught up quick; you're too fine a girl for that."

"Too fine?" laughed Necia.

"I mean you're too fine and good to let him put you in wrong, just as he's too fine a fellow and got too much ahead of him to make what his people would call a messy alliance."

"Would his people object to—to such a thing?" questioned the girl. They were alone in the store, and so they could talk freely. "I'm just supposing, you know."

"O Lord! Would they object?" Corporal Thomas laughed in a highly artificial manner that made Necia bridle and draw herself up indignantly.

"Go ahead and tell me; I won't be offended," insisted the girl. "You must. I don't know much about such things, for I've lived all my life with men like father and Poleon and the priests at the mission, who treat me just like one of themselves. But somebody will want to marry me some day, I suppose, so I ought to know what is wrong with me." She flushed up darkly under her brown cheeks.

Corporal Thomas began to perspire uncomfortably, but went on doggedly:

"I'm goin' to tell you a story, not because it applies to Lieutenant Burrell"—

"Of course," said the girl.

—"but just to show you what I mean. It was a good long spell ago, when I was at Fort Supply, which was the frontier in them days, like this is now. We freighted in from Dodge City with bull teams, and it was sure the fringe of the frontier—no women, no society, nothin' much except a fort, a lot of Injuns and a few officials with their wives and families. Now, them kind of places is all right for married men, but they're tough sleddin' for single ones, and after awhile a feller gets awful careless about himself. He seems to go backward and run down mighty quick when he gets away from civilization and his people and restaurants and such things. He gets plumb reckless and forgetful of what's what. There was a captain with us, a young feller that looked like the lieutenant here and a good deal the same sort—high tempered and chivalrious and all that sort of thing, a West Pointer, too, good family and all that, and, what's more, a captain at twenty-five. Now, our head freighter was married to a squaw, or leastways he had been, but in them days nobody thought much of it any more than they do up here now, and particularly because he'd had a government contract for a long while, ran a big gang of men and critters and had made a lot of money. Likewise he had a girl, who lived at the fort and was mighty nice to look at and restful to the eye after a year or so of cactus trees and mesquite and buffalo grass. She was twice as nice and twice as pretty as the women at the post, and as for money—well, her dad could have bought and sold all the officers in a lump, but they and their wives looked down on her, and she didn't mix with them none whatever. To make it short, the captain married her. Seemed like he got disregardful of everything, and the hunger to have a woman just overpowered him. She'd been courted by every single man for 400 miles around. She was pretty and full of fire, and they was both of an age to love hard, so Jefferson swore he'd make the other women take her, but soldierin' is a heap different from any other profession, and the army has got its own traditions. The plan wouldn't work.

"By and by the captain got tired of tryin' and gave up the attempt—just devoted himself to her—and then we was transferred, all but him. We shifted to a better post, but Captain Jefferson was changed to another company and had to stay at Supply. Gee, it was a rotten hole! Influence had been used, and there he stuck, while the new officers cut him out completely, just like the others had done, so I was told, and it drifted on that way for a long time, him forever makin' an uphill fight to get his wife reco'nized and always quittin' loser. His folks back east was scandalized and froze him cold, callin' him a squaw man, and the story went all through the army, till his brother officers had to treat him cold in order to keep enough warmth at home to live by, one thing leadin' to another till he finally resented it openly. After that he didn't last long. They made it so unpleasant that he quit the service—crowded him out, that's all. He was a born soldier, too, and didn't know nothin' else nor care for nothin' else; as fine a man as I ever served under, but it soured him so that a rattlesnake couldn't have lived with him. He tried to go into some kind of business after he quit the army, but he wasn't cut out for it and never made good as long as I knew of him. The last time I seen him was down on the border, and he had sure grown cultus. He had quit the squaw, who was livin' with a greaser in Tucson"—

"And do you think I'm like that woman?" said Necia in a queer, strained voice. She had listened intently to the corporal's story, but he had purposely avoided her eyes and could not tell how she was taking it.

"No! You're different, but the army is just the same. I told you this to show you how it is out in the States. It don't apply to you, of course"—

"Of course!" agreed Necia again. "But what would happen to Lieutenant Burrell if—if—well, if he should do something like that? There are many half breed girls, I dare say, like this other girl, or—like me."

She did not flush now as before. Instead her cheeks were pale.

"It would go a heap worse with him than it did with Captain Jefferson," said the corporal, "for he's got more ahead of him, and he comes from better stock. Why, his family is way up."

"I never thought of myself as an Indian," said Necia dully. "In this country it's a person's heart that counts."

"That's how it ought to be," said the corporal heartily, "and I'm mighty sorry if I've hurt you, little girl. I'm a rough old rooster, and I never thought but what you understood all this. Up here folks look at it right, but outside it's mighty different. Even yet you don't half understand."

"I'm glad I'm what I am," cried the girl. "There's nothing in my blood to be ashamed of, and I'm white in here." She struck her bosom fiercely. "If a man loves me he'll take me, no matter what it means to him."

The corporal slid down from the counter where he had been sitting. "I'm goin' to hunt up the lieutenant and get him to let me off. Mebbe I can stake a claim and sell it."

The moment he was gone the girl's composure vanished, and she gave vent to her feelings.

"It's a lie! It's a lie!" she cried aloud, and with her fists she beat the boards in front of her. "He loves me! I know he does!" Then she began to tremble and sobbed, "I'm just like other girls."

She was still wrestling with herself when Gale returned, and he started at the look in her face as she approached him.

"Why did you marry my mother?" she asked. "Why? Why did you do it?"

He saw that she was in a rage and answered bluntly, "I didn't."

She shrank at this. "Then why didn't you? Shame! Shame! That makes me worse than I thought I was. Oh, why did you ever turn squaw man? Why did you make me a breed?"

"Look here! What ails you?" said the trader.

"I've just begun to realize what I am. I'm not respectable. I'm not like other women and never can be. I'm a squaw—a squaw!"

"You're not!" he cried.

"No honest man can marry me. I'm a vagabond! The best I can get is my bed and board, like my mother."

"By heaven! Who offered you that?" Gale's face was whiter than hers now, but she disregarded him.

"He can play with me, but nothing more, and when he is gone another one can have me, and then another and another and another."

"That's all infernal rot," he said. "There's fifty good men in this camp would marry you tomorrow."

"Bah! I mean real men, not miners. I want to be a lady. I don't want to pull a hand sled and wear moccasins all my life and raise children for men with whiskers. I want to be loved—I want to be loved! I want to marry a gentleman."

"Burrell!" said Gale.

"No," she flared up—"not him nor anybody in particular, but somebody like him, some man with clean finger nails."

He found nothing humorous or grotesque in her measure of a gentleman, for he realized that she was stung to a pitch of unreason and unnatural excitement and that she was in terrible earnest.

The old man hesitated. "I'll own I was wrong," he said finally, staring out into the sunshine with an odd expression. "It was thoughtless and wrong, dead wrong, but I've loved you better than any daughter was ever loved in this wide world, and I've worked and starved and froze and saved, and so has Alluna, so that you might have something to live on when I'm gone and be different from us. It won't be long now, I guess. I've given you the best schooling of any girl on the river, and I'd have sent you out to a convent in the States, but I couldn't let you go so far away. I loved you too much for that! I couldn't do it, girl. I've tried, but you're all I've got, and I'm a selfish man, I reckon."

"No, no! You're not!" his daughter cried impulsively. "You're everything that's good and dear, but you've lived a different life from other men, and you see things differently. It was mean of me to talk as I did." She put her arms around his neck and hugged him. "But I'm very unhappy, dad."

"Don't you aim to tell what started this?" he said gently, caressing her with his great, hard hand as softly as a mother. But she shook her head, and he continued, "I'll take the first boat down to the mission and marry your ma if you want me to."

"That wouldn't do any good," said she. "We'd better leave things as they are." Then she drew away and smiled at him bravely from the door. "I'm very bad to act this way. 'Xcuse."

He nodded, and she went out.

Necia was in a restless mood, and, remembering that Alluna and the children had gone berrying on the slopes behind the Indian village, she turned her way thither. All at once a fear of seeing Meade Burrell came upon her. She wanted to think this out, to find where she stood, before he had word with her. She had been led to observe herself from a strange angle and must verify her vision, as it were. What if he had changed now that he was alone and had had time to think? It would kill her if she saw any difference in him, and she knew she would be able to read it in his eyes.

As she went through the main street of the camp she saw Stark occupied near the water front, where he had bought a building lot. He spoke to her as she was about to pass.

"Good morning, miss. Are you rested from your trip?"

She answered that she was and would have continued on her way, but he stopped her.

"I don't want you to think that mining matter was my doing," he said. "I've got nothing against you. Your old man hasn't wasted any affection on me, and I can get along without him, all right, but I don't make trouble for girls if I can help it."

The girl believed that he meant what he said. His words rang true, and he spoke seriously. Moreover, Stark was known already in the camp as a man who did not go out of his way to make friends or to render an accounting of his deeds, so it was natural that when he made her a show of kindness Necia should treat him with less coldness than might have been expected. The man had exercised an occult influence upon her from the time she first saw him at Lee's cabin, but it was too vague for definite feeling, and she had been too strongly swayed by Poleon and her father in their attitude toward him to be conscious of it.

"I'm going to build a big dance hall and saloon here," said Stark, showing her the stakes that he had driven. "As soon as the rush to the creek is over I'll hire a gang of men to get out a lot of house logs. I'll finish it in a week and be open for the stampede."

"Do you think this will be a big town?" she asked.

"Nobody can tell, but I'll take a chance. If it proves to be a false alarm I'll move on."

"You've been in a great many camps, I suppose."

He said that he had; that for twenty years he had been on the frontier and knew it from west Texas to the circle.

"I've never known anything except this." She swept the points of the compass with her arm. "And there is so much beyond that I want to know about. Oh, I feel so ignorant! There is something now that perhaps you could tell me, you have traveled so much."

"Let's have it," said he, smiling at her seriousness.

She hesitated, at a loss for words, finally blurting out what was in her mind:

"My father is a squaw man, Mr. Stark, and I've been raised to think that such things are customary."

"They are in all new countries," he assured her.

"But how are they regarded when civilization comes along?"

"Well, they aren't regarded, as a rule. Squaw men are pretty shiftless, and people don't pay much attention to them. I guess if they weren't they wouldn't be squaw men."

"My father isn't shiftless," she challenged, at which he remained silent, refusing to go on record. "Isn't a half breed just as good as a white?"

Baby's Bed While Traveling.

I have a tiny infant with whom I have had occasion to do considerable traveling, said a writer recently. My first thought was, naturally, to make baby as comfortable as possible. This I accomplished in the following manner, and any one of you who will once try it will always afterward travel the same way:

I secured a twenty-four inch market basket, covered the bottom with a soft pad and added a dainty pillow for baby's head. Here he lay, covered lightly with blankets, and was as comfortable as though at home in his own little bed. Furthermore, I made it more attractive by painting the outside of the basket with white enamel and winding the handle with light blue ribbon, with a bow on one side. It is needless to say that baby was the center of attraction wherever he went. This is as useful for short trips on the electrics, etc., as on long railroad journeys, as the basket can easily be held on your lap. Then, again, it answers as a bed whenever you stop for the night. Everything which you need for baby for the entire day can be carried in the basket, and you can do away with the extra bag.

Fog Filters In London.

"All London public buildings are now erected with fog filters," said an architect. "They are essential. London's yellow brown fog, made of the smoke of a million soft coal fires, smells of sulphur, irritates eyes and throat and causes headache. It penetrates houses. Waking on a winter morning, you can't see across your bedroom for it. So now all public buildings filter it. The air is drawn in one orifice only, and fans hurl it against curtains of cotton six inches thick. It is forced through these curtains. It comes out on the other side for distribution through the various rooms a fairly clean, pure, transparent air. But the white filter curtains! Every day they must be changed. It takes only an hour to gray them, and by nightfall they are as black as ink."

CHAMPIONS OF CHURCH LEAGUE WERE GUESTS AT BANQUET

Burnham Cup Presented to St. Andrew's Team—All Saints' Boys Congratulated on Winning Junior Championship—An Enjoyable Evening.

The Burnham Cup, emblematic of the championship of the senior church hockey league, was presented to its first winners, the St. Andrew's club, last night. The presentation took place at a banquet held at Jacobi's restaurant last night, when representatives of the clubs in the league, a number of ministers of the city and several other citizens gathered to do honor to the champions. The members of All Saints' team, winners of the junior championship of the league, were also present and came in for a generous share of congratulation. The banquet to the champions was a very enjoyable affair, everything passing off in the most harmonious manner. The menu had been carefully looked after and the guests were well satisfied in this connection. During the evening many references were made to the success of the church league, and predictions for even greater things in the future were numerous. The officers of the league came in for much praise for the excellent manner in which the affairs of the league had been conducted.

Mr. E. N. McWilliams, president of the league, was toastmaster, and proposed the first toast, "The King," which was honored by the singing of the National Anthem.

"The Church," was proposed by Rev. E. A. Pearson, and responded to by Rev. R. T. Riddiford. Both gentlemen referred to the benefit to sport of an organization like the church hockey league, which had been splendidly conducted and a credit to athletics in Peterborough.

In the absence of Mr. J. H. Burnham, the donor of the trophy, the toast to "The Champions" was proposed by Mr. D. B. MacRae, who congratulated the St. Andrew's and All Saints' clubs on their success. The trophy was accepted for the St. Andrew's club by Mr. Mortimer Johnston, manager of the winners of the senior series. Mr. Johnston made a neat speech in which he thanked the donor for the cup and said St. Andrew's would be "right on the job" next season. Mr. Johnston also praised the league officials and the referees.

Mr. Layfield reponded to the toast for All Saints' club, the junior winners, in a very capable manner.

The toast to "The League" was proposed by Rev J G Potter, and responded to by Rev H R Trumpour, Mr Potter referred to the good work that had been done by the church hockey league and Mr Trumpour said that the organization was a credit to the city. Athletics were a good thing, said the latter gentleman, if they were regarded sanely, but too often there was over indulgence and the benefit was lost.

Mr Flanagan of the St Andrew's team proposed the toast to "Sister Clubs" and Rev. R T Riddiford responded.

Mr S A Oke proposed the toast to "The Ladies" and Mr Jas Squires and Mr Fred Reed championed the cause of the fair sex.

Mr McWilliams toasted "The Referees" and Mr Squires and Mr Leo Deecs" and the names of Mr Squires and Mr Leo Derocher were coupled with it. Mr McWilliams said that in Mr Squires, Mr Derocher and Mr Morgan, the league had three excellent referees.

Rev H J Keith proposed the toast to "The Press," and Mr F Reed and Mr D B MacRae responded.

During the evening Mr Frank Clark favored the gathering with several excellent banjo solos and Mr Mortimer Johnston made a hit with a vocal selection.

The suggestion was made during the evening that a church baseball league should be organized and the matter will be taken up.

The officers of the church hockey league are as follows;

Pres—Mr E N McWilliams.

Vice—Mr E F Reid.

Sec-Treas—Mr F Reed.

Executive —Officers and a representative from each club.

Mr E F Reid, the vice-president, is ill and was unable to be present last evening;

Among those present were: Rev. W. C. Riddiford, Rev. Jas. G. Potter, Frank Clarke, Leo Derocher, J. T. Squires S. A. Oke, G. A. Macdonald, E. J. Dormer, Robert Reid, E. Potter N. A. Rae, A. McWilliams, Wallace Flanagan, W. E. Curry, Harry Rae, A. R. Staunton, W. M. Johnston Harvey McCulloch, T. D. Donaldson, J. Moore, F. Allen, E. Douglas Lakefield; M. Armstrong, A. Gilbert, W. Flowers, Rev. H. R. Trumpour, Rev. Henry J. Keith, Rev. Edwin A. Pearson, D. B. MacRae, E. N. McWilliams J. F. Reed.

WITHDRAW 'FLYER' FROM PORT HOPE

Lakeside Town Hears Rumor to That Effect and is Pained

The Port Hope Guide says:—Is Port Hope to be side-tracked? The question is a pertinent one.

Hitherto the Board of Trade has confined its attention chiefly to promoting industrial expansion. Although that policy shall still remain its chief concern, a wider field of usefulness awaits some measure of attention.

Rumors are current that the G.T.R. intends withdrawing the "Flyer" from Port Hope in the near future. Although Port Hope is a junction point it must be borne in mind that there are other junctions on the main line where the flyer does not call, and there is a possibility that the report may be authentic. The Board of Trade has written to headquarters for official information on the subject, upon receipt of which the question will be publicly discussed in this column if necessary.

NEWFOUNDLAND MAN ORDERS PLANT IN PETERBOROUGH

From Newfoundland to Peterborough is a long way to send for paint. The Peterborough Canoe Company do not make a business of selling paint, but they have received an order for this line of goods from far off Newfoundland. There are a large number of Peterborough canoes in use in that colony of the empire, and apparently some of them need re-painting. At any rate a man there has ordered some paint from the local company in order to paint his canoes. The paint will be mixed here and forwarded as requested.

SUCCESSFUL RECITAL GIVEN LAST NIGHT BY MISS McCAW

About three hundred attended the piano recital given by Miss Mabel McCaw of the Conservative faculty last night in the Conservatory Music Hall. Miss McCaw is a young lady of wide musical attainments and chose a very ambitious programme, from the different schools. It included Beethoven's Sonata, three numbers by Chopin and a group by McDowall, Sinding and Moskowski.

Miss McCaw played very brilliantly and the audience was greatly interested and showed its enthusiastic appreciation. Her technique and expression were excellent and all her numbers were beautifully performed.

Miss Julia Choate, the assisting artist, gave a violin solo, "Capriccio Valse," by Wieniawski in her usual captivating way and also played an extra number owing to Miss Frances Manning being indisposed and unable to contribute to the programme.

Miss Sisson acted as accompanist for Miss Choate in a most acceptable manner.

"Long before I knew I was going to play in Peterborough I had heard of the town as the home of the famous Peterborough canoe," said Mr. Darcy.

NEW ZEALAND'S DREADNOUGHT OFFER RAISING TROUBLE

Meetings Are Held in Protest Against Scheme, Declares New York Paper's Correspondent—Several Disturbances Made by Disaffected Islanders

Sydney, N.S.W., April 17.—Public meetings of protest are being held throughout New Zealand condemning the Government's offer to build two new Dreadnoughts for Great Britain as unconstitutional.

Extraordinary scenes took place at Christchurch, where a meeting of the Navy League in support of the Government's action degenerated into pandemonium.

The speakers, including both Roman Catholic and Anglican bishops, were howled down, the rioters rushed the police and seized the Union Jack, which they tore into shreds and trod under foot.

Many free fights that ensued were terminated only when the lights were all extinguished.

At the proposed conference in London between representatives of Great Britain, Canada, Australia and New Zealand regarding the establishment of an "All-Red" mail route, Australia will advocate that the steamships engaged in the service, both in the Pacific and the Atlantic, be owned by the Governments interested.

Australia's Proposals.

London, April 17.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Commonwealth Government have made the following proposals on naval defence to the Imperial Government: To continue the present arrangement until 1913, and employ destroyers for Australian defence, borrow officers from England, send Australians here for training outside Australian waters, to put the force in charge of a British officer of the station visited, in war-time to hand over the fleet unreservedly to the Admiralty, to maintain a naval base for British ships, not to maintain submarines.

Hon. Mr. Watt, the Victorian treasurer, suggests inviting Admiral Beresford to Australia to give advice before any definite scheme is undertaken.

MR. BORDEN IS TAKING A REST

Ottawa, April 17.—R. L. Borden, the Conservative leader, is having a few days' rest at Caledonia Springs. He went to New York before Easter, but not getting any benefit there, returned to the Springs on Monday to recuperate. He and Mrs. Borden have been living the "simple life," playing golf daily.

"My health? Why, it's very good, I think, but after five years' hard work a man sometimes feels like taking a short rest. It sometimes saves a longer rest later," he said yesterday.

While declining to discuss public affairs, he has kept in close touch with Ottawa, 19 miles away, by telephone.

TO SUBSIDIZE A FRENCH LINE

Brodeur's Measure to Help a French Steamship Service Passes

Ottawa, April 17.—The House settled down yesterday afternoon to the sessional program. Only a handful of members bothered their heads about what was going on.

George Taylor complained that the estimates of the Department of Agriculture were delayed till late in the session, when there would be little opportunity to discuss them.

Mr. Fisher said the report of the experimental farm had been laid on the table only a week ago, and he desired to give members time to study.

Mr. Currie asked that the orders of the treasury board under the dumping clause be brought down.

A Government bill to amend the harbors and piers act by giving authority to the Minister to lease to Provincial Governments, municipal councils, harbor commissioners, railway or steamboat companies or private companies any Government pier or wharf, was withdrawn after W. R. Smyth, A. C. Boyce, Haughton Lennox, Dr. Sproule and Major Currie argued it was a dangerous thing to give up possession of harbor facilities.

Mr. Brodeur's resolution to subsidize a French steamship line to the amount of not more than $200,000 a year, based on a minimum service of 15 round voyages a year, was passed.

ALL IS QUIET AT THE FALLS

Situation is No Better Although the Power Plants are Recovering Somewhat

Niagara Falls, Ont., April 17.—Conditions are practically the same last night. The ice jam is reported to be two feet higher all the way up the river to Queenston. The upper river is lower.

Things have resumed practically a normal condition at the power-house of the Ontario Power Co. The officers of that company yesterday made the formal statement that the damage to machinery would not exceed, but the cost of preparing the generators, which is still in progress for the resumption of the load, will be heavy. It was neccessary to bring expert workmen from Hamilton, Pittsburg and other places. The Westinghouse Co. loaned the services of their chief expert on insulation, Mr. Reynders, who will remain until the work is finished.

Word last night from Niagara-on-the-Lake is to the effect that conditions have not changed since Wednesday, and that there is no ground for the alarmist reports circulated yesterday, of the town being in danger of flood.

At an early hour this morning the mass of ice in the Niagara river reached a height of 40 feet above the water level, and it is still rising.

At 10.30 p. m. last night the immense ice floe which fills the river from bank to bank was given a shunt by the pressure from up stream and moved suddenly forward for about 200 yards, carrying with it the riverside depot. The Wright private dock by the waterworks, and the McIntyre wharf, where the Turbinia used to dock, were wrenched away.

The rush was sudden and the noise tremendous for a few minutes; but in less than half an hour, aside from a slight churning and crunching far out amid stream, the glacier settled into sullen inactivity.

It stopped at the head of the Niagara Navigation Co. wharf.

A regular meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. will be held on Monday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

AN AMERICAN MASSACRE; TOWN OF ADANA BURNED

Two Missionaries Said to Have Been Murdered by Turks, But Report is Not Confirmed—British Vice-Consul Reported Wounded

Constantinople, April 17.—At midnight neither the United States ambassador nor the British embassy had received any further news concerning the massacre, or confirmation of the reported murder of two American missionaries at Adana.

Consular telegrams received here report that half of the town of Adana has been burned and that the attacks upon the Armenians are extending into the vilayet.

They say that the British vice-consul at Meorsina, Major Daughty-Wylie, who was ordered to Adana when the first advices of the massacre were received, has been wounded.

Communication with the disturbed district is interrupted, however, and all reports received from there must be taken with caution.

The Porte declares the disturbances are subsiding. Two additional battalions have been despatched to Adana.

Despatches make it appear that the Moslem fanaticism against the Christians of Adana has broken out afresh. The Moslem attacks recommenced on Thursday afternoon and continued throughout the night. Large numbers of Christians are said to have been killed. One report says that 60 Armenians have lost their lives and that many houses have been looted and burned.

The first news of this anti-Christian outbreak said the scene was Nersina, but this was erroneous. The trouble occurred in Adana, which is about 38 miles inland from the Mediterranean. Messages received Thursday evening said that only ten Armenians had been killed, that martial law had been proclaimed in Adana and that reinforcements of troops were being sent from Beirut.

This latest intelligence refers to disorders that occurred after the situation was supposed to have quieted down.

Adana is a station of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, with a working force of five missionaries and 32 native workers; an out-station of the synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church of North America and a Bible depot and sub-agency of the American Bible Society.

It is a city of 45,000 people and is the seat of government of the province of the same name. The people are mostly Mohammedans, but there are a considerable number of Armenians and a small Greek community there.

Anti-Christian rioting in Adana is in no way connected with the political uprising in Constantinople of the past four days. It involves a recrudescence of the Armenian question, which is religious and racial and has nothing to do with the internal politics of Turkey. The Armenians are Christians and still have an independent church in Constantinople.

HOUSE WARMING AT NEW ARMOURIES ON MONDAY

57th Regiment Will March Into Their New Quarters After March-out—Old Drill Hall Has Done Service for Over Forty Years—Some Interesting Information About Early Military History of Peterboro

Monday evening will mark a memorable event in the military annals of Peterborough. The 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, with colors flying and the band playing, will march into the new armories and formally take possession of that part of the splendid new structure, which belongs to the corps of which the citizens are so justly proud. It will be a "housewarming" as it were of the regiment's new home and the fulfillment of an ambition that has long been cherished. Monday night will witness one of the most important events in the history of the 57th.

The past few days have been busy ones around both the new and the old armories. Moving day is always filled with bustle and hurry and the moving day of the regiment has been no exception to the rule. A large amount of clothing, equipment, furniture, etc. has had to be transferred from the old home to the new, but no time has been wasted and by Monday night everything will be in shape for the red-coated family, which numbers around four hundred to tack up their abode in the new quarters.

With the coming of the new, the old passes away. In a few days the work of tearing down the old drill hall will be commenced. The historic wooden structure which has been the home of the 57th regiment for the past forty-one years, which saw the assembling of the local troops which went forth to repel the Fenian invasions and later to put down the rebellion in the Northwest, which has so often echoed with the sound of the bugle call, of martial music and of military command, will pass out of existence within the next few weeks. Perhaps it should have gone on its way years ago. It has served its time at any rate and gives way before the progress of a growing city and an active military organization.

It is interesting at this time to look backward and learn something of the early history of the old drill shed. It was built in 1867-1868 and was finally opened towards the close of the latter year.

WHAT REVIEW FYLES TELL

Describing the drill shed when it was in course of construction the Weekly Review of May 17th, 1867, says:—

PETERBOROUGH DRILL SHED

This large and imposing structure is being erected on the south side of the partially wooded enclosure known as the 'old burying ground.' This ground consists of two portions. The first three lots west of George street forming a double range between Murray and McDonnel streets was formerly granted by the Government for the purpose of a general Protestant burying ground. The remainder of the enclosure with the exception of a narrow strip sold off the western end for building purposes, was granted to the Roman Catholics, likewise for a burying ground."

"Both portions were pretty extensively used for the purpose intended, and although the remains of many persons have been removed to the newer cemeteries, the whole ground is dotted over at frequent intervals with little mounds which denote the last resting place of humanity. The trees have long since been removed from the central portion; and in the open space thus formed, at the south western corner of the Protestant ground, the drill shed is being erected. Its site covers a dozen or more graves, the decayed remains from some of which have been removed elsewhere but several yet remain."

"The building is 144 feet long and 82 feet wide. The posts are 10 inches square, 20 feet high and 16 feet apart, connected by girders, and one long inclining brace. As yet only the west side and ends are enclosed, and the roof sheeted and partially shingled. The end is towards Murray street, and the depth of the building extends into the lot. The door is to be midway in the east side, and the large space within to be lighted by large windows in the sides and ends —four in all, having each 80 panes of glass, of 10x14 inches in size.

"The armory is an addition at the west side of 72 feet long by 17 foot in width. It will be divided into 7 rooms or compartments; 3 for the storage of arms, 2 for the use of the caretaker, 1 for an orderly room and 1 for the quartermaster's stores. Each will be lighted by a window, and the roof of this portion is continuous with the roof of the main building.

"The sheeting of this building required 46,000 feet of sawn lumber and the roof 560 bundles of shingles of 2500 each, or 140,000 shingles in all. Suppose a man nailed down two shingles per minute and worked 12 hours per day, it would require 96 days to complete this portion of the work alone."

THE FORMAL OPENING.

The opening of the old drill hall took place on Friday evening, November 13th, 1868.

The Weekly Review of Friday, November 20th, 1868, has the following account of the function:

"There was a large number present to take part in the programme inaugurating the drill shed. Everything passed off pleasantly. The speeches by the chairman and Mayor, Rev Messrs. Clementi, Roger, Johnson, MacDonnell and Judge Dennistoun were most suitable and they were most enthusiastically received. Ample provision had been made by the refreshment committee so that all had enough and yet much remained. Not the least pleasant and comfortable of the evening's proceedings was the dancing which "set in" after the addresses. The Band needs no more said of it than it discoursed as usual.

Winter gatherings in the drill shed must be materially affected by the unavoidable cold feet in it."

THE ASHBURNHAM DRILL SHED.

The Ashburnham drill shed was built in 1867 and is today pretty much the same building that was built forty-two years ago. The cost of the building was $840 and the amount was provided as follows:

Government grant	250
County council	250
Ashburnham council	150
Private subscriptions	190

MAJORITY WAS MUCH REDUCED

London, April 17.—East Edinburgh bye-election has resulted in the return of James Gibson, the present Lord Provost of the city, who stood in the Liberal interest, by a majority of 458, over Patrick J. Ford, the Unionist candidate. The poll showed the Liberal vote to be 4,527 against 4,069 for the Unionist.

Although the Government has been supported the result reveals a surprising change in popular sentiment. At the general election Sir George McCrae, the late Liberal member, was returned by a majority of 4,174, the figures standing 6,606 to 2,432. The Liberal vote has thus fallen off by 2,079, while the Unionist has increased by 1,637. The bye-election was caused by the appointment of Sir George McCrae to be vice-president of the Scottish Local Government Board.

VAN HORNE HAS A BIG SCHEME

Montreal, April 17.—Sir William Van Horne, who has just returned from a visit to Fredericton, N.B., will leave next week for England, to interest English capitalists in a scheme for establishing in New Brunswick, in connection with the Grand Falls water power, the largest pulp, paper and saw mills in Canada. It is planned to spend seven million dollars.

This project was put forward some years ago by the Grand Falls Power Co., the other interests being held by the estate of the late United States Senator Proctor; Mr. Underwood, vice-president of the International Paper Co., William Mackenzie and R. B. Angus.

WAS ASSAULTED BY ROBBERS

Paris, April 17.—Mrs. Bartells of New York was robbed and nearly murdered in her apartments yesterday by burglars who secured a number of jewels and a quantity of money. Mrs. Bartells occupies an apartment in the Avenue Eylau. Yesterday afternoon three well-dressed men gained entrance to the house on the pretext of desiring to inspect articles offered for sale. They fell upon the maid servant and Mrs. Bartells, who is 60 years of age, and paralyzed and brutally beat them into a state of unconsciousness, gagged them and secured jewels and money to the value of $8,000.

CONCRETE BRIDGE FOR SMITH BRIDGE

Board of Works in Favor of Such a Structure—Engineer's Estimate for Reinforced Concrete Bridge is $37,200—By-law Will Be Prepared.

Something over $37,000 will be required to build the new Smith street bridge according to the plans and estimates of city engineer Hay. The Board of Works took up the matter last night and came to the conclusion that it would be very bad policy to build a steel bridge. Therefore the ratepayers will likely be asked to vote on a by-law to provide enough money for a reinforced concrete structure.

The chairman of the Board, Ald. Phelan brought up the matter and urged that some action be taken in connection with it.

Mr. Hay stated that the estimated cost of a reinforced concrete bridge with an eighteen foot roadway and two sidewalks was $37,200. The estimated cost of a steel bridge of similar proportions was $30,000. The difference was $7,200. These estimates were for the bridge proper. The approach that would have to be built on the west side of the river would cost $1,000, and there would be some damages for land that would be affected by the raising of the grade on the west side.

Ald. Phelan said that everyone seemed to be in favor of having a concrete bridge. He had been making enquiries and found this to be the case. The other aldermen agreed with this.

Ald. Turner wanted to know if it would be necessary to raise the level on the west side of the river. He thought that the bridge could be built with a fall towards the west like the present bridge was.

Mr. Hay said that a concrete bridge would have to be level.

The matter was pretty thoroughly discussed and on motion of Ald. Turner and Bradburn the chairman and the engineer were instructed to ascertain what the land damages will be, in order that a by-law for the amount required to cover the whole cost of the new bridge may be prepared and submitted to the people at a nearly date.

THE DOURO PROTEST CHARGES DISMISSED

Judge Weller Gave His Judgment To-day — Corrupt Practices Not Proven—Decision in an Interesting Case.

His Honor Judge Weller has decided that the charges against Reeve Frank Moher in connection with the last municipal elections in Douro are not sustainable and he has dismissed the case. Mr. Dennis Moloney, who laid the charges of bribery and corruption against Reeve Moher was the other candidate for the reeveship in the elections.

It is not necessary to reprint the particulars of the hearing of the charges as the particulars have been been published very fully in the local press. General interest was excited in the county over the case and particularly in Douro. It is some weeks ago since Judge Weller reserved judgment and he has been too ill since to state his finding until today.

Mr. F. A. Peck appeared on behalf of Reeve Moher and Mr. R. F. McWilliams was counsel for Mr. Moloney.

ORGANIZATIONS CONDEMNED BY THE CONCILIATION BOARD

Commissioners Appointed to Look Into Dispute Between Dominion Coal Co. and Its Miners Declare Union is a Menace to Industries

Ottawa, April 17.—Strongly condemnatory of the influence of American labor unionism in Canada is the report of the board of conciliation appointed under the Lemieux Act to enquire into a dispute between the Dominion Coal Co. of Nova Scotia and the miners. There are two unions to which coal miners in Nova Scotia belong, the Provincial Workmen's Association, a local organization, and the United Mine Workers of America, with headquarters in the States.

The complaints of the employes were: That men were discharged, or threatened with dismissal, because they were members of the U.M.W. of America; that the Dominion Coal Co.'s police intimidated members of the union and that the company refused to receive a committee of the U.M.W. or in any other way to recognize the association.

The representative of the employes, Daniel McDougall, declined to concur in the recommendations of the majority of the board, who, however, admit that preference was given to the members of P.W.A. in the matter of employment by the Dominion Coal Co., but declare that under the circumstances this preference was both natural and reasonable.

The report of the board states that the most important question for consideration was that of recognition of the U.M.W. of America by the Dominion Coal Co., a question purely a matter of policy. The U.M.W. claimed the right to approach the management by committee, as is done by the P.W.A., but the company thus found itself face to face with two rival organizations and found it impracticable to deal with separate committees whose contentions might be at variance. The report continues.

"The principal reason, however, why the company refused to recognise the U. M. W. is that they are practically a foreign organization, having dangerous and menacing powers under the constitution.

A rule of the U.M.W. makes it quite possible, says the report, for the executive of the United Mine Workers, whose head office is in Indianapolis, Indiana, to proclaim a strike in Nova Scotia if they considered it to be in the interests of the U.M.W. as a whole. * * * * The board considers that the coal company is amply justified in refusing to recognize an organization that could exercise such a dangerous and continually menacing power.

In conclusion the board desires to report that so far as it has been able to ascertain the conditions obtaining at the collieries in Cape Breton are in many respects superior to those in most of the mines in the U. S. While differences of opinion have arisen between operators and the men, they have hitherto been arranged in a mutually friendly and satisfactory manner. Existing unsettled labor conditions have the effect of interfering with business, creating apprehension as to the situation, and thereby reacting to a large extent on the welfare of the miners themselves.

Daniel McDougall finds the Dominion Coal Co. guilty of discrimination against members of the United Mine Workers, and condemns the company therefor. Mr. McDougall insists that the United Mine Workers of America are not a foreign but an international organization.

MAN AND WOMAN TARRED AT OTTAWA

Masked Men Tar Pair.

Ottawa, April 17.—A sensational story was told to the police yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Killingbeck of Hintonburg, a local suburb.

They allege that they were seized on the street about 9 o'clock Thursday night by four masked men, bound, gagged and driven out into the country, where Mrs. Killingbeck was outraged and otherwise abused, while the husband was assaulted and severely hurt. Both were then covered with liquid tar and driven into the city, where they were released.

The action is supposed to be the outcome of recent action wherein Mrs. Killingbeck accused a respectable young man of criminal assault, but lost the case in court. It came out in the evidence that the Killingbecks had secured money from several Hintonburg residents on like claims.

A LIBERAL'S COMMENT

From the Simcoe Reformer.

"Canada is to have a navy of its own," so it was announced yesterday from Ottawa. And instantly the average voter began to do a bit of thinking. This average voter is not often carried away by his partizan feelings. At election time he may be a bit enthusiastic, but between whiles he is far more engrossed with the ups and downs of the politicians at Ottawa. When he heard that Canada was to build itself a navy the thought must have come to him that if it is to be built it would be a fine thing to have it built by the chaps that tried to build the Quebec Bridge, when built it should be equipped by Ex-Purchasing Agent Gregory, who is now out of a job.

Col. Gordeau is at liberty to accept the position of First Sea Lord, and Commander Spain will come in handy as Admiral-in-Chief. Oh there can be no question in the opinion of the average voter, Canada is marvellously equipped to build, arm, man and fight a navy. Such a contribution is the one thing lacking to make the Empire secure.

THE PACIFIC COAST

Mr. F. B. Vrooman, a British Columbian, now visiting in England, recently delivered an address before the Imperial Club of London, in which he dealt with the 'yellow peril" in the following vigorous fashion: "I object to a dozen Japanese reaping a million dollars a year from one copper concession of British Columbia when no Englishman can own or operate a mine in Japan, and while there are Britons who need that opportunity. I object to the Japanese monopolising the whole fisheries of the Canadian Pacific seaboard, to Alaska from Vancouver north, and south practically to the Fraser and Victoria, averaging £150 to £600 apiece per annum, when no Briton can fish in Japanese waters, and when there are hundreds of thousands of our kinsmen here who haven't a red herring for supper. I object to the invasion of farm and forest by the Japanese, already threatening Alberta, when no Briton may own an acre of land in the Japanese Empire, and while there are swarms of homeless, landless Englishmen mired here in your economic bog, apologizing for occupying standing room. "But," he went on to say, "opportunity for the needy is not the most important phase of the question. Here is a wider imperial meaning—a more far-reaching consideration. It is a question of the civilization which shall find its home on those fertile British reaches, whether it shall be white or yellow." Apart from the strength of the arguments advanced, there is no doubt that they are arguments which just now appeal to many Canadians in a very potent fashion, and the determination of our British Columbian brethren to keep their province "white" is not wholly a matter of petty prejudice, but one that springs from strongest feelings of race distinction. Whether the yellow and white races will ever mix is a question, and it is a still graver question whether that mixture would be of advantage to the race.—The Christian Guardian.

THE STAR ON THE SITUATION

There can not be one law of morality or of the land for Mr. Pugsley and another for Mr Foster. The latter gentleman is laying bare his commercial life in the courts. Whatever there may be for him or against him will come out there under oath at his own instance. Mr Emmerson was compelled to seek the seclusion of private life. Mr Hyman also. If guilty Mr Pugsley must go too. No doubt there are many anxious to take his place. Canada is in the hands of the despoilers. No candid Conservative denies that in the past that party has had its share of delinquents but it is not laid at the door of that party that it strove to block inquiry. In the memorable words of a Liberal politician who stood high in the estimation of his Bible class mates for his addresses to the Almighty; "This is a lovely meeting. He is just a lovely man." He referred to a politician who had just given him a hundred dollars "to do the most good" with. If we tell the truth we are pessimists. If we talk like children who are always gay and happy, we are optimists. There is a mean. That "mean" appears to be to scoff at it all and pocket the balance. It is optimism falsely so-called that has put Canadians where they are. It is never well for a man or a nation to praise itself too much or to take too rosy a view of its own past and future. The steady course of duty, the old reliable path of sanity and honor does not lie through fireworks or an ill-timed rejoicing. This is the scientific age. We must bow down to the facts. He is a rare style of optimist who can find food for optimism in the doings of the day in Canada. The United States is vastly different. They have shaken off the pall and are born again.

MR. PUGSLEY'S POSITION

The Montreal Star.

The effort of the Opposition to put Mr Pugsley on his defence is in line with public opinion and in support of public interest. When a Liberal member sets up the vapid contention that the House is not concerned with the doings of Mr Pugsley "as Pugsley" he is talking the most utter nonsense. If Mr Pugsley was at fault in the Mayes case and in the New Brunswick Central Railway matter it is the duty of the Commons to make sure of the facts and then to insist that the great spending department of Public Works shall not be left in the possession of a politician with so bad a record. If he was not at fault in these cases, then it is the duty of his colleagues, of his supporters and of himself to lay the truth before the country and reestablish confidence in one of our most important public servants.

Parliament has a right—indeed, Parliament faces the duty of assuring the nation that the men whom it entrusts with the executive functions of government are the best men who can be found for these positions. That is one of its chief missions. If we would condemn Parliament for permitting a discredited third clerk to keep his position why should we exempt Parliament from a similar responsibility in the case of a first class Minister. The Minister of Public Works must not think of acting as if these charges were private matters or had reference only to New Brunswick politics. He should have plenty of time to get ready his defence, though time has not helped him in the Mayes matter. He should be permitted in all fairness to get all the documents he desires. But his colleagues should leave no doubt that they expect him to make a defence, and to make it in the face of the whole country.

He should have sued Premier Hazen for libel in the Mayes case, and Premier Hazen should now follow up the report of his Commission and take him into the courts in the Central Railway matter—or else publicly disclaim all responsibility for the allegations made by that Commission.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The strikers who are crying 'Down with the Republic" in France are not in favour of a restoration of anything but of the placing of all governmental power in the hands of the trade-unions.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been elected a member of the New York Optimists' Club. He needs it. The club is presided over by the Wall street brokers who always see the far-famed "silver lining". It all depends upon the point of view whether one sees lambs coming in all their innocence (and juiciness) or wolves from the other side. Thus it is that we are optimists to-day. The time to rejoice in "Well done, thou good and faithful servant" is when it has been well done. An optimist, properly so-called, is as much a weakling as a pessimist is. The truth as always lies between the extremes.

"The marriage of criminals breeds criminals!" so said Judge Leet, when interviewed by a Star reporter. When questioned as to whether there was not a movement on foot at the present time to prevent criminals marrying, His Honor stated that he was under the impression that there was in some countries, but it had not in any instance reached a definite course.

Judge Leet cited an instance of a woman arrested in one of the western states for a criminal offence, and on investigating her ancestors it was found that five hundred of them were criminals. "From my own personal experience," continued Judge Leet, "I can say that a great many of the prisoners brought before me are descendants of criminals, and a law which would prevent their intermarrying would be equally as beneficial to the country as one preventing the marrying of those affected with tuberculosis."—The Witness.

That the question of Oriental immigration into British Columbia is yet a live issue to at least some of the people of that province was indicated in an address by Mr. Martin Burrell, M.P., of Yale-Cariboo, before the Canadian Club, Toronto. The speech was listened to by a large audience. Touching the Japanese problem, he devoted a large part of his speech to pointing out that he considered it a fallacy to believe that Japanese trade was so valuable to Canada as to warrant sacrifices on the part of British Columbia or any other part of the Dominion to maintain relations. "If such a man as Lord Roberts thinks the presence of 60,000 Germans in England is a menace to that country, surely the 15,000 Japanese we now have, and the many more who may come to us may be considered as a like menace to Canada. The race that developed Ontario, that pioneered its wilderness, should do the work in British Columbia."

Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured His Lumbago and Sciatica.

That Was Three Years Ago and He is Still Cured—Why You Should Try Dodd's Kidney Pills First.

Elliston, Trinity Bay, Nfld, April 16—Special—That Dodd's Kidney Pills not only relieve Sciatica and Lumbago, but cure it once and for all, is the experience of Mr Alfred Crew, postmaster here.

"Yes," the postmaster says in telling his story, "it is three years since I was cured of lumbago and sciatica. Dodd's Kidney Pills did it, and I am happy to say that the cure was permanent.

"I had pains in my back, cramps in my muscles, shooting pains across my loins and I often found it hard to get any rest at night and when I did my sleep was unrefreshing. I was medically attended, but without getting any benefit, and at last I was persuaded to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used six boxes altogether and they took the pains away and quite cured me.

Nearly every cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills tells of trying something else first. If you use Dodd's Kidney Pills first you will never need to try "something else." They always cure all diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases caused by sick kidneys.

Mr. R. H. Leary Returned to the City Last Evening After a Trip to Secure Horses

Mr. R. H. Leary returned to the city last evening after a trip to Alnwick and Vernonville for the purpose of buying horses. He brought eight fine animals, and they will be shipped to Winnipeg along with some others probably Monday. Mr. Leary states that good animals are very scarce and high prices are demanded. He left Alnwick in the morning about five o'clock and covered about fifty miles reaching town about six o'clock yesterday evening.

The roads are in good condition, but considerable trouble was experienced in bringing the horses such a long distance. They are all a sound looking lot of animals and will no doubt bring fancy prices when they reach Winnipeg.

OF INTEREST

By One Who Saw Fitzgerald

Nothing can be more extraordinary in the history of posthumous reputations than the slow but persistent growth of Edward Fitzgerald's. The translator-poet of the "Omar Khayyam" died in 1883, and for a time the world took no cognisance of his loss, says his grand-niece, Mary Eleanor Fitzgerald-Kerrick; but now, as she puts it, his reputation "has almost reached the perilous dignity of a cult." So great was Fitzgerald's seclusion during his lifetime, she asserts, that most of the people who have written about him "never saw him, never fell under the charm of his smile, so beautiful, so unforgetable revelation of a tender, charitable, crystalline spirit, incapable of a mean, a selfish an untruthful thought—never heard his rhythmic voice, nor knew the shy courtesy of his manner, his own manner which hedged him about from the impertinences of the would-be familiar." It is something to their honor and also much to his, insists this pious relative, that "though their portraits have shown some whimsicalities, some gentle foibles, no worse, now the other all have given up the presentment of an honorable, truthful, upright life of a humble, brave, generous soul." It is something more perhaps to get the testimony of one who did see him, and saw him first when she was a child and formed an impression of one whose manner to children was somewhat that of a courtier. This is shown in an account she furnishes in The Nineteenth Century and After (March), of a journey she took with him in his boat from Woodbridge to Aldburgh. She writes:

"Perhaps I was five years old not more, but of that day, of the sighing of the wind in the sails and cordage of the slippery white deck, the stuffiness of the small cabin of Fitzgerald's presence, of his slow melodious voice, of the strenuous motion of the vessel and the sensation of ceaseless flight I have a clear, though disjointed vision and memory. Fitzgerald treated children—of whom he was a great observer and passionately fond—with a dignified courtesy which, while it appalled their elders, had no other effect on those infallible judges of character—young persons of the age to be inordinately addicted to balls, hoops, kites and hop-scotch—than to make them anxious of attracting his attention and ready to listen to and sometimes dispute his words of wisdom. 'No no; play fair, play fair,' was his frequent adjuration. On a sweetly dignified maiden aged three in a French hood, who laid the tiniest dimpled brown hand in his long, fine-fingered nervous one—she met his polite inquiry as to her name with a gentle but firm taciturnity—he passed the amused and relevant judgment. 'She is very discreet,' and allowed no unwise urging to a reply. He had come out of his garden gate, tall, loose-limbed, in his blue coat, soft black silk cravat, and high hat, a gentleman of the early '40's on purpose to intercept and greet her; which he did as though his had been the royal presence and she the fairest debutante of her year. Her age and sex against his age and learning; they were equals."

Another view of Fitzgerald as he might often have been seen walking the narrow streets of Woodbridge comes from the recollection of childish impressions:—

"One almost looks now to meet his tall slight figure, always moving leisurely, always with the air of one constrained to be spectator at a show, and with something of melancholy, as though he too, 'saw through the tears the jugglers' leap.' In fact, he saw most things and that with the air of seeing none. We never spoke to him unless he recognized us by speaking first. He would come up the hill from Little Grange, letting himself out of the gate—such a stiff, hard-to-open jealous gate—at the end of his 'quarter-deck' the wide gravel path from which he could see a favorite windmill, and passing our garden stop to pluck one or two laurustinus leaves and perhaps speak to or watch us children in our swing. I think the motion fascinated him as we went high and higher—afraid but triumphant—at length to let ourselves 'die' as we called it. 'At the time we thought little of those now dearly remembered appearances, nor ever imagined that our grave, quiet uncle's thoughts—such was his art—and in other grooves than our own. He spoke to us of simple things, our pet doves—he gave them a round wicker cage, do such cages exist anywhere now save in a memory and in old wooden cuts; the amber he had lately had the rare good fortune to find on Felixstowe beach, of which I have a little droughty shapen heart, a little heart pierced by a thread-like gold ring; the probability that his hens would give us a basketful of brown eggs; Mrs Howe's gingerbread; or a book left open on the Little Grange library table, into which we might look—we might not look into all—or there was a delightful and mysterious looking parcel awaiting us there—who knew what might not be in it."

Of the Fitzgerald "cult" and what he might think of it his niece ventures this comment;

"Quotations from Omar are in the mouths of every cultured "miss" in real life and in fiction. Half-crown and penny magazines alike drag in his name. No novelist of pretension is happy unless one chapter boast a quotation as headline or some heroine goes through the psychological moment of her existence with the "Rubaiyat" at hand on her dressing table to point out to her the nothingness of all things. In every conceivable binding and at all variety of price it lies on the bookshop counters and railway stalls.

"Fitzgerald certainly never foresaw this fruit of his leisurely labors. I take leave to doubt, ungracious although that may seem to an appreciative public, whether he would have wished for or liked it. Cheap indiscriminate admiration he gave to neither person nor thing; it was his abhorrence. Would he have welcomed it lavished on himself, so little understood when living; on his work, possibly so little understood now."

London, April 16.—The body of Algernon Charles Swinburne, the poet, was laid at rest yesterday in the churchyard of St. Boniface, Bonchurch, Isle of Wight. In accordance with the wishes of the poet, the burial ceremony was omitted. THE LOCAL OPTION MOVEMENT IN THE CITY

The Matter Appearing in This Department is Furnished by the Peterborough Temperance and Moral Reform League Which Has Arranged for its Publication.

THE FIGHT BECOMING INTERESTING

The publication this week, at the instigation of the representatives of the liquor interests, of the names of the 1500 or more people who signed the petition to the city council asking that a vote be taken next January on the question of local option has injected fresh interest in the local campaign fight.

The temperance people were surprised to see this list published. They had given some of those who had signed the petition to understand that their names would not be printed in the city papers. They did not expect that the liquor interests would want to have it published. It was not anticipated that they would want to pay to advertise the fact that over 1500 of the best citizens of Peterborough had signed the petition. And yet they did. And as the petition, when once it had been presented to the city council, became public property they could not be prevented from publishing it.

A number of the ratepayers, when they signed the petition, did so with the distinct understanding that they were not pledging themselves to vote for local option. They were willing that the matter should be submitted to the people for a vote. They were not willing to pledge themselves to vote for local option when the vote is taken. While the great majority of those who signed the petition will vote for local option there is no means of telling who they are. What the representatives of the liquor interests hoped to gain by publishing the list is, therefore, hard to fathom. Perhaps they will tell us!

THE ATTITUDE OF THE LOCAL PAPERS

The local papers have been criticised on the ground that they have not been fair to the temperance side. Early this year the representatives of the City Temperance League entered into an arrangement with both the city evening papers that is working out in a satisfactory and harmonious manner. While some slight misunderstandings occurred last week, that is all they were. The papers have proposed, and their offer has been accepted by the Temperance League that when articles bearing on the present campaign, that are not of immediate news value, are furnished by the League for publication it shall be stated in connection with these articles that they are furnished by the League. When the representatives of the liquor interests furnish articles for publication the same rule will hold good.

COME OUT IN THE OPEN

The leaders of those who are opposed to local option are hereby invited to come forward and discuss this question in the public press so that the ratepayers of Peterborough may have ample opportunity to weigh the arguments of both sides. It will not be fair to refrain from advancing their arguments until the last couple of weeks of the campaign when it will be too late to gather the information that may be required in order that they may be answered effectively.

Some of the opponents of local option are going around claiming, wherever they think that it will do any good, that local option is proving a failure in other places, that it will increase the taxes in Peterborough, that it cannot be enforced, that it will create dives and so on. These are the old, old arguments that have done duty for years. The experiences of other cities that have carried local option have proved them to be fallacious.

If, therefore, those who still use these arguments will only come out in the open and state frankly that their objections to local option are and if they will make a few clear cut, definite statements in support of their claims, it will facilitate a thorough discussion of the matter. Let us hear from you. The year is young but that is all the better.

THE SALOONS ARE GOING

The temperance workers in Peterborough have been encouraged lately to put forth fresh efforts, by the splendid victories the temperance forces have been gaining recently both in other parts of Canada and in the United States. After a hot fight that has been waged in the State of Michigan for weeks and in which the liquor and temperance forces spent many thousands of dollars in the holding of meetings and the distribution of literature, twenty out of twenty-seven counties have recently voted in favor of prohibition thus closing six hundred saloons and seven breweries.

During the past year the victories that have been gained by the temperance forces in the United States have meant the closing of almost 11,000 saloons, approximately 325,000 square miles have been added to the no license area and the population now living in dry territory has been increased by over 4,300,000 people. In spite of this, some people try to tell us that we are not ripe for local option in Peterborough. If so, it must be that we are content to lag behind other communities in the movement to shake off the shackles of the liquor traffic that is now sweeping over the continent.

During the past few months Illinois has closed 1500 saloons. Fifty-seven out of 66 counties in Ohio that have voted on the question have voted dry. Indiana has voted 720 saloons out of existence, Iowa 461, Wisconsin over 400, Connecticut 300, Massachusetts 215, and many others about the same. The city of Baltimore alone has closed 393 saloons. In the State of California there are 180 cities and towns and six counties that have driven out the liquor traffic.

WILL BENEFIT LOCAL MEN

A local saloon keeper asked a Peterborough merchant recently if he was going to vote to take the bread and butter out of the mouths of the hotel keepers. The merchant told him that while the adoption of local option might take some of the ice cream and cake out of their mouths he did not believe that it would take away their bread and butter as they would be pretty sure to get their bread and butter in some other line of work. It is altogether likely that after local option carries the Peterborough saloon men then will be glad that they are out of the business. This is indicated by the fact that in several places where local option has carried the saloon keepers have expressed their satisfaction at being out of the business.

The saloon keepers of Chattanooga, Tennessee have been forced out of the business as a result of recent legislation in that state. Mike O'Grady, who used to be in the liquor business, has since made the following statement: "It is my belief that after the whiskey men become settled in some other field of endeavor they will bless the people who liberated them from the official tax gatherer, the extortionate landlord and the voracious political grafter. Ours is anything but a pleasant life. We are villified by the preachers, scorned by the church people, damned by the toper, bled by the politician, and drawn and quartered by the landlord." And all for the sake of a few tainted dollars. Surely the saloon men of Peterborough ought to rejoice when they are out of the miserable business.

OVER 50 WHO NEED LOCAL OPTION

In the city of Peterborough there are some 50 men to whom the saloon keepers have been forbidden by the law to sell liquor. These men have been placed on the "Indian List" by their relatives, by their employers or at their own request on account of their inability to resist the temptation to drink liquor to excess. Many of them have been confirmed drunkards. A large proportion of them are the product of Peterborough saloons. They have squandered their money, their time, their health, their self-respect and much of their future in Peterborough bar rooms. To save them from possible utter ruin the law has now stepped in and forbidden the hotelkeepers to sell them any more liquor.

What have we, the ratepayers of Peterborough, got to say for ourselves? We give the saloons of Peterborough the right, by licensing them, to practically ruin men and then we try to step in at the last moment to save the drunkards manufactured by these saloons from complete ruin. By carrying local option next January we will not only put temptation further away from these 50 men but we will prevent there being any saloons in Peterborough to turn out any more such products. What better proof is required of the need that exists here in Peterborough for the adoption of local option?

CAMPAIGN NOTES

When a man tells you that we could not enforce local option in Peterborough he tells you that we are not fit to govern ourselves and that saloon interests are stronger than law and order.

When a man tells you that local option is not a success where it has been tried ask him how it is that over 100 municipalities in Ontario including Owen Sound that have had local option for several years have not repealed it although they might have had they so desired. Challenge him to name three places in Ontario that have had local option that have repealed it. He will have troubles of his own if you do.

When a man tells you that it will increase our taxes if we carry local option ask him how much extra taxes we now have to pay for extra police protection to maintain prisoners in our gaols and to support poor people all because of the drink traffic.

There are certain hotelkeepers in Peterborough who are not helping themselves or their cause by endeavoring to browbeat and scare certain of Peterborough's business men and ratepayers into voting against local option. Free men will not allow themselves to be scared or forced into doing what is not right and they will resent such attempts.

Are you doing what you can to help the local option campaign? Do not be afraid to show your colors. You should be proud to do so. Talk local option wherever you go. It is a great privilege.

BANISH PIMPLES AND ERUPTIONS

Everyone Needs a Tonic in the Spring to Build up the Blood

If you want new health and strength in the spring you must build up your blood with a tonic medicine. After the long indoor winter months are past people feel depressed and easily tired. This means that the blood is impure and watery. That is what causes pimples and unsightly eruptions. To this same condition is due attacks of rheumatism, the sharp stabbing pains of neuralgia, poor appetite, frequent headaches and a desire to avoid exertion. These troubles can all be banished by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose of this medicine makes new, rich blood, which drives out impurities, stimulates every organ, strengthens every nerve and brings a feeling of new health and energy to weak, tired-out, ailing men and women. Mrs. Frank Murphy, Clark's Harbor, N.S., says:—"A year ago I was completely rundown and my work became a burden to me. I felt tired all the time, and could scarcely drag myself about. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after taking three or four boxes was again in the best of health. I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will prove a friend in need to all who are weak and ailing."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ECZEMA LODGES IN THE SKIN

Not a Blood Disease --- Cured by Oil of Wintergreen Compound

For many years eczema was supposed to be a blood disease and was erroneously treated as such, but now, the best authorities agree that eczema is only a skin disease and must be cured through the skin. The eminent skin specialist, Dr. D. D. Dennis, first discovered the eczema germ, and his discovery was quickly taken up in both Germany and France.

To kill the eczema germ and at the same time heal the skin, Dr. Dennis compounded oil of wintergreen, thymol glycerine, etc. The remedy is a liquid, not a mere salve, hence it sinks right into the pores to the skin. Washing with this oil of wintergreen compound seems to take the itch away at once; soon the scales drop away and the disease disappears. The prescription has now been used so long as to have proven its absolute merit.

More bread and Better bread

—And the Reason for it

A STRONG FLOUR can only be made from strong wheat. Manitoba hard wheat is acknowledged the strongest in the world—and that is the kind used for Purity Flour.

But that's not all. Every grain of this wheat contains both high-grade and low-grade properties. In separating the high-grade parts from the low-grade the Western Canada Flour Mills put the hard wheat through a process so exacting that not a single low-grade part has the remotest chance of getting in with the high-grade.

Of course this special process is more expensive to operate but it means a lot to Purity flour users—that's why we use it.

It means that Purity Flour is made entirely of the highest-grade flour parts of the strongest wheat in the world.

It means a high-class, strong flour and therefore yields "more bread and better bread."

Purity may cost a little more than some flours, but results prove it the cheapest and most economical after all.

The Price of Coal.

Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Why are we charged so much for coal in this city in comparison with prices charged elsewhere. In Millbrook best anthracite hard coal has been supplied to consumers during the past winter at $7.00 per ton, Peterborough price $7.50. After Monday when summer rates comes in the Millbrook price will be $6.25. The Board of Trade might look into this matter and see if the trouble lies in the freight rates.
